MEN IN CONGRESS IN CHARGE OF REGULATION OF "BIG BUSINESS."

Chairmen and Associates Are Practicing Attorneys With One Exception.

A Bigger Undertaking Than Either the Tariff or Currency Problems.

NINE Democrats in the senate and fourteen in the house of representatives, constituting the majority membership of the house judiciary committee and the senate interstate commerce committee, are to frame legislation intended to strengthen and supplement the Sherman anti-trust law, under which the present administration will endeavor to regulate and control the affairs of "big business." This proposed legislation at the present time is in the form of the "five brothers" bills, which are pending in the house.

No proposition of greater importance ever has come before congress than this proposed effort to place a limit upon organized business.

Task Greater Than Tariff.

Public men who are preparing to give the trust question their consideration are agreed that it will require far greater statesmanship to settle it without doing injury than was required either with regard to the tariff or the revision of the currency laws. Both those questions related only to certain phases of certain lines of the trade and commerce of the United States.

Trust legislation embraces every conceivable form of industrial and commercial activity and every possible manner of conducting business affairs it means an effort to impose restrictions and to erect safeguards. The mere necessity for such legislation suggests a conflict between capital on the one hand and labor and the consumer on the other. It seeks to define definitely and with exactness a square and fair way of transacting business, deviation from which means violation of law and punishment.

The bills as now drawn have the O. K. of the president, in whose possession they were for a day or more. If changes are made it will be after house proceedings have demonstrated the necessity of modifying them. The fundamentals of the bills will stand and become law.

Plans of the Bills.

The bills may be briefly summarized as follows:

First.—A bill creating the interstate trade commission.

Second.—A bill to regulate directorates of corporations and to prohibit interlocking directorates.

Third.—A bill defining unlawful monopoly or restraints of trade.

Fourth.—The trade relations bill, which, among other things, forbids unfair trade practices, such as underselling in one locality to stifle competition and recouping the losses thus sustained by raising prices in localities where there is no competition.

The bill forbidding interlocking directorates provides two years of leeway, during which the holding membership on the boards of directors of interstate coal, steel and iron, common carrier corporations, banks and trust companies may be relinquished.

A second section of the bill specifically forbids the holding of directorships by one individual in two or more financial institutions enjoying the protection and provisions of the new currency law.

A fine of $100 for every day during which the provisions of the foregoing section are violated is provided. A fourth section establishes the dictum that disobedience of the eliminating provisions of the measure shall be sufficient to constitute conclusive evidence of infringement of the Sherman anti-trust law itself by the corporations whose boards contain duplications of individual directorships.

The bill to make clearer the definition of monopolies and restraints of trade specifically forbids the following:

Combinations to create or carry out restrictions in trade or to acquire a monopoly in any interstate trade, business or commerce; to limit or reduce the production or increase the price of merchandise or of any commodity; to prevent competition in the manufacturing, making, transporting, selling or purchasing of merchandise, produce or any commodity; to make an agreement, arrangement or understanding, directly or indirectly, to prevent the free and unrestricted competition in the sale, production or transportation.

The penalties for violating any of these provisions run against any person, firm or corporation, and the fine shall not exceed $5,000, with imprisonment for one year as an alternative, or both penalties, in the discretion of the court. A section of the bill makes the officers, directors and agents of the corporation equally guilty with the corporation for any acts proved against the corporation.

The trade relations bill proposes to add five sections to the Sherman law, defining what shall be classed as unlawful trade practices.

Another section of this bill permits an injured party to take advantage of proofs established by the government as to the character of any unlawful combination in the suit against such corporation to recover damages under the Sherman law.

A section of the anti-trust program specifically prohibiting holding companies is to be added later.

Newlands, Clayton and Webb.

With a single exception every member of the senate interstate commerce committee and the house judiciary committee is a practicing attorney. The exception is Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, who in his autobiography classes himself as a merchant and planter.

Senator Francis G. Newlands of Nevada, chairman of the senate committee, is a man of affairs. He is a lawyer by profession and owns numerous properties of his own and is a stockholder in certain industries. Senator Newlands has been in the house or senate since the Fifty-third congress.

Representative Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, chairman of the house judiciary committee, is rounding out his ninth continuous term in congress and is considered one of the "seasoned" legislators of the lower body. Before his advent into Washington he served a term in the Alabama legislature, and previous to that was United States district attorney for four years. In his career in the house he has taken part in the floor discussions of every important matter of legislation, especially those concerning the judiciary, in recent years.

Representative Edwin Y. Webb has practiced law in North Carolina for twenty years. Before he went to congress eleven years ago he served in the state senate with distinction. He is the author of the Webb liquor law, which prohibits the shipment of liquor from a wet state into a dry state.

Representative Charles C. Carlin of Virginia, like all of his colleagues on the judiciary committee, is a practicing attorney. He has been a member of the house for almost eight years.

Representative John C. Floyd of Arkansas has practiced law since 1882. Before he was elected to congress eight years ago he had served two terms in the Arkansas legislature and had been a prosecuting attorney of his county.

Representative Robert Y. Thomas, Jr., of Kentucky, is serving his third term in the house. He was a member of the Kentucky legislature in 1886 and was commonwealth's attorney for the Seventh judicial district in Kentucky until elected to congress.

Long In State Legislature.

Representative Henry Garland Dupre of Louisiana before he was elected congress in 1910 had served ten years as a member of the Louisiana legislature, of which body he was speaker from 1908 to 1910. He has practiced law in New Orleans since 1885 and for a number of years was assistant city attorney of New Orleans.

Representative Walter Irving McCoy of New Jersey has been a practicing attorney in New York city since he was graduated from Harvard law school in 1886. He is serving his second term in the house and previously had held no public office except that of trustee of the city of East Orange, N. J., which is his home.

Representative Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Maine was mayor of his home city, Lewiston, in 1887, 1890 and 1902. He was a member of the Maine legislature in 1884-5.

Representative Jack Beall of Texas was elected to congress ten years ago but previous to that had served in the Texas legislature from 1892 to 1896 and in the Texas senate from 1894 to 1898.

Representative Joseph Taggart of Kansas is starting on his second term in the house. He was elected and twice re-elected prosecuting attorney of Wyandotte county, Kan.

Representative Louis FitzHenry of Illinois, who is serving his first term, has practiced law since 1897 and served two terms as city attorney of Bloomington. He entered newspaper work at an early age.

Degrees From Three Colleges.

Representative John F. Carew of New York has degrees from three colleges. He has practiced law continuously in New York city since 1897. He is serving his first term in congress.

Representative John B. Peterson of Indiana, according to the autobiography in the Congressional Record, has engaged in business pursuits in addition to the profession of law. He has practiced law at Crown Point, Ind., since 1870, but he is also president of two banks, one at Crown Point and the other at East Chicago, Ind.

Representative John J. Mitchell, who is one of the younger members of the judiciary committee, served both in the Massachusetts house of representatives and the state senate before he was elected to congress a year ago.

450 GIRLS SAVED IN $150,000 FIRE AT NEWARK

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Newark, March 14—450 girls marched safely out of the building occupied by the Baker Printing Company on Market street, this morning, when fire started in the structure. Before the flames had been placed under control it was necessary to send in four alarms of fire, and $150,000 worth of the property had been lost. It was the hardest fire to fight that the Newark department has encountered in some years. At noon it was completely under control. The girls were employed in a skirt factory which occupied part of the building owned by the Baker concern.

BENEVOLENT BAND HOLDS SUCCESSFUL TEA AND SALE

Under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters, a successful sale and tea was held at the home of Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, on Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The affair was largely attended and the net proceeds will be about $100. A feature of the affair was "fortune telling" by Miss Gwendolyn Gough, which afforded lots of amusement.

Those who poured tea were Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey and Mrs. F. S. Martin, and those wh oassisted were Miss Hope Ivins, Miss Carolyn Martin, Miss Louise Booth, Miss Dorothy Parvin and Miss Holstein. Members of the society presided at the tables at which there was sold cake, candy and fancy work. The social features were greatly enjoyed by all present.

WHAT BOROUGH PARENTS ARE DOING.

In a talk the other day the editor of the Daily Press asked me what was the matter with the North Plainfield people, as there always seems to be a disturbance there about school matters.

My answer was: "There is nothing the matter with the people of North Plainfield."

I added then, and am glad of the opportunity to say it publicly here, there is a mistaken idea afloat in regard to all this activity. What the press of Plainfield and many of our citizens mistake for criticism and disturbance is, in reality, an awakening interest ,especially on the part of the women of our borough, in our public schools and the economic problems which confront our Mayor and Council.

These problems are probably no harder to solve than those of other municipalities, but the conditions under which we are laboring are of an unusual order.

At a public meeting recently held in our borough, one of our citizens exactly described the situation in North Plainfield when he called it a "Peculiar Municipality."

I do not intend to try to explain this "peculiar" condition. I wish that some of our citizens, thoroughly conversant with the taxation of North Plainfield, would give such an explanation in the columns of your paper.

Knowledge—that is what the women of our borough are after. They are trying to understand the situation. They feel that they have the right to information. Our children spend half their thinking hours in school. A mother's care should following them there as surely as it should surround them in their homes. But those who think this investigation is of a critical or fault-finding nature are most certainly mistaken.

I have been a resident of North Plainfield for fourteen years. My children have grown up in the schools. The same questions are being asked today that I have heard asked every one of those years, but with this difference. In the years that have passed the fathers and mothers of the borough have said, in the privacy of their homes, among their neighbors or to their most intimate friends, "I wonder why such and such things are as they are? I wonder why we cannot have this or that in our schools? I wonder why our boys and girls must study this or that subject?"

This attitude of indifferent questioning has gradually changed. Questions grew louder and more insistent. Today we no longer say "We wonder why." We come out in the open and say, "explain to us these things." It is not criticism. It is not fault-finding. It is because we want to understand so that we may be in a position to help. We are gradually receiving our answers.

It gives me pleasure to testify that I have never yet called upon one in authority to ask "why," that I have not been received with the greatest courtesy and as far as it was in their power my questions have been fully answered. As I look back over the work of the past year it seems to me I have been asking some one something most of the time, and every answer seems to suggest two more questions. This has been the experience of many mothers who are interested in this movement. But because we ask "why" it does not necessarily follow that we are at sword's points with each other or with the "powers that be."

For years our Board of Education has been urging upon the parents of North Plainfield, especially the mothers, the necessity of more sympathy with our school work, more understanding of the laws by which our schools are governed, more interest in the men who are to represent us on that board.

For years the teachers have begged for heartier co-operation on the part of the mothers. Their cry has been, "why does not every mother help us to a better understanding of her children's abilities and peculiarities. How can they expect us to do our best work unless they do their share?" Today the mothers are waking up to their responsibilties. They realize that the teachers have cause for complaint. In order to understand the difficult problems which our Board of Education must solve and settle they must better understand the laws that govern our schools.

What happened when we reached this point in our deliberations? An epidemic of associations, societies and committees struck the town. As I am an interested member of several of these bodies I feel that I can speak with authority upon their general object and aims. We want to understand and we want to help. We may differ on the best way to get results. It is unfortunate that every one cannot agree on all subjects, only if they did what would become of the newspapers? That we have made mistakes I am ready to grant. Let the one who has never made a mistake be loud in censure. We have been criticized far more than we criticize; have been misunderstood far more than we misunderstand. Yet we go on asking "why?" Beginning at the School Board this led us straight to our "peculiar municipality" and then on to Trenton and the State Board. Yet like Kipling's "Elephant's Child" the mothers of North Plainfield are still full of "satiable curiosity." We believe more interest in the moulding of the coming man and woman means less need in years to come for charity organizations and prisons. We are out to help not hinder the School Board and teachers in the work which has been intrusted to them. Our difficulties are none of them insurmountable. If we cannot have just what we want we must learn to be satisfied with the many good things we have. This is a campaign in the best interest of our children. This is the "considerable disturbance" in North Plainfield. Be lenient with us if we make a few mistakes.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS BECOME FRIENDLY

Unable to Secure Food They Are Forced to Near-Domesticity to Keep Alive.

Unable to secure food in the natural way because of the unusual severity of the winter, and the many weeks of snow covered ground, protected game in this vicinity has been forced to near-domesticity to keep alive. In consequence, many animals and birds have discarded their timidity to keep from starving and numerous peculiar cases have been reported. One of the most unusual of these comes from Robert Rogers, tax collector of New Providence township, whose farm is located near Berkeley Heights.

While feeding his flock of chickens one morning a few days ago, he was surprised to see two large English pheasants flutter from a thicket and snatch greedily at the corn with which the fowls were being fed. Despite his presence, when their appetites were appeased they made off leisurely. The next day four pheasants crowded among the barnyard fowl and since then the number has been increasing daily until now an even dozen breakfast with the chickens regularly. They pay no attention to Mr. Rogers, although he does nothing to alarm them, and always fly away after eating their fill.

A few nights ago six chickens were killed by a mink, which entered the coop of Floyd Simmons, of Berkeley Heights, and Robert Rogers, Jr., set out to track the animal. The trail well defined in the snow, was easily followed, but it led a distance of four miles to what are known locally as the "Fox Rocks," back of the estate of Mount St. Mary College. The long distance shows to what extent the mink was driven in order to obtain a supply of food. At Meyersville near Stirling, two deer have been seen pulling hay from a stack on the farm of Charles Miller. This has occurred on two occasions. Reer have been unheard of so near to Plainfield in many years.

Farmers living near Marcella, in Morris county, have reported to Game Warden William Young that several deer are starving to death in the woods, unable either to get out or to secure food because of the deep snows. The warden has announced that he will have fodder left where the animals can easily get it. The supply will be furnished until the animals can shift for themselves.

THE FORUM.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press

Rarely have the sidewalks in Plainfield been in such a bad condition as at present. Almost everywhere streams are trickling from the property side of the walks; and as many, very many paving stones are badly settled, inclining toward the curb, the water collects to a depth of an inch or more. Should a cold snap come and freeze the accumulations of water, the sidewalks would be impassable. Now all this could be avoided if the snow were removed for about a foot on the upper (that is the property line) side of the walk, for then the water would soak in to the ground. Where this has been done, either by the occupant or the sun, the walks are dry. But few citizens are public spirited enough to have the necessary work done, and so we must all slush through and get along as best we can. Possibly herein can be found a partial answer to the question What is the matter with Plainfield? Lack of civic pride and absence of civic service. But the city authorities are not blameless, for in front of many vacant houses and unimproved lots the snow has not been removed, but has been allowed to melt slowly. The crosswalks are in worse condition. At some corners one has either to wade ankle deep, or make a detour out into the sloppy street. The gutters are not kept open. What is the matter with the Plainfield authorities charged with the care of the streets? You have been urging in your paper that every citizen "do it for Plainfield." Here is a good place to commence.

EDWARD C. PEARSON.
March 12, 1914.

CONSOLIDATION IS NEEDED

the ratables of a municipality the lower the tax rate. If one adds together the ratables of the borough and Plainfield, the total is $32,000,000. This, under consolidation would bring the tax rate in the borough down from $2.26 to $1.94. The counay tax of Union county is thirty-four and one-half points. Somerset county's tax is about double.

"Twenty-five years ago there were many stores on Somerset street. Today there are but few. Most of the business has gone over to Plainfield. Ninety per cent. of all that goes into your homes comes from Plainfield. If your money goes there, as it does today, you are depleting the wealth of North Plainfield and increasing the wealth of Plainfield, to the detriment of the borough. There are numerous large properties on Front street that ten years ago could easily have been bought for $25,000, but which could not be bought today under $100,000. The assessed valuation of Somerset street properties, from a point at French's carriage factory to a point on Greenbrook road, is I find only $72,000. In about the same distance, in Plainfield, from a point on Madison avenue on the west to a point on Watchung avenue on the east, the assessed valuation of properties is $1,750,000."

Following the address the audience was invited to ask Mayor Clark any questions they liked in regard to the annexation and consolidation project. Numerous persons took advantage of the opportunity and the informal discussion proved most interesting. Refreshments were served afterwards.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Commencing Sunday evening, and continuing every evening during next week but Saturday, S. L. Kendrick, who, for many years has been actively engaged in evangelistic work,largely in the mountains of Virginia, will hold a series of revival meetings in the hall at 110 Liberty street, near West Front street. The services each evening will commence at 8 o'clock The public is invited.

REDUCTIO AD ABSURDUM.

Being a tabloid epic of shattered hopes and busted ideals.
(Respectfully dedicated to our senior United States Senator.)

Upon the street quite recently, the query's oft been heard
"Why don't they name a Democrat, to take the place of Bird?
There are so many candidates, this hold-back seems absurd."
To some this question sounds all right, and yet it's all awry.
Instead of having lots to spare, of candidates they're shy.
They've been eliminated all; this rhyme will tell you why:
Ten little candidates, standing in a line,
Bart. was much too young, they said, and that left only nine.
Nine little candidates, glad to pay the freight,
Arthur galloped off the course, and that left only eight.
Eight little candidates, asking help of heaven,
Clarence was a boroughite, so that left only seven.
Seven little candidates, playing politics,
John once voted G. O. P.—that left only six.
Six little candidates, very much alive,
Fred was butchered by his rivals—that left only five.
Five little candidates, Harry trying to score,
Someone cuffed and mangled him, and that left only four.
Four little candidates, busy as can be,
Al could not express himself, and that left only three.
Three little candidates, with John A. almost through,
But Johnnie couldn't stand the gaff; that left only two.
Two little candidates, making quite a run,
Herbert stopped to argufy, and that left only one.
One little candidate, posing as a hero,
Patsey talked too bloomin' much, now all that's left is zero.

NOTE:—This last line is not quite accurate, and the bard who penned it certainly worked his poetic license overtime. The elimination of ten candidates for the postmastership is a mere bagatelle and leaves at least seven hundred and forty-nine other patriots, ready and willing, aye, eager to serve their country. Incidentally our dear old friend, Elias H. Bird, croons softly to himself, murmuring betimes those grand old words of Tennyson, "Ish ka bibble."

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of base-ball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

THIEVES ENTERED MAYOR'S HOME BUT GOT NOTHING

Returning to his home in Fanwood this morning, after an absence since last Wednesday, Mayor William H Hoard, found that the place had been ransacked from top to bottom by someone who had entered through a window on the first floor. The miscreant broke several panes of glass in the doors, but as far as can be learned took nothing.

It is the opinion of those who are investigating the case that the deed was committed by someone who lives in the immediate vicinity of the Hoar home and several clues are being followed by the police of that place.

The accident delayed the train for sometime but none was injured.

REMOVED DANGEROUS ICE.

Workmen accustomed to dizzy heights were engaged yesterday in dislodging large masses of snow and ice that had collected on the sphere of the Crescent Avenue church. Several big chunks had fallen during the past week and punched holes in the slate roof of the church proper. The frozen particles were very large, menacing pedestrians as well as property.

THOMAS TIMBO & CO. RESTAURANT CLOSED TODAY

The Thomas Timbo & Co. restaurant, which has been doing business for the past six months at 117 North avenue, closed its doors today. A lack of patronage and the high price of supplies, making profits too small, is given by Mr. Timbo as the cause of failure. Most of the fixtures and equipment for the business have been sold at private sale during the past week. Mr. Timbo's plans for the future are not complete but he intends opening a small lunch room and cigar store as soon as his affairs permit.

The store in which the restaurant has been conducted has been leased by the MacDonald Company, which now operates an eating place at 144 North avenue, for a period of five years. The latter concern will remove as soon as necessary repairs and alterations are made.

BISHOP COURTNEY PLEASED HOLY CROSS AUDIENCE

Pleading that all should strive to live Christian lives and more in obedience to the teachings of Jesus Christ, Rt. Rev. Frederick Courtney, former bishop of Nova Scotia, addressed an appreciative audience Thursday night at the Lenten service held at Holy Cross Episcopal church. The rector, Rev. Charles H. Kues, was assisted in the services by Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, and Rev. Warner E. L. Ward, of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood. Special music was furnished by the choir under Organist Davis.

"Parables," said he, "are illustrations of God's kingdom, but there is no parable that expresses the kingdom of God in full. God has done his part. He has planted you in the garden of love, has made known his love and has imparted his spirit to you all. 'For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.' Then the harvest has come.

"Some day we shall see the heavenly angel sitting upon that heavenly throne and they will represent the kingdom of the world. The harvest of the year will be gathered and joy to the Christian will be two fold. Where are you to be at that appointed time? Do you but lead true Christian lives, as sure as the harvest follows the sowing of the seed you will, in full season, be gathered into the heavenly fold. For remember that He knoweth the way I came and when He calls I will come forth'."

Special prayers were offered for the recovery of Bishop John Scarborough of the diocese, who is ill at his home in Trenton. Next Thursday evening the preacher at Holy Cross church will be Rev. S. H. Watkins, the chaplain of the City Prison and the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary, in New York.

THE WHOLE TANGO PROGRAM IS A BIG NIGHT'S WORK

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

NO ENMITY EXISTS BETWEEN THE TEAMS

Article in the Daily Press Has Evidently Brought Players to Their Senses.

Following the publication of an article in these columns in regard to the game played between the Plainfield High School and Leal School basketball teams on the Y. M. C. A. court, Wednesday afternoon, we have received the communication published below from the captains and coaches of the teams involved. We are only too glad to give prominence to a reply of this nature and are particularly glad to see that the story we published has produced harmony between the two factions which were certainly on hostile footing in a most unfriendly and unsportsmanlike way Wednesday afternoon for forty minutes.

Sporting Editor of the Press:
Plainfield, N. J.
Dear Sir

While we dislike to enter into newspaper controversies, the undersigned feel bound to reply thru your column to the charges contained in the issue of the Daily Press of March 12, in regard to ill feeling and dirty play during the Leals-Plainfield basketball game of March 11.

As the charges referred to are a reflection upon the sportsmanship of the undersigned as well as that of the other members of the two teams, we wish to thus publicly deny that there is or has been recently, any thing but the most friendly feeling between the student bodies and teams of these two schools. Further, we are of the opinion that the charges contained in the Daily Press are absolutely false and, that the irresponsible publication of such charges is detrimental both to the good name of the schools involved, and to the interests of school sport.

We hope that you will give this statement publicity equal to that given to the charges to which we have referred.

C. D. WARDLAW,
Coach Leal's School.
F. T. DICKERSON, Jr.,

LEAL WILL PLAY ON CRESCENT OVAL

Another Season of the Diamond Sport on Historic Field Before it "Dies."

Manager Orton Dale, of the Leal School baseball team, has completed negotiations for the use of Crescent Oval during the coming season, and it is now certain that the private school boys will once again perform on the lot that has made the diamond sport famous in this city. Although it was proposed to cut the diamond up into building lots early last summer, the only changes that have been made up to the present time are the destruction of the grandstand and bleacher seats and temporary quarters can be erected with little expense.

It is now certain that all of the Leal School games will be played at this rendezvous and this provides a home for the private school combination, a thing that has been hanging fire for some time past. Cricket Field was also considered as a playing center for the Front street crew, but the Crescent Oval met with general satisfaction and it was secured after much dickering with the firm that owns the place.

"Sportdom Tips"

Evidence of the fact that basketball players forget hostilities after they leave the court is contained in a letter published in these columns today, which has come from those interested in athletics in the two local schools that were participants in the Interscholastic Basketball League race this season. Our article on the situation in question was prompted by specific instances and remarks passed by those directly interested in the athletic welfare of the two institutions. When players engage in pugilistic tactics during a basketball game and try to put each other out of the way via the shortest possible route the game has taken a turn in the wrong direction and all the petitions that could be drawn up would not convince those who witness such an encounter otherwise. While it is a regrettable fact that such a thing should occur between any two teams we are glad to see that those at the helm have taken steps to patch up the differences.

Such a gathering as was suggested for the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School basketball teams might also be extended to the Leal School aggregation. The season of basketball just closed has been one of unusual keenness and personal animosity, if such really does exist at this time, could be entirely wiped out by such an affair. The purposes of interscholastic competition are to promote a friendly rivalry between the two schools and to stimulate the various lines of sports. Sports have been prosperous to say the least, but there has been a noticeable lack of friendliness displayed.

Further information coming from the camp of the Boston National League club at Macon, Ga., sets aside the rumor that Jack Martin will be retired from active competition for some time to come. Jack's injury was nothing more than a slight strain and the efforts of other newspapers to startle the innocent public into believing that he would be permanently retired have received a rude jolt. He is back on the job now and is taking part in the daily practises of the Hub representatives.

A pinochle tournament in the borough was effected by the recent blizzard. Didn't know the hardy type of athletes that took part in this strenuous exercise would be troubled by such a little thing as snow.

Van Mater and Abrams are having a little post-season argument all their own for the N. P. H. S. captaincy. Why not give the suffragettes a ballot as a means of settling the controversy?

Feminine representatives of the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools' graduate forces were scheduled to meet on Saengerbund Hall, last night but an eleventh hour financial development shattered the idea. All of which strengths our belief that women are a failure in the promotion of sporting enterprises.

And yet a woman has broken into organized baseball. One of the fair sex owns the fated St. Louis Cardinals.

The old saying that the easiest way to reach a man is through his stomach would no doubt apply to those basketball factions that have been accused of naughty tactics during the past week. The suggestion that the Plainfield, North Plainfield and Leal teams be brought together under one roof is a wise one. Push it along.

Manager Leighs issues a baseball challenge as a solace to other aggregations that are after the Hope team's scalp. Nothing like getting in your bid before the season opens, Gawge.

It might be well to consider Scotch Plains' challenge for next year inasmuch as dates are mighty scarce in the West End after the season opens Headline — "Peacock sacrifices baseball for stage." Billy is following in the trail of some big leaguers who have gained renown by doing likewise.

Brains and money have been opponents in many a battle, and money hasn't always come out first best. The Federal League today has plenty of money, but the magnates don't know how to spend it. What is needed in the fold are a few sharp-witted men—men who can put over the punch when the opportunity arises. In that respect the Feds are lacking. President Gilmore is what is known as a smart man, but he doesn't know baseball. Every little while the "outlaws" "pull a Barry" play, and the only thing that keeps them in the hunt at all is the fact that the "regulars," who are bigger and stronger, "pull two Barry" plays to the "outlaws'" one.

That the status of the collegian who plays "summer baseball" will remain unchanged at the leading Eastern colleges and universities appears certain from recent statements issued by those in positions of authority. Notwithstanding that a number of varsity team captains have publicly stated their belief that a student may play baseball for money or other inducements during summer vacation and still preserve his amateur athletic status while in college, these Utopian days are not for the present world of undergraduate sport.

WITH THE BOXERS

Jimmy Clabby and Billy Murray have been matched to box in San Francisco on April 2.

Joe Jeannette knocked out a Langford in Paris the other night, but the Langford was an Arthur instead of a Samuel.

"Biz" Mackey, the Cleveland featherweight, who broke his arm in a recent bout with Joe Bowker, in England, is returning home.

Jack Britton has turned down an offer of $6,000 from Promoter Baker, of Australia. Britton says that Baker must raise the ante to $10,000 before he will consider a trip to the Antipodes.

FOR WORLD'S TENNIS TITLE.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 14—During the coming week the attention of tennis players the world over will be centered on the Philadelphia Racquet Club, where the contest for the world's court tennis championship is to be played by Jay Gould, the American and world's amateur champion, and G. F. Covey, the English expert who holds the world's professional championship. The contest will consist of the best seven out of thirteen sets. The first four sets are to be played Monday and the succeeding sets on Wednesday and Saturday. Covey, if he wins, will receive a purse of $1,250, two-thirds of the gate receipts and his expenses. If defeated by Gould, plate valued at $1,250 will be awarded the American amateur, Covey receiving expenses and two-thirds of the gate receipts. The officials selected for the contests are George R. Fearing, Jr., of Boston, who will act as referee; Edgar Scott, of the Philadelphia Racquet Club, who will call the faults, and Fred Tompkins, who will act as marker.

OLD COLLEGE PLAYER WILL TRY FOR TEAM

Manager Dorflinger Has a Wealth of Candidates From Which He Will Pick.

Following Manager Dorflinger's announcement that he would have a purely local baseball team here this season applications have been coming in on all sides from pospective candidates who have been encouraged to register their names for the opening tryout. The new idea has met with universal response and some excellent material has been brought to light in various quarters of the city and surrounding suburbs. It goes without saying that Dorflinger will have an easy time gathering together enough players of the semi-pro calibre to form a crackerjack nine and some keen competition is looked forward to when the trials are staged.

One of the promising candidates for the Plainfield team has just made his appearance and his previous records hail him as a "find." The new timber in the fold is John H Borst, of Westervelt avenue, who announced yesterday that he would be on the job this season. Borst is a graduate of Lehigh University in the class of 1910 and he managed the baseball nine during his last season in the college. Borst is only one of many prospective players and his ability extends over every position on the diamond. It is probable that he will go out for either the catcher's job or for the centre field berth.

TOM WHITAKER BUSY TAKING OUT BODIES

Former Local Physical Director Now Connected With Burned Missouri A. C.

Among those actively engaged in the work of recovering bodies from the ruins of the Missouri Athletic Club in St. Louis, which was destroyed by fire last week is Thomas Whittaker, formerly physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., who is at present coach of the Missouri A. C. swimming team. Whitaker was employed in the Plainfield association two years ago, being succeeded by Eldor C. Ostlin, the present incumbent.

Recovery of four more bodies yesterday afternoon brought the total number of dead up to twenty-three and the bodies of several more victims are believed to be in the ruins which Whitaker and a corps of men are now pulling apart.

The club, in which Whitaker is swimming instructor, has a roster of 1,500 members and was burned to the ground, many losing their lives without having a chance to escape. It was one of the best organizations in the West and had a large dormitory in which many transients were housed for the night. Shortly after the fire started the roof fell in and carried all through the wreckage. Later the walls fell in and then it was seen that there was little chance of getting anyone out alive. There were many thrilling rescues from the windows and many people took long leaps. Two men lost their lives by jumping from the sixth floor.

BASEBALL NOTES

In Covaleskie, Williams and Cavet, Manager Jennings, of the Tigers, believes he has a trio from which a dependable southpaw pitcher will be developed.

The Brooklyn Nationals have returned Pitcher Herbert to the Toronto Club, of the International League. He was drafted by the Superbas last fall.

After giving "Rabbit" Maranville the "once over," Johny Evers declared that the Braves' shortstop is destined to be one of the greatest performers in baseball.

Manager Jack Hayden, of the Louisville Colonels, will take a team of fourteen Class AA players to Cuba immediately after the close of the championship season.

At the age of twenty-five, Walter Johnson is the veteran pitcher of the Washington team. Boehling, Engel and Gallia, the other heavers, are barely out of their teens.

Arthur Devlin, former New York-Boston infielder, and now manager of the Oakland Pacific Coast League team, has decided to play third base for his team this year.

The Philadelphia world's champions have sixteen pitchers under contract. It's a cinch that several of these flingers will never perform for the Mackmen.

The Chicago White Sox have knocked off training at Paso Robles, Cal., and started for home. The regulars are in charge of Kid Gleason, while Billy Sullivan is piloting the Number 2 show.

Larry Lajoie, who has been detained in Florida several weeks by the illness of his wife, has joined the Cleveland Naps, at Athens, Ga. The great second sacker looks to be in tiptop condition.

Pitcher Gaddy, who is showing considerable speed, is the only southpaw with the Phillies at the present time. Eppa Rixey, the Phils' star left-hander, will not report until June.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Cardinals, is tackling a big job in trying to develop a new infield. The outlook is far from bright, with Konetchy and Mowrey gone and Hauser unable to play.

There may be two Class B championship series next fall. The Eastern Association and New England League have arranged for a post-season series and the New York State League will probably meet the Canadian League in a similar series.

Manager "Lefty" Davis, of the Winona team, is up against it in trying to sign his players. Davis won the Nothern League pennant last season and now every man on the team is holding out for what "Lefty" calls a big league salary.

DAVE DRISCOLL WILL COACH SETON HALL COLLEGE NINE

Dave Driscoll, formerly captain of the Plainfield baseball team, has been signed to coach the Seton Hall College nine, of South Orange, during the coming season. He returned from Porto Rico a few days ago where he has been playing on a barn storming trip with a team of International League baseball stars.

The college boys are doing light work in the gym at the present time and Driscoll has already taken charge of the squad. Seton Hall's schedule starts unusually early this season, and in two weeks the team will go South for a week's trip to play colleges in the vicinity of Washington, D. C.

"BIG SIX" IS ALSO THE KALSOMINE KING

He Has Weilded the Whitewash on Every Big League Club.

When Christy Mathewson decides to quit the National pastime he ought to start a school in which to teach the art of whitewashing, for "Big Six" could get recommendations from almost every major league team he ever faced that he is an adept in the use of the brush. The Old Master now has kalsomined all the clubs in the fast set that he has pitched against except the Red Sox and the Yankees and possesses a record of having fitted eighty jackets of white on the objecting opposition. Seventy-six of these goose-eggs affairs that Matty owns were pitched in the National League, four in series for the world's title.

The National League team that Matty has blanked oftenest is Boston, over whom he has registered fourteen shutout wins. He has fed benfruit to the Cubs thirteen times, to the Superbas twelve times, to the Reds twelve times, to the Phillies nine times, to the Pirates eight times, to the Cardinals eight times and to the White Elephants four times.

Mathewson's greatest activities in the shutout line were displayed in 1905 and 1908, he pitching twelve goose-egg games in each of those seasons. Walter Johnson, Chalmers car winner, had a dozen whitewashes to his credit last season and so had Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, of 1908. John Wesley Coombs, of the White Elephants, beating this mark in 1910 by distributing sixteen sets of ciphers.

Matty did not whitewash anybody the first year he toiled in the National League, which was 1900, but in 1901 he rid his system of five goose-egg games, pitching four prior to Decoration Day, when he met with his first defeat of the year. In his first eight games in 1901 the Old Master permitted his opponents seven runs and thirty-four hits—a record that made him a favorite at home and a great drawing card abroad.

Mathewson whitewashed all seven of the Giants' opponents in 1907 and five years later he failed to blank anyone. His average of shutouts per year (1900 not included, as he then pitched only one complete game) is 6.67, Johnson's is 6.43.

"FLICK" LUYSTER WILL PLAY AGAIN WITH LAWRENCE TEAM

Billy "Flick" Luyster, who was the star batter for the Plainfield Pets during the championship race of last fall, has signed to play with the Lawrence team, of New England League, this season. He will report to Manager Pieper sometime in May.

"Flick" recently turned down a Federal contract with Otto Knabe, of the Baltimore Orioles. Luyster is recognized as one of the best hitters on the New England circuit and it is understood that he has been offered a tempting contract by his former manager.

STILLMAN SCHOOL GIRLS ANNEX N. P. H. S. SERIES

The third and deciding game between the Stillman Grammar School girls' team and the North Plainfield High School Freshmen team was played yesterday afternoon in the Plainfield High School gymnasium. The Stillman Grammar School won the contest after a close and hard game by the score of 16 to 13. Much spirit was shown on both sides and

It was only after the hardest kind of a struggle that the Grammar School team was able to come out victorious. The North Plainfield team was greatly strengthened by the addition of Miss Spencer, who is a regular member of the first team. Miss Adams deserves a great deal of credit for holding that star forward to one field goal. Miss Simons started the scoring by shooting a foul goal, but Miss Spencer soon tied the score with another. From then on throughout the entire game the scoring was even and the first half ended at 12 to 7 in the Grammar School's favor. Miss Simons was high scorer, with ten points.

SCOTCH PLAINS REPLIES TO MANAGER GEO. LEIGHS

March 14, 1914.

Sporting Editor, Plainfield Daily Press, Plainfield, N. J.:

Dear Sir: We read with considerable surprise the letter of George T. Leighs, Sr., regarding the Scotch Plains basketball team. Mr. Leighs says that the Scotch Plains team had several games scheduled with Hope Chapel team and cancelled them all. We would like to hear from Leighs as to the dates on which we had those games scheduled. The fact is the manager of the Parish House team spoke to the manager of Hope Chapel team, George T. Leighs, Jr., early in the season and was promised a date some time later on. As time went by and nothing more was heard from him, the Scotch Plains team manager called him up at his home and spoke to Leighs, Sr., and was told that his son was ill but that he would have him write, setting a date for a game, but no communication was received.

A week before Washington's Birthday, Captain Doig, of Hope Chapel team, asked the Scotch Plains team manager to bring the team to Hope Chapel on the holiday night when a farewell reception, with game, was to be tendered to Jack Martin. That game was cancelled Washington's Birthday morning by Hope Chapel team. We will leave to the readers of this paper which team it was that backed out from any series.

As regards the challenge appearing the day after Hope Chapel team's notice we can prove that it was given to a reporter Saturday, March 7, 1914, and owing to the fact that Monday night's paper was crowded it did not appear until Tuesday, the night after Hope Chapel team's notice came out.

We have arrangements under way for a series with the Y. M. C. A. Ajax team and will play them within the next two weeks. Hoping that you will give this letter publicity so that the readers of the sporting page will know the true state of affairs, we are

Very truly yours,
Willard V. Marston, Mgr.,
J. A. Ricketts, Capt.

SPRINGFIELD GYMNASTS WILL APPEAR IN Y. M. C. A.

Gymnasts representing the Springfield Training School, of Springfield, Mass., will appear in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight in an exhibition of calisthenics and apparatus work. The same institution was represented by a gym team here two years ago in a similar demonstration and the affair proved to be a big success at that time. The team this year is better than ever before and a number of novel features have been added to the program that will be presented tonight.

Prior to the exhibition in the association gym the team will be the guests of the Women's Auxiliary at a supper in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. Charles H. Line, of this city, formerly a member of the college team, and at present a student in the Springfield post-graduate department, will accompany the team to Plainfield.

N. P. H. S. TEAM DEADLOCKED.

The much talked of deadlock that was expected in the vote for the captaincy of the North Plainfield High School basketball team came yesterday, when the two candidates each received four votes and consequently no leader was elected for the team next year. The Athletic Association will settle the matter.

SENATORS MARTINE AND HUGHES UNABLE TO AGREE

United States Senator James E Martine has a fight on his hands with United States Senator Hughes, over the appointment of George H. Abel whom the New Jerseyite wants named for the postmastership at Haddon Heights, in Camden county. The Senate confirmed the nomination last Friday, but Senator Hughes, who opposes Abel's candidacy, and wants John P. Floyd appointed, has succeeded in having the nomination recommitted to committee.

There may be an animated struggle over the appointment. Senator Martine has declared that he will fight to the last ditch for his candidate. His opponent claims that Abel's confirmation had been made without his knowledge and declared he had not been present at the time it was passed upon by the Senatorial committee. Heretofore, it is said, State Chairman Grosscup has sanctioned Camden county appointments. He is said to have favored Senator Hughes man, Floyd, but after Senator Martine had named Abel for the post.

News of Interest in Building World

BUILDING TRADES REMAIN AT STANDSTILL

During Past Two Weeks But Three Permits Have Been Issued.

While several industries in and about Plainfield have experienced an uplift during the past few months, the building trades are still on "their back" as far as local activities are concerned. During the first two weeks of March but three permits for buildings have been issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane—two for alterations and one for the erection of two dwellings. The work called for by the two permits covering alterations, was described in last Saturday's issue of The Daily Press.

While the present prospects for immediate improvements of conditions in building lines are far from being bright, owing to the inclement weather, which we have been experiencing during the past month, it is known that many new buildings and improvements are being held in abeyance until the money market loosens to some extent. Once the building movement starts in this city, no doubt the contractors will find themselves swamped with work.

The buildings, which are to be occupied by two families each, are to be of frame construction with concrete foundations. They will be two and a half stories in heighth and will contain all modern improvements. The cost of the structures will be $2,000 each. Mr. Israel will do the contract work himself.

JUST NOTES

The store until recently occupied by Higgins Brothers at 334 Park avenue, which has been undergoing alterations for the past few weeks, is now practically ready to receive its new tenant, James C. Fields Sr., who will shortly open a drug store there. The building is owned by the Mono Investment Company.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

MEETING OF THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC—ONE OF THE STRIKING MOMENTS IN LYMAN H. HOWES REPRODUCTION OF THE PANAMA CANAL.

The portrait insert in the above illustration is that of a man who is as interesting as the prodigious $400,000,000 job just completed under his direction. It is the portrait of Col. George Washington Goethals, chairman and chief engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission; the king of the Canal Zone—the man who built the canal a whole year ahead of time. He typifies strength, yet is the embodiment of gentleness. He combines truth and vigor with simplicity and force; and high ideals with practical common sense. The photographers who spent many months in close association with him while recording the construction of the canal on the films which will be presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Plainfield theatre, Friday and Saturday, March 20 and 21, came back with the highest praise for Goethals—the man. They had many favors to ask of him, but he was always heartily in sympathy with their work. Often when they asked for some exceptional facilities he seemed to divine what they wanted before the sentence was half uttered. He didn't guess either. He knew. It was solely because of Col. Goethals' ever ready co-operation that they succeeded in securing the only film record made of the stupendous task that is absolutely perfect photographically and that at the same time tells the wonderful story of the Panama Canal—the greatest work done by man's hand on the earth's surface—in a way that no books can ever tell it. Much film has been exposed on the canal by other photographers, but this production is the only one that depicts the job—all of it—in its length, breadth and depth—and from first to last.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHEN EGGS ARE AVAILABLE.

THE reduction in the price of eggs as spring approaches and the advent of Lent turns the housewife's attention to methods of serving eggs. Some delicious ways of preparing them are here suggested:

Scalloped Eggs.—Take six eggs, slice them and season with salt, pepper, one teaspoonful each of chopped parsley and grated cheese. Cover with one pint of white sauce made with stock. Sprinkle with one-half cupful of cracker crumbs, dot with butter and place in oven until a light brown.

Nourishing Preparations.

Eggs Piquant.—Take six eggs, a quarter of a pound of cheese, one-third of a cupful of cream or milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Shave the cheese into thin chips, butter an egg dish or a small baking dish and spread the cheese in it. On the cheese arrange in small portions the tablespoonful of butter; mix salt, cayenne, mustard and cream; pour half of the milk over the cheese, break the eggs into the dish, and after pouring over them the remaining milk place in the oven and bake.

Parmesan Eggs.—Take six eggs, boil them hard and take off the whites and cut them up into large pieces. Mash the yolks smooth with one tablespoonful of oil, one of mustard, a dash of paprika, salt and two drops of tabasco sauce. Mix the whites with a cupful of white sauce and put the yolks through a ricer, lay the whites on hot buttered toast sprinkled with Parmesan cheese and place the yolks on top.

A Delectable Dessert.

Egg Fluff.—Take four eggs, three gills of milk, sugar to taste and lemon rind and vanilla to favor. Put the milk in a saucepan with sugar to sweeten it and add the rind of half a lemon. Let this steep slowly at the side of the range for half an hour; then remove the peel. Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs and whisk the whites to a stiff froth and no liquid remains. Bring the milk to a boiling point, drop the egg froth—a tablespoonful at a time—and keep turning them until sufficiently cooked; then place them in a glass dish. Beat up the yolks of the eggs, add them to the milk, mix thoroughly and then strain through a wet cloth. Put into a bowl and set the bowl in a saucepan of boiling water. Stir it one way until the mixture thickens. Do not allow it to boil, else it will curdle. Pour this custard over the eggs. They should rise to the surface. Serve cool.

The Queen Bought the Pin.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Life of The Queen's Pretty Pin.

"ONCE when I was a little boy," began daddy, "I heard an interesting story that a pin told. Now, you may think that a pin could not tell such a very good story, but this was an exceptional pin, belonging to a very grand person. Would you like to hear it?"

"Of course we would!" said Jack and Evelyn. "Do tell it to us this evening." So daddy began as follows:

"'Having been made into a beautiful crown shaped pin of superb pearls,' said the pin, 'I was put into a show case in a very beautiful jewelry shop. People would notice me above all other pins in the case and pick me out as being by far the most beautifully set pin. All the pearls which belonged to me were very, very lovely ones. But I was so expensive that people could just look at me and could not afford to buy me.

"'The jeweler was so proud of me that he really did not care whether I was sold or not, for my beauty attracted so much attention that it was a help to his business. You see, people would ask one another if they had seen me, and if they hadn't they would come right to the shop to look at me. Then, though they didn't buy me, they would be sure to buy something else in the shop.

"'But at last a marvelous carriage drove up before the door. It was drawn by four horses, and there were two fine coachmen and two very pompous looking footmen sitting up on top of the carriage.

"'The jeweler was all in a flutter. Never before had he seen such a wonderful carriage. And out of it stepped a very handsomely dressed lady with a lady on either side of her, who both guarded her very carefully.

"'"The queen—the queen has come to my little shop!" cried the excited jeweler, and all the other shoppers stood by and made low bows.

"'But I didn't bow. I didn't think a crown need bow.

"'The queen had heard of me, and she had come to buy me. The jeweler, with trembling fingers, fastened me in my little blue velvet box, and off I went, carried by the queen.

"'When we reached the palace I felt very much at home, for everything was so beautiful there. I must confess, though, that I did feel a little nervous that first evening when I was worn by the queen with so many other exquisite jewels.

"'Oh, but such times as I did have! The court dinners and balls and receptions were so dazzling, and I adored them. But, best of all, I loved the parades and seeing all the crowds of people cheer and wave their handkerchiefs to the queen. And the bands were so exciting!

"'But the proudest moment of my life was really when the queen gave me to a lady as a token of her appreciation of the lady's brave soldier daddy.'"

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Some Clippings from an Idaho Paper.

During the past week I have made a few extracts from the Idaho Statesman, an influential Boise paper, which may be of interest to those who are studying the suffrage question.

Commenting on the appeal of some of the working women to President Wilson, the Statesman, after describing the interview, has this to say:

A glance at conditions among the men voters is, it seems, sufficient to show the fallacy of such hopes. Men have the ballot and yet at times and in all parts of the country there are thousands of men out of work. The ballot alone does not seem to lessen the army of the unemployed among the men. The problem lies deeper than suffrage. It is natural for those who think superficially to conclude that the ballot will cure most of the ills of our economic life, but in fact it cures but few. It is not nearly so potent as many imagine.—Idaho Statesman, February 10, 1914.

What an anti-suffragist always maintains, but coming with more force from an equal suffrage locality.

When, at the mass meeting in May, Mr. Mathews alluded to the divorce colony at Reno, he was reminded that Reno was not in an equal suffrage State. But Nevada, with male suffrage his improved its laws, demanding now a years' residence before divorce proceedings can be begun. Again a clipping from a Boise paper will be interesting.

Boise a Divorce Mecca.

It seems that Boise is now the mecca towards which those wanting divorce are hiking by the scores instead of to Reno as heretofore. Reno is losing that form of harvest and Boise is reaping it. From the financial standpoint this looks all right for Boise. It may be a question whether our rather lax divorce laws square with the eternal proprieties and whether such laxity tends to weaken the bonds of marriage and thus work an injury to society.—Idaho Statesman, February 13.

Idaho is now the only State in the Union in which a 6 months' residence is sufficient to enable one to institute divorce proceedings. A divorce colony is already established, and any stranger coming into town for a half year's stay is immediately supposed to belong to it.

One of the arguments of some members of the suffrage party has been that there are certain cases that should be decided by women or, at least, that women should form part of juries describing said cases. Listen to the commissioners of Ada county (in which Boise is situated).

Will the county commissioners summon a bunch of women jurors? There are several cases to come up before the court this term, in which women could prove valuable jurors and the commissioners Thursday considered the subject of drawing a dozen out of the thirty to be impaneled.

"I am in favor of it," remarked one of the commissioners. "Suppose we try it." "Not on your life," said another. "We have enough troubles now with a courthouse ready to tumble down on our heads, without bringing a bunch of women here unless it is absolutely necessary."

"Still, women have real good sense you know; it might do no harm to try them again."

"Nix on the women,' said the third, while the county clerk held his pen poised, ready to draw out the names. The subject was left in abeyance at adjournment.—Idaho Statesman, February 13, 1914.

* * * *

The Republicans of Idaho determined to use Lincoln's Birthday as an opportunity to reunite warring factions, so they had a dinner to which representatives of the party from all parts of the State were invited. Boise Republicans were also urged to attend and a goodly program of speeches, to say nothing of a humorous sketch presented by clever local men who impersonated Roosevelt, Taft, Bryan and Wilson and also the national committee—was provided. It was a pleasant and harmonious gathering, but where were the women? Their votes apparently, were not worth bidding for, for the dinner was for men only.

A dinner was held Saturday evening in honor of Miss Susan B. Anthony, at which guests from neighboring States and from other parts of Idaho were present. One hundred and twenty were present—not a very large number for the capitol city.

Another argument for equal suffrage has been that women having votes would receive more respectful attention from legislators. Here is the Idaho Clubwoman's testimony on that subject.

The battle of the Legislature is over and as the smoke clears away we take stock of our gains and losses. "Does it pay?' is the question that always comes first. Two months of buffeting in a sea of oratory, offset by puerile iteration and reiteration, honor and an endeavor to benefit the State offset by craft and demagoguery, courtesy offset by an assumption of superiority that was both amusing and irritating.

Truly no self-respecting woman could do effective work on a lobbying committee if she were not endowed with an ever-abiding sense of humor.

When Mr. Conner says we do not know what we want in the law for working women and complains that he has been basely deceived in the matter by one club woman, bawling her name on the floor of the house, we remembered to have told him wherein Mr. Featherston's bill fell short and that we wanted the Idaho law to cover the same classes that the California law did, trusting to his inexhaustible knowledge to tell him what we really did want.

When he or others made brilliant speeches in which they thanked the stars they were not run by women, in our hearts we knew what that meant.

* * * *

The bill for the womans' building was killed in the senate and the discourtesy shown Miss French by that body will long be remembered.

* * * *

The women of Idaho have been humiliated by the majority of the senate in the insult offered to Miss French, dean of women of the university. Because she is deeply interested in the growth of women, she worked hard with other club women for a women's building for household economies of the university.

Let us hope that from each county in two years will come at least one woman to represent us. We will never succeed in passing many reform measures until this is the case.—The Idaho Clubwoman, April, 1913.

The omitted portions are merely local, generally scoring certain State senators. I do not think our women have so much trouble when they go with real reform measures. I have cut these items from the papers mentioned so that I might be sure I had made no mistake in copying. I found, to my dismay, the other day that in quoting Earle Barnes, I had been made to say that he had been told that "more women than men were employed to get votes," while it should have been "more men than women;" but the argument is not dictated thereby and the fact that women are employed to circulate slanderous stories which would meet with condign punishment if told by men has not yet been questioned.

Talking to an ardent suffragist the other day, I questioned whether any real good had yet been effected in many of the suffrage States. "You must remember," she said, "how ignorant the women are, and that it may take a generation to teach them. Just look at the W. C. T. U. and the liquor interests working together, and the women don't even know it.' I suppose she referred to the putting of the canteen out of the army, but as she went on to tell me of the exceeding wickedness of Portland, Oregon, as another instance of the futility of looking for reform at the women's hands, I forgot to ask her. She admitted that many of the women refused to vote, a fact of which I am assured on all hands. It is easy to arrange figures in Idaho to give a good percentage of voters, for there are many women included in the census who do not come under the head of voters. There are certain property qualifications, for instance, hedging the school vote, certain aliens who are disqualified and all the women of the "Red Light District."

SCHOOL FIGHT EXPECTED.

Metuchen, March 14—Edward C. Potter and S. F. Hay announced Thursday that they will seek re-election to the Board of Education, March 17. It was also announced that William H. Greenwald will not run for another term and that Henry A Lockwood will be the third candidate with Mr. Potter and Mr. Hay, on a slate known as the "administration ticket." Mr. Potter is now president of the board and Mr. Hay vice-president. It became known yesterday that there is opposition to the administration ticket. Bernard Wittnebert and Charles E. Mundy, members of the board, did not deny that the opposition intends to name a complete ticket, using the increasing of the principal's salary and other questions of economy as a platform.

If the man who says, "I can't afford to advertise" will look over the list of big concerns that were LITTLE concerns before they started to advertise, he will be more likely to say:

The Abysmal Brute

By JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1913, by The Century Co.

CHAPTER VIII.

AS he spoke in his eyes was all the expression with which a man looks at a woman. She felt the force and beat of him, and she felt strangely tongue tied and awkward before this man who had been reputed tongue tied and awkward.

He could certainly talk straighter to the point and more convincingly than most men, and what struck her most forcibly was her own inborn certainty that it was mere naive and simple frankness on his part and not a practiced artfulness.

He saw her into her machine and gave her another thrill when he said goodby. Once again their hands were clasped as he said:

"Some day I'll see you again. I want to see you again. Somehow I have a feeling that the last word has not been said between us."

And as the machine rolled away she was aware of a similar feeling.

She had not seen the last of this very disquieting Pat Glendon, king of the bruisers and abysmal brute.

Back in the training quarters, Glendon encountered his perturbed manager.

"What did you fire me out for?" Stubener demanded. "We're finished. A —— of a mess you've made. You've never stood for meeting a reporter alone before, and now you'll see when that interview comes out."

Glendon, who had been regarding him with cool amazement, made as if to turn and pass on and then changed his mind.

"It won't come out," he said.

Stubener looked up sharply.

"I asked her not to," Glendon explained.

Then Stubener exploded.

"As if she'd kill a juicy thing like that."

Glendon became very cold, and his voice was harsh and grating.

"It won't be published. She told me so. And to doubt it is to call her a liar."

The Irish flame was in his eyes, and by that and by the unconscious clinching of his passion wrought hands Stubener, who knew the strength of them and of the man he faced, no longer dared to doubt.

It did not take Stubener long to find out that Glendon intended extending the distance of the fight, though try as he would he could get no hint of the number of the round.

He wasted no time, however, and privily clinched certain arrangements with Nat Powers and Nat Powers' manager. Powers had a faithful following of bettors, and the betting syndicate was not to be denied its harvest.

On the night of the fight, Maud Sangster was guilty of a more daring unconventionality than any she had yet committed, though no whisper of it leaked out to shock society.

Under the protection of the editor she occupied a ringside seat. Her hair and most of her face were hidden under a slouch hat, while she wore a man's long overcoat that fell to her heels.

Entering in the thick of the crowd she was not noticed, nor did the newspaper men in the press seats against the ring directly in front of her recognize her.

As was the growing custom, there were no preliminary bouts, and she had barely gained her seat when roars of applause announced the arrival of Nat Powers.

He came down the aisle in the midst of his seconds, and she was almost frightened by the formidable bulk of him. Yet he leaped the ropes as lightly as a man half his weight and grinned acknowledgement to the tumultuous greeting that arose from all the house.

He was not pretty. Two cauliflower ears attested his profession and its attendant brutality, while his broken nose had been so often spread over his face as to defy the surgeon's art to reconstruct it.

Another uproar heralded the arrival of Glendon, and she watched him eagerly as he went through the ropes to his corner.

But it was not until the tedious time of announcements, introductions and challenges was over that the two men threw off their wraps and faced each other in ring costume.

Concentrated upon them from overhead was the white glare of many electric lights—this for the benefit of the moving picture cameras—and she felt, as she looked at the two sharply contrasted men, that it was in Glendon that she saw the thoroughbred and in Powers the abysmal brute.

Both looked their parts—Glendon clean cut in face and form, softly and massively beautiful; Powers almost asymmetrically rugged and heavily matted with hair.

As they made their preliminary pose for the cameras, confronting each other in fighting attitudes, it chanced that Glendon's gaze dropped down through the ropes and rested on her face.

Though he gave no sign, she knew, with a swift leap of the heart, that he had recognized her.

The next moment the gong sounded, the announcer cried "Let her go!" and the battle was on.

It was a good fight. There was no blood, no marring, and both were clever. Half of the first round was spent in feeling each other out, but Maud Sangster found the play and feint and tap of the gloves sufficiently exciting.

During some of the fiercer rallies in later stages of the fight the editor was compelled to touch her arm to remind her who she was and where she was.

Powers fought easily and cleanly, as became the hero of half a hundred ring battles, and an admiring claque applauded his every cleverness.

Yet he did not unduly exert himself save in occasional strenuous rallies that brought the audience yelling to its feet in the mistaken notion that he was getting his man.

It was at such a moment, when her unpracticed eye could not inform her that Glendon was escaping serious damage, that the editor leaned to her and said:

Maud Sangster found the play of the gloves sufficiently exciting.

"Young Pat will win all right. He's a comer, and they can't stop him. But he'll win in the sixteenth and not before."

"Or after?" she asked.

She almost laughed at the certitude of her companion's negative. She knew better.

Powers was noted for hunting his man from moment to moment and round to round, and Glendon was content to accede to this program.

His defense was admirable, and he threw in just enough of offense to whet the edge of the audience's interest.

Though he knew he was scheduled to lose, Powers had had too long a ring experience to hesitate from knocking his man out if the opportunity offered. He had had the double cross worked too often on him to be chary in working it on others.

If he got his chance he was prepared to knock his man out and let the syndicate go hang.

Thanks to clever press publicity, the idea was prevalent that at last young Glendon had met his master.

In his heart Powers, however, knew that it was himself who had encountered the better man. More than once, in the faster infighting, he received the weight of punches that he knew had been deliberately made no heavier.

On Glendon's part there were times and times when a slip or error of judgment could have exposed him to one of his antagonist's sledge hammer blows and lost him the fight.

Yet his was that almost miraculous power of accurate timing and distancing, and his confidence was not shaken by the several close shaves he experienced.

He had never lost a fight, never been knocked down, and he had always been so thoroughly the master of the man he faced, that such a possibility was unthinkable.

At the end of the fifteenth round both men were in good condition, though Powers was breathing a trifle heavily and there were men in the ringside seats offering odds that he would "blow up."

It was just before the gong for the sixteenth round struck that Stubener, leaning over Glendon from behind his corner, whispered:

"Are you going to get him now?"

Glendon, with a back toss of his head, shook it and laughed mockingly up into his manager's anxious face.

With the stroke of the gong for the sixteenth round Glendon was surprised to see Powers cut loose.

From the first second it was a tornado of fighting, and Glendon was hard put to escape serious damage. He blocked, clinched, ducked, sidestepped, was rushed backward against the ropes and was met by fresh rushes when he surged out to center.

Several times Powers left inviting openings, but Glendon refused to loose the lightning bolt of a blow that would drop his man.

He was reserving that blow for two rounds later. Not in the whole fight had he ever exerted his full strength nor struck with the force that was in him.

For two minutes, without the slightest letup, Powers went at him hammer and tongs.

In another minute the round would be over and the betting syndicate hard hit.

But that minute was not to be. They had just come together in the center of the ring. It was as ordinary a clinch as any in the fight, save that Powers was struggling and roughing it every instant.

Glendon whipped his left over in a crisp but easy jolt to the side of the face. It was like any of a score of similar jolts he had already delivered in the course of the fight.

To his amazement he felt Powers go limp in his arms and begin sinking to the floor on sagging, spraddling legs that refused to bear his weight.

He struck the floor with a thump, rolled half over on his side and lay with closed eyes and motionless. The referee, bending above him, was shouting the count.

At the cry of "Nine!" Powers quivered as if making a vain effort to rise.

"Ten—and out!" cried the referee.

He caught Glendon's hand and raised it aloft to the roaring audience in token that he was the winner.

For the first time in the ring Glendon was dazed. It had not been a knockout blow. He could stake his life on that.

It had not been to the jaw, but to the side of the face, and he knew it had gone there and nowhere else. Yet the man was out, had been counted out, and he had faked it beautifully. That final thump on the floor had been a convincing masterpiece.

To the audience it was indubitably a knockout, and the moving picture machines would perpetuate the lie. The editor had called the turn, after all, and a crooked turn it was.

Glendon shot a swift glance through the ropes to the face of Maud Sangster. She was looking straight at him, but her eyes were black and hard, and there was neither recognition nor expression in them.

Even as he looked she turned away unconcernedly and said something to the man beside her.

Powers' seconds were carrying him to his corner, a seeming limp wreck of a man.

Glendon's seconds were advancing upon him to congratulate him and to remove his gloves.

But Stubener was ahead of them. His face was beaming as he caught Glendon's right glove in both his hands and cried:

"Good boy, Pat! I knew you'd do it."

Glendon pulled his glove away. And for the first time in the years they had been together his manager heard him swear.

"You go to —!" he said and turned to hold out his hands for his seconds to pull off the gloves.

That night, after receiving the editor's final dictum that there was not a square fighter in the game, Maud Sangster cried quietly for a moment on the edge of her bed, grew angry and went to sleep hugely disgusted with herself, prizefighters and the world in general.

Your Appearance Counts

Have you ever realized how well you are received when your appearance is favorable? Men, send your Suit and have it cleaned and pressed. Ladies, your tea gowns, woolen dresses, opera cloaks, plain or fancy waists, and indeed anything worth cleaning.

I guarantee my work and assure you that my method will tend to renew the fabric, brighten the colors and raise the nap, thereby restoring the garment to the freshness of new clothing.

TITCHFIELD MARQUIS, AN HEIR, COMES OF AGE

Elaborate Celebration of Notable Event at Welbeck Abbey.

London, March 14.—At Welbeck Abbey, the principal seat of the Duke of Portland, great preparations have been completed for the celebrations in honor of the coming of age of the Marquis of Titchfield, the eldest son and heir of the Duke. The celebrations will begin Monday next, which will be the twenty-first birthday of the Marquis, and will be continued through the week. Scores of distinguished guests have been invited for the occasion and there will be a continuous round of social activities. A ball for the tenantry will be one of the features of the program. Each night the grounds will be brilliantly illuminated and great bonfires will blaze on the hills.

The young Marquis of Titchfield, in whose honor the celebrations are to be held, is a handsome young man and a great social favorite. He was educated at Eton and has engaged in extensive travel since he left school. He possesses more of the spirit of "hail fellow, well met" than does his father and in consequence promises to enjoy a much wider popularity.

As heir of the Duke of Portland the young Marquis, if he lives long enough, will one day be one of the richest members of the British peerage. The value of a property like that of the Duke of Portland is difficult to estimate; but, inasmuch as it embraces a large slice of that Klondike region of London which lies between Oxford street and Marylebone road, sundry acres in Ayrshire, Nottingham and Northumberland, several magnificent estates and one of the most valuable stables of race horses in England, the young Marquis of Titchfield is certainly entitled to a high place in the list of multi-millionaires in prospect.

The present Duke of Portland was formerly plain Mr. Cavendish Bentinck, of the Guards. He came into the title in 1879 upon the death of his cousin, a rich recluse who lived for years shut up in Cavendish House taking no part in public or social life. After the death of the late Duke in 1879 came the celebrated case of the "Druce claimant," who sought the title and the estates on the strength of a story that the old Duke had led a double life and for years had conducted a store under the name of T. ?. Druce. The claimant, George Holamby Druce, alleged he was a grandson of the Duke. The case dragged through the courts for many years and ended in a decision against the claimant.

Welbeck Abbey, where the festivities are to be held in celebration of the coming of age of the Marquis of Titchfield, is a place of almost incredible magnificance. Sixty years ago it was little more than a farmstead, when the late Duke addressed himself to the task of converting it into a palace and wonderland. Two thousand workmen, including some of the most skilled artisans of Europe, were employed in the work which extended over a period of many years. Beautiful gardens were laid out, acres of conservatories were built and miles of subterranean roadways and corridors were constructed.

The most marvelous feature of all was the great subterranean picture gallery, which the present Duke converted into a ballroom. It is the largest private room in the United Kingdom, 160 feet long by 65 feet wide. Its walls are adorned with priceless paintings by Rubens, Reynolds, Vandyke, Helbein and other masters.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

SECOND HAND "ROYAL" TYPEWRITERS REBUILT!

You will have trouble to find one, they are scarce. WHY? There must be a reason. Listen what Dr. F. J. H., of this city, says:

"My 'Royal Typewriter' was received today in A-1 condition after repairs amounting to $5.20. It may interest you to know that I have had this typewriter over six years, during which time it has given uniform satisfaction and this is the first outlay for repairs in that entire period. It looks good for six years longer."

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

VETERAN FIREMEN MARTINE GUESTS

Enjoy Banquet Following Official Test of Auto Engine.

SENATOR'S GREETINGS

Mayor Percy H. Stewart Toastmaster—Interesting Speeches Made by Representative Citizens and Consolidation Gets a Boost.

Veterans in the fire fighting business; men prominent in Plainfield's civic, business and fraternal enterprises; and those who have been interested in the local fire department since the volunteer days, gathered in the Waldorf Hotel, Saturday night, and dined as the guests of United States Senator James E. Martine. The assemblage numbered nearly seventy-five and the "Martine Spirit" prevailed. A fine banquet served by Proprietor Henry Windham was, of course, the principal feature, and this was followed by several short and appropriate after-dinner speeches, Mayor Percy H. Stewart acting as toastmaster.

Although unable to be present in person the Senator wired his best wishes for a memorable event and his name was a subject for comment on the part of every speaker. Fire Chief T. O. Doane, in whose honor the banquet was given by the Senator, acted as host in the absence of Martine.

The banquet was a fitting finale to the successful test of the new Nott auto apparatus in the afternoon. The modern equipment recently added to Plainfield's fire fighting facilities was subjected to a thorough examination by the National Board of Underwriters of New York city, and met every requirement. The demonstration was conducted by Chief Doane and his men and the underwriters representatives, A. C. Hudson and C. A Whitney, expressed themselves as well pleased with the results.

It was announced at the banquet that the board was contemplating a visit to Plainfield some time during the next two weeks when the entire local fire fighting equipment will be put through a test to ascertain its efficiency. The new engine has been placed at headquarters on East Second street and has been nick-named the "Imperator," in view of the fact that it is the largest piece of apparatus in this city.

Each of the many speakers called upon by Mayor Stewart had words of a commendatory nature regarding Chief Doane's efficiency as a leader of "smoke eaters," and only second in importance to this subject was the current topic of "Consolidation." Plainfield and North Plainfield civic leaders advocated the merging of this city and the borough. Elizabeth representatives gave reasons to show why Newark and the Union county seat should be consolidated and the Bayonne delegates declared that one day Bayonne, Newark and Elizabeth would be brought together under one governing body. The subject of North Plainfield's consolidation with the Queen City met with general approval as evidenced by the applause the proposition received every time it was mentioned by a speaker.

Veteran firemen and chiefs, some of whom had not met in years, and others who come together in a similar manner annually at the fire chiefs convention, renewed old acquaintances and a spirit of cordiality prevailed. The firemen orators in each case lauded Plainfield for its adequate department for fire protection and described the facilities in the towns, cities and boroughs from which they were delegates. Reminiscent accounts of the evolution of the fire engine from the first hand-drawn cart to the twentieth century modernly equipped auto engine were related by those who have spent a quarter of a century of their lives battling with the flames.

Practically every department of city work was represented at the banquet, Mayor Stewart acting as the city's representative; Councilmen Theodore Martin, John H. Cose and Charles C. Graves, the delegates of the Common Council; Chief Doane, Chief McCullough, of North Plainfield; President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade; President Newton B. Smalley, of the Chamber of Commerce; all extending a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates.

The speakers included Mayor Stewart, former Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield; John H. Cose, William Jeffery, Leslie R. Fort, Robert Woodhouse, Fire Commissioner Patterson, of Elizabeth, and Fire Chiefs Doane, of Plainfield; Gerston, of Elizabeth; Jackson, of New Providence; Davis, of Bayonne, and Davis, of Lambertville. Following the banquet and speeches the guests were entertained by the local lodge of Elks at the latter's new club rooms on Watchung

MADE HOMELESS BY MIDNIGHT BLAZE

Dwelling and Contents of Chas. Davis at Union Village Destroyed by Fire.

The family of Charles Davis, a well known farmer living at Union Village, was made homeless by a fire which destroyed their residence shortly before midnight, last night. The flames originated in a bedroom on the second floor, evidently, by the explosion of a lamp, and when discovered by Miss Anna Davis, a daughter, the flames were beyond control. She screamed an alarm to the others in the house, who were just preparing to retire, but they barely had time to snatch up a few articles of clothing before making their escape. They were taken care of by neighbors.

The Berkeley Heights fire department responded to a call and did valiant work saving the outbuildings. The house was a heap of ruins an hour after the fire started. Mr. Davis places the total loss at $4,000, with only $1,200 insurance.

STATE PRESIDENT ADDRESSES Y. M. H. A.

Tells What Has Been Accomplished by Association in New Jersey.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings of the Young Men's Hebrew Association was held in the association's auditorium, on Grove street, last night. Speeches were made by Prof Harry S. Feller, of New Brunswick, State president of the Y. M. H. A., who spoke of the many things that had been accomplished by both the Y. M. H. A. and the Y. W. H. A., and by Dr. I. Edwin Goldwasser, of New York, chief of the bureau of experts of the National Y. M. H. A's., Dr. Goldwasser's address was particularly interesting.

Through his wide travels and acquaintanceship throughout the United States, Dr. Goldwasser is in close touch with the needs of the Y. M. H A's., and is aware of what the organization has been able to accomplish In his address last night, he touched upon the fact that the synagogues and temples of Jewish faith were not, apparently, holding the close interest of the younger generation today. The need of religion was great, he said, among all Jews, and because of this fact the work that the Y. M. H. A. is doing to inspire a love of race, and to foster a religious spirit in the minds of the young, for the advancement and uplifting of Judaism, is, the speaker said, to be highly commended. Dr. Goldwasser was asked to return to this city sometime in the near future and again address them.

LECTURE ON THE NAVY ENJOYED BY MEN'S CLUB

Experiences during the eight years he served in the U. S. Navy were related in an interesting way by Earl Barker at the meeting of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night. Mr. Barker outlined briefly the duaites of a sailor aboard the battleships of the navy, interspersing has talk with numerous amusing incidents which help to break the monotony of a sailor's life.

During the course of the lecture, Mr. Barker exhibited a number of pictures and diagrams, which added much to the educational value of the talk. At the conclusion, the men enjoyed a "sugaring-off" party, under the direction of the refreshment committee of the club, after which there was a social hour.

FATHER HOGAN TO LEAVE ST. MARY'S

Assistant Priest is Presented With Purse of $400 by Parishioners.

AS MARK OF ESTEEM

Retiring Cleric Goes to Hudson County—His Successor Will Be Chosen From Among Graduates of Seton Hall.

Father Daniel F. Hogan, for the past six years assistant to Rev. B. M. Bogan in St. Mary's parish in this city, was the recipient yesterday afternoon of a purse of $400, given by friends in the church. He will leave Plainfield within a few days to take up work in Hudson county, being succeeded by one of a class that will graduate from Seton Hall College on Thursday next.

The various societies of the church assembled in Commercial Hall on Liberty street, yesterday afternoon, and Albert A. LaRock made the speech presenting the purse, expressing regret at Father Hogan's leaving town. The cleric responded feelingly, saying that while here he had not been active making social calls, but had tried to do his duty. He did not feel that he was entitled to any regard, other than that which he would get from God for the faithful performance of his duty, but it was gratifying to know that he was held in the esteem indicated by the purse.

Father Hogan is a native of Jersey City. After being ordained he went South and came here from that part of the country six years ago, succeeding Father J. F. Delehanty who in turn went to a church in Bergen county. His new work will be taken up in either Jersey City or Hoboken.

ITALIAN WHO ANNOYED GIRL GETS SIXTY-DAY SENTENCE

Joseph Semore, of 921 South Second street, and James Pasco, of 36 Cottage place, were arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court, this morning, charged with fighting at Watchung avenue and East Third street, last Wednesday afternoon. Following the encounter Semore was arrested but Pasco left town and was not apprehended until his return Saturday night.

In court this morning Semore testified that Pasco had been an admirer of his daughter for some time and because his affections were not received by the girl, he had resorted to taunting her and following her on the streets. When the father of the girl admonished Pasco, the latter pulled a pistol on him, it was alleged, and the fight followed.

Pasco was sentenced to pay a fine of $20 or serve sixty days in the county jail and Semore was declared not guilty.

NOTED SPEAKERS TO ADDRESS SUFFRAGISTS

Union County Rally to Be Held at Proctor's Theatre, Elizabeth, Tonight.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, of New York, a national figure, will be one of the principal speakers at the Union county mass meeting to be held in Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, tonight, under the auspices of the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage. It is expected that a large number of friends of the movement, as well as members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, will attend the meeting.

Another speaker of prominence will be Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, who comes of distinguished lineage. She is the granddaughter of the late Joseph Knight, F. S. A., celebrated as the editor of "Notes and Queries" of London.

Although an English woman by birth she is now an American citizen—without a citizen's rights, as she says, being a woman—having become the wife of Swinburne Hale, a well known New York lawyer. She has also been a successful playwright and produced two pastoral plays in London.

Union county is a hot-bed of opposition to the cause, and two of the four Assemblymen who recently voted against the suffrage resolution are from Union county. The Men's League therefore propose to keep the pot boiling in this county and to lend all the aid possible to the women throughout the state in fighting the suffrage campaign.

The general committee in charge of this mass meeting is composed of the following: Judge James C. Connolly, Mayor Victor Mravlag, Chas. N. Fowler, James B. Calvert, R. Barnard Cissell, John L. Gray, Robert S. Huse, C. P. Morrell, W. R. Richart, Randolph P. Harrison, Rev. Wm. B. Hamilton, Roland F. Calhoun, Wm. Jones, John Chetwood Elliott, Shiras Campbell, Rev. Joseph Kyle, Alexander Lyon, James C. Kellogg, Jr., S. T. Jones, Edward Olmstead, Gen. D. F. Collins, Abe J. David, Robert A. Shiriffs, Edgar A. Knapp, of Elizabeth; Mayor Harwood Fish, of Roselle; George H. Strobell, of Newark; Champlain L. Riley, president of the league, Geo. W. V. Moy, Charles A. Selden, Dr. Edward S. Krans, Arthur B. Jones, E. F. Feickert, C. C. Wheeler, George F. Hughes, E. V. Cox, of Plainfield; J. F. Van Riper, of Westfield, and William H. Hoar, of Fanwood.

TIMELY ACTION SAVES FAMILY

Young Son of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Prevents a Terrible Catastrophe.

AWAKENED HIS FATHER

Members of Household Are Rescued Under Great Difficulty—Blaze Had Been Smouldering for Hours Is Belief of Firemen.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and his family had a narrow escape from death by suffocation in their home on East Second street, at an early hour yesterday morning, when a fire, the origin of which is a mystery, broke out in a closet under a staircase in the front hall. Awakened by his little son, Walter L. Hetfield, 3d., Mr. Hetfield summoned the fire department by telephone and the blaze was extinguished with chemicals after doing damage that will amount to approximately $400.

Startled by the presence of smoke in his room at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the little fellow went to the room of his father and after much difficulty succeeded in awakening the parent sufficiently to acquaint him with his danger. Mr. Hetfield was dazed by the thick cloud of smoke that enveloped the rooms and halls, but managed to grope his way from one place to another and succeeded in arousing all of the other members of the household. Upon investigation it was found that the blaze started in a clothes closet. The owner can assign no cause for the blaze.

Had the flames been allowed to burn a few minutes longer they would have eaten their way through the stairs and this would have meant the cutting off of the only avenue of escape for those on the second and third floors. The prompt action on the part of the two Hetfield children, Walter L., 3d., and George, probably saved the lives of the other people in the house at the time of the blaze as it was rapidly assuming threatening proportions when the firemen arrived.

It is the supposition of the owner that the fire had been smouldering for some time when discovered. Members of the household had passed the closet only an hour previous to the discovery of the fire, but detected nothing.

FUNERAL OF MISS ARABELLA McK. MANNING IS HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Arabella McKissack Manning, widow of Robert S Manning, was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Henry Depew, 1019 Hillside avenue, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, of which Mrs. Manning was a member, officiated.

During the service, Miss Corrine Welsh, of New York, sang two hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "O, Rest in the Lord." Frank J. Smith presided at the piano as accompanist. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

WIFE DESERTER HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

Richard Collins Apprehended by Local Police for Failing to Support Family.

Richard Collins, erstwhile wife deserter and fugitive from justice in this State, was apprehended by the local police in Dover, Saturday afternoon, and arraigned in the city court this morning on the complaint of his wife, who is without support. Collins was arraigned on a similar charge here last August and held in bonds to provide $3 a week for the support of his wife and child.

After providing for his family for a number of weeks he left town and was not heard from until Saturday last. His wife has been in a destitute condition and charity offered by neighbors kept her and a two and one-half year old child alive until she found employment. In the city court, this morning, Collins waived examination and was held in $500 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury.

MT. ST. MARY'S EXEMPT FROM TAXES

Assessor Francis E. Bodin Explains the Situation in a Statement.

Regarding the recent discussion as to the right of the North Plainfield Township Committee, to assess the property of Mt. St. Mary College, Francis E. Bodin, who is the assessor for the township, made the following statement today:

"In response to many inuiries bearing on the subject of the North Plainfield Township Committee's recent resolution to assess Mt. St. Mary College, I am advised that a statement from me is necessary at this time, especially so since there seems to be different impressions as to the facts.

"During the si years I have held the office of assessor, the exemption of Mt. St. Mary's was never questioned or that of any other church, school or college entitled to exemption, until last year, when the same committee adopted a similar resolution affecting St. Mary's. Not being present at the meeting, and therefor without knowledge of the circumstances which might warrant the committee's action, I immediately sought important advice feeling that perhaps taxable property was escaping attention. It developed that the laws of 1913, chapter 278, an amendment to the act of 193, for the assessment and collection of taxes, distinctly states that all buildings actually used for college, schools, academies, seminaries, &c., organized for mental and moral improvement, or for religious, charitable purposes, &c., not conducted for profit shall be exempt. It further says that the exemption shall extend to cases where these institutions are supported partly by fees and charges received from or in behalf of beneficiaries using or occupying the buildings, and is wholly controlled, and the income used for the purposes described.

"While satisfied that St. Mary's was in the exempt class, but unwilling to abide bzy my own investigations, I presented the resolution to the County Tax Board for further consideration. The board unanimous- ruled that this property was exempt, and was so classified on the 1913 tax duplicate.

"This action was not prompted by any political or religious preferences but simply the pursuance of what the laws and the tax authorities provide.

"Nothing further was heard about the matter until last week's action of the Township Committee, which is precisely the same resolution as that of last year and, as before, I was not present when the matter was discussed, and do not know upon what authority the action was taken. I am told, however, that the Township Committee decided that the only way to find out if property is taxable or not, is to place it on the duplicate and await the appeal decision.

"This way is no doubt one that would decide the point, but I do not favor it because the law is very plain, and the county board has ruled on it; why therefor necessary litigation.

"That the seeking of political advantages in the performances of a public duty should be hinted at is very regrettable. Whatever my ambitions to seek the Democratic nomination for member of the Assembly might be, I fail to see its connection with the non-assessment of property which has never been on the tax book."

RICHARD TOTTEN MAY BE SUICIDE

Aged Borough Resident Found Lying in Home With His Throat Slashed.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Removed to Muhlenberg Hospital Where It is Said He Will Probably Die—No Motive for His Act—Well Known in North Plainfield.

Lying in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor of his home, 184 Somerset street, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Richard Totten, aged 60 years was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in a dying condition. According to the police the old man attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor and at the hospital this afternoon he was said to be in a serious condition.

Totten lives with his nephew, Elmer Mantz, on Somerset street, and had been alone in the house since Saturday morning. According to a statement made by a member of the family this afternoon the man was shaving in the kitchen of his home and they declare the fatal cut was inflicted accidentally. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance and immediately placed on the operating table, every effort being made to save his life. He is suffering from loss of blood and was in an extremely weakened condition this afternoon.

No reason can be assigned for the man's act by the members of the family. He was of a jovial disposition and was never troubled with melancholy. It is not known when the deed was committed as he has not been seen since Saturday until discovered by a member of the family this afternoon upon her return from Philadelphia.

Totten is well known in the borough where he has lived for a quarter of a century making his home with Elmer Mantz on Somerset street. He was employed for twenty years by Ignatz H. Boehm and retired several months ago.

DENNIS HARRINGTON DIES IN 79TH YEAR

Well Known Boroughite Passes Away at Home of His Son, T. F. Harrington.

Dennis Harrington, a well known resident of the borough, where he had lived for many years, died this morning at the home of his son, Timothy F. Harrington, on Greenbrook road, with whom he had made his home for the last four years. He was 79 years old.

Besides his son, Timothy F. Harrington, the late Mr. Harrington leaves four other sons and two daughters. They are Dennis A., Frank J. and Richard V., of New York, and Daniel J. Harrington, whose home is in Spokane, Washington. His daughters are Mrs. Agnes V. O'Connell and Mrs. Mary J. Reilly, both of New York.

Morris, of South Plainfield, a section foreman on the New Jersey and Lehigh division of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, recently made a suggestion that shrill whistles be used by those holding positions similar to his own to notify men of the approach of trains. Mr. Morris was placed on the roll of honor for his suggestion, being one of seven employes to be placed there during the past year. He also received a month's leave of absence with pay.

Butt Memorial Bridge of Local Interest

The memorial bridge erected in memory of the late Major Archibald Butt, between the cities of Augusta and Somerville, in the State of Georgia, at a cost of $50,000, through voluntary subscriptions of citizens of that State, and appropriations made by the City of Augusta, and Temple-Noyes Lodge, No. 32, F. A. A. M., of Washington, D. C., is pictured above. Dedication of this artistic span will be made on April 14. Distinguished guests, among them former President William Howard Taft, will be present from all parts of the country to pay a tribute to the late Major Butt, a former military aide of the President who lost his life with the liner Titanic. Major Butt was a native of the State of Georgia. Especial interest attaches to the memorial structure to Plainfield people because of the fact that the bas relief and bronze tablet, bearing a dedicatory inscription written by former President Taft, was cast at the Hinman Bronze Works, of this city. That Plainfield concern also executed the seals, bronze lamps and other insignia with which the bridge is embellished and adorned. The space is of concrete, is 200 feet in length and has a width of 75 feet. It will be used for automobile traffic. The bridge is national as well as local in its character, bearing the coat of arms of the Butt family, the coat of arms of the United States and that of the State of Georgia.

The exclusive announcement that the Hinman Bronze Works, of this city, executed the bronze lamps, tablets, and other insignia was made by the Daily Press and this newspaper is the first in the United States to reproduce a picture of the memorial span.

FINDS FEES NOT PAID FOR BIG AUTO TRUCKS

Trenton, March 16.—Investigations conducted during the slack period following the blizzard have convinced the State motor vehicle department that New Jersey is losing thousands of dollars annually that should be paid as licenses for commercial trucks.

In addition to the regular license paid upon horsepower a fee of $10 is exacted for each truck weighing more than 4,000 pounds. Following the storm, inspectors were put at work checking up the returns and affidavits regarding motor trucks. Inspector Havens spent Friday in Newark and vicinity, collecting $180 in cash, which should have been paid as a surcharge upon commercial trucks. He also obtained data indicating that many other trucks weighing more than 4,000 pounds had not paid the extra fee.

Adams Express Company and several large department stores in Newark and New York were among the truck owners who failed to pay the tax. In going over the affidavits the inspectors found a remarkable number of trucks whose weight was given as just below 4,000 pounds. In many cases the weight of a truck exceeding 4,000 pounds was placed at a few pounds less than that figure.

SENATOR BRISTOW.

Was Severely Rebuked by Vice President Marshall.

While the debate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill was in progress in the senate Mr. Bristow reflected on Senator Smith of Maryland by charging he would make a point of order against any "amendment which would reduce the price of gas to the people of the District. Vice President Marshall told Senator Bristow his language was offensive and contrary to the rules of the senate. Senator Bristow demanded an explanation. "The chair has ruled, and it is his duty to enforce the rule," retorted the vice president. "Out in Indiana the language of the senator would be considered an insult."

PREACHERS DEMAND A NEW TRIAL FOR FRANK

Atlanta Pulpits Ring With Strong Appeals.

Atlanta, Ga., March 16.—Demand for a new trial for Leo M. Frank was strongly voiced by several Atlanta ministers in their sermons, all declaring that, in their opinion, the condemned man had not been fairly tried and that to execute him under the present sentence would be judicial murder. One of the strongest pleas for a new trial was made by Dr. G. R. Holderly, pastor of the Moore Memorial Presbyterian church. Dr. Holderly has served this church for years, and he is recognized as one of the ablest ministers of Atlanta. Dr. Holderly said in part:

"As a preacher of the gospel and as a citizen of Georgia it becomes my duty for the second time to warn the state of the sin and danger of taking a human life unless it is absolutely sure that life has been duly forfeited. Leo M. Frank has been condemned to death. I am not asserting his guilt or innocence, nor do I care any more about Frank than I would about the poorest negro in Georgia. I never heard of this man until his arrest. I would feel it my duty to appeal for a fair trial for any man.

"This Frank has not had, as every unbiased man must admit, nor is it likely he can get such trial in Atlanta on account of the prejudice against him. This should not be, but is true. It would be unfair to hang a sheep killing dog on the evidence upon which Frank has been convicted.

"Should this man be executed and it be discovered that he was not guilty, then the state of Georgia would be guilty of an atrocious murder. Leo M. Frank should have a new trial, and it should be held in a judicial atmosphere."

DRINK FATAL TO BOY AFTER FROLIC

Expires In Stupor After Gay Straw Ride.

OTHERS REGAIN SENSES.

Owner of Truck Drove All Excepting Three to Homes—Unable to Arouse Them—Two Come Out of Slumber. Physician Is Called For Third and Declares Him Dead.

Hackensack, N. J., March 16.—A party of young people, including several girls, took a straw ride from Ridgefield Park to New Bridge, about six miles from Hackensack. Otto Gneiding, owner of the truck, drove all excepting Russell J. Nevins, Edward Flannagan and Percy Hunter to their homes. These three youths slept so soundly in the straw that their companions were unable to arouse them. Gneiding decided not to disturb them and put up his rig in the stable for the night.

Hunter, who is a son of Assessor William H. Hunter, awoke and tried without success to awaken his friends. He then went home. Four hours later the truck owner shook the sleepers. Flannagan alone responded to rough handling. Gneiding called Dr. Knox to examine Nevins. The physician said the youth had been dead at least two hours.

County Physician Armstrong agreed with Dr. Knox that death was caused by heart failure, superinduced by an excess of strong drink.

Flannagan was taken to police headquarters, but was permitted to go home on his promise that he would appear in case an inquest is ordered, which is not considered likely.

The police do not believe there is anything suspicious about Nevins' death. There were no marks on his body.

Nevins was nineteen years old. He was the son of Edward Nevins, with whom he was associated in the stone business in New York.

WED IN SECRET—LOSES JOB

Jersey Lawyer's Mother Relieves Him of Managerial Position.

Orange, N. J., March 16.—Announcement was made here of the marriage on Feb. 14 of Ovidio Blanchi, a young lawyer of this city, to Miss Mazie Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright of Boston. The couple were married in Newark.

When the mother of the bridegroom learned of his secret wedding to a young woman of whom she knew nothing, she became indignant and relieved him of the management of the Blanchi Wine company of this city, founded by the young man's father forty years ago.

The young couple will live in East Orange. It was Blanchi who in a borrowed automobile took up the pursuit of Daniel A. Dugan, Jr., James A. Clark, Jr., and Louis Nolte after their automobile struck and killed fourteen-year-old Leo McDermott on Christmas day, 1911.

Young Dugan has served a month in state prison of the term of from five to ten years meted out to him on a charge of manslaughter.

FOUR BISHOPS TO OFFICIATE.

Prelates Will Conduct Funeral of the Right Rev. John Scarborough.

Trenton, N. J., March 16. — Four bishops will officiate at the funeral of Bishop John Scarborough of the Episcopal diocese of New Jersey in Christ church in Trenton at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. They are Bishops Edwin Lines of Newark, Ethelbert Talbot of Bethlehem, Pa.; Philip Rhinelander of Philadelphia and David Greer of New York.

The standing committee of the diocese will form an escort for the coffin. These are the members of the committee: The Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, the Rev. Alfred B. Baker, the Rev. Charles M. Perkins, the Rev. H. M. Pearse, J. B. Woodward, David E. Baird, Charles Townsend and Warren R. Dix.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

Mrs. David Coryell of Ridge road, Great Notch, attempted to board an Erie train as it was moving out of the Bellevue avenue station in Montclair. Her dress caught in the car and she was dragged 100 feet. She received only slight injuries.

Henry S. Aiken, a New York lawyer, has been elected president of the Maplewood Field club to succeed Charles A. Cross, township president. The club has decided to hold another safe and sane Fourth of July celebration. George Stevenson was chosen chairman of the committee of arrangements.

The Montclair board of education has adopted revised plans for a high school building to be constructed at a cost of $470,000. The board of school estimate will pass upon the request of the board of education at a meeting to be held this week. Originally the board of education asked for $560,000 for a new high school building.

The movement against "false advertising" which was started by the chamber of commerce of Trenton resulted in the arrest of John T. Dunham of S. P. Dunham & Co., dry goods merchants. Bessie Lidski alleged that she bought a dress for $4.98 at the Dunham store which she said was advertised to be worth $10. She asserts the dress is not worth $10.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGES.

Insurance against unemployment or charity for the indiscriminate mass of unemployed was not the solution of the question of idleness in America, arrived at by the first National Conference on unemployment held in New York recently. Instead, the gathering decided that the solution of the problem lies in the establishment jointly by the federal government, the state and municipalities of interlocking employment agencies to make possible the greatest encouragement of industry and help the idle in seeking work. Had the conference included also the provision of work by cities during times of dullness, its findings would have been complete.

The conference report was simultaneous with the breaking up of Kelly's army in California after its leaders had refused Gov. Johnson's offer of jobs and with the declaration of John Mitchell, former United Mine Workers president, that "I don't believe that society owes every man a living, but it does owe every man an opportunity to earn a living honorably." About the same time, the idle in Masachusetts were declaring that "if society refuses you a living, steal."

The National Conference declared substantially:

First, favoring a bureau of distribution in the federal government Department of Labor to stand at the head of a system of employment agencies or exchanges throughout the country and act as a clearing house of information.

Second, favoring the establishment or reconstruction of free state employment agencies and urging that they conform to certain specific ideas.

Third, urging the various municipalities to establish employment offices.

Fourth, recommending strict regulation of private employment agencies.

Fifth, recommending a thorough investigation of unemployment and promotion of public action to solve the problem.

Free employment agencies can well be established in every city and locality, not only to get work for the idle but to get help for those having work to be done. As the National Conference decided, this is a matter for city, state and federal government for days of plenty and days of stress alike.

LICENSING POOL ROOMS.

Some months ago the local police arrested the proprietor of a local pool room alleging that he permitted gambling to go on there. He was held in bail, but we cannot recall anything further having been done about the matter. When the man appeared in court he maintained that he and his employes were innocent of violating any law. New Brunswick has the right idea in the regulation of these places, and Plainfield might do well to copy the Middlesex county seat. An ordinance has been passed which will give that city control of all billiard and pool parlors beginning May 1. They will all be forced to close at midnight week days and remain closed until 7 o'clock the next morning and all day Sundays, with the screens removed from the windows as provided for hotels and saloons under the "bishops' law."

Every proprietor must have nine signers, property owners, to his petition for license, and must pay $5 for the first table and $1 for every other table in his place on which billiards is played. Bowling alleys also come under the ordinance, the license fee being $5 for the first alley and $1 for every additional alley. No one under eighteen can play in any licensed place and the Mayor can revoke a license at any time.

The passage of such an ordinance here would make it possible for the police to keep a watchful eye over the places at all times, and also would make the proprietors see that nothing occurred which might force them out of business because of losing their licenses.

MADISON AVENUE AGAIN.

The Madison avenue widening proposition, a matter which has been more or less before the public for twenty years, has now reached that stage where a public hearing has been called for argument pro and con. It will be held in the Council Chamber tonight and it behooves those vitally interested to be in attendance for a clearance of views. That the widening is an improvement long overdue, no public spirited citizen will deny. The present narrow walk in some portions of the affected district has been a detriment to the business growth of that section. The roadway itself is entirely inadequate for the ordinary traffic that is compelled to use it. The time to do the widening is now, but at the same time it should not be done at an unequal and burdensome expense to a few individuals. Fortunately, the west side of the street is easily vacated for a slicing off of the needed extension, but on the east side several pieces of property block the way. More than one-third of the building at the Front street corner ,belonging to the Dreier estate, will have to be torn away and the owners will suffer heavily. The structure has a frontage of twenty-four feet and the loss of nearly nine feet all along the Madison avenue side will practically ruin it. The smaller structures in the rear are of ancient construction, built of wood and only one story in height, so that the money or volume of business concerned is not so great. The citizens of Plainfield want improvements, but it is not their desire to interfere with the rights of others in securing them. The hearing tonight is set for the purpose of having a full understanding of the matter from all sides and the Daily Press urges a large attendance for a wholesome argument. Make yourself a committee of one and aid the cause.

WOULD MAKE PLEASURE RESORT OF TIER'S POND

Suggestion Discussed at Meeting of Men's Association of Warren Chapel.

Residents of Plainfield and the borough are interested in a project, advocated at the meeting of the Men's Association of Warren chapel last week, which is nothing less than the thorough cleaning out of Tier's pond and Green brook, and making a pleasure lake that will prove to be a community asset. It is declared that this improvement could be accomplished at a very small expense. The lake would, it is said, be available to skaters in the winter and in the summer canoes could be used by the younger element of the population hereabouts, to a limited extent, at least.

The matter has been investigated by one of the public spirited citizens of the borough and its feasibility has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of himself and others whom he has taken into his confidence in the matter.

Tier's pond enjoys a highly advantageous location. It is central, and is held to be particularly well adapted, because of its environment for pleasure purposes. At the present time the pond is absolutely useless and is regarded as more or less of a plague spot by those residing in its neighborhood.

Residents of the borough know that it has long been made a dumping place for refuse and it is a well known fact that every year, at about the time that dog licenses are payable, the pond becomes the last resting place of many dogs.

During the last three years Tier's pond has been allowed to lapse into such a condition as to create a breeding places of mosquitoes in damp spots, while on the flats hay has been harvested. During the past winter while the pond has been covered with ice, ashes, garbage of all sorts, broken bottles, tin cans and other refuse, has been dumped upon the surface of the ice. Present conditions, as in the past few years, are declared by residents to be disgraceful. They hope to interest a sufficient number of people in the community to change the present unpleasant conditions and to make an improvement. Other towns and cities are said to be spending money, and considerable sums too, in the creation of pleasure spots. The improvement of Tier's pond could, it is said, be accomplished through the expenditure of very little cash on the part of the two municipalities interested. Both the borough and city authorities are said to be held equally responsible and accountable for the present state of affairs. There is said to be absolutely no police surveillance over the pond, and its banks, with the result that all sorts of nuisances have been committed, and without the slightest fear of interference on the part of the authorities.

Investigation, made today, showed Green brook, from Norwood avenue to Hyde's pond, to be in fairly good condition. From the bridge, at Norwood avenue, to the entrance at Tier's pond, it is in very bad shape. In the summer time the brook's bed is dry. Ill smelling and stagnant pools of water, coated with green scum, are to be seen. The dam, itself, is very old and is in poor condition at the present time. It is believed the best thing to do would be to destroy it and build a new dam, closer to the bridge. The channel is narrow at that point. The old raceway, in the opinion of residents of the locality who are familiar with existing conditions, should be closed as a prevention of the escape of the impounded water.

At small expense, Green brook and Tier's pond could be thoroughly cleaned out and made an asset to the community, rather than a detriment as is now the case, citizens who have investigated the matter say.

MRS. P. H. STEWART ENTERTAINS JUNIORS

Pleasing Program Presented for Members of Young Women's Christian Ass'n.

The members of the housekeeping centre and all those connected with the junior department of the Y. W. C. A., were entertained in a delightful manner, Saturday afternoon, by Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, the affair being held at the association building. There were about 125 young women present to enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. Stewart.

During the afternoon solos were sung by Mrs. W. E. L. Ward, of Netherwood, and entertaining stories were told by Miss Askew, the organizer of the Library Commission, at Trenton. Choruses were sung by the girls present, who gathered in groups from time to time about the piano, and cheers and vociferous yells were given frequently by the various clubs represented in the assemblage.

That it was "a real party" one young miss declared emphatically when she was served, as were all those girls who were present, with large and unusually liberal portions of ice cream and cake. The occasion was in every way a success and it is the hope of the girls that it will be followed by other entertainments of a similar nature.

At the Sunday afternoon vesper service held at the Y. W. C. A. building, Miss Sarah E. Cadoo conducted the service and read "The Counsel Assigned," a story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews. Next Sunday afternoon there will be a song service held at the Y. W. C. A. and a reading by Mrs. Robert Lowry. On Thursday evening next, March 19, Y. W. C. A. members will enjoy a St. Patrick's Day party. Irish songs will be sung and the decorations of the house will be green with, of course, pots of Irish shamrock.

Tonight the spring millinery class opens at the Y. W. C. A. building. The members who join will trim their Easter hats two evenings a week for the next three weeks. Today, at noon, the Y. W. C. A. served hot soups and cocoa to business girls of the vicinity. Cocoa is three cents a cup and soup four cents a cup. A cordial invitation is extended all girls who are employed in the vicinity, to bring their luncheon with them if they wish and add cocoa and hot soup to the pleasure of their mid-day meal. The innovation will, it is believed, by the Y. W. C. A. officials be appreciated. The custom will be continued daily.

QUARTERLY MEETING ATTRACT MANY TO MT. ZION CHURCH

The quarterly meeting services, held at Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, yesterday, were largely attended. At each service there was deep spiritual interest. The love feast was in charge of Rev. E. B. Maynard. He read the lesson from the third chapter of the book of John and commented upon the scriptural passages. Rev. P. O. Hicks also spoke. Rev. W. H. Hicks delivered an address at the morning service. In the afternoon Rev. J. M. Hoggard, of Westfield, preached on the subject, "The Power of the Gospel." Music was given by the boy choir of Bethel chapel under the leadership of Prof. Charles VanHorn.

In the evening, Rev. P. O. Hicks, a brother of the pastor, preached on the subject, "The Communion." Four persons came forward upon invitation of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Hicks, and were received into the church on probation. Rev. J. H. Morgan, Rev. A. J. Wilson and Rev. W. G. Campbell were present at the services and lent their earnest assistance.

Wednesday evening the quarterly conference will be held. It is understood that an invitation will be extended the pastor, Rev. W. H. Hicks to remain with the church another year. The conference will be presided over by Rev. Dr. A. L. Murray, of Jersey City. The ladies of the congregation will serve refreshments during the evening.

FACIAL BEAUTY AND GRACE CHARM MEN

So Declares Rev. Dr. Herring in Sermon on "Choosing a Help-mate."

"Choosing a Help-Mate," or "a worthy woman who can find?" was the subject of an interesting discourse by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night. "The characteristics of this worthy woman are given in the last chapter of the Book of Proverbs," the preacher declared, "and inasmuch as they are the words of a wise man, a man so wise that his wisdom is recorded in the Scriptures, we will be wise if we study some of his wisdom." In part Dr. Herring said:

"The first thing that an unsophisticated young man looks for in a young lady is facial beauty and physical grace. He sees and his heart beats faster because thrilled with that undefinable and indescribable something called love.' His science studies have taught him that 'to be beautiful is to be efficient,' and so perhaps he falls in love and perhaps marries in haste to repent at leisure.

"This is what the wise man says: 'Grace is deceitful and beauty is vain.' Physical beauty becomes a very monotonous thing unless there is the beauty of goodness behind it.

"Just read the kind of a home that this worthy woman made for her husband and children. They loved it better than the club or the saloon. She made wise provision for the future and 'laughed at the time to come.' She managed to provide for and save for the contingencies in life all unknown to her husband. He said to her, 'Thou excellest all other women.' To him she was the brightest little woman living.

"She was not a shrew for 'The Law of Kindness was on her tongue.' Notice, 'The Law of Kindness.' The habit of her life was kindness. She was not vivacious today and moody tomorrow. The wise man suggests that the finding of such a woman was a piece of good fortune for he says, 'A worthy woman who can find?' Marriage sometimes does seem like a lottery. Think of that wonderful man, the founder of Methodism? He married a widow with four children. She had no sympathy with him. She rifled his pockets and tore his hair, and after twenty years she left him, and he did not call her back. Edmund Burke was more fortunate, for he said of his wife that 'Every care vanishes when I enter under my own roof.'

"It is said of this worthy woman in the text that because of her counsel and cheer, her husband had 'No lack of gain.' A woman of today can help to make her husband successful or she with her selfish demands can break him. The final thing that is said about this worthy wife is 'She feared Jehovah.' In other words she did everything to show that she was a religious woman. It is sad indeed when a woman is not religious.

"Young man beware of marrying an irreligious woman. Beware too, of marrying one of another religious faith, for you must be religious together."

DO NOT WANT WOMAN MEMBER OF BORO SCHOOL BOARD

Members of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association held a meeting on Saturday afternoon in the Somerset School building, at which the subject of a woman member of the North Plainfield Board of Education was discussed. After careful consideration of the matter a resolution was passed expressing the hearty appreciation of the members of the association of the consideration shown to them at the recent citizens meeting in asking the Parent-Teacher Association to designate women candidates for the Board of Education. At the same time it was declared to be the sense of the meeting that as the matter had been previously considered and the proposition defeated, the Parent-Teacher Association should stand by the action already taken, and place no women in nomination this year.

Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed by the women present.

ARMIES BATTLING TO GET TORREON

Both Forces Advancing For Decisive Clash.

FEDERALS ON OFFENSIVE.

Meet Villa's Outposts and Win In First Skirmish — Rebel Chief, Catching a Wireless Message From Capital, Orders an Advance.

El Paso, Tex., March 16.—The government wireless station at Fort Bliss, near here, picked up a message from Torreon ordering the advance guard of Huerta's army to attack the enemy.

The messages were from General Refugio Velasco to General Rodriguez, commanding the advance force, which was sent out of Torreon to meet the advancing rebel forces, consisting of the Zaragoza brigade, commanded by General Benavides, formerly commander of the Juarez garrison.

The rebel movement started yesterday and telegraphic advices from Chihuhua say that Villa will leave for the front at sunrise to command the troops in the field. With him will go General Angeles of Carranza's cabinet, who has been asked by Villa to take command of the artillery corps of Villa's army. He left Juarez on a special train for the south.

Skirmishes occurred near Mapiml, twenty-seven miles from Torreon, indicating the presence of the federals much further from their base than the rebels had supposed. This is the reason why Villa has ordered the forward movement.

All the rolling stock on the Mexican national line south of Juarez has been ordered to Chihuahua to carry troops to the front and the fifty-eight pieces of artillery, which will be in charge of General Angeles, have already left that city.

Things Going Smoother.

Washington, March 16.—Statements made by Constitutionalist agents here confirmed the previous indications that the leaders of the rebel cause expect the utmost harmony to prevail in the relations between their organization and the government of the United States as a result of Carranza's note. In this note Carranza expressed a willingness to receive representations from United States consuls in behalf of the citizens of other governments interested in Mexico.

It is declared by those known to be direct representatives of Carranza that on the occasion of the next representations which the state department may have occasion to make on behalf of foreigners in northern Mexico it will be found that procedure laid down by Carranza will interpose no difficulties to the wishes of the United States either in form or substance. A simple statement in the consul's instructions to the effect that such representations are made at the request of this or that government will be all that is necessary to satisfy the rebel chieftain, his advisers here state.

It is pointed out that Carranza could not be expected to come out and repudiate all that he had said in his previous note, which is now admitted to have been an ill advised step. It was necessary for him in order to preserve the dignity of his position, according to his agents here, to take a roundabout path in reaching the position the United States insists that he take. It is not anticipated that there will be in the future the slightest difficulty over the United States acting for foreign governments in northern Mexico.

PARCEL POST MORE HELPFUL

Farmers May Send Boxes of Produce Weighing Up to Fifty Pounds.

Washington, March 16.—A change has been made in the rules governing the parcel post that is expected to result in a much larger use of the mails by farmers.

Postmaster General Burleson has announced that hereafter butter, eggs, fruits, berries, vegetables, dressed poultry and other articles entering the parcel post running from twenty to fifty pounds in weight may be packed in boxes and crates similar to those used when shipment is made by express. Heretofore such parcels had to be in such form that they could be placed in mail bags.

Under the new rule farm products such as those enumerated will not be put in mail bags. Packages of these articles weighing twenty pounds or less are required as heretofore to be packed in such manner as to be safely handled in bags with other mail matter.

WORLD'S OLDEST ELK DEAD.

O'Connell Headed the Parade at the Detroit Convention.

Owasso, Mich., March 16.—Daniel O'Connell, 109 years old, the oldest member in the world of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, died in his home, near here. He had been in good health until a few weeks ago, when he contracted a cold.

At the Elks' national convention in Detroit in July, 1910, Mr. O'Connell pressed the button that turned on the illuminations of the city and marched at the head of the big parade.

GENERAL CARRANZA.

Differences With U. S. Are Amicably Adjusted.

Statements made by Constitutionalist agents in Washington confirmed the previous indications that the leaders of the rebel cause expect the utmost harmony to prevail in the relations between their organization and the government of the United States as a result of Carranza's note. In this note Carranza expressed a willingness to receive representations from United States consuls in behalf of the citizens of other governments interested in Mexico.

BRYAN'S LLAMA AN UNDESIRABLE ALIEN

Animal Is Ordered Deported by Inspector.

New York, March 16.—An exceptional llama, which might be called a grand llama, arrived from Buenos Aires aboard the Lamport & Holt liner Verdi, consigned to William J. Bryan, "minister of the interior," which is the Argentine conception of the office of secretary of state. The mayor of Buenos Aires selected the llama as a gift to Colonel Bryan from a big herd of animals, five others of which also were passengers by the Verdi. The Bryan llama, or, as it was known on shipboard, Billy, is exceptionally tall for a beast of its kind. It stands nearly four feet from the ground to head, surmounting an unusually long neck, more than six feet.

On the first few days out the Bryan llama was afflicted with seasickness, and fear was expressed by the skipper, who is an admirer of Colonel Bryan, that the llama might never reach this port unless it was braced up a bit.

Wireless Operator William Boyle, who had read about Colonel Bryan's grape juice cocktails, suggested that the ship's big supply of Mendoza grapes might be utilized on the llama. The first Mendoza highball that was put before the grand llama was eagerly lapped up, and the llama began to spruce up and take notice. Captain Penrice said at quarantine that he felt sure the grape juice saved the Bryan llama's life.

Inspector Borne, who visited the ship, said there was no doubt about the beauty of the grand llama—in fact, he admitted that it was the finest animal of the kind he had ever seen—but it had its defects from the viewpoint of a veterinarian, being afflicted with the foot and mouth disease, and ordered it deported.

ASK BOND FOR JOHN D.

Tarrytown's Trustees Fear Stable Will Wreck Pavements.

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 16.—John D. Rockefeller has bought a new stone. It is said to weigh 250 tons and is to be used in the construction of his new stable. The stone is to be brought to Tarrytown in a boat and carted from the dock to Pocantico hills. Mr. Rockefeller applied to the board of trustees for permission to move it through Tarrytown. The board refused the request until Mr. Rockefeller furnished a bond to protect the village from damages. The trustees fear that the heavy stone may break the pavement.

At the estate no information was given about the stone except that it is to be used in the new stable. The trustees are awaiting more information and the bond.

WILLIE KEELER'S DIAMOND CAREER SINCE HIS START IN PLAINFIELD

William Keeler, a product of the local baseball lots, is a direct contradiction of the somewhat general assumption that brawn and muscle are necessary qualities in the making of a successful ball player. He is a puny individual of very slight build, and therefore frail-looking. Nevertheless, he twice led the National League in batting, in 1897 and 1892, and in the seven years he spent in the American League he was once second in batting honors and once third.

He was never a slugger, and never figured among the heavy hitters of any team he belonged to. Singles were his specialty, and he made enough of them, aided by his fleetness of foot, to give him high rank among the best batters in the game. He is the originator of the expression "hit where they ain't."

This observation was in answer to a question as to what made a successful hitter. As a fielder first as a third baseman and then as an outfielder, he took rank with the highest. For nineteen years he played in the major leagues, twelve with the National League and seven with the American League.

Keeler was born in Brooklyn on March 3, 1872, and played on local and other teams as an amateur and "semi-professional" from a tot up. In 1892 he was with the Crescent team of the Crescent League, an independent organization, which played one game a week.

Herman Doerscher, the noted umpire, was then manager of the Binghamton team of the Eastern League. Happening to be around Plainfield in the early part of June, he watched a game in which Keeler played, and so impressed was he with the youngster's work that, although he had come to see a player named Brennan perform, he forgot all about Brennan and thought only of the little left-hand batter.

He approached Keeler after the game and asked him what his pay was. Keeler replied that he was getting $2 a game, and when Doerscher offered him $90 a month and handed him $2 5in advance Billy accepted with much alacrity and then began his real professional career.

He played third base for Binghamton, supplanting John Irwin, and also was seen at second base and shortstop, and sometimes took a turn in the pitcher's box. There were two seasons in 1892 in the Eastern League, and Binghamton won the second half and the championship.

Keeler's fine work attracted the attention of major league magnates, and Louisville, through its president, Dr. T. Hunt Stucky, offered $1,500 for his services, but the offer was turned down. Later, Pat Powers, manager of the New York Giants, secured him for $800 and paid him $1,600 a year.

Billy played his first major league game on September 30, 1892, taking the place of Jim Knowles at third base, who had succeeded Denny Lyons at that corner. He played steadily until the close of the season, taking part in fourteen games, one game short of getting an official record.

In 1893 the New York club, of which John M. Ward had become manager, secured George Davis from Cleveland in trade for Buck Ewing Davis, one of the best infielders in the game, took charge of third base, and this left no room for Keeler, who was used in three games in centre field, subbing for Harry Lyons; two games at short, subbing for Bill Fuller, and one game at second base, subbing for Ward.

Near the end of July, Keeler's services were sold to the Brooklyn club, of which team Dave Fultz was the manager, for the same amount New York paid to Binghamton for him, $800. At Brooklyn he was also unable to secure a permanent berth, although he subbed for George Schoch at third base and for Fultz in left field. In August he was loaned to the Binghamton team, for which he played fifteen games at third base, finishing the season in the Eastern League. The Binghamton team was then managed by Charles M. ("Pop") Smith, the veteran second baseman, and finished fifth in the race for the Eastern League championship.

In 1894 Keeler was traded by Brooklyn to Baltimore along with Dan Brouthers, for Billy Shindle and George Treadway. It was now that Keeler began his really brilliant career. He took Treadway's place in right field for Baltimore, and for sixteen years afterward was one of the star outfielders, and never played any other position than right field. He was with Baltimore five years, with Brooklyn four years, and with the New York American League team seven years.

The Baltimore team in 1894, when Keeler joined it, was managed by Ed Hanlon, and won the National League championship three years in succession, in 1894, 1895 and 1896. The Oriole outfield then consisted of Joe Kelley in life field; Walter (Steve) Brodie in center, and Billy Keeler in right, all cast-offs.

Kelley was thrown off by Pittsburgh; Brodie by Boston and St. Louis, and Keeler by New York and Brooklyn. In fact, almost the whole Baltimore championship outfit, from the manager to the shortstop, was made up of castoffs. Hanlon, the manager, was cast off by Pittsburgh, and Hugh Jennings, the shortstop, by Louisville.

For five years the cast-off outfield held together, and then began to dissolve. In 1897 Jake Stenzel superseded Brodie, and in 1898 Ducky Holmes made Kelley shift from left to centre field. In 1899 Brodie, after a sojourn of two years at Pittsburgh, came back and was the only one of the strong outfield of cast-offs left to Baltimore. Sheckard took Keeler's place in right field and Holmes continued to cavort in left field.

In 1899 Keeler, along with Manager Hanlon and the pick of the Oriole team, went to Brooklyn, which then won the championship in that year and in 1900. In 1903 the team was raided by the American League, and Keeler went over to the American League team of New York together with the cream of the Brooklyn players. He remained with the Highlanders until the close of the season of 1909, when he was let go, his base ball days apparently being over.

In 1910 he was engaged by McGraw to teach the Giants to hit "where they ain't," and occasionally acted as pinch hitter. In 1911 he joined the Rochester team, for which he played thirty-eight games in right field. In 1912 the Brooklyn club took a fancy to the little hero and put his name on the salary list, and it was the last time his name was connected with baseball of the higher class.

SPRINTER DROPS DEAD.

La Crosse, Wis., March 16.—In an indoor field meet here Saturday at the High School, George Michaels, while engaged in the 100-yard dash, fell dead on the running track of the gymnasium. Heart failure superinduced by over-exertion caused his death. Michaels was the oldest of eight children of a widow.

"Sportdom Tips"

Although it has been announced time and again that the basketball season was on its last legs, activities at the present time are far from a standstill and indications are that a number of good contests will yet be staged on local courts. At the present time there is a series under way with the Scotch Plains Parish House and Y. M. C. A. teams as opponents, and it is barely possible that Hope Chapel may be induced to reconsider its reply to the 'Plains challenge. Several all-star attractions have been arranged by enterprising managers and those will also add to whatever interest may be held over until the baseball curtain goes up. Next Saturday afternoon the Plainfield and Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls clash in basketball regalia and tomorrow night a group of feminine huskies are scheduled to invade Trentonian territory for a game with the association. The Plainfield team will be made up of some strong material and a victory is looked for on this occasion.

Old Sols' sudden display of friendliness has instilled the baseball players with new life and the captains of the local and borough school nines are contemplating sessions of outdoor practice during the coming week, the first open air limbering up of the season. Several indoor drills have been conducted by the respective leaders, but as yet fresh air has not been introduced. Now that Leal School has secured Crescent Oval for a playing center, we have three fine fields on which to stage Interscholastic Baseball League contests. Plainfield High School is holding fort at Parker Field and North Plainfield High School has been remodeling Hyde Oval for a playing center.

Now that the reorganization of the Sunday-School League has been assured, it is time someone got busy in City League circles. Last year was the initial season for this circuit, but it nevertheless proved a hugh success and when the schedule was wound up all of the teams expressed a desire to keep the League for seasons to come. Several new aspirants, among which are a couple of old Manufacturers' League contenders, have come to the fore and it seems probable at the present time that an eight team circuit will replace the four club plan of last year.

All anxiety evidenced by the friends of the ball players who have elected to take a chance on the Federal League this season, will be set aside by an announcement made by President Gilmore of the outlaw organization today, when he stated that all of the men under contract would be taken care of in the event of their failure to make good in the league. He also confirmed the report that the two minor outlaw leagues would be formed next year to provide outlaw "farms."

Howard F. McConnell, known in Wall street as "Father Abraham," and in this section as the "John McGraw of the Foothills," was chosen to manage the Commonwealth Base Ball Club, of the Eastern Amateur League, during the coming season, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. "Wally" Cosgrove, formerly a member of the Plainfield nine, is the right fielder for the Commonwealth Club.

Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the American Olympic Commission, has suggested that women athletes be allowed to participate in the next Olympic games. What inspired the action is still a mystery.

NEW N. A. L. RECORD.

Homer Baker, the lean, lanky Mercury Foot and Seventy-first Regiment A. A. middle distancer won a grand victory over Abel Kiviat, of the Irish-American A. C. and Thirteenth Regiment A. C., in the annual indoor track and field championships of the Military Athletic League, which were held in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Saturday night. The stocky little Brooklyn militiaman, however, made the elongated, longstriding national champion hang up a new N. A. L. record of 1 56 4-5 to turn the trick.

FEDERALS HAVE $50,000,000.

Chicago, March 16.—President Gilmore, of the Federal League, gave out a list of the league's owners and backers, which shows, according to his figures, that there is $50,000,000 behind the organization. Twelve millionaires are on the roster, he said. The wealthiest club is that in Brooklyn, where the Wards are credited with capital amounting to $25,000,000.

SKATER HAS CORK LEG.

Collingdale, Pa., March 16.—Skaters who have crowded the ice on Ridley Park Lake are much interested in the skill of John Evans, a business man of Collingdale, with only one leg. He can give many skaters with two legs cards and spades in speed or in fancy skating. He has an artificial leg and is so skillful in its use it would not be noticed.

Query—When was the Brooklyn bridge built? What was the name of the architect who furnished the plans and of what nationality was he?—H. K. R.

Answer—The designer of the Brooklyn bridge was John Augustus Roebling, born in Russia, came to America when a young man, became an American citizen, and was one of the greatest civil engineers in the world. He designed and carried to completion the suspension bridge at Niagara Falls many years before he was called upon to do the same for Brooklyn bridge. He died in 1869 while the work was in progress. The bridge was completed, according to his plans, by his son, Washington Augustus Roebling, who had been his father's assistant and was chief engineer after his father's death. The bridge was completed in May, 1883.

Query—To what country has Julius Ulivi (Italian engineer) sold his X-Ray explosion invention and what advantage will it give to the country that has secured it?—D. L. P.

Answer—Guile Ulive, Italian inventor; after experimenting with the Infra Red Rays believed he had found means of firing a charge of high explosive at a distance by means of what he designed as X-Rays. In July he made some demonstrations at Havre, France, in an effort to dispose of his discovery to the French government. Although the tests appeared to be conclusive scientists were divided in their opinions regarding his discovery, some claiming it to be like the N-Rays of Professor Blondiat, an illusion. He is now trying to interest the Italian government. If he can do all that he claims he will be able to explode magazines of battleships from a distance of ten miles, fire mine fields, blow up the magazines of forts, explode the gas bags of dirigibles and other balloons, the gasoline tanks of aeroplanes, etc.

ATHENIAN COLORED TEAM ROUTED BY SCOTCH PLAINS

Playing its first game for several weeks the Scotch Plains Parish House first team took the measure of the Athenian colored team, of Plainfield, by a 43 to 11 count on the Parish House court, Saturday night, before one of the largest crowds ever assembled at that place to witness a game. The game was a one-sided affair.

Naylor, a former Y. M. C. A. man, added greatly to the Parish House defense. Marston was high man with eighteen and Ricketts with fifteen was second. McCray made seven counters for the Athenians.

CLEAN EXHIBITION BY FAST OPPONENTS

Glen Ridge Smothers P. H. S. in a Fast Contest on Y. M. C. A. Basketball Court.

For the second time this year the Plainfield High School basketball shooters were handed a severe beating at the hands of the fast traveling Glen Ridge five. When the whistle blew at the close of the game the score stood at 44 to 15 in favor of the Glen Ridge boys. Glen Ridge has only been beaten once this year and that was by the Montclair High School five.

Both teams played a fast game and the visitors soon became accustomed to the foreign floor. Glen Ridge began to draw away from Plainfield and repeated goals by Minasian ended the first half with the score at 24 to 10.

A foul goal by McNamee, and a field goal by Hetfield, were the only points the locals scored in the second half, while their opponents caged ten field goals. The game was remarkably free from fouls, there being but five called on Glen Ridge and three on Plainfield.

MANAGER LEIGHS REPLIES TO SCOTCH PLAINS TEAM

Sporting Editor Daily Press:

In the Daily Press of March 14, I read a letter which calls for an answer from me. Mr. Willard V. Marston and Mr. J. A. Ricketts say "We would like to hear from Leighs as to the dates on which we had these games scheduled." My reply is: On October 3, 1913, our manager received a letter from Mr. Batterson asking for games with our first and second teams. On October 16, 1913, a letter was received from Mr. Batterson in which he acknowledged the receipt of a post-card giving dates with the Scotch Plains team as follows: December 13, 1913, on Hope Chapel court, and January 3, 1914, on Scotch Plains court. Our manager went to Mr. Batterson and explained that since we had to play away from our own court when it was the Scotch Plains home game they might reasonably be expected to do the same. Mr. Batterson said we had better call off all the games and if they wanted a game later in the season he would let us know. Our manager made up his schedule so it was not possible to give them a game, not having heard from Scotch Plains. The Scotch Plains team was to play our second team at Hope gym December 13, 1913. That game was cancelled by a post-card dated December 6, 1913, signed by W. Anson. The above, I think, proves my previous statement. Last year the Scotch Plains team cancelled more games with us than they have done this year. I am truly sorry we could not play Scotch Plains and I would suggest to their manager, that in the interest of true sport, he forget his fancied greivance. Hope Chapel and Scotch Plains are both working for the same end—to help our young men and boys to get good healthy exercise and aid them in living better lives. I hope this will end needless discussion.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE T. LEIGHS, Sr.,
Leader Young Men's League.

PLAINFIELD TEACHER IS MAKING BIG HIT

Carl Johnson Caught Nine Innings and Covered Himself With Glory Yesterday.

Carl Johnson, who resigned his position as manual training teacher in the local public schools to enter professional baseball, is now occupying a regular berth on the Jersey City team of the International League, which is playing exhibition games in Wilmington, N. C., with the Philadelphia Nationals. In the last game of the series, yesterday afternoon, played before Governor Tener and a party of notables, wildness on the part of the Skeetertown twirler gave the Philas a 3 to 2 victory.

Johnson caught the wild slants of Shultz, Tuoro and Verbout, and covered himself with glory during the nine innings he performed. Beides pulling across one of the two runs, Johnson handled eight chances without an error, although he had to reach for many of the wide shoots handed him by his pitchers who were "up in the air" during the whole contest. Johnson drew one base on balls and got on a second time through an error on the part of the first sacker. He also stole a base during the encounter.

THRILLING EXHIBIT BY GYMNASTIC TEAM

Springfield Training School Athletes Presented Fine Program at Y. M. C. A.

An audience that filled the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium to its capacity attended the gymnastic exhibition given by the team representing the Springfield (Mass.) Training School "gym" team, Saturday night, and enjoyed a program of difficult turns and moves that lasted for a full two hours. Assisting the collegians in their demonstration were three Plainfield athletes who have organized a similar team under the auspices of the local association and their work was the subject of favorable comment. The local talent, composed of Erickson VanNorden, Bert Hansen and Henry England, gave an excellent preliminary exhibition which rivaled for interest with that of the experienced college performers.

The Springfield team gave a remarkable exhibition of nerve, daring and skill and the demonstration was even better than the one given under the auspices of the same aggregation here two years ago, when Charles H. Line, a Plainfield boy, was one of the performers. Line accompanied his fellow colleagues as a spectator. He is at present taking a post-graduate course in the Springfield college.

Club swinging and musical features comprised the program and all were well received by an enthusiastic audience. Ten athletes, trained to the minute, performed on the flying rings, mats, heavy apparatus and with equipment carried by the team and although several of the moves called for an unusual display of nerve on the part of the performer not a single accident occurred.

A number of unique folk dances and portrayals of college sports were given by the team, accompanied with music, and these featured the intermissions between the work on the apparatus. This is only one of the many exhibitions on the college schedule and leaving here the athletes went to Orange, where they will perform tonight. Prior to the show here the team was entertained by the Women's Auxiliary of the association at a banquet served in the Y. M. C. A. parlors.

DROPPED IN FOR A LOOK.

Albin Carlstrom, who last year played shortstop for the Plainfield team during the championship race and who has been a familiar figure on local lots for a number of years, dropped into town Saturday afternoon to visit some of his friends prior to his departure for Montreal. He will play with the Montreal Club, of the International League, this season.

FAY WASHBURN SIGNS.

Fay Washburn, the clever litttle infielder, who hangs his hat in Plainfield during the winter months, has signed a contract with Jesse Burkett's Worcester Club, of the New England League. He was with the club during the latter part of last season and made such a good impression that Burkett offered him a second contract.

OFFICIAL MARKS FOR ELKS' TEAMS

Secretary Nash Issues the First Records of the Nine Aggregations.

FOUR TEAMS IN A TIE

Nine Players Occupy Places in the 175 Class at the Present Time—All of the Aggregations Have Completed One Round in the Schedule.

Official Elks' Club Bowling League averages compiled by Secretary V. W. Nash, Jr., show that first place in the organization is at the present time split up between teams No. 5, 1, 3 and 6, each of which has won two-thirds of the games contested. Edward Laing's aggregation leads the pack for the greatest number of games played and is also the high team score holder with a mark of 826.

The best team average is held by Waldorf's crew with a record of 790.1. All of the teams have started their schedules and the league race is now well under way. Some keen competition has been developed among the nine teams on the roster and interest is increasing with every series.

DAVE DRISCOLL TO LAUNCH A VENTURE

Long Branch Team to Be Transferred to Newark the Coming Season.

Dave Driscoll, formerly captain of the Plainfield baseball team, and at present coach of the Seton Hall College nine, is president and one of the chief stockholders in the Long Branch team of the New York and New Jersey Baseball League, which will this year transfer its interests to Newark.

The project will scarcely be the howling success in Newark that the promoters of the little league anticipate. Down at Long Branch the league club was a big attraction, but in a city of Newark's size, the little league will scarcely be regarded as more than a side show in comparison with the main attraction under the International League tent, and it is doubtful if the newcomers will be able to arouse enough public enthusiasm to make it a paying venture.

When the Atlantic League staked a claim in Newark six years ago, it didn't draw as well as a porous plaster, and the league went up in smoke before the season was more than a few weeks under way.

The Newark team of the New York and New Jersey League is to play its home games at Wiedenmayer's Park. It may be the means of giving many a good local sand lot player a start in the professional ranks.

DOROTHY ARNOLD.

Missing Heiress Who Was Reported to Be Found.

The hallucinations of a young woman, Emily Splawn O'Dell, who was only recently freed of a bad check charge on account of alleged irrationality, were responsible for the story of the alleged finding of the missing Dorothy Arnold of New York in Los Angeles, Cal. Her husband, Charles O'Dell, said the story she told of being the missing daughter of the wealthy New York merchant was the product of a mental disorder. O'Dell is a taxicab driver. He said the young woman's maiden name was Splawn, daughter of a family long resident in Los Angeles. William Zeigler, a city detective, who knew her family, made the same identification. She had never been to New York but had become obsessed with the idea that she was Dorothy Arnold.

NIP PLOT TO STEAL $500,000 IN GEMS

Police Arrest Two of Safe Crackers' Gang.

New York, March 16.—After trailing them for a month, detectives arrested two alleged safe breakers and captured what Inspector Faurot said was the finest set of burglars' tools and safe breaking implements he had seen in many years. The men were arrested, it was said, after they had completed arrangements to rob the safe of Stern Bros. & Co. in their office on the eleventh floor of the loft building at 136 West Fifty-second street of $500,000 worth of diamonds and other precious stones. The thieves had broken into the loft and had mapped it on Thursday night.

Inspector Faurot said that the prisoners had confessed that they intended to rob Stern Bros. & Co. They told him, he asserted, that they wanted to make a single "haul" which would enrich them for life. About a section bit, which the inspector called a masterpiece of mechanical ingenuity, he found wrapped a copy of the Boston Globe of Feb. 2, containing an account of how robbers had stolen $4,000 from a safe of the Williams Jewelry company on Feb. 1. He said that the prisoners were suspected of having committed this robbery. Among the prisoners' effects the detectives found a receipt from George R. Simpson, a lawyer, for $50 paid to him for defending Thomas Connors, a prisoner in the Tombs charged with having burglars' tools in his possession. The detectives had trailed the men to the Tombs and had learned that they had visited Connors.

The burglars were arrested at 915 Intervale avenue, in the Bronx, in the room of Jacob Rothner. The police said Rothner was known also as Rothman and Phil Weiss and was 24.522 in the rogues' gallery. They arrested Rothner and Michael Snedderman, who said he was a merchant, of 79 East One Hundred and Seventh street. Sneiderman, they said, was known to them as Mike Snider. The prisoners were locked up in the Mulberry street station.

FIRST OF TRUST BILLS IS READY

About to Introduce Trade Commission Measure.

IT MEETS WILSON'S IDEAS

Bill Has Support of Nearly All Members of Commerce Committee—Corporations Capitalized at $5,000,000 or More Must File Annual Reports.

Washington, March 16.—The first of the administration trust bills, proposing the creation of an interstate trade commission, is about to be introduced in the house, probably late today.

It will be reported promptly by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce and will be the first anti-trust bill of the administration to be passed by the house.

The belief is that the measure will be called up for passage next week, following the disposal of the bill providing for the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act.

The trade commission bill was prepared by a subcommittee composed of Representative Covington of Maryland, chairman; Sims of Tennessee, Talcott of New York, Rayburn of Texas and Montague of Virginia, Democrats, and Stevens of Minnesota, Esch of Wisconsin and Knowland of California, Republicans. All these members approved the bill.

The bill provides for the creation of a trade commission of three members, one of whom must be of the opposite political party to his colleagues. The measure was drawn on suggestions made by the president in his address to congress last January, when he discussed trusts and monopolies.

The president at that time recommended a trade commission "as an instrument of obtaining information and publicity and as a clearing house for the facts by which both the public and the managers of great business undertakings should be guided."

President's Ideas Carried Out.

President Wilson also recommended that the commission be made capable of assisting the courts in the shaping of corrective processes. The president believes in the preservation of proper competitive conditions and for this reason does not desire the commission to have power of regulating or controlling prices or any authority of direct control over the lawful operation of industrial business. In framing the bill as prepared for introduction these ideas have been carried out.

Because of the failure of the bill to authorize the commission to fix prices and otherwise regulate the practices of interstate corporations it probably will be opposed by the Progressives.

In explaining the bill Chairman Covington said:

"The bureau of corporations, created about ten years ago, provided rather extensive powers to investigate the organization and management of business corporations and to obtain such information as would enable the president to make recommendations to congress for new legislation.

"While these powers were very broad they failed to provide for the regular gathering of certain very important classes of information and failed to convey very necessary powers to assist in effectuating the definite policy announced by the president for an interstate trade commission.

"The bill now presented to the house of representatives comes from a unanimous subcommittee of Democratic and Republican members and is approved by practically the whole committee on interstate and foreign commerce of the house."

BISHOP PRAYS WITH GUNMEN

Thirteen Convicts, Three Life Men, Confirmed In Sing Sing.

Ossining, N. Y., March 16.—Thirteen convicts, three of them life men, were confirmed in Sing Sing prison by Bishop David H. Greer of New York. It was the first time that an Episcopal confirmation took place in the prison. The bishop in a short sermon urged the men to give their souls to God and thereby do his will on earth.

At the conclusion of the service as the bishop and the Rev. Burton Howard Lee, the Protestant chaplain, were departing the congregation of several hundred convicts broke into applause. The bishop paused and told the men that by obeying the laws and rules of the institution they would be acting as God wanted them.

Bishop Greer later held a short conference with "Dago Frank," one of the gunmen convicted of Rosenthal's murder and who was confirmed in the Episcopal church. Frank again asserted his innocence. The bishop talked with other inmates, and before leaving he knelt in prayer with the four gunmen.

Man Robbed, Ends Life.

New York, March 16.—Despondent because his pocket had been picked in a subway train and all of his earnings taken, Alfred Groch, twenty-seven years old, ended his life by shooting himself in the head at his boarding house, 1127 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn. Mrs. Ann Winalen, the landlady, said that since he reported his loss Groch had complained bitterly of his misfortune. He had been employed in an insurance office in Manhattan, she said.

FUNERAL OF MRS. JOHN HEIMER HELD AT RARITAN

The funeral of Mrs. John Heimer, of Raritan, who was so well-known here was held Saturday morning, at St. Bernard's church, Raritan. Father Zimmons officiated. Mrs. Heimer was much beloved by the parishioners of St. Bernard's church and that edifice was thronged with friends and relatives. As the remains were being carried into the church "Pray for the Dead," was effectively sung by Miss Mary Boocher, and while they were being carried from the church a quartet sang "Jerusalem."

Father Zimmons spoke of Mrs. Heimer's Christian life and her devotion to the church, saying that her Christianity was not merely a thing of yesterday and today, but constant and always. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

LIABILITY LAW WILL BE TESTED

Bound Brook Widow Sues Indemnity Company, Challenging Potency of Act.

ONE FLAW ADMITTED

Action in Middlesex County Courts the Result of Ingebord Johnson's Death Last October—State Commission Acknowledges a Joker.

Challenging the potency of the Employers' Liability Law, Mrs. Ingebord Johnson, a widow living in Bound Brook, has asked the Court of Common Pleas in New Brunswick, to compel the Globe Indemnity Company, to pay her $2,214 on the death of her husband, a carpenter, who was killed in a fall from a scaffold in Perth Amboy last October. The act is one of the "Seven Sisters" put on the New Jersey statute when President Wilson was Governor of this State.

The plaintiff has declined to accept $1,676 which the indemnity concern has offered her as a settlement. When President Wilson introduced the law in question his purpose was to provide for those dependent upon employes killed in the performance of their duty. Mrs. Johnson's contention is that the law is faulty and that it does not "adequately provide for those dependent" on victims. At the time of his death Johnson was getting wages of $3.94 a day, or $21.42 a week. Under section 12 of the liability law his widow was entitled to 35 per cent. of his weekly wages for three hundred weeks.

Under the computation made by Johnson's widow she is entitled to $7.28 a week for three hundred weeks or $2,214. When the widow put in a claim to the indemnity company it was held up on the ground that the "output" of an employe six months prior to death must be taken as an average for his work, and cited section 23 of the liability law, which appears to have been a "joker" that escaped Governor Wilson's notice. This section says:

"Where the rate of wages is fixed with output of the employe the rate shall be calculated by dividing the total value of the employe's output during the actual number of full working days during the preceding six months by the number of days he worked and was actually employed."

Owing to the fact that Johnson was ill during the greater part of the six months prior to his death, his average weekly waze was reduced to $15.97. This was taken by the indemnity company as the basis for its payment to the widow and it cut the death indemnity down to $5.58 a week. Conflicting information has passed between Mrs. Johnson, the indemnity company's officials and William E. Stubbs, secretary of the Employers' Liability Commission and the court action has resulted. Certain clauses in the act have been found to be abiguous and if the courts uphold the contention made by the indemnity company it will kill the effectiveness of the law.

JUDGE ROBERT CAREY WILL DISCUSS COMMISSION GOV'T

Judge Robert Carey, of Jersey City, will speak on "Commission Government for New Jersey Cities," at the "People's Forum" to be held at the Washington School, tomorrow night.

Judge Carey has been active in advocating the commission government idea, and as his home is in Jersey City, where the plan is in operation, he has had an opportunity to observe it at first hands, and to assist in introducing it in co-operation with Governor Wilson's program.

The plan which met with such marked success in Galveston, Texas, and which has worked well in other western and south-western cities, has not been clearly understood in New Jersey.

During the latter part of Governor Wilson's term the proposal was voted down by the citizens in various cities where it was proposed. No subject deserves more careful study than this. New Jersey failed to utilize to the full its chance to go forward under the leadership of a very able executive when this plan was first proposed, and the Recreation Committee is particularly desirous that every citizen interested and especially those opposed, should hear Judge Carey.

Former Mayor George W. V. Mory will preside at the meeting and conduct the discussion which will follow the address.

PRETTY, INEXPENSIVE SHOES YOU CAN MAKE FOR THE BABY

The soft little shoes that baby wears before he learns to walk, are quite easy for any mother to make at home by pattern 14464 which includes the cutting outlines and transfer patterns. These shoes may be constructed from white broadcloth, flannel, the tops of long white kid gloves or of white felt, and may be lined with China silk if made of one of the heavy wool materials, for winter wear. First, embroider the flower sprays with white twisted silk, then baste the lining to the outside and buttonhole the two materials together when working the scalloped edge. The soles should be cut from the same material as the tops, and may be double. The tops should be sewed to the soles with felled seams, easing the edges of the top sections slightly all the way round especially over the toes. For summer, these little shoes may be made of linen, fine French pique or cotton poplin and embroidered with mercerized thread. If made of one of these materials, they can be easily washed.

Transfer pattern 14464 which includes transfers and cutting outlines for a pair of shoes, in six months size only, can be supplied to readers for 10 cents.

Artistic Inexpensive Curtains and How to Make Them.

The curtains next the window may be of plain net, embroidered handkerchief linen, scrim or the sheerest of batiste. These may be hung flat against the window or straight at the sides, but it is not now considered correct to loop them back. The curtain illustrated is appropriate to hang flat against the window in the hall, drawing-room or dining-room and in fact these curtains are a protection from the curiosity of passers-by in any room of the city house that is built close to the street. Very sheer, cream colored batiste embroidered in eyelet work and decorated with Cluny, filet or fine linen lace may be used for making these curtains for the library, dining-room or living-room. If you prefer a less opaque drapery use very fine round-mesh net which comes in the seventy-two inches width for a dollar a yard, and combine it with a heavy linen lace and squares of embroidered batiste. The design illustrated, 14188, may be adapted in many ways for embroidering curtains of this type. It includes four medallions, each 6 by 6 inches, to be worked in eyelets, and two yards of border 2¼ inches wide, to be worked in eyelets also.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Some Cookery Suggestions

OYSTER COMBINATIONS.

OYSTERS cooked with other foods are very palatable. The flavor of the other viands often gives a peculiar and tempting variation to the taste of the oysters.

For Fastidious Folks.

Chicken and Oysters.—Take one-third cupful of melted butter, add one-fourth cupful of flour and stir until well blended; then while stirring constantly pour slowly on it two cupfuls of rich milk. Bring to the boil, add two cupfuls of cold cooked chicken, cut in dice, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Let stand in a double boiler one-half hour, add one pint of oysters and cook until the oysters are plump. Serve on buttered toast and sprinkle with one-third cupful of finely chopped celery.

Oysters With Celery.—Pour a half inch of butter into a chafing dish, into which put one teacup of finely chopped celery. Stir until a faint brown. Add one pint of milk and bring to a boil. Add one pint of drained oysters, a cupful of cracker crumbs, salt to taste, a wineglass of sherry. When the oysters crinkle add one level teaspoonful of paprika.

With White Sauce.

Oysters and Mushrooms.—Take one and a half dozen each of oysters and mushrooms, four tablespoonfuls of butter, half cupful of cracker crumbs, half teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of cayenne pepper, one cupful of white sauce. Cook the mushrooms a few minutes in some of the heated butter. Put the oysters into a baking dish, then add the mushrooms, pour over them the white sauce, which has been seasoned with pepper and the salt, sprinkle over the top the cracker crumbs and the butter and bake.

Nice Luncheon Dish.

Oysters With Noodles.—Take a pint each of oysters and of boiled noodles, one cupful of sauce, half cupful of rolled crackers, a quarter cupful of butter. Boil the noodles until tender in water that has been salted. When they are cooked drain off the water, then pour cold water over them. This keeps them from sticking together. Place the oysters which have been drained into a buttered baking dish, then add the noodles, cover this with quarter of a cupful of the oyster liquor, three-quarters of a cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, half teaspoonful of salt. Sprinkle with the rolled crackers and pieces of butter. Bake brown.

They Found a Frozen Man.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Life Saving St. Bernards.

"THE St. Bernard dogs are certainly fine, brave animals," said daddy. "They can stand cold climates because of their warm, woolly coats, and they will put up with any hardships. They are also very useful in life saving and do a great deal of it.

"Once there was an old man who owned a number of St. Bernard dogs. He had old and young ones, and every morning he taught them. In fact, he had a regular little school for them. He wanted to go on a trip and naturally wanted to take his dogs with him. So at 9 o'clock every morning school began. He would teach them how they must draw the sleds and how they must save lives, for he was going into a very cold climate.

"The dogs learned quickly, for the St. Bernard dogs are very clever. The older dogs, too, would show the younger dogs how to draw the sleds, and they were almost like assistant teachers. After the dogs were well trained the old man started on his journey.

"One night they had camped near a small settlement. The old man had found sticks and wood, and the dogs had carried it along on the sleds. So they had a huge fire. They got nice and warm and had a supper of the provisions they'd brought and which, too, the dogs had carried.

"But a storm could be seen coming, and the snow was flying so fast it was almost blinding. The old man rolled the dogs up in warm rugs, and then, rolling up in a sleeping bag, he went fast asleep.

"He had not been asleep long before he was awakened by one of the biggest of the St. Bernard dogs, who was tugging at his sleeping bag.

"'What is it, my beauty?' asked the old man. Still the dog tugged at the bag. The old man was so sleepy at first he was half dazed, but he opened his eyes. Slowly he realized that some one must be suffering near by, for he heard a strange wailing sound as of some one in distress. He got up, put on some warm things, and, hitching some of the dogs to a sled, they started out into the blizzard.

"They went toward the place where the sound of the wailing came from, and there, half buried in the snow, they found a man almost frozen to death. The old man, with the help of the dogs, put him on the big sled and dragged him back to their camp. There the old man rubbed him, and by the fire he began to recover. He said he had started out for another settlement to find food and had become blinded by the snow until he could go no farther. He was so grateful to the old man for saving his life. But the old man said that it had been his dogs who had saved his life, for they had heard his moans and had awakened him."

said the languid man, I guess I'll insure. I know it is the safest plan, with no worry to endure. And when tomorrow came around, alas, it was too late, destruction had come with a sudden bound, and sealed this poor man's fate.

Mrs. Chu and the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

MRS. TING CHI CHU.

The Chinese government has contributed very generously to make its exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition a success. One of the republic's cleverest young statesman has been appointed to the post of commissioner to the exposition. This gentleman is the Hon. Ting Chi Chu, who is counselor to the ministry of industry and commerce in China. Mr. Chu, although only twenty-seven years of age, is well qualified for his task. He was born in Shanghai and attended the Peiyang university when Wu Ting Fang, Chinese minister to this country, was president. Later he graduated from Harvard university.

Recently Mr. Chu was married to clever little Miss Pinga Hu, one of the bright students from the orient who graduated from Wellesley university in the class of 1913. She is intensely interested in the success of the Chinese exhibit and will advise and assist her husband in regard to the exhibit of woman's work.

Chinese women do wonderful work in many lines. Their embroideries are exquisite. The new China is distinctly progressive, and its women are taking a place in the industrial, artistic and professional work that may surprise many occidental people.

The Chinese government has ordered the governors of provinces to co-operate with the central exposition bureau that he may be able to make a suitable display of the progress and wealth of the country. The young commissioner and his wife will have facilities never before available for making China as it is known to the occidental world.

Mrs. Chu is the delegate from China to the international child's welfare congress, which convenes in Washington in April under the auspices of the National Congress of Mothers, Parents and Teachers' association.

HOUSEKEEPING NOTES.

Tiny Tips That Will Lighten the Daily Tasks.

To keep a chimney free from soot sprinkle a little saltpeter over the fire occasionally.

To sift ashes without raising dust sprinkle them with water or let them get wet with rain before sifting.

When buying shoes to get comfortably fitting shoes buy them in the afternoon, when the exercise of the day has spread the muscles of the feet to their largest extent.

Scrubbing brushes will last twice as long if they are put to dry with the bristles downward. If turned the other way the water soaks into the wood and rots the bristles.

To prevent stockings from being torn by the clips of stocking suspenders try doubling the stocking down before placing the clip in them, and you will find they will never tear.

When a tag comes off a bootlace a little black sealing wax carefully pressed round the end of the lace and shaped to a point makes a quite serviceable new one and lasts a long time.

To keep the ironing sheet free from creases pin it on to the board with drawing pins. These hold it securely, prevent risk of it suddenly tucking up and can easily be removed when desired.

When winding a skein of wool put two flatirons on the table a sufficient distance apart to allow of wool being stretched tightly over them. They will answer as well as any one holding the skein.

After washing white muslin, handkerchiefs, etc., soak them for a short time in clear water in which a tablespoonful of borax has been dissolved. This takes away the odor of soap, slightly stiffens them and makes them beautifully white. A tablespoonful to a gallon of water is the right quantity.

Saving Gas.

Put a small square sheet of iron over the top burners of the stove. Then light one burner only. The heat travels through the iron very quickly and several things may be cooked at the same time with only one burner.

The Abysmal Brute

CHAPTER IX.

THE next afternoon she began work on an interview with Henry Addison that was destined never to be finished. It was in the private room that was accorded her at the Courier-Journal office that the thing happened.

She had paused in her writing to glance at a headline in the afternoon paper announcing that Glendon was matched with Tom Cannam when one of the doorboys brought in a card. It was Glendon's.

"Tell him I can't be seen," she told the boy.

In a minute he was back.

"He says he's coming in anyway, but he'd rather have your permission."

"Did you tell him I was busy?" she asked.

"Yes'm, but he said he was coming just the same."

She made no answer, and the boy, his eyes shining with admiration for the importunate visitor, rattled on.

"I know 'm. He's a awful big guy. If he started roughhousing he could clean the whole office out. He's young Glendon, who won the fight last night."

"You didn't," he retorted.

"Very well, then. Bring him in. We don't want the office cleaned out, you know."

No greetings were exchanged when Glendon entered.

She was as cold and inhospitable as a gray day and neither invited him to a chair nor recognized him with her eyes, sitting half turned away from him at her desk and waiting for him to state his business.

He gave no sign of how this cavalier treatment affected him, but plunged directly into his subject.

"I want to talk to you," he said shortly. "That fight. It did end in that round."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"I knew it would."

"You didn't," he retorted. "You didn't. I didn't."

She turned and looked at him with quiet affectation of boredom.

"What is the use?" she asked. "Prizefighting is prizefighting, and we all know what it means. The fight did end in the round I told you it would."

"It did," he agreed. "But you didn't know it would. In all the world you and I were at least two that knew Powers wouldn't be knocked out in the sixteenth."

She remained silent.

"I say you knew he wouldn't."

He spoke peremptorily and, when she still declined to speak, stepped nearer to her.

"Answer me," he commanded.

She nodded her head.

"But he was," she insisted.

"He wasn't. He wasn't knocked out at all. Do you get that? I am going to tell you about it and you are going to listen. I didn't lie to you. Do you get that? I didn't lie to you. I was a fool and they fooled me and you along with me.

"You thought you saw him knocked out. Yet the blow I struck was not heavy enough. It didn't hit him in the right place either. He made believe it did. He faked that knockout."

He paused and looked at her expectantly, and somehow, with a leap and thrill, she knew that she believed him, and she felt pervaded by a warm happiness at the reinstatement of this man who meant nothing to her and whom she had seen but twice in her life.

"Well?" he demanded, and she thrilled anew at the compellingness of him.

She stood up, and her hand went out to his.

"I believe you," she said. "And I am glad, most glad."

It was a longer grip than she had anticipated. He looked at her with eyes that burned and to which her own unconsciously answered back.

Never was there such a man, was her thought. Her eyes dropped first, and his followed, so that, as before, both gazed at the clasped hands.

He made a movement of his whole body toward her, impulsive and involuntary, as if to gather her to him, then checked himself abruptly with an unmistakable effort. She saw it and felt the pull of his hand as it started to draw her to him.

And to her amazement she felt the desire to yield, the desire almost overwhelmingly to be drawn into the strong circle of those arms. And had he compelled she knew that she would not have refrained.

She was almost dizzy when he checked himself and, with a closing of his fingers that half crushed hers, dropped her hand, almost flung it from him.

"God," he breathed; "you were made for me!"

He turned partly away from her, sweeping his hand to his forehead. She knew she would hate him forever if he dared one stammered word of apology or explanation.

But he seemed to have the way always of doing the right thing where she was concerned. She sank into her chair, and he into another, first drawing it around so as to face her across the corner of the desk.

"I spent last night in a Turkish bath," he said. "I sent for an old broken down bruiser. He was a friend of my father in the old days. I knew there couldn't be a thing about the ring he didn't know, and I made him talk.

"The funny thing was that it was all I could do to convince him that I didn't know the things I asked him about. He called me the babe in the woods. I guess he was right. I was raised in the woods, and woods is about all I know.

"Well, I received an education from that old man last night. The ring is rottener than you told me. It seems everybody connected with it is crooked. The very supervisors that grant the fight permits graft off of the promoters, and the promoters, managers and fighters graft off of each other and off the public.

"It's down to a system in one way, and, on the other hand, they're always—do you know what the double cross is?" She nodded. "Well, they don't seem to miss a chance to give each other the double cross.

"The stuff that old man told me took my breath away. And here I've been in the thick of it for several years and knew nothing of it. I was a real babe in the woods. And yet I can see how I've been fooled. I was so made that nobody could stop me. I was bound to win, and, thanks to Stubener, everything crooked was kept away from me.

"This morning I cornered Spider Walsh and made him talk. He was my first trainer, you know, and he followed Stubener's instructions. They kept me in ignorance. Besides, I didn't herd with the sporting crowd. I spent my time hunting and fishing and monkeying with cameras and such things.

"Do you know what Walsh and Stubener called me between themselves? The virgin. I only learned it this morning from Walsh, and it was like pulling teeth. And they were right. I was a little innocent lamb.

"And Stubener was using me for crookedness, too, only I didn't know it. I can look back now and see how it was worked. But you see, I wasn't interested enough in the game to be suspicious.

"I was born with a good body and a cool head. I was raised in the open, and I was taught by my father, who knew more about fighting than any man, living or dead. It was too easy. The ring didn't absorb me. There was never any doubt of the outcome. But I'm done with it now."

She pointed to the headline announcing his match with Tom Cannam.

"I don't dare," she said in a whisper.

"That's Stubener's work," he explained. "It was programmed months ago. But I don't care. I'm heading for the mountains. I've quit."

She glanced at the unfinished interview on the desk and sighed.

"How lordly men are," she said. "Masters of destiny. They do as they please"—

"From what I've heard," he interrupted, "you've done pretty much as you please. It's one of the things I like about you. And what has struck me hard from the first was the way you and I understand each other."

He broke off and looked at her with burning eyes.

"Well, the ring did one thing for me," he went on. "It made me acquainted with you. And when you find the one woman there's just one thing to do—take her in your two hands and don't let go. Come on, let us start for the mountains."

It had come with the suddenness of a thunderclap, and yet she felt that she had been expecting it. Her heart was beating up and almost choking her in a strangely delicious way. Here at least was the primitive and the simple with a vengeance. Then, too, it seemed a dream. Such things did not take place in modern newspaper offices. Love could not be made in such fashion; it only so occurred on the stage and in novels.

He had arisen and was holding out both hands to her.

"I don't dare," she said in a whisper, half to herself. "I don't dare."

And thereat she was stung by the quick contempt that flashed in his eyes but that swiftly changed to open incredulity.

"You'd dare anything you wanted," he was saying. "I know that. It's not a case of dare, but of want. Do you want?"

She had arisen and was now swaying as if in a dream. It flashed into her mind to wonder if it were hypnotism.

She wanted to glance about her at the familiar objects of the room in order to identify herself with reality, but she could not take her eyes from his. Nor did she speak.

He had stepped beside her. His hand was on her arm, and she leaned toward him involuntarily.

It was all part of the dream, and it was no longer hers to question anything. It was the great dare.

He was right. She could dare what she wanted, and she did want. He was helping her into her jacket. She was thrusting the hat pins through her hair.

And even as she realized it, she found herself walking beside him through the opened door.

The "Flight of the Duchess" and "The Statue and the Bust" darted through her mind. Then she remembered "Waring."

"What's become of Waring?" she murmured.

"Land travel or sea faring?" he murmured back.

And to her this kindred sufficient note was a vindication of her madness.

At the entrance of the building he raised his hand to call a taxi, but was stopped by her touch on his arm.

"Where are we going?" she breathed.

"To the ferry. We've just time to catch that Sacramento train."

"But I can't go this way," she protested. "I—I haven't even a change of handkerchiefs."

He held up his hand again before replying.

"You can shop in Sacramento. We'll get married there and catch the night overland north. I'll arrange everything by telegraph from the train."

As the cab drew to the curb she looked quickly about her at the familiar street and the familiar throng, then, with almost a flurry of alarm, into Glendon's face.

"I don't know a thing about you," she said.

"We know everything about each other," was his answer.

She felt the support and urge of his arms and lifted her foot to the step.

The next moment the door had closed, he was beside her and the cab was heading down Market street.

He passed his arm around her, drew her close and kissed her. When next she glimpsed his face she was certain that it was dyed with a faint blush.

"I—I've heard there was an art in kissing," he stammered. "I don't know anything about it myself, but I'll learn. You see, you're the first woman I ever kissed."

27,237,000 "HELLOS" ARE SAID EACH DAY

So Declares Annual Report of Bell Telephone Company's President.

New York, March 16—The continued growth of the Bell System, its earnings and expenses and general financial prosperity, its attitude as to government ownershop, its agreement with the Department of Justice, the sale of its Western Union holdings and its relation with the general public are all set forth in detail in the annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, issued today.

In summing up the attitude of the company towards government ownership and operation, President Theodore N. Vail, says:

"Our opposition to Government operation and ownership is not based on pecuniary, partisan, prejudiced or personal reasons. It is because of our interest in the upbuilding of a great public utility and its preservation.

"We are opposed to government ownership because we know that no government-owned telephone system in the world is giving as cheap and efficient service as the American public is getting from all its telephone companies. We do not believe that our government would be any exception to the rule."

He states that the common impression that the Postmaster General has made a report favoring the acquisition of the wire lines is erroneous. It is not a departmental report, he says, but merely the conclusions of three officials of the Postoffice Department, transmitted without comment by the Postmaster General.

He shows that there is a deficit in all government-owned systems and says that every telephone system in the world adopts the Bell System as a standard, uses the Bell operating methods and either uses Bell apparatus or copies it. And yet there is not one, he continues, that gives an approximation to the facilities that the Bell System gives or gives as good or as cheap service, all past prophecies to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Vail brings out the fact that Americans are better supplied with telephone facilities than any other people, having six times as many telephones per capita as Great Britain and thirteen times as many as France and that the rates here are as popular as those of the government-owned plant.

During the past year subscribers telephone stations have increased until now there are 8,133,017, a gain of 676,943. These stations reach 70,000 localities or 10,000 more than the number of postoffices. The total wire mileage is 16,111,011, of which 52 per cent. is copper.

More than half the wire mileage is underground, the total underground plant representing a cost of $181,500,000.

The number of daily telephone connections showed a growth of nearly two million, reaching an average of 27,237,000 a day. Europe has only two-fifths of the telephone traffic of the United States.

The extension of the telephone plant during the year amounted to $54,871,856, making a total for fourteen years of $646,915,200. According to present estimates the construction for the current year will cost in the neighborhood of $56,000,000, of which the local resources of the companies will supply $25,000,000.

Large reserves have been made for maintenance, reconstruction and depreciation, and a steady improvement of service has been achieved.

The report states that the gross revenue in 1913 of the Bell System—not including the connected independent companies—was $215,600,000; an increase of over $16,000,000 over last year. Of this, operation consumed $75,400,000; taxes $11,300,000 or one and one-half per cent. on the outstanding capital obligations; current maintenance, $32,500,000; and provision for depreciation, $37,700,000.

The engineering evolution of the telephone which has been accomplished by the engineers, is reviewed with special reference to the marked improvement of telephone exchange equipment and methods of operation and the extension of transmission in underground circuits between Boston and Washington, and in the work of connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific for telephone comunication. At headquarters the Bell System has a force of five hundred and fifty engineers and scientists, a staff unequaled in the world, wholly engaged on studies of these subjects.

The report shows that under the pensions, disability benefits and insurance plan, in 16,054 cases employees of the Bell companies had participated in the benefits and the payments have aggregated over one million dollars.

DID NOT "SPARE THAT TREE;" IS $500 OUT OF POCKET

New Providence, March 16.—If there is one man in this town who believes in the cash value of poetry, even in a materialistic age, it is William Meyers, of River road. He's sorry several hundred dollars' worth that there was not some pigtailed little miss in white pinafore to strike an attitude and declaim "Woodman Spare that Tree" one day last week, when he cut down a tree in front of his house.

The tree, which had been struck by lightning and killed, came down all right, but with the chronic perversity of inanimate objects, selected the roof of Mr. Meyers' house to break its fall. It smashed in the roof of the house, crushed a dormer window into kindling wood, and broke the roof of the porch. Mr. Meyers' adventure will cost him in the neighborhood of $500.

WIRE THIEVES CAUSE BIG LOSS

Telephone and Telegraph Companies Suffer Greatly From Depredations.

PROFESSIONALS' WORK

Looting of Copper Strands Along the Line of the New Jersey Central Railroad Results in Loss of Many Thousands of Dollars, it is Said.

Tons of wire, the property of the telegraph and telephone companies, are said to have been stolen all through this section of the State since the big storm which leveled poles and wires and made of them a tangled mass of wreckage. Linemen between Plainfield and New York and Philadelphia have found sections where considerable stretches of copper strands have been removed. Most of the thefts are said to have occurred where wires were attached to broken poles. It is impossible to form an adequate idea as to the total loss thus far. Reports indicate that the telephone company is by far the heaviest loser from the copper thieves. Operations have extended all along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad. In some cases the work bears the marks of professional wire thieves, it is said. Evidently, judging by the great quantity of wire stolen at various points, gangs must have been engaged in the work. In other places where but little wire has been taken the thefts are attributed to boys. It is declared that the ravages of the last big storm created the greatest opportunity that wire thieves in this vicinity have ever had. Not only is there a practically unlimited supply to be cut with pliers and carted away, but in addition to the wires being down and easily reached, all of the wires are "dead." Comparatively little loss of wire has been reported by the telephone officials here in Plainfield, although there have been some depredations. Only last Monday a cable that had been laid by the Western Union Telegraph Company, containing twenty wires, in an attempt to re-establish the service between here and New York, was cut by some miscreants within one hour after it had been strung. This cable is being extended towards Philadelphia and considerable trouble was experienced in locating the break in the line.

For the most part, however, officials of the telegraph and telephone companies say there has been little if any interference with the temporarily strung wires and cables in this locality. Telephone linemen are untangling the masses of fallen strands and are making temporary "hook-ups" by patching the wires and inserting new stretches of copper where wire has been stolen.

Copper wire is expensive. Junkmen buy it at good prices. Fifteen cents a pound is easily obtainable for copper wire, it is said. Copper wire is a staple commodity and is always saleable. Recently one foot of copper cable when cut in Plainfield, shortly after the storm, was found to weigh five pounds. Thousands of dollars' worth of copper strands lie upon the ground from New York to Philadelphia. There are other thousands of dollars' worth of prostrate wires throughout the country districts all over the State.

From Plainfield to New York is a distance of twenty-four miles. In one mile there are 5,280 feet. Copper wire strung for one mile, figuring each foot to weigh five pounds, and to be of the value of fifteen cents a pound, would weigh 26,400 pounds to the mile, and conservatively estimated would be of the value of $3,960 per mile. In the twenty-four miles separating Plainfield from Jersey City the stretches of copper wires would weigh in the neighborhood of 633,600 pounds and at a valuation of but fifteen cents a pound would be worth close to $100,000, or approximately, $95,040.

It is sixty-three miles from Plainfield to Philadelphia. On the same basis of figuring the long stretches of copper strands would weigh for that distance 1,663,200 pounds and would be of the estimated value of $249,480.

With a view of putting a stop to the depredations of the wire thieves the telephone and telegraph companies, with the co-operation of the railroad and its force of detectives, are establishing patrols along the line of track, although small protection at best is thus afforded.

STUDENTS VISITED CAPITOL.

Sixteen members of the North Plainfield High School accompanied Principal Early and Miss Eva Terry on a tour about Trenton yesterday and last night. During the afternoon the State buildings were visited and the borough students were introduced to several State officials. In the evening the visitors attended the sessions of the House and Senate.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER IS SADLY AFFLICTED

Mrs. Louella Spracklen is Bereft of Four Relatives Within a Month.

Mrs. Luellen Spracklen, of Trenton, who was formerly Mrs. Winfield Scott Decker, of this city, returned home yesterday, after a week's visit with Mrs. Fred Philips, of Clinton avenue, and other local friends. Within the past four weeks, Mrs. Spracklen has had the misfortune to undergo the experience of a series of deaths within her family circle, the number being four. Her husband's brother who lived with them, passed away first, a few days later Mr. Spracklen's cousin died, and this death was followed by Mrs. Spracklen's grandson, Arthur Fritts, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fritts, formerly of Plainfield, now of Trenton. Mr. Spracklen's demise was next in order, making the fourth bereavement.

WILL PUBLISH LIST OF THE SLOW PAYERS

Credit Association Determines to Protect Members—Officers Elected for 1914.

Members of the Business Men's Credit Association heard annual reports, decided to publish a list of delinquent debtors and elected officers for the coming year at the annual meeting held last night in the Frost building. It was also decided to write the Union county representatives in the State Legislature, urging their co-operation in securing the passage of a garnishee bill now pending before the House of Assembly.

The credit list will be made up from the 1,200 or more names of people who are persistently slow in paying their bills, which are now on file in the secretary's office. It will be printed and furnished to each member of the organization, and will be supplemented each three months. Secretary Martin B. Stutsman reported that during the eleven months he had held the office he had collected $4,298.29 for the members. Treasurer Isaac Schwed showed a balance on hand of $118.70, and it was reported that the membership in the organization is now about eighty.

When the election of officers was called for by President Harry W Marshall, he stated that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for re-election, and the following were unanimously chosen for the year: President, J. L. Williams; vice-president, M. H. Marchant; secretary and attorney, Martin B. Stutsman; treasurer, Isaac Schwed. The board of trustees consists of the four officers and Jacob A. Fass, John A. Johnson, Henry Haurand, Harry W. Marshall and James C. Hansen.

Those present at last night's meeting expressed themselves as much pleased with the result of the year's efforts, and it was decided to make an even more aggressive organization of the body during the coming year.

JUSTICE SNAPE HOLDS BARR FOR GRAND JURY

George Barr, formerly of North Plainfield township, was arraigned before Justice Thomas H. Snape, in the borough, last night, charged with the theft of goods belonging to Edward T. Canning, of the township, valued at $70, and he was committed to the county jail at Somerville to await the action of the grand jury.

Barr disappeared from his home some time ago, and later on suspicion that he was guilty of the theft, a warrant was issued for his arrest. The theft occurred on the night of January 21. Barr returned to Watchung on Saturday. His presence becoming known he was promptly put under arrest and given a hearing by Justice Snape.

PLAN FOR BIG SEWER BOND ISSUE

City Council Takes Steps to Raise Money for Joint Trunk Project.

NOT EXCEED $300,000

Bonds Will Be in $1,000 Denomination and Will Be Sold as Needed—Belief That Entire Sum Will Not Be Needed.

Despite the protest of the large delegation of citizens from the Borough of Middlesex which appeared in person, the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, went ahead with its proposed sewage plans by taking steps by planning for the $300,000 bond issue. A resolution offered by Mr. Calkins, and adopted, provided that the issue should be not more than $300,000, and that they are not to be sold for less than par nor to bear a higher rate of interest than 6 per cent. They are to be dated April 1, 1914, and are to run from 1917 to 1954 inclusive, and are to be of $1,000 denomination each.

Although the resolution called for a $300,000 issue, it is the purpose of the Council to issue and sell the bonds as they need the money and a sufficient margin has been left to practically insure that the whole $300,000 will not be required to meet the city's expense for the work.

Mr. Calkins explained that he had received word from the city's counsel, Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, that the form of bond had been approved by Hawkins, Delafield & Longfellow, experts. He then offered another resolution, which was adopted, appropriating $200 for the work of having the bonds engraved and lithographed, and he explained that this price also included the certification of the bonds by the Columbia Knickerbocker Trust Company and the delivery of the bonds as issued. There would, he said, be an additional expense of $7 covering the cost of printing, for the work of issuing circulars advertising the sale of bonds.

Mr. Calkins presented the proposal of the Universal Audit Company to audit the city's books annually for a period of five years for $500 a year, the same as last year's price, provided this option is accepted the first of each year, and a resolution that the offer be accepted was adopted.

The contracts between the city and the Watchung Stone Company and the Plainfield Trap Rock Company were received and filed. Several licenses were granted to junkmen and F. J. Skinner, an auctioneer, upon the payment of the usual fees. Councilman John H. Cose withdrew his opposition to the granting of a license to a junkman from Fanwood, stating that he had been informed that the applicant had held a license for twelve years and was vouched for by Police Chief Kiely.

The petition of residents to have East Fourth street opened between Washington and Richmond streets was referred to the street committee.

MRS. GERTRUDE N. ALLEN IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Mrs. Gertrude N. Allen has been granted a decree of divorce from her husband, Fred G. Allen, by the Court of Chancery, which for quick action rivals a Reno suit. The case was instituted late in December by Counsellor Robert Newton Crane, Mrs. Allen's lawyer, the latter alleging desertion and non-support. At the time the Allens resided in North Plainfield.

Under the decree the petitioner is permitted to resume the use of her maiden name, Miss Gertrude Newmiller. The couple is widely-known both in the city and borough, having lived in the latter place for sometime.

The question of a poultry show this year will also be discussed, and the time and place of the show will be settled at this meeting.

YEGGMEN MAKE ANNUAL VISIT

Blow Safe in Millington Postoffice and Get $1,500 Worth of Stamps.

ALSO $100 IN CASH

After a "Clean-up" Burglars Make Escape by Means of Hand-car and Automobile — Police Have No Clues.

Millington, March 17.—Yeggmen paid their annual visit to the Millington postoffice early this morning, and the story of the trip reads like a chapter in the old western stories. They blew open the safe, robbed two barns of horse blankets and harness, got $1,500 worth of stamps and $100 in cash, before leaving town on a hand-car stolen from the Lackawanna Railroad section-house, near the station. It was the fourth time in five years that the town has been so honored.

The men left a definite trail through town. They evidently arrived here about midnight, and blew the safe after carefully making all preparations at 2:45 a. m. At least that is the time the clock stopped in the postoffice. When they first arrived in town they broke into the railroad tool house and secured what crowbars and picks they needed for their work. Then they visited the barn of Richard Coriell and took horse blankets and the reins off of two sets of harness. This not being sufficient for their needs they went to A. D. Runyon's barn, where a dozen new blankets and a lot more horse heins were added to their stock in trade. From there they went to the postoffice in the Kenworthy building.

They carefully wrapped the 2,500 pound safe with the blankets, tieing them on with their reins. Then they plugged up the cracks in the door, and put in a charge of "soup" or nitro-glycerine. After they blew the safe, which by the way no one recalls hearing, they took the stock of stamps to a barn in the rear of the building, and carefully sorted them over, discarding a number of the ten cent variety, which are about obsolete, and which might aid the authorities in tracing them in case they were disposed of.

Leisurely strolling down to the railroad the hand-car was procured and taken for a two-mile spin to Murray Hill, where it is believed from tracks found where the car was abondoned, they were met by an automobile.

The robbery was discovered by John Yenick, janitor of the postoffice, when he appeared to fix the fires this morning. He notified Postmaster Laird H. Bowers, who came to the office and told what the loss was. There is no clue to the thieves.

FIRE EMPTIES HIGH SCHOOL IN 65 SECONDS

Lot of Smoke and Excitement, But Little Flame at Blaze This Afternoon.

Fire in the Plainfield High School building early this afternoon, caused a lot of smoke and excitement, but very little damage. The efficiency of the fire drill in a real emergency was conclusively proven when several hundred members of the freshman class were marched out of the building, with little or no confusion, within sixty-five seconds after the signal was given for them to leave.

The fire was in a corridor on the second floor, being separated from a classroom, full of pupils, by an eighteen inch wall. The wall in the corridor between the old and the new parts of the High School had been torn down, and a big piece of trapaulin put up in its place to keep the cold air out. One of the workmen on the new part evidently left a torch near the temporary cover, and it took fire. Some one smelled smoke, and it was found upon investigation that the corridor was filled. A 'phone message was immediately sent to fire headquarters, while the fire alarm in the school was sounded to warn the teachers to empty the classrooms. In spite of the fact that some of the pupils had to march through the smoke filled corridor all got out safely.

As soon as Fire Chief Doane heard where the fire was he ordered all of the equipment from No. 2 engine house out, and before he arrived at the school someone pulled the fire box in front of the building. People flocked from all over the city as soon as they heard the whistle blow the High School number, but by the time most of the crowd arrived the fire was under control. Chief Doane estimated that the loss would not be over $100.

PROTEST AGAINST STREET WIDENING

City Council Meets to Treat With Owners for Improvement of Madison Ave.

DREIER ESTATE OPPOSE

Newton B. Smalley, William Newcorn, J. Henry Crane, Charles P. Senger, Robert N. Crane and Henry DeMott Argue For and Against.

Arguments for and against the proposed widening of Madison avenue, between West Front street and the railroad bridge, were heard at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, when efforts were made to treat with the affected property owners on the avenue. Aside from the fact that the property owners or their representatives were heard, nothing was done in the matter.

William Newcorn, who stated that he represented the trustees and devisees of the Estate of Samuel Dreier, again entered a protest against the improvement, on the ground that it is not necessary, that there is no public demand for it, that the desired end could be accomplished by taking a portion of the sidewalk on the south side of the avenue, and that the only people who would benefit by the widening would be the residents of North Plainfield.

Mr. Newcorn referred to the way the avenue is blocked by wagons, and declared that he did not think that 2 per cent. of the residents of the city use that thoroughfare. He advocated the widening of Park avenue first, and he also objected to the method of settling with the affected property owners.

When Charles F. Senger, a son-in-law of the late Samuel Dreier, arose to urge the improvement, adding that he as a representative of one-fifth of the estate and a devisee favored the widening, Mr. Newcorn remarked that he did not represent the gentleman in question and added further that Mr. Senger did not represent any devisee. He said that at the expiration of thirteen years, Mr. Senger's wife would get her share of the estate in question, in reply to which Mr. Senger said, "but the Court of Errors and Appeals does not support Mr. Newcorn in his contention,' which brought an audible laugh from the large gallery present.

J. Henry Crane, representing Wadley & Goodenough, coal dealers on the avenue, stated that his clients would be willing to give the required portion of frontage for the widening provided that the city would provide the firm with an office or meet the expense of necessary changes which would be about $985. According to the assessment of the commissioners the firm would receive about $151.

W. W. Mills, another property owner, required that former Mayor Newton B. Smalley be allowed to speak for him, which was granted. Mr. Smalley directed the Council's attention to the fact that nearly all of the city's streets leading into the business section are too narrow, some of them being a disgrace.

"I happen to live in North Plainfield," said Mr. Smalley, "but I am interested in the city. They call Plainfield the 'Queen City,' but I think the queen would have trouble in getting through some of the streets. They were laid out when owners thought more of land value than the future. I hope that the Council will stand firm, treat the property owners right and make the improvement."

Robert Newton Crane appeared as the representative of Max Ginsman and Mrs. Sophie Shrager, both of whom own two small properties on the avenue, but when President Clay asked him to name his terms of settlement, Mr. Crane was unable to do so at the time, even after a conference with his clients, explaining that he would take the matter up later by letter.

When Henry DeMott arose to speak in behalf of his wife, who also owns a small property on the thoroughfare, there was genuine humor in some of his remarks, especially when President Clay was trying to get him to put a price on his property. In reply to Mr. Clay's question as to how much he wanted for the property, he inquired: "Do you mean all of it or half," and when the president followed it up with the question as to what he would take for the whole property, Mr. DeMott finally said that if the improvement was to be made he would be willing to sell for $200 a front foot. His frontage is about twelve feet.

A. R. Buttner, representing the electric department of the Public Service Corporation, the last speaker, said that his company would donate the land in front of its property for the widening provided the city did not make any assessment on the same. There being no one else to speak on the subject, the public hearing was adjourned. The ordinance providing for the widening has al-

ACKERMAN DIRECTOR OF C. R. R. OF N. J.

Former Senator Chosen Today to Succeed Charles Steele on Board.

Former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, was today chosen a director of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at a meeting held in the New York office of the company, succeeding Charles Steele.

Mr. Ackerman is president of the Lawrence Portland Cement Company, who are large shippers over the Central Railroad. His broad business experience will bring to the railroad board an experience which will prove very valuable to the other officials. That Mr. Ackerman was interested in railroad affairs will come as a distinct surprise to many of his friends in Plainfield, as his close attention to the interests of the corporation of which he is the head has occupied all of his time. He has always taken a keen interest in politics, and will probably be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in September.

TO PREACH GOSPEL OF HOME TRADING

Business Men's Ass'n Has Arranged for Talks by O. A. Charles on April 1 and 2.

O. A. Charles, president of the National Home Trade League, an organization fighting the mail order houses, and preaching the doctrine of "buy-at-home," will be in Plainfield on April 1 and 2, to preach the doctrine of the organization to the people of this city. This was announced at a meeting of the Plainfield Business Men's Association held last night in the Frost building. Mr. Charles will deliver a talk on the night of April 2, under the combined auspices of the Business Men's Association and the People's Forum, and on the preceding night he will have a heart to heart talk with merchants. While here he will be the guest of the Business Men's Association, coming from his home in Muncie, Indiana. The subject of the talk April 2 will be "The Deserted Village."

Mr. Charles has had a wide experience in the work which he will describe here, having given up all other business to take the presidency of the organization. He is known as "The Apostle of the Small Town," and the work he is doing has been of immeasurable benefit to the people of the towns where he has appeared. The matter of entertaining Mr. Charles was turned over to the executive committee last night, and a dinner committee was appointed to arrange for a dinner while he is here. This committee consists of Harry W. Marshall, Samuel Rothberg and Leslie R. Fort.

Routine business and a general discussion occupied the time of the members, after hearing the report on the Charles meetings, last night. Richard Parrott, Jr., was elected to membership in the organization.

WILL DISCUSS QUESTION OF COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Judge Robert Carey, of Jersey City, will speak at the third meeting of the "People's Forum," to be held at the Washington School, tonight, on the subject of "Commission Government." Judge Carey has had an exceptional opportunity for observing the workings of the new form of municipal government, Jersey City having been one of the cities of the State to adopt it.

Judge Carey was one of the pioneer advocates of the change and both his observation and his experience qualify him as an authority on the question. The Public Recreation Committee especially invites those who are opposed to commission government to attend this meeting. Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy will preside and direct the discussion.

DANCE AT SEBRING'S HALL.

Owing to the large number of tickets already sold, the committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual Hebrew Charity ball has been compelled to engage Sebring's auditorium for the affair, instead of Abrams' auditorium, as previously announced. The ball will be held next Tuesday night, March 24, and Hyman Adelberg is chairman of the committee. More than 500 tickets have already been disposed of.

—Fancy fruits, including strawberries, Malaga grapes, Florida oranges and grape fruit, King oranges, fancy pears and table apples will be offered for tomorrow's trade by Neuman Brothers at their Watchung avenue market.—Adv. ***

MIDDLESEX BORO ENTERS PROTEST

Large Delegation, Headed by W. A. Coddington, Counsel, and Mayor Harris.

WILL GO THE LIMIT

Tell the City Council That Borough Will Fight to the Last Ditch to Defeat Plans for the Disposal Works.

The adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, called originally for the purpose of treating with the property-owners in the matter of widening Madison avenue, and to take further steps in arranging for the $300,000 bond issue on account of the proposed joint trunk sewer, developed into a real lively session when a delegation of fifty citizens from the Borough of Middlesex appeared to enter a strong protest against the sewage proposition as affecting that borough.

William A. Coddington, as counsel for the borough, headed the delegation, and together with Mayor Harris, Morrell C. King and Postmaster M. F. Wirtz, the last named postmaster of Lincoln, addressed the Council, despite President George S. Clay's explanation that the sewage plans had proceeded to the point of agreeing on plans, getting the approval of the State Board of Health and even purchasing the Darling farm in Piscataway township for disposal works. Mr. Clay said that he could not see whether any good was to be accomplished by a protest at this time, but he extended the privileges of the floor during a recess of the Council.

Mr. Coddington, addressing the Councilmen, declared that the Borough of Middlesex felt aggrieved because of Plainfield's action in buying the Darling farm where three municipalities proposed to create a nuisance. He said that he had been advised by an engineer, whom he afterward said was C. C. Vermeule, that the city's present sewage beds with an expenditure of $100,000 could be made to serve the municipalities for twenty years to come, and under such conditions, the Council as custodians of the city was not acting wisely in planning to spend an additional $300,000. He said that he spoke as a taxpayer in Plainfield, and asserted that he believed that according to the present plans the ultimate cost of the proposition would reach $400,000.

"As a matter of fact," continued Mr. Coddington, "isn't it a case of 'too much Buttfield.' I don't know that, but it is said that North Plainfield has 'put one over' on Plainfield in the agreement. But it is not too late to recede and I think it is time that Plainfield paused and considered carefully its step in this matter."

Mayor Harris, of the Borough of Middlesex, made a strong appeal to the Council to abandon its present plans, adding that while his municipality did not seek litigation, it would "go the limit" if necessary to defeat these plans. He reviewed the early history of his section of the State, and declared that his borough was entitled to even more consideration than Dunellen, for its assessed valuation is $1,040,000 as against $1,117,000 for Dunellen.

He touched upon the possibility of contaminating the water supply, and again emphasized the fact that the borough would fight to the last ditch" to secure its rights. He urged co-operation, adding that while there was talk of forming a new county, he would prefer to remain where he is if Plainfield's present action is a sample of the treatment to be expected.

President Clay asked Mayor Harris why the borouh had included the Darling farm in its territory when it was known to be a perspective site for disposal works. The latter explained that they had heard talk about the plan, but thought it inconceivable that they should be carried out, and he declared the action to be an outrage.

Morrell C. King, also of the borough, who explained that he held no office, but was just a plain, ordinary citizen, declared with all the earnestness possible that Plainfield would never cross the line into the Borough of Middlesex and make a cesspool of that place. "You think you will accomplish by spending $300,000, but I want to tell you that you will never get out of it for a million, for we will fight you to the bitter end.

"It certainly makes my blood boil when I think of the proposed scheme. I buy a little place where I can bring up my children and then find that Plainfield plans to make a dumping place in my backyard. I once heard George W. Fuller, your engineer say, that your sewage beds were the finest in the country, with no odors and that there was ninety acres of available land for improvement. We ask you to consider this matter well be-

MODERN GERMAN OPERA IS DISCUSSED

"Modern German Opera the Wagner Aftermath," was the subject of an interesting, exhaustive paper, prepared and read by Mrs. J. K. The paper treated of all the more familiar German operas, including Wagner, Cornelius, Goldmark, Goetz, Brull, Kistler, Bungert, Humperdinck, describing somewhat in detail some of the more interesting features of the composers and their work.

Under the general topic of "Types in English Fiction from Richardson to Arnold Bennett," the literature department of the club met at the same time at the public library. Three papers were presented as follows: "Shirley," Mrs. C. L. Goodrich; "Heathcliff (Wuthering Heights)," Mrs. John C. Moore, and "Gwendolen Harleth (Daniel Deronda)," Mrs. Josiah Browne.

COMPLAINT OF EJECTION OF WOMAN PASS HOLDER

Trenton, March 17.—Attorney General John W. Wescott received a letter yesterday from Mrs. Maud McElroy, a member of the State Charities Aid Association, complaining of her ejectment last Tuesday from a Lackawanna train. Mrs. McElroy was returning to her home in Orange having been engaged in official work, when the conductor refused to accept her State pass. She said that two railroad employes figured in the ejectment.

Mr. Wescott has not decided definitely what action to take upon the complaint, but will probably advise Mrs. McElroy to institute civil suit against the Lackawanna. This course was followed by the case of former Assemblyman Charles A. Meyer, of Sussex county, who was ejected last week from a Lackawanna train at Netcong.

TELLS U. S. EXPRESS CO. MEN THEY WILL NOT BE JOBLESS

Jersey City, March 17.—C. B. Martin, general manager of the United States Express Company, told about 600 employes of the company at a meeting Sunday night at Elks' Hall that the going out of business of the company would not mean that all the employes would lose their jobs.

The business of the express company would have to be taken over by another company, Mr. Martin said, and that would mean that men must be employed. He declared the company that continues the United States concern's business can get no better men than the present employes. The general manager, however, expressed the fear that some of the older men will have more difficulty finding employment than the younger men.

The fact that the United States Express Company is a co-partnership and not a corporation, said Mr. Martin, is responsible for the company discontinuing its business. The parcel post and the reduction of express rate, he said, compelled the directors to protect the stockholders, each of whom is responsible for the company's liabilities.

ATTEMPT TO BRIBE CHARGED.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

Plainfield, N. J., March 17, 1914.

JOHN SCARBOROUGH.

Possessed of a personality that men seldom have, the late Bishop Scarborough, head of the Episcopal diocese of New Jersey, is mourned by all who ever came in contact with him, regardless of church or creed. A sunny character, always seeing the bright side of life, radiates that sunshine to all with which it comes in contact and Bishop Scarborough had the happy facility of making everyone who might have the good fortune to come into his presence realize that there is some good in this world, no matter how pessimistic they might have been before. His was a character such as masters of the English language cannot fittingly describe.

Working for thirty-nine years as the head of the diocese of which Plainfield is a part, active until within a week of his death, the Bishop carried the faith to thousands of Episcopalians. There was hardly a church in his diocese that did not see him during a year's time, and those whom he has confirmed are a legion. All of the tributes which have been paid to this worthy prelate but feebly describe the man, for he was one in a million.

CHARACTER LOANS.

To loan money to wage-earners and others of small means all over the country at a fair rate of interest with character as security instead of chattels, is the plan recently announced of a $6,000,000 corporation formed the other day at Richmond, Va. Banks of the new sort, it is declared, will be established in all sections where they do not exist already. Among some twenty-five cities seeking them already are New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Knoxville, Nashville and Chattanooga.

The principle that character is a man's greatest asset has been taught for centuries, but the teaching has been theoretical rather than accepted as a practical truth in the financial world. Yet it is logical and equitable to accept a man's good character as security. To find and determine the financial value of character is perhaps not so serious an undertaking as it has been believed to be. At least such men as Nicholas Murray Butler, Oscar S. Straus, Vincent Astor, Theodore P. Shonts and others well known for their success in dealing with men, have had faith enough in the ability to fix a value upon character, that they have become directors of the new institution.

Character loans is not a new idea. It is merely proposed to Americanize the Schulze-Delitzch co-operative banks of Germany, which for half a century have proven a boon to peasant farmers, small business men and wage-earners of that country. Some years after, the German banks were adapted to Italy by Luzzatti and recently they were started on a small scale in this country, where the idea has worked out so well that the movement has enlarged from a local undertaking in only fourteen American communities to a national enterprise.

The idea must appeal to the American public. It easily resolves itself into a benefit for wage-earners seeking small loans and heretofore facing exorbitant interest rates and requirements not easily met. Under the new plan, applicants of good character will be loaned small sums on his character, such to be determined either by the endorsement of the banks' own investigation.
persons known to the banks or by

PIERCE AND STEWART.

Senator Carlton B. Pierce will be a candidate for re-nomination this fall, and will probably be the only person seeking the honor in the Republican ranks. The Progressives could do no better than to endorse him. Mr. Pierce has been more consistently progressive, in the broad sense of the term, than any man now sitting in the State Senate, and there is no act of his, either as an Assemblyman or Senator, which can be pointed to as not being in keeping with all of the established principles of the new party. In fact, aside from remaining within the Republican ranks, his record is fully as good as that of any one who has joined the Progressives. If Mr. Pierce should be the candidate of both Republicans and Progressives, and Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, should oppose him, as now seems likely, the people would have one thing assured them. No matter which was successful the county would be represented by an upright, cleancut and capable man. Of course here in Plainfield Mr. Stewart would be expected to run well, and as this is a Republican stronghold under normal conditions the vote of the city would have an important bearing on the result throughout the county. With Plainfield behind him Mayor Stewart would have an excellent opportunity to be elected, even if his foes are not divided.

There has been some criticism by people who have not stopped to think, because of what appeared to be the slow manner in which gutters and crosswalks in the city were cleared after the recent snow storm. From observations about the way the crew of men working under the direction of Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett have gone at the herculean task confronting them, it seems to us that he is deserving of the greatest congratulation, instead of criticism. No tougher problem has ever been presented, because of the fact that the snow was very wet when it first fell, and turned to ice on the under layers. In spite of this gutters were opened on the principal streets, and cross walks and sidewalks cleared, to say nothing of the carting away of the snow from the center of the city. The cost to the city must have been great, and there was a limit to the amount of money that could be spent on the job. As a result in some places the snow has been left, but on the whole the work has been well done.

Annual report of T. N. Vail, president of the Bell Telephone System, says that the "financial condition of the Western Union with some $15,000,000 net of liquid assets was never better." Hope liquid assets has no bearing on watered stock.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

When describing to a lady the idea voiced through your columns, of a method to expedite the drying of the streets, I was surprised to learn that through "this interest in a public matter," I was "very near to being a suffragist."

Permit me to ask if any suffragist, or the general public can fail to realize the absurdity and injustice of such remarks, many of which are part of a suffrage education and form a goodly proportion of their ammunitions.

It reminds one of another suffrage remark, which was repeated by a High School girl to an Anti speaker, whom she had heard speaking, with great earnestness, on the subject of White Slavery.

With clasped hands, and appealing eyes, she said, "Oh, but Mrs. George, if you would only give this thing a little thought, you would understand it better, and you would feel so differently."

As a matter of fact, the idea which made me a near-suffragist, was peculiarly Anti. A suggestion to Mr. Gavett, that he notify the residents, how they might hasten the drying of the streets.

Acting merely, as a woman, through the man in whom rested the authority, I would take this opportunity to refer to another suffrage fallacy, that Antis need not or would not vote, if the duty were forced upon them.

Permit me to say, that if the "wish is father to the thought," I fear our suffrage friends would be greviously disappointed, when they found us at the polls, voting—not for the candidates who stood for some personal interest of ours, but, to the best of our judgment for those who would best fullfil the requirements of their offices. I make this statement with the authority gained through intimate acquaintance with prominent Antis as well as with many women in the ranks.

The suffrage leaders, urge upon all its members, the adoption by each, of one of their two pledges, against charity, philanthropy or any thing save "Votes for Women."

Some suffragists are resigning from churches, which do not, as a body, declare for Equal Suffrage. Be it understood, we well know that there are many suffragists who would not sign either pledge, and who are active church members and welfare workers.

Would it not, however, be appropriate for suffragists to refrain from stating, that, merely because they do not agree with them as to the necessity, or expediency of a governmental revolution, the Antis are lacking in public spirit or interest in affairs for the welfare, or betterment, of the community in which they live?

Yours very truly,
R. A. LAWRENCE.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I read your article on Tier's pond in today's issue with a great deal of satisfaction. The party who gave you the information had undoubtedly been in the neighborhood of the pond and knew something about its conditions winter and summer.

I feel it incumbent on me to add a few words. Tier's pond or lake, as it is termed on the beautiful postcard which we mail to our out of town friends, is indeed at times a disgrace to the "Queen City." The "City Beautiful" as we are inclined to term Plainfield.

Sometime ago we had an artist in town by the name of Jonas Lie, who was so impressed with the pond that he painted it, in one of its happy moods, and termed the painting the "Lake of Dreams."

Painters like poets, of course, are entitled to a certain latitude, yet notwithstanding the artist's name, the picture was only a fair one of the pond under favorable conditions. I have seen the pond in conditions when "Night-mare Slough" would have been a more appropriate name

Each summer for a number of years residents have started a complaint regarding its condition and last year considerable appeared about it in the daily press, but for some reason the matter is always dropped, hushed up, apparently, and conditions continue to grow worse. It has some times occurred to me that perhaps certain parties financially interested in property in the neighborhood might be desirous for the pond to get in such an intolerable condition as to be a further menace to health in hopes of having it done away with.

Such an idea would, I think, be a mistake, as the waterway would have to be maintained, and I am sure that the pond put in good shape would well repay the community for the expense. If the dam was repaired or, as suggested, replaced, and the raceway closed there is no reason why sufficient water could not be retained in the pond to keep it in good condition.

This is proven, I think, by the fact that "Bonnie Burn" has a pond on one of their upper branches of the brook, and that on the other branch three ponds, the one at Feltville and Seeley's two ponds at Scotch Plains manage to have water enough to be in fair condition, and maintain a fair supply of fish life.

And now a word for the skaters. We build fine roads at great expense for the automobilists. We have "Parker Field" for the children, the athletes and baseball players, for the skaters, representatives of the finest, cleanest, healthiest and jolliest of all winter sports, a sport that can be enjoyed by rich and poor (most of us can afford a pair of skates, if not an auto), we have done nothing, not so much as furnished them with light or cleared the snow from the ice; have not even given them the police protection that was theirs by right, but have let the one place that was naturally theirs be littered by broken glass, stones, ashes and rubbish of all kinds, when with almost no expense this might have been prevented.

A few signs and perhaps an example or two would have made a wonderful difference in this respect. Other towns are way ahead of us in this respect and are making the most of their natural surroundings.

I would suggest the forming of a Tier's Pond Protective Association that would take hold of this matter and push it to completion and save for us and posterity the "Lake of Dreams."

Engages In Wordy War With Opponent of Anti-injunction Measure. Fielder Faces Critical Situation by Split Among Members of His Own Party Over Revenue Bills.

Trenton, N. J., March 17.—With a serious split among the members of his own party over revenue measures Governor Fielder faced a critical situation.

The governor had spent the earlier part of the day with members of the house, who came to see him individually to talk over the revenue raising plans and to discuss the threatened bolt of the followers of James R. Nugent.

One of the matters which troubled the governor was a question regarding the Pierce bill for the taxation of bank stock which has passed the senate, but is encountering serious opposition in the house.

In furtherance of his policy of economy the governor returned to the house with his veto the bill to increase the salaries of freeholders in Hudson and Essex counties from $1,500 to $2,500. He said that besides attempting to raise money some attention should be given to economy in administration.

Hearings on important pending measures occupied the attention of the governor and committees of both houses during most of the afternoon. One of the measures that brought out a large delegation was the Ocean Grove borough bill, which now awaits the governor's signature. Another was the anti-injunction bill. While this bill was under consideration there was a sharp clash between Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and James A. Emery, representing the National Association of Manufacturers. The local option bill, which is annually productive of a hot dispute, and the Sunday sports bill of Senator Egan had many opponents, but no advocates at the hearings.

Senator Smick's local option bill was next taken up by the judiciary committee. At this hearing every foot of standing room in the senate was filled. Vigorous attacks were made upon the Antisaloon league, which is favoring the local option measure, and the brewery interests, labor organizations and German societies, who are opposing it.

The Rev. Edmund W. Wasson of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of Newark came out flatfooted against the bill, declaring that there was no popular demand for local option and that the Smick measure was revolutionary in character. He asserted that neither the Roman Catholic, Lutheran nor Episcopal churches have officially asked for local option and severely condemned the methods of the Antisaloon league. He declared that the league is not seeking local option, but is in reality after state wide prohibition.

TRAIN KILLS TRAPPED GIRL.

Victim's Companion Escapes by Clinging to Snow Walls.

Sussex, N. J., March 17.—Trapped between walls of snow, Miss Margaret Brink was killed instantly by an engine on the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad at Van Sickles, a short distance north of Quarryville. Her companion, Miss Loretta McHugh, also a teacher, escaped by digging her feet into a snowbank and clinging to the face of it until the locomotive had passed.

Miss Brink tried the same means of getting out of the way of the locomotive, but was too late. Her dress caught in the cowcatcher of the engine and she was dragged beneath the wheels.

The body was brought on the engine to Sussex. Miss McHugh, who was hysterical, accompanied it. Coroner Coleman of Hamburg was notified.

BRIEF STATE ITEMS.

Mrs. Ludwig Grantzner of Newark died in a chair while sitting beside the body of her husband, who died Friday and was to be buried yesterday.

A new clubhouse to be owned by the residents of Mountain Lakes and to cost $20,000 will be erected in Boonton soon on the shores of the largest of the lakes.

An injury received twelve years ago, when struck on the head with a beam, resulted in the death of John T. Connolly, a conductor on the Paterson trolley line.

The Rev. Ralph B. Urmy, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Morristown, has announced that he has received an invitation to become pastor of the Centenary Methodist church in Newark.

A meeting of the depositors of the closed First National bank of Bayonne will be held in the high school tonight to act on the proposition to have the Union Trust company of Jersey City take over the institution.

Mrs. Stephen Hanusek of Little Ferry staggered into police headquarters in Hackensack, saying she had taken iodine in mistake for a headache tonic. Police Sergeant O'Shea saved her life by making her swallow starch.

MISS MARGARET WILSON.

Her Engagement to Boyd Fisher Denied at Capital.

Washington society, having guessed successfully that Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, daughter of the president, was to marry Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, has busied itself since the McAdoo engagement was announced officially with planning other White House weddings. Miss Margaret Wilson, the talk ran, was engaged to Boyd Fisher of New York. This time society gossip has erred, for the White House authorized a denial of the reports on Miss Margaret Wilson. Boyd Fisher, who is an "efficiency engineer" and prominent in social center work in New York, said that there was no truth whatever in the report of his engagement to Miss Margaret Wilson.

NEW YORK HONORS ERIN'S PATRON SAINT

Fifteen Thousand Men Turn Out In Parade.

New York, March 17.—The celebration of St. Patrick's day in New York began today, when Cardinal Farley presided at a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's cathedral. Bishop Thomas F. Cusack sang the mass, while the Rev. James Paul Francis delivered a sermon on Ireland's patron saint. The Sixty-ninth regiment attended in full uniform.

The parade surpassed all previous years in splendor and number of men in line. It is estimated that 15,000 turned out.

The Sixty-ninth, as usual, had the right of line and was followed by numerous divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Other Irish societies and Roman Catholic organizations followed.

The parade was led by Major Eugene J. Flood, the grand marshal, who later, with Michael Brown and Patrick J. Kerigan, his aids, reviewed it in East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, between Second and Third avenues, where the march ended. Thomas J. Kelly acted as chief of staff. The parade was formed at Forty-second street and several streets above in the vicinity of Fifth avenue.

The marchers went up Fifth avenue to One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street and then turned east to Sulzer's Harlem River park at Second avenue, where there will be an entertainment and ball.

In the wake of these military organizations followed contingents of similar bodies from Paterson, N. J.; Brooklyn and other nearby cities. The local Hibernians acted as hosts for the visitors when the parade was over.

The parade was reviewed by Cardinal Farley and a number of guests whom he had invited for the occasion. These included:

Governor Glynn and his staff, Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, Edward E. McCall, chairman of the public service commission; Maurice E. Connolly, borough president of Queens; Justice Victor J. Dowling, Douglas I. McKay, the police commissioner; John T. Fetherston, street cleaning commissioner; General George B. Dyer and staff, Justice Leonard A. Giegerich, John Ford and Justice John W. Goff.

Buffalo, March 17.—A delegation of nearly 100 unemployed called at Mayor Fuhrmann's office to ask him to have the city find them work. The men declared the street department would not hire them because they were not indorsed by aldermen.

Attaches informed the mob that Mayor Fuhrmann was not at his office, and attendants escorted them to the street.

The Paris Fashions

For Spring & Summer Nineteen Fourteen

Scene, Athens—Afternoon and Evening Gowns

This Week in Paris—First Presentation of Aphrodite
This Week in New York—First Presentation of Greek Fashions

Aphrodite, foam-born, Goddess of Love and Beauty, of whom Rodin the sculptor has made a new statue, is personified in the new play "Aphrodite," which had its premiere in Paris last night, and which will have a great influence on the season's fashions.

It is not every French play, however elaborate the costumes, that affects fashion. Not even one play a season has this distinction. It is only when the play is costumed in a classic way by a great artist that it has any influence at all on the fashions of the year.

Last year the "Minaret" was such a play. This year it is "Aphrodite." Both plays were costumed by Paul Poiret. But without jealousy, many of the other great Paris couturiers created their fashions along the same lines.

This Spring when we visited Paris we found the Greek influence in the models shown by several designers even before we inspected the collection of Poiret. At Poiret's we were shown the original costumes for Aphrodite, and from these M. Poiret created and adapted dresses which will be shown, along with the other Grecian gowns, in the Auditorium.

The return to the natural figure and to the classic, not only in dress, but in home adornment is unmistakable. The Greek influence is here.

The Costume Which Shows the Aim of Paul Poiret

Dress nothing. Resembling the costumes which all little boys wore under Napoleon I. "This dress embodies all I am trying to do—to give women clothes with a masculine note yet truly feminine," says Paul Poiret.

Spatted and hatted, trouser-skirted and pocketed, the well-dressed woman of Spring 1914 may enjoy all the freedom of men's clothes and yet appear wholly feminine.

Waistcoats, suspenders, trouser-belts, military buttons, linen collars, and more pockets than a woman ever expected—pockets that she can even use without danger of spoiling her silhouette.

TWO LOCAL TEAMS IN BIG TOURNEY

Star Pinners Will Represent Plainfield in Weingarth-Whatton Tournament.

Two teams of Plainfield bowlers have entered the State Bowling Tournament being arranged by Bill Weingarth and Eddie Whatton, of Newark, to be held on the Weingarth-Whatton alleys during the next three weeks and the local representatives look like sure prize winners in the event. The Queen City teams have applied for dates sometime during the interval between March 24 and April 2 and it is probable that both of the local aggregations will get in their pinning during that period.

The two teams will be made up of members of the Elks' Club team and the Watchung Council quintet and the combinations will present exactly the same fronts as they have been sporting in league races this season.

The lineups will be as follows:

ASPIRANT TO LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE WHO WILL MEET JOE RIVERS TOMORROW NIGHT

"FREDDIE" WELSH

Freddie Welsh and Joe Rivers, two of the most promising lightweight boxers, are scheduled to go twenty rounds at the Pacific Athletic Club in Vernon, Cal., tomorrow night. The aspirants to the lightweight crown are evenly matched and the bout has called for even money during the past week.

Rivers' "dual personality" and Welsh's determination to "get off" to an early lead are the outstanding features of the fighters as they wind up their ten days of training and the fight is expected to be one to the finish. Welsh is the English champion and because of this fact Rivers remains the popular favorite among the thousands who have gathered at the Californian resort for the big affair.

The articles of agreement call for 134 pounds ringside, twenty rounds of boxing, men to enter the ring between 3 and 3:13 with Charles F. Eyton as referee.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL NOT IN PRIZE LIST

Plainfield Leaguers Failed to Figure in the Melon Cutting on K. of C. Circuit.

The Knights of Columbus Bowling League competition has been finished for the initial year, and the Watchung Council aggregation failed to figure in the melon cutting that has now been decided. The championship trophy will be awarded to the representatives of the Newark Council, they having clinched the verdict last Saturday night by trimming the Belleville quintet three games in a row. Though it was only necessary for the Newark pinners to win one contest to cop the title, they rolled consistent ten-pins and celebrated the close of the season with a triple victory.

Besides winning the championship, the Newarkers also drew the prize offered for high team score. The new champions are credited with a mark of 997, rolled against the Elizabeth Council team on the latter's own alleys. Jack Speary, the anchor man of the title holders, won the individual average prize with a mark well over 187, according to the official averages.

"Sportdom Tips"

During the next two weeks all of the local and borough baseball teams will get their first taste of outdoor practise and we will then be able to get our first line on the material on hand this season. All of the schools in which we are directly interested have arranged unusually stiff schedules and everything points to the coming campaign being the most successful in the history of the sport locally. The mild weather of the last few days has been gratefully received on every hand and preparations are well underway for the outdoor drills. Although outdoor training has been impossible the candidates have not been idle. Practise has been held regularly for the last month and most of the squads are already in fairly good condition.

Nebraska and Orake Universities in the West have been quietly busied with an experiment in college athletics that may have a far-reaching influence. Stirred by the criticism that intercollegiate competition under modern conditions was of no benefit to the average man, the athletic managers of the two institutions in question arranged what was known as a "telegraph track meet." Thus "cable chess," with which the sporting world has been familiar for years, has found an interesting competitor in the "telegraph meet," which, it seems to me, answers practically every criticism of the "anti-specialists." Such a plan as this might prove applicable to the high schools around these parts whose students cannot face each other on any athletic field without being instilled with a feeling of personal animosity which is so apt to result in unsportsmanlike tactics.

We note that Captain Rosenson, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, has discovered a catcher the equal of Bill Peacock, who has retired from the diamond sport to assist in getting the minstrels underway. Glad to hear it Bennie, old man, but we come from Missouri.

There are so many all-star teams being picked by various cracks around these parts of late, following our Interscholastic League selection, that it is now a player's own fault if he fails to get his John Hancock somewhere on the list.

Although the basketball season ended sooner than usual this year the general interest is being kept alive by the Hope-Chapel Scotch Plains controversy. We would a whole lot rather see this affair decided on the court however. Paper makes a poor basketball court.

Official averages for the Elk pinners indicate that some good wood-splitting has been going on in the Watchung avenue house during the past couple of weeks. We are led to believe that the antlered tribe is conducting a farm for that junior league material.

If those North Plainfield High School basketball players don't purchase those medals pretty soon they will forget what they ever won them for. It seems that it has become a difficult task to get trophies good enough.

Why not give the North Plainfield Athletic Association a chance to pick next year's basketball captain Outside influences are getting to be a nuisance of late and the lid ought to be put on certain cranks.

How about electing a captain in Plainfield High before baseball takes its place in the foreground?

It now seems certain that a series will be played between the Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains teams before the season draws to a close. It might prove an excellent finale at that.

News headline—"East Orange High School wins State basketball title." Whaddaya mean, State title?

Plainfield will be well represented at the Penn relays this year, according to preliminary booms. Quality and not quantity should be an initial appearance motto.

Carl Johnson must have had a pretty good opinion of has ability as a ball player when he sacrificed his position in the Plainfield schools for a berth in the International tent. His pre-season work has proven this conclusively, however, and we look forward to seeing his name in the championship race this year.

A $4,000 offer has came to Jack Martin during the past week, according to the ball player's father, who was seen yesterday. Yes, he turned it down without consideration.

LIDDY BEHIND THE BAT.

Lidgate returned to his old position behind the bat in yesterday's game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Philadelphia Nationals and caught one inning of the game which his team won by a count of 7 to 2. The Fanwood boy had but one chance to exhibit his skill as a base thrower and nipped the piferer. He also handled a putout during the limited time he performed. Lidgate has been playing short for the Dunn outfit and his return to the receiver's job is looked upon as a good omen.

RICHARDSON COUNTED OUT.

Rutgers' gymnastic stock took a big drop yesterday afternoon, when it was announced that Roy Richardson, the Bound Brook boy, would be unable to compete in the club swinging event during the remainder of the season. Richardson copped first place in the Columbia meet Saturday night and was looked upon as a sure find to take Haasis' place as intercollegiate champion, the latter having been lost through graduation last fall.

G. Y. M. TEAM AT TRENTON.

The G. Y. M. girls' basketball team of the Y. W. C. A. will go to Trenton tonight, where a game will be played with the Y. W. C. A. girls of that place, the team recently defeated by the local association quintet and which will play a return game here next Saturday night. The local team will be composed of the Misses Ida and Helen Hummel, forwards; Marion Mair, centre; Elsie Debele and Helen George, guards.

FIRE DESTROYS COLLEGE HALL

300 Students at Wellesley Escape Uninjured From Burning Building.

LOSE ALL BELONGINGS

Help From Adjoining Cities Arrived Too Late to Save Historic Structure—Spontaneous Combustion the Cause.

Wellesley, Mass., March 17.—College Hall, one of the oldest and largest of the Wellesley College buildings, was destroyed by fire today.

Although about 300 students and several members of the faculty were asleep on the upper floors of the five story brick structure when the flames were discovered, all escaped uninjured.

The fire gong was sounded and the young women marched out without disorder. There was no time to save personal belongings. The girls found shelter in the other college buildings.

The fire started in the chemical laboratory on the fourth floor of the left wing. It is thought it was due to spontaneous combustion.

In addition to the dormitory section of 250 rooms and the laboratory, College Hall contained the administrative offices and several class rooms. It stood apart from the other college buildings, which were also endangered by the fire.

Apparatus from Newton and Natick assisted the Wellesley firemen in fighting the flames, but they had gained such a start that the great structure was destroyed.

NEW TICKET IN METUCHEN SCHOOL ELECTION CONTEST

Metuchen, March 17—Announcement was made yesterday of another ticket to be voted for at the school election to be held tonight. This ticket will be headed by a newspaper editor, Charles A. Prickitt. With him will be James M. Prickitt and David Raymond Edgar. It is said that because this ticket has entered the field several candidates have withdrawn, leaving two tickets to be voted for. No other printed ballots have appeared.

Edward C. Potter, president of the Board of Education, is seeking re-election with S. Francis Hay, and Henry A. Lockwood is the third man on the ticket known as the "administration" ticket. The opposition ticket is known as the "economy" ticket. Both sides have issued statements and platforms which have aroused much interest and in some quarters bitterness. In the meantime Trustees Wittnebert and Mundy have announced that they have taken steps to appeal the matter of Principal Thomas G. VanKirk's salary increase.

The two trustees allege that this increase was unauthorized and that they were elected on a platform, the chief plank of which was against the proposed increasing of the principal's salary, which was $2,000 and is now said to be $2,250. Mr. Wittnebert and Mr. Mundy allege that the present board never authorized the increase and President Potter, who signed the VanKirk contract, contends that the contract was signed only after proper authority had been conferred upon him by the board. The State Board of Education has made it known that it will grant a hearing on the matter.

RICHARD TOTTEN ENDS HIS LIFE

Dies in Muhlenberg Hospital This Morning a Victim of His Own Hand.

After lingering in a precarious condition for nearly twenty-four hours following his attempt at self-destruction, yesterday morning, Richard Totten, aged sixty years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital at 9:30 o'clock this morning. He had been a resident of the borough for over a quarter of a century and during the past twenty years had been employed as a caretaker in the home of Ignatz H. Boehm, of 192 Somerset street, in whose house he was found in an unconscious condition.

Totten ended his life by cutting his throat with a razor, and although he was still alive when found by members of the Boehm family upon their return from Philadelphia, yesterday, his life was despaired of from the first by the hospital authorities. He committed the rash act in the dining-room at the house and a stream of blood outlined his course from the scene of the deed to the kitchen where he was found lying in a semi-conscious condition in a pool of blood.

The aged man was employed by Mr. Boehm when the latter conducted a dry goods store in the building now occupied by Tepper Brothers, and when Mr. Boehm retired from business Totten was so old that new employment was out of the question and he was allowed to remain in the home of his employer, doing odd chores about the premises. Those intimate with the suicide can assign no reason for his act as he was of a good natured disposition and had no responsibilities as far as is known.

SUFFRAGISTS HEAR INSPIRING ADDRESSES

County Mass Meeting and Dinner Attended by Advocates of Equal Rights.

Under the auspices of the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage, an enthusiastic and largely attended meeting was held in Proctor's Theatre, Elizabeth, last night. Plainfield, as well as other places throughout the county, was represented at the meeting by a representative delegation. The speakers were Dr. Victor Mravlag and Judge James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth; Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale and Rabbi Wise. Champlain L. Riley, of this city, president of the league, was the chairman. He made a brief appeal for financial support.

With the suffrage question so soon to be voted upon, the men's league, as Mr. Riley explained, felt that it must take a more active part in the campaign. It had carefully considered the situation and had decided to have a well-paid organizer. On the strength of this contributions toward the support of the organizers' fund was asked for and the audience made a generous response with $135.

Mrs. Hale's speech caught and held her listeners in close attention. She gave a clear presentation of the suffrage subject. She claimed that woman suffrage is so good a cause that the opposition no longer talk about it, but try to divert attention to "feminism," so utterly indefinable and alarming. The simple question is one of votes for women. Shall the 10 per cent. of radical women, so she estimated them and the 90 per cent. conservative women be allowed representation in the government. Mrs. Hale's remarks were followed by a stirring address by Rabbi Wise, who reviewed the history of the movement.

Preceding the meeting a dinner was held at the Elks' Club, at which many out of town guests were present. A large party went from Plainfield to the dinner and still others attended the mass meeting. Among the Plainfielders were Mrs. A. B. Jones, who with friends filled a box at the theatre; Mrs. Francis deLacey Hyde and friends, who occupied another box; Alexander Millar, Dr. C deH. Krans, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. White, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Ball, Mrs. F. E. DuBois, Mrs. Stephen Haff and party, Mrs. Frederick Conlin and a party of friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Feickert, C. C. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Rfley.

The success of the meeting was due largely to the efforts of Judge James C. Connolly and Edgar A. Knapp, acting for the Men's League of Elizabeth, and receiving the splendid co operation of Miss Esther Ogden, president of the Woman's Equal Suffrage League of Elizabeth.

GEORGE HANKERSON.

George Hankerson, colored, the nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hankerson, of 524 West Third street, died this morning, after a short illness. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Evona chapel will hold an apron and necktie social in the chapel tonight. All members and friends are invited to be present.

POLISH GIRL STOLE FROM HER EMPLOYER

Took Valuables and Wearing Apparel During the Five Days She Worked.

Charged with the larceny of wearing apparel and jewelry from the home of her employer, Mrs. Wadsworth Parker, of 965 West Seventh street, Anna Gabrukez, a Polish girl, was held to await the action of the Grand Jury in bonds of $300 by Judge DeMeza, in the city court, this morning. The police allege that the girl has stolen from four other employers in this city and she refuses to make a complete confession, although she has been forced to admit several petty robberies in which she has been inmplicated during the short time she has been in this country.

Detective-Sergeant Flynn arrested the girl Sunday afternoon on the complaint of Mrs. Parker, and when her rooms were searched a quantity of the loot was recovered. The accused at first claimed that the articles recovered by Flynn were her personal property, but afterwards admitted that she had taken them from the Parker home. The police are conducting a further investigation and efforts are being made to secure a complete confession from her before she is committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. She had been in Mrs Parker's employ for five days.

MR. MARSH PLANTS HIS EARLY POTATOES

West Ender Observes Yearly Custom in Presence of Interested Gathering.

The entire city in general and the West End in particular was all agog this morning, waiting with bated breath to hear if Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, would observe his usual St. Patrick's day custom of planting the first potatoes of the season in his garden. For fifty years the venerable octogenarian has performed this agricultural feat, long before his neighbors harked to the call of the spade and hoe, and the planting has come to be Plainfield's one and only harbinger of spring.

There was some misgiving this year, however, that the planting would not be on time. There is still considerable snow in many yards and the rumor that traces of gold were recently found in Mr. Marsh's garden patch led to the belief that he would let the time-honored event go by the board. Consequently, everyone breathed a sigh of relief when it was announced at noon that the regulation bushel of Murphy seed had been safely placed beneath a foot of earth. If everything goes as well as in previous attempts, the intrepid gardnerer's family will enjoy this first mess of home made spuds on the Fourth of July.

Mr. Marsh, who is one of Plainfield's oldest and best known residents, passed his eighty-second birthday last week. He continues to be active despite his advanced age and his famous potato planting act is only one of his many claims to activity. He is a great walker and keeps a close watch on all local happenings. On the twenty-seventh of this month Mr. Marsh and his wife will celebrate the forty-first anniversary of their wedding. They were married in this city by the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, for many years pastor of the First Baptist church.

There was quite a good-sized gathering present when Mr. Marsh turned the first spade of earth today and as the first potato was dropped into its breeding place, a lusty cheer rent the balmy air. When the job had been completed, the spectators stood with bared heads and rapt attention as the Daily Press' official poet, J. Augustus Goof, read the following poem, composed especially for the occasion:

"Upon this bright St. Patrick's Day
We laud thee, Randolph dear,
For when it comes to doing things,
You have the right idea.

"While others on this day orate
Or go about parading,
You honor he who slew the snakes
By in your garden spading.

"Not only do you pave the way
For good eats some time later,
But pay a humble tribute to
Our much beloved potater.

"So keep on planting, noble sir,
Let nothing stay your hand.
'Til garden, spuds and you are known Throughout this blessed land."

WOMAN SHOOTS FRENCH EDITOR

Wife of Finance Minister Avenges Attacks.

KILLS HIM IN HIS OFFICE

Calmly Fires Five Shots, Four of Which Entered His Body—Was Climax of an Old Feud—Accused Ex-Premier of Graft.

PROMINENT FIGURES IN PARIS SHOOTING.

M. Gaston Calmette, whose newspaper, the Figaro, has been attacking M. Caillaux, minister of finance, for alleged efforts to graft election funds, was shot five times at the office of the Figaro, 26 Rue Drouot, Paris.

Mme. Genevieve Henriette Caillaux, second wife of M. Caillaux and former wife of the writer Leo Claretie, was the assailant, having been incensed by the publication in the Figaro of the facsimile of a letter written by M. Caillaux to a very intimate woman friend.

M. Joseph Caillaux, former premier and four times minister of finance of France, statesman and financier, was the object of a series of attacks by M. Calmette.

Paris, March 17.—As the sensational climax of the feud between Joseph Caillaux, minister of finance, and Gaston Calmette, director of the Figaro, which has been the talk of the boulevards for the past three months, Mme. Caillaux drove to the office of the Figaro and coolly emptied a revolver at her husband's political opponent. He died soon after.

Mme. Caillaux deliberately shot five bullets into M. Calmette's body.

The editor of the Figaro had been conducting in his newspaper a vigorous political campaign against M. Caillaux, denouncing him as corrupt and insincere.

It was at the time when the offices of the Figaro were full of hurrying journalists. M. Calmette was in his room preparing to leave the office with Paul Bourget, the academician. Both had their hats and coats on when the porter brought an envelope containing a visiting card. M. Calmette opened it, with a gesture of impatience. Then, with a look of profound surprise, he held out the card to M. Bourget. On it was "Mme. Joseph Caillaux."

"What are you going to do?" asked M. Bourget.

"She is a woman! I must receive her," replied the editor.

"In that case good night," said M. Bourget, leaving the room. As he departed he met Mme. Caillaux, who was being shown to M. Calmette's room by the porter. She was dressed in dark clothes and seemed calm.

Meanwhile M. Calmette had gone to the far end of the room to take off his overcoat. The porter entered and announced Mme. Caillaux.

A few moments afterward five shots rang out. At the first shot M. Calmette fell without a word, his back toward Mme. Caillaux.

Mme. Caillaux's Coolness.

Deliberately at six paces' distance Mme. Caillaux fired four more bullets from a little Browning automatic pistol. Her coolness may be imagined from the fact that of the five shots only one missed its mark.

After the fifth shot the porter seized Mme. Caillaux. "Don't touch me. I am a woman," she said. She had not lost her self possession even then.

M. Bourget, hearing the shots, came running back, and employees of the paper poured into the room.

They raised M. Calmette. Some thought they heard him say: "I only did my duty. I have no personal malice." Others believe he was unconscious.

One bullet entered the groin, one passed through the left ribs close to the heart, another lodged in the side, and the fourth grazed the body.

The police were called, and Mme. Caillaux was taken in a taxicab to a *police station. Meanwhile Dr. Hart*man and Dr. Raymond were sent for, and the wounded man was bandaged and taken in a motor ambulance to Dr. Hartman's private house at Neuilly.

WEDDING TO BE BRILLIANT.

Miss Wilson to Have "Fuss and Feathers" at Marriage.

Washington, March 17.—The wedding of Miss Eleanor Wilson to William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, will be more elaborate than the marriage last November of Miss Jessie Wilson and Francis Bowes Sayre.

The coming affair at the White House will be attended by the heads of the embassies and legations of the foreign countries represented in Washington, as well as members of the cabinet and the supreme court.

It is said that the president and Mrs. Wilson would like to have the ceremony as simple as possible, but that Miss Wilson says she loves weddings with "fuss and feathers" and wants one of that kind.

BRYAN ORDERS ANOTHER INQUIRY

Demands Probe of Murder of Postmaster.

BATTLE REPORTED STARTED

Siege of Torreon Begins—Villa Regards This as the Most Decisive Conflict of Revolution, as It Is the Key to South Mexico.

Washington, March 17.—An immediate investigation of the killing of Frank V. Johnson, postmaster at Tecarte, Cal., by Mexican bandits last Saturday night has been ordered by Secretary of State Bryan. The military authorities at Rosecrans wired the war department that they already had begun an investigation.

The murder, it was pointed out here, is really within the jurisdiction of the state authorities, as Johnson was shot down on American soil while defending his property.

Mexico City, March 17.—Torreon is completely cut off from the outside world. All communication has been suspended and, though foreigners and Mexicans alike have clamored for word from the city, the government has blocked every avenue through which news might be received.

The biggest battle of the present revolutionary movement is being fought at Torreon, it is believed here. The last report received was brought by three railroad men. They said the rebels were shelling the town. They were immediately arrested for giving out news of the battle.

Decisive Battle.

Chihuahua, Mexico, March 17.—Fighting is on in earnest in Torreon, General Villa ordering his men to press forward against the city after intercepting a wireless message from General Huerta to General Refugio Velasco, commanding the federal garrison at Torreon, to take the offensive against the Constitutionalists.

In the first of the fighting the rebels met with success, but a sudden strict censorship which has been established on news from the front has led to the belief that the rebels later met with a severe reverse. Torreon is the railway junction which is not only the key to the south, but to Saltillo and Monterey on the east.

The latest authentic advices indicate that General Velasco has about 10,000 men and a good showing of artillery. Villa says he has more than 10,000 men and about 120 field pieces and machine guns.

The battle at Torreon will be the most decisive of the present revolution. Victory for the rebels will open the way to Mexico City for them, while defeat will mean that Huerta will be able to begin a more vigorous and aggressive campaign against them and throw his troops into the north.

Saltillo and Monterey are invested by considerable rebel forces, and the fall of Torreon would probably make the two cities easy conquest by the rebels.

First Clash at La Cadena.

The first clash of the fight at Torreon was at La Cadena, about fifty miles west of the railroad at Mapimi *and several miles northwest of Tor*reon. When Villa learned the federals had advanced this far north he ordered a general advance of all his cavalry. The first of the rebels to come in contact with the federals was the Zaragosa brigade, commanded by General Benavides, whose second in command is Raoul Madero, a brother of the slain president. The rebels were victorious, bringing into action an armored motor truck on which were mounted seven rapid fire guns, which swept the federal ranks and caused heavy fatalities.

MILITANT POSES AS MAN.

Woman With Whip Arrested In Lobby of Commons.

London, March 17.—The watchfulness of the parliamentary police saved somebody from assault in the central lobby of the house of commons.

A man who had passed the janitor on the pretext of interviewing a member of the house attracted the notice of a policeman, who kept close to him until an inspector passed. The policeman then called his attention to the man, saying he believed it was a woman in disguise.

The "man" was arrested and proved to be a woman. She had a riding switch concealed beneath her overcoat. She will be charged in court with wearing male clothes with an unlawful purpose.

KILLS HUSBAND, WOUNDS SELF

Buffalo Woman May Also Die as Result of Shooting.

Buffalo, March 17.—Mrs. Ida Wildrig, thirty-six years old, shot and killed her husband here and then put a bullet through her own breast and may die.

Just before dawn Mrs. Wildrig appeared at the home of her brother-in-law, Giacomo Zenditti, found her husband there and opened fire. She shot three times and Wildrig fell dead.

NOTICE---STICKY BANDING

for catching insects and caterpillars that come from the ground to reach the foliage is preferable to coal tar as it does not make an unsightly black band around the tree. Easier, cheaper and much more effective than spraying for great tall trees. NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

SMART SPRING NECKWEAR

14658 14615

So often a costume is made or marred by the collar worn with it, for a fresh, chic piece of neckwear will often make a plain frock seem distinctive. Dainty neckwear can be made at home by even the amateur needleworker, and it is a bit extravagant for most of us when purchased ready made. The Medici collar is characteristic of the season's styles and pattern 14658 includes transfers for stamping the Medici or standing collar with revers and a turned down collar to be embroidered on net, batiste, organdie or handkerchief linen. The standing collar should be wired, with fine, invisible collar wiring, at the back and sides.

The collar and cuff set, 14615, is appropriate for wear with a blouse or frock of wool, cotton or silk material. It may be developed in punched work and Mediveal embroidery on linen or lawn. Directions and diagrams for these stitches are given on the pattern envelope.

Pattern 14658 can be supplied to readers for 10 cents. 14615 can be supplied for 15 cents. Address enclosing price to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7798

Much moire is being used for dresses just now and the new quality is soft and delightfully supple. The shades, too, are most attractive; several shades of green are being shown, and there are browns and blues to meet all demands. These last named seem to be growing in favor every day.

No. 7798 is a design that is excellently suited to moire. It has a drop-shoulder, a sailor and Medici collar and a two-piece skirt.

If a dull brown moire were used the inset vest could be silk eponge in soft, harmonizing colors.

A new and practical idea, noted on many ready made dresses of silk, is to use a wide facing of cloth in the same shade as the silk. This protects the skirt at the bottom and weights them just enough to make them hang well.

To make this dress, No. 7798, in size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 36 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

MEAT ECONOMIES.

DINNER MENU.
Veal Hearts.
Stewed Green Tomatoes With Rice Border.
Deep Apple Tart, Cheese Crust.
Coffee.

PARTS of meat, such as the heart, liver, kidneys, etc., may be cooked to make many inexpensive and savory dishes.

Suggestions for such economies are given here.

Mock Venison.

Veal Hearts.—Properly cooked veal hearts taste much like venison. Fry two slices of bacon to a crisp, remove them from the skillet and fry a small onion in the hot fat. Trim and wash three veal hearts, slice them, roll the pieces in flour and fry them in the hot fat. Place the hearts in a heated baking dish, add to the fat in the pan a cupful of stock, a teaspoonful of salt and half a bay leaf. Pour the mixture over the hearts and cook two hours. Five minutes before serving add the bacon.

A Novel Method.

Fried Tripe In Batter.—Take one and a half pounds of tripe, four tablespoonfuls of flour, one-quarter teacupful of milk, one egg and salt and pepper. Boil the tripe gently for two hours and divide it into even sized pieces. Prepare the batter by mixing the flour with the milk and beating it very thoroughly for five minutes. Add also the beaten egg and seasonings. Dip each piece of tripe in the batter and fry in deep fat until nicely browned. Dish and serve immediately.

Cheap Beef.

Potted Ox Cheek.—Put the meat, cut in neat pieces, into a heavy saucepan (do not use iron or tin), adding alternate layers of the meat, thin strips of fat salt pork or bacon, thin slices of onion, carrot and turnip, a little minced parsley, a bay leaf powdered, a little minced thyme, one or two cloves, salt and pepper. Continue until all the meat is used. Add a pint of water and half a cup of vinegar, or one cup of hard cider and one cup of water. Cover closely to keep steam from escaping and bake in a slow oven for five or six hours. Remove the crust and skim before serving it. Any of the cheap cuts of beef may be cooked in this way.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Wolves Who Dreaded A Zoo Life.

"IT was very wild and lonely in the dark woods where Johnnie Wolf and his family lived. But he was a home body and liked to be alone with his family. The people in the nearest village had heard that a family of wolves lived in the forest, so do you blame them for not going there?" said daddy.

"I should say not," said Jack. "I should think they would have been afraid that the wolves would plunder their village at night. I have heard of wolves doing such things, haven't you, daddy?"

"Yes," said daddy. "I have, and newcomers to the village used to be very much frightened that this might happen. They would be assured by the villagers that such a thing never had happened and never would happen, but still for a long time they would be afraid.

"The wolves were perfectly satisfied with the woods and had no desire to leave. They could get all they wanted to eat there, and really they thought that people were not at all nice. You see, Johnnie Wolf had told them how his great-aunt had been taken by some traveling men and sent to spend the rest of her life in a zoo. They all dreaded a similar fate for themselves, and so they really were very much afraid of people.

"Now, one of the newcomers in the village said that he didn't believe that there were wolves in the woods. He said that he had never heard of wolves living near a village and not going to it at night to steal. You see, he didn't know the reason the wolves had for not going to the village.

"He then decided that he would go and find out for himself. The people all told him how foolish he was, but he insisted, and off he went.

"He took a bag with food in it. He meant to fling it at any wolves he might see so they wouldn't touch him. But he didn't really think that he would see any.

"He had not gone very far, however, when he heard really frightful sounds. It was merely the wolves having a little chat together, but to the man it sounded very awful, and he wished with all his soul that he had taken the advice of the people in the village.

"The wolves suddenly spied him. They all put their paws over their eyes so they could see the intruder better. The man looked at them with a fixed gaze by which wild animals are always supposed to be fascinated. Then he dropped his bag of food and fled through the woods to the village, shouting, 'There are wolves!'

"And the wolves howled to themselves and to one another, 'Saved from a zoo!'"

"TOMORROW"
said the languid man, I guess I'll insure. I know it is the safest plan, with no worry to endure. And when tomorrow came around, alas, it was too late, destruction had come with a sudden bound, and sealed this poor man's fate.

The Abysmal Brute

CHAPTER X.

WHERE a jagged peak of rock thrust above the vast virgin forest reclined a man and a woman. Beneath them, on the edge of the trees, were tethered two horses. Behind each saddle were a pair of small saddlebags.

The trees were monotonously huge. Towering hundreds of feet into the air, they ran from eight to ten and twelve feet in diameter. Many were much larger.

All morning they had toiled up the divide through this unbroken forest, and this peak of rock had been the first spot where they could get out of the forest in order to see the forest.

Beneath them and away, far as they could see, lay range upon range of haze empurpled mountains. There was no end to these ranges. They rose one behind another to the dim, distant skyline, where they faded away with a vague promise of unending extension beyond.

There were no clearings in the forest. North, south, east and west, untouched, unbroken, it covered the land with its mighty growth.

They lay, feasting their eyes on the sight, her hand clasped in one of his, for this was their honeymoon, and these were the redwoods of Mendocino.

Across from Shasta they had come, with horses and saddlebags, and down through the wilds of the coast counties, and they had no plan except to continue until some other plan entered their heads.

They were roughly dressed—she in travel stained khaki, he in overalls and woollen shirt. The latter was open at the sunburned neck, and in his hugeness he seemed a fit dweller among the forest giants, while for her, as a dweller with him, there were no signs of aught else but happiness.

"Well, Big Man," she said, propping herself up on an elbow to gaze at him, "it is more wonderful than you promised. And we are going through it together."

"And there's a lot of the rest of the world we'll go through together," he answered, shifting his position so as to get her hand in both of his.

"But not till we've finished with this," she urged. "I seem never to grow tired of the big woods—and of you."

He slid effortlessly into a sitting posture and gathered her into his arms.

"Oh, you lover!" she whispered. "And I had given up hope of finding such a one."

"And I never hoped at all. I must just have known all the time that I was going to find you. Glad?"

Her answer was a soft pressure where her hand rested on his neck, and for long minutes they looked out over the great woods and dreamed.

"You remember I told you how I ran away from the red haired schoolteacher? That was the first time I saw this country. I was on foot, but forty or fifty miles a day was play for me. I was a regular Indian.

"I wasn't thinking about you then. Game was pretty scarce in the redwoods, but there was plenty of fine trout. That was when I camped on these rocks. I didn't dream that some day I'd be back with you—YOU!"

"It is more wonderful than you promised."

"And be a champion of the ring, too," she suggested.

"No; I didn't think about that at all. Dad had always told me I was going to be, and I took it for granted. You see, he was very wise. He was a great man."

"But he didn't see you leaving the ring."

"I don't know. He was so careful in hiding its crookedness from me that I think he feared it. I've told you about the contract with Stubener. Dad put in that clause about crookedness. The first crooked thing my manager did was to break the contract."

"And yet you are going to fight this Tom Cannam. Is it worth while?"

He looked at her quickly.

"Don't you want me to?"

"Dear lover, I want you to do whatever you want."

So she said and to herself, her words still ringing in her ears, she marveled that she, not least among the stubbornly independent of the breed of Sangster, should utter them.

Yet she knew they were true, and she was glad.

"It will be fun," he said.

"But I don't understand all the gleeful details."

"I haven't worked them out yet. You might help me. In the first place I'm going to double cross Stubener and the betting syndicate. It will be part of the joke. I am going to put Cannam out in the first round. For the first time I shall be really angry when I fight. Poor Tom Cannam, who's as crooked as the rest, will be the chief sacrifice.

"You see, I intend to make a speech in the ring. It's unusual, but it will be a success, for I am going to tell the audience all the inside workings of the game. It's a good game, too, but they're running it on business principles, and that's what spoils it. But there, I'm giving the speech to you instead of at the ring."

"I wish I could be there to hear," she said.

He looked at her and debated.

"I'd like to have you. But it's sure to be a rough time. There is no telling what may happen when I start my program. But I'll come straight to you as soon as it's over. And it will be the last appearance of young Glendon in the ring—in any ring."

"But, dear, you've never made a speech in your life," she objected. "You might fail."

He shook his head positively.

"I'm Irish," he announced, "and what Irishman was there who couldn't speak?"

He paused to laugh merrily.

"Stubener thinks I'm crazy. Says a man can't train on matrimony. A lot he knows about matrimony, or me, or you, or anything except real estate and fixed fights. But I'll show him that night, and poor Tom too. I really feel sorry for Tom."

"My dear abysmal brute is going to behave most abysmally and brutally, I fear," she murmured.

He laughed.

"I'm going to make a noble attempt at it. Positively my last appearance, you know. And then it will be you, YOU. But if you don't want that last appearance say the word."

"Of course I want it, Big Man. I want my Big Man for himself, and to be himself he must be himself. If you want this I want it for you and for myself too. Suppose I said I wanted to go on the stage or to the south seas or the north pole?"

He answered slowly, almost solemnly:

"Then I'd say go ahead. Because you are you and must be yourself and do whatever you want. I love you because you are you."

"And we're both a silly pair of lovers," she said when his embrace had relaxed.

"Isn't it great!" he cried.

He stood up, measured the sun with his eye and extended his hand out over the big woods that covered the serried, purple ranges.

"We've got to sleep out there somewhere. It's thirty miles to the nearest camp."

Who of all the sports present will ever forget the memorable night at the Golden Gate arena when young Glendon put Tom Cannam to sleep and an even greater one than Tom Cannam, kept the great audience on the ragged edge of riot for an hour, caused the subsequent graft investigation of the supervisors and the indictments of the contractors and the building commissioners and pretty generally disrupted the whole fight game?

It was a complete surprise. Not even Stubener had the slightest apprehension of what was coming. It was true that his man had been insubordinate after the Nat Powers affair and had run off and got married. But all that was over.

Young Pat had done the expected—swallowed the inevitable crookedness of the ring and come back into it again.

The Golden Gate arena was new. This was its first fight, and it was the biggest building of the kind San Francisco had ever erected. It seated 25,000, and every seat was occupied.

Sports had traveled from all over the world to be present, and they had paid $50 for their ringside seats. The cheapest seat in the house had sold for $5.

The old familiar roar of applause went up when Billy Morgan, the veteran announcer, climbed through the ropes and bared his gray head.

As he opened his mouth to speak, a heavy crash came from a near section where several tiers of low seats had collapsed. The crowd broke into loud laughter and shouted jocular regrets and advice to the victims, none of whom had been hurt.

The crash of the seats and the hilarious uproar caused the captain of police in charge to look at one of his lieutenants and lift his brows in token that they would have their hands full and a lively night.

One by one, welcomed by uproarious applause, seven doughty old ring heroes climbed through the ropes to be introduced. They were all ex-heavyweight champions of the world.

Billy Morgan accompanied each presentation to the audience with an appropriate phrase. One was hailed as "Honest John" and "Old Reliable;" another was "the squarest two fisted fighter the ring ever saw."

And of others: "The hero of a hundred battles and never threw one and never laid down;" "the gamest of the old guard;" "the only one who ever came back;" "the greatest warrior of them all," and "the hardest nut in the ring to crack."

All this took time. A speech was insisted on from each of them, and they mumbled and muttered in reply with proud blushes and awkward shamblings.

The longest speech was from "Old Reliable" and lasted nearly a minute. Then they had to be photographed. The ring filled up with celebrities, with champion wrestlers, famous conditioners and veteran timekeepers and referees.

Lightweights and middleweights swarmed. Everybody seemed to be challenging everybody.

Nat Powers was there demanding a return match from young Glendon, and so were all the other shining lights whom Glendon had snuffed out.

Also they all challenged Jim Hanford, who, in turn, had to make his statement, which was to the effect that he would accord the next fight to the winner of the one that was about to take place. The audience immediately proceeded to name the winner, half of it wildly crying "Glendon" and the other half "Powers."

In the midst of the pandemonium another tier of seats went down, and half a dozen rows were on between cheated ticket holders and the stewards who had been reaping a fat harvest.

The captain dispatched a message to headquarters for additional police details.

The crowd was feeling good. When Cannam and Glendon made their ring entrances the arena resembled a national political convention. Each was cheered for a solid five minutes.

The ring was now cleared. Glendon sat in his corner surrounded by his seconds. As usual Stubener was at his back.

Cannam was introduced first, and after he had scraped and ducked his head he was compelled to respond to the cries for a speech. He stammered and halted, but managed to grind out several ideas.

"I'm proud to be here tonight," he said, and found space to capture another thought while the applause was thundering. "I've fought square. I've fought square all my life. Nobody can deny that. And I'm going to do my best tonight."

There were loud cries of "That's right, Tom!" "We know that!" "Good boy, Tom!" "You're the boy to fetch the bacon home!"

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR
It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.
You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.
Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful— all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.
This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Adv.

AFFINITIES CAUSE MARITAL TROUBLES

Plainfield Man's Fondness for Girls Discussed in Divorce Proceedings.

Testimony was introduced by the defense in the divorce action of John E. Orchard, a resident of North Plainfield, against his wife, Mrs. Emma E. Orchard, of 20 Sidney place, Brooklyn, that Orchard was frequently the host at dinners to young women and that he was the only man present at these affairs, which were held in the private dining-rooms of Brooklyn restaurants in 1909 and 1910, when Orchard and his wife became estranged. Chancellor Lewis is trying the case in the Jersey City Chancery Chambers.

The witness was Miss Hortense Smith, of 20 Steuben street, Brooklyn, a member of the Baptist Tabernacle, which Orchard also attended. Miss Smith said that she and fifteen other girls had been guests at these parties and that she was dismissed from her position as stenographer to Orchard when she refused to go out with him.

Miss Nella Orchard, a daughter of the couple, testified in favor of her mother. She said that the trouble between the pair was due to her father's fondness for girls, and because he refused to support his family properly.

The plaintiff sprang a surprise on the defense when he produced a letter, which counsel called "a love effusion" to Mrs. Orchard from J. W. Davis, of Plainfield. Mrs. Orchard admitted that she received the letter but that she saw no harm in it, as Davis and his wife were intimate friends of hers.

The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and the burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

MIDDLESEX ENTERS PROTEST

fore you attempt to cross the line into our borough. Consider our rights.

"If Newark wanted to make Plainfield a dumping ground for its sewage would you sit idly by and let them do it? This whole thing is not fair. You think because you have a big city and have lots of money you can do these things, but I want to tell you that you cannot. Why not start a movement here to tidewater. It took years to build the Panama Canal and there is no reason why a tide water sewer should not be a success."

After Postmaster Wirtz had added his word of protest, Mr. Coddington thanked the Council for its courtesy in listening to the delegation and it retired, getting no encouragement that the city intended to retrace its steps so far as the sewage matter was concerned.

Capt. J. B. Greenhut Hires Ousted Employees

About a week ago, the well-founded report that the Simpson-Crawford Co. and 14th Street stores were to be closed on Saturday night, caused the owners of "The Big Store" to consider the pitiable circumstances that would surround the 2,000 or more employes of the closed stores.

Instructions were given forthwith by Capt. J. B. Greenhut to the superintendent that applications received from employes of the Simpson-Crawford Co. store and 14th St. store should be given the most favorable consideration. And already several hundreds of the men and women have been assigned to positions with the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Co.

Unquestionably, this prompt action and favorable consideration has saved many of the hundreds from being out of work during the coming weeks.

The increasing Spring business will enable "The Big Store" to employ several hundred more people who can qualify for the positions that will be open, and preference will be given in every case to those who, through no fault of their own, find themselves out of positions.

CHANGES IN HOSPITAL STAFF

Morris Harris Leaves Here to Become Superintendent of Jersey City Hospital.

NAME NEW HEAD NURSE

Miss Jessie Cann, of New York, Succeeds Miss Helen Howes—Board of Governors Answers Criticisms as to Expenditures.

Morris Harrison has resigned his position as superintendent of Muhlenberg Hospital and the same has been accepted by the board of governors. In a recent Civil Service examination for the eligible list for superintendency of New Jersey State hospitals, Mr. Harrison was first on that list and has received an appointment as superintendent of the Jersey City Hospital. The new position is one which, it is said, will be greatly to the advantage of Mr. Harrison, and the board of governors has expressed its regrets over his leaving Plainfield.

During Mr. Harrison's stay at the hospital the cost of maintenace per day per patient was reduced from $2.56 in 1912 to $2.25 in 1913, according to a report of the governors.

Miss Jessie M. Cann, who was recently appointed directress of nurses, as announced in the Plainfield Daily Press of yesterday, entered upon her duties Sunday. She is a graduate nurse of the Worcester, Mass., hospital and for several years occupied the position of assistant superintendent in charge of the Training School of Nurses at the Manhattan Eye and Ear Infirmary, New York city. Her training and experience have qualified her for her present position as head nurse in the local hospital.

From time to time, according to the governors, there have come to their attention comments in the nature of criticism as to the amount of money that was spent by the hospital out of town. It is claimed that there has been a feeling that the local merchants were not getting the proportion of the trade that they were entitled to. In refutation of such claims, the governors give a few figures.

During the months of January and February the hospital spent in round numbers $5,100 for supplies and of this amount $3,800 or 7 5per cent. was spent in Plainfield with local merchants, and $1,300 outside of Plainfield. Of this $1,300 spent outside a considerable portion of it was for surgical instruments and other supplies that could not be purchased in this city. The governors mention this to show that they believe in patronizing "home industries" as far as possible and practicable to the interests of the hospital.

CURRENT EVENT CIRCLE TO DISCUSS PRACTICAL SUBJECTS

The Current Event Circle, conducted by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, will hold its March meeting Tuesday afternoon, March 24, at 3 o'clock, in Vincent chapel. The subjects for the afternoon's discussion will be "Our Immigrants; How We Treat Them," and "Our Poor; How We Help Them."

Miss Alma Matthews, agent for the Methodist Home Mission Societies, who in the course of her work meets incoming ocean liners and visits Ellis Island daily, will speak of her work and tell of the many interesting cases that from time to time have come under her notice. Miss Mabelle Phillips, agent for the Organized Charities of Plainfield, will speak before the assemblage and will tell of the work that is being done for the poor of this city. Each of the speakers will be limited to a half hour's talk.

Following the addresses the members will engage in a general discussion of the subjects touched upon. On the afternoon of Tuesday, April 28, the final meeting of the Current Event Circle will be held. The subject for discussion will be that of "Domestic Science." It is expected that this topic will prove to be of decided interest inasmuch as the talk upon the same subject held a year ago was much enjoyed.

WARREN TOWNSHIP ELECTION HARMONIOUS

F. W. Ralph, Randolph Sachs and W. Howard Toms Chosen Trustees.

Frank W. Ralph, Rudolph Sachs and W. Howard Toms were chosen members of the School Board of Warren township at the annual school election held at Warrenville, yesterday afternoon, receiving the highest votes, being 48, 46 and 44 respectively while George Irving received 22 votes and Phillip W. Mundy 21 votes. The new members take the places of Augustus Schumacher, Richard Rogers and George Irving, and will take office April 1. Mr. Toms is the only one who has served on the board and his election appeared to meet with the approval of the voters.

John C. Cooper was chairman of the meeting and John E. Flammer was chosen clerk. He read the financial report for the year and John F. Mundy, president of the board, reviewed the work of the past year and outlined what he thought should be accomplished during the coming year. He thanked the retiring members for their excellent work.

In making the appropriations, the amount of $3,533, which was thought to be necessary to defray expenses for the coming year, was increased to $3,600. With this sum the board not only hopes to meet current expenses but also pay some bills which have been outstanding for some time.

RUDOLPH SPIEGEL DIES IN NEW YORK

Well Known Hotel Man Succumbs After Long Illness.

Following an illness from which he had been ailing for the past year, Rudolph Spiegel, widely known throughout the city and borough, died yesterday afternoon at the Reinhardt Hotel, No. 2 Greenwich street, New York, of which he was proprietor. He had been confined to his bed only for the past six weeks. The body was brought to his late home at 80 Somerset street, shortly before noon today and the funeral will be held in the German Reformed church, Friday afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Spiegel was a native of Germany, where he was born in 1865. He emigrated to America when a boy and came to Plainfield twenty-five years ago. He was employed at various times by Joseph A. Blatz, Christian Gloekler and A. D. Findlay. For a time he conducted the Chatham Hotel at Somerset and Chatham streets, and six years ago entered the employ of the Reinhardt Hotel owners. Three years later he purchased the business, and shortly afterward a cafe nearby at No. 1 Washington street. He had built up an excellent business in both places and was rapidly becoming one of the leading downtown bonifaces when his health gave out.

Mr. Spiegel was a member of Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, Plainfield Aerie, F. O. E.; Miantonomoh Tribe of Red Men, the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association, the Gesang and Turn Verein and the German Beneficial Association. His wife is the only surviving relative.

MANAGER CAMPBELL HOT ON THE TRAIL OF MISCREANTS

Manager Campbell, of the Plainfield Transit Company, applied at police headquarters, this morning, for a permit to carry a gun while driving a car between here and suburban towns which his route covers. Campbell's action is the result of an act of rowdyism that occurred between here and South Plainfield last night and is in accordance with the company's determination to wipe out the practice.

Two of Uncle Sam's sailors and a South Plainfield man boarded the 'bus in this city last night on the last run and when the car had reached the outskirts proceeded to insult passengers by throwing sneeze powder about the car. This is a violation of the law and every effort is being made by the company and Mr Campbell to run down the trio of miscreants who will be dealt with severely if caught.

GETS STATE PRISON TERM.

John Lahy, of Philadelphia, who was convicted of the charge of robbing the postoffice at Manville, was yesterday sentenced to eight years in State Prison.

DISCUSS COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Judge Robert E. Carey Addresses a Large Audience at "People's Forum."

That the excellent condition of the municipal government in Plainfield called for no immediate change, albeit the commission form of government was an excellent idea, was the consensus of opinion among those who attended the session of the "People's Forum," held last night at Washington School, and who engaged in the discussion which followed the address of the evening.

Former Judge Robert E. Carey, of Jersey City, was the speaker at the meeting. He spoke on the subject, "Advantages of a Commission Form of Government." His remarks were well received, were listened to by the large audience with the closest attention and much information of a valuable nature was gained by those who were so fortunate as to be present. The subject discussed is an interesting one and has been adopted by 200 cities throughout the United States, with, in nearly every instance, it is said, pronounced success. New Jersey municipalities which have tried the commission plan of city government are Jersey City, Trenton, Passaic and Atlantic City.

Last night's meeting was held under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee, of this city, and it was one of the most successful of the kind that has thus far been held.

Deductions made by the audience from the remarks of former Judge Carey were that the plan of commission government means the placing of municipal affairs in the hands of five commissioners. One of such is chosen as city manager. The commissioners, who are chosen from the city at large, are paid individual salaries of $1,500 each and are placed in absolute charge of the city's affairs. Powers possessed by the five commissioners are absolute, subject, of course, to the approval of their fellow commissioners. Thus, red tape is done away with, ward politics which sometimes make for corruption, is eliminated, by the choosing of the several commissioners from the city at large, which eliminates all ward lines, and there is often, it was said, a saving in the funds of the city which is governed by commission. Because of this system affairs in various cities have, it is said been revolutionized and in not a few cases the saving that has been effected has provided public parks, recreation centres and other improvements all of which would have been impossible under old time administration of municipal affairs.

Another good feature of the government of a city by commission, it was said, was the fact that taxpayers were able, at all times, to get in close touch with each and all of the commissioners. The concentration of any municipal government, causing as it does a direct responsibility, results inevitably, in increased efficiency in administration, with the attendant result that the community, as a whole, is greatly benefited.

Reference was made by former Judge Carey to the fact that the idea of governing cities by commission had been widely adopted in the State of Pennsylvania since the first of the present year. All cities of importance, outside of the cities of Philadelphia, Scranton and Pittsburgh, are said to have adopted the commission form of government. Former Mayor George W. V. Moy presided at the meeting last night and introduced the speaker.

MID-LENTEN DANCE.

The invitation mid-Lenten dance held last night in Debele's Auditorium was attended by 150 young people. The souvenirs for the women were small policemen's clubs and the gentlemen received green paper hats. The feature was the burlesque exhibition dance in costume. Some of the steps were very novel and amusing and the couple received hearty applause. Refreshments were served at a late hour and the dance terminated at 1 o'clock.

PRESIDENT INAUGURATED.

Greensboro, N. C., March 18.—Interesting exercises conducted in the presence of a distinguished audience attended today's inauguration of Dr. S. B. Turrentine as ninth president of the Greensboro College for Women. Governor Craig, Bishop Kilgo and the heads of many well known Southern institutions of learning were among the participants in the program.

CHALLENGED TO PUBLIC DEBATE

J. Brognard Betts and N. B. Smalley to Discuss School Matters.

RESULT OF ARGUMENT

Boroughites Engage in War of Words at Annual School Meeting as to Merger of High Schools—Trustees Elected.

As the result of a somewhat heated argument between former Mayor Newton B. Smalley and J. Brognard Betts, assistant State Commissioner of Education, at the annual school meeting in the borough, last night, Mr. Betts accepted Mr. Smalley's challenge to a public debate at the High School on Tuesday night, on the question of whether the borough and High School should be merged into one institution. Mr. Smalley opposes the plan, while Mr. Betts is strongly in favor of having but one High School.

Among the three hundred citizens who attended the school meeting there was apparently two distinct factions, and there were many heated discussions growing out of trivial matters. After nominations had been made for school trustees, one faction demanded a hearing on the question of consolidating the city and borough High Schools before the trustees were elected. The opposing side ridiculed the idea, insisting that trustees be elected at once.

There was a lively debate between Mr. Smalley and Mr. Betts and the remarks were of such a nature that at one time it looked as though the argument would go beyond a war of words. Mr. Smalley finally amended his original motion and suggested that the vote be taken immediately and the debate follow.

During the recess which followed Mr. Smalley and Mr. Betts resumed their previous argument, when the former challenged the latter to a public debate, and the challenge was accepted, with the understanding that it take place next Tuesday night at the borough school.

The election last night was called to elect three members to the board for three-year terms and one member for a one-year term. Judd Stuart, Thomas Currin and Richard C. Campbell were chosen for three years and Charles L. Holstein was elected to finish out the unexpired term of Dr. Nash, who recently moved to Philadelphia. The votes were cast as follows: Stuart, 257; Currin, 205; Campbell, 199; Hoagland, 86; Ball, 76; LaPorte, 6, and for the one year term Dunning secured 128 and his opponent got 143.

J. T. Greene, Henry Wells and E. M. VanVliet acted as tellers at the election and 281 votes were cast.

UNDERTAKER AND BUTCHERS CHARGED WITH FIGHTING

Charged with fighting and disorderly conduct, Ignatz Treimeoweski, of 218 Plainfield avenue, and John Hamilton, proprietor of the People's meat market on Plainfield avenue, were arrested by Roundsman Saffron and Patrolman Martin, last night, and let go on their own recognizance to appear before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court tomorrow morning. Because he had boxed the ears of Hamilton's young son, who threw snowballs at him on the street, Treimeoweski was sought by the senior Hamilton and a friend by the name of William Page, who is a colored undertaker.

Page and Hamilton engaged in a fracas in Treimeoweski's store and a general fight was in progress when the minions of the law arrived on the scene and placed two of the men under arrest. Page will also be arraigned tomorrow morning.

ANDERSON SAYS HE WANTS PROPERTY LISTED

W. deLa. R. Anderson, chairman of the North Plainfield Township Committee, in a further discussion of the plan to assess Mt. St. Mary College property, stated that his purpose is to have the college property put on the assessment list, which he claims has not been done. If the county taxing authorities decide that the property is exempt from taxation, Mr. Anderson says that he is willing to stand by that decision, but he thinks the property should appear in that way on the tax list.

MRS. HARDY'S WILL ADMITTED TO PROBATE

Judge Connolly in Orphans' Court Decides Against Contestant.

In spite of the objections filed by Col. James N. Hardy, to the probate of the will of his late wife, Mrs. Anna H. Hardy, who was well known in Plainfield, James C. Connolly ruled unfavorably to the contestant and the will was yesterday admitted to probate. Colonel Hardy's objections were based upon the provisions of a codicil to his wife's will which was added in the month of March, 1911. This provided that certain securities, consisting of mortgages, stocks and bonds, now in a Plainfield banking institution, should go to a son of Mrs. Hardy by a former marriage.

Colonel Hardy contended in the Orphans' Court yesterday, that he and his wife had made a verbal agreement that all securities should revert to the survivor in the event of either of them dying. The estate left by the late Mrs. Hardy, which consists of money, property and various gilt-edged securities, is valued at something over $250,000. She died on December 7, 1913. William A. Coddington appeared for the caveator and Nelson and William N. Runyon, and Ralph Lum, appeared in support of the will.

BOARD OF EDUCATION CLOSES PROPERTY DEAL

Acquires Evergreen Avenue Tract for New Eight-room School.

The deal by which the Plainfield Board of Education acquires a tract of property on Evergreen avenue, upon which a new grammar school will be built in the near future, was closed yesterday, the consideration being $14,500, and the transaction was approved by the Board at its monthly meeting last night. The lot is 200 feet deep and touches Edgewood avenue on one side and Cedarbrook road on the other. It was also reported at last night's meeting that the Board has disposed of the property on the east side of Kensington avenue for $13,500. The latter property, which is near Prospect avenue, has been owned by the Board for about three years, but when it became known to the people of that section that the authorities intended to erect a school building at that place there was such a protest that the Board finally abandoned the idea and has since purchased the new tract.

Plans for the new school building will be discussed by the building committee at a meeting to be held in the High School, Monday night. Estimates will be drawn up at that time and presented to the Board at its meeting next month.

A resolution was passed by the members of the Board last night thanking the local firemen and those who assisted them in putting out the small fire of yesterday afternoon in the High School building.

OWEN VERMEULE DIES AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Owen Vermeule, colored, aged 82 years, died yesterday in Muhlenberg Hospital after a short illness with pneumonia. During the past two years Vermeule had been an inmate of the Industrial Home, where he was one of the most respected charges.

In January, 1912, he was found nearly frozen to death in a little house on Cottage place by neighbors and his removal to the Home followed. He was the owner of a small piece of property but lived alone and had none to care for him as he grew weaker with approaching age and the city authorities had since cared for him.

At the Industrial Home Vermeule acted as general handy man and served as a nurse for the weaker inmates who are unable to look after their own wants. Vermeule took a particular interest in Samuel Vermeule, a white man aged 96 years, and Nelson Peterson, aged 93 years, and his devotion to these two invalids was a noticeable feature to all those who visited or are connected with the institution.

VERDICT SET ASIDE IN VAN NEST CASE

Warrenville Farmer Loses Damage Suit Against Frederick Dealaman.

Money damages in the sum of $50, recovered by James Van Nest, a farmer living in the vicinity of Warrenville in Somerset county, some time ago, against his neighbor, Frederick Dealaman, has finally been set aside by the highest court of the State. Litigation over the matter has been long and expensive. Van Nest sued Dealaman for damages because a cow which had strayed into the nieghbor's garden died from an attack of acute indigestion after eating too heartily of green corn.

Suit was brought upon the theory that Dealaman had failed to properly keep in repair his share of the partition fence between the properties of himself and Van Nest. It was on this theory that the award of $50 damages was made by the jury which heard the case.

In the opinion written by Justice Parker, for the Court of Errors, the law in the case is laid down as follows: "The provisions of the fence act requiring adjoining owners to make and maintain their respective proportions of partition fences impose no liability on an owner who is in default for accidental injury to animals of the adjoining owner which stray upon his land by reason of the defect in the fence which he failed to repair."

DAVID J. CARNEY GOES TO REWARD

Widely Known Citizen Passes Away After a Long Illness.

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW

For Many Years He Was Prominent In Local, County and State Politics—Survived By a Brother and Several Cousins.

David J. Carney, aged about 58 years, a life-long resident of North Plainfield and one of the best known citizens in this vicinity, passed away at his home on Lincoln place at 7:15 o'clock, last night, after a brave fight against a complication of diseases. His life had been despaired of for sometime, yet possessed of a strong constitution and great vitality, he rallied after each succeeding attack and quite recently there was a slight hope that he might recover sufficiently to get out again, but during the past few days he suffered a relapse and gradually grew weaker until the end.

Mr. Carney was born in North Plainfield, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carney. His father fought and died in the memorable seven day battle of the Civil War. By occupation he was a printer, having learned the trade in the office of the Constitutionalist, of which A. L. and W. L. Force were the proprietors, and for many years he was foreman of the office. In later years, the Force brothers established the Daily Press, which A. L. Force owned until two years ago.

After leaving the Constitutionalist, Mr. Carney took a position in the Government Printing office at Washington, which he held for a short time. Returning to Plainfield, Mr. Carney engaged in the job printing business here and for several years was the head of the Monarch Printing Company. Later on he acquired the North Plainfield Review, which he had since conducted as The Review.

There was perhaps no more familiar personage about the city and borough than "Uncle Dave," as he was better known by everyone in this vicinity. His genial, happy manner won him many friends. Not only in a social way was Mr. Carney well known, but in political circles as well. For many years he was a prominent figure in local, county and State politics, being a staunch Democrat. He did not always agree with his party and there were times when he would support some good man on the opposing ticket, but he always remained true to the principles of his party. While he served on the Somerset County Democratic committee at various times, Mr. Carney never held a public office. He was a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., the only fraternal organization in which he was interested.

There survives his brother, Andrew Carney, of the borough; Thomas and Joseph Waldron, of the borough; Mrs. Sarah Moynihan, of Bound Brook; David T. Kenney, John J. Kenney and Andrew E. Kenney, Mrs. Anthony Martell, of this city, and Miss Mary Laughlin, of the borough, all cousins.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SOCIAL.

Mrs. Harry C. Beidelman, of Hillside avenue, gave a St. Patrick's Day party at her home, yesterday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in playing "Five Hundred," after which luncheon was served. The color scheme was appropriate for the day. Those present were Mrs. W. N. Tier, Mrs. Allen Coddington, Mrs. Robert Gow, Mrs. J. L. Bennett, Mrs. J. R. H. Hall, Mrs. Charles Clark and Mrs. Arthur McVoy.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

To glean an idea of the great merit and importance, not to mention the immense cost, of securing the film reproduction showing the construction of the Panama Canal to be shown by Lyman H. Howe at the Plainfield Theatre, Friday and Saturday, it is necessary to say that it represents the work of the most expert photographers for a period of several years. Unquestionably this feature comes at a fitting moment—just as the gigantic undertaking is practically completed. It is remarkable in every sense—but especially so for its matchless photography. Two of the photographers contracted malaria while they were "on the job" and on more than one occasion they had stirring experiences when blasting operations had to be photographed from behind the armored screens. The "stirring" came from flying boulders. Every branch of the work carried on among the wild wastes of Panama is vividly shown. Dredges, with huge iron hands plunging deep into the water, are shown emerging with five ton fistfuls of rock. Cutting machines are seen piercing walls of solid rock as though they were of cheese. Everywhere tiny human forms are flitting to and fro while among the clanging masses of machinery that also seems almost human in its work, stand the white-clad men directing the work with a degree of skill, ingenuity and resource that is typically American. The machines move more like voracious, sentiment monsters than contrivances of man. Indeed they seem almost uncanny in the precision of their work.

LAST OF "DE LUXE BOOK" FRAUD CASES

After Dodging Law for Two Years Agents Are Indicted.

Boston, Mass., March 18.—After dodging the law for more than two years, four of the book agents who were indicted in 1912 for complicity in the alleged "de luxe" book frauds, were placed on trial today in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court. Several of thsoe alleged to have been the prime movers in the "de luxe" book swindle have been convicted in New York and with the disposal of the cases now on trial the Government believes that it will have put an end for all time to one of the most gigantic frauds ever perpetrated in America.

It is believed that the "de luxe" swindle netted its promoters more than $5,000,000 within a few years. The fraud was first brought to the attention of the authorities in 1912, when a rich widow of Salt Lake City brought a civil action and obtained a verdict of nearly $50,000 on alleged "rare" volumes which she had purchased from the promoters of the scheme. The disclosures made during the trial of this suit led to an investigation and subsequent indictments and arrests.

Book experts testified that the books sold by the gang were worth only one-fifteenth to one-twelfth of the prices charged. The alleged fraud consisted in the deception of persons with more money than knowledge of books who wished to buy their libraries ready made. They were approached by representatives of the gang and informed that they could purchase some rare volumes bound which would be a pride to any book collection, but must, of course be prepared to pay a very high price It was represented that the books were of great rarity and of limited editions, and in some cases that they were autographed by their authors As a matter of fact, there was nothing at all extraordinary in the books themselves, and though their bindings were expensive they cost but a small part of the prices placed on them.

One method adopted by the salesmen was to make prospective customers believe that a millionaire was in active negotiation for the set under consideration, and that unless the bargain was closed at once the books must go to complete a library of a well-known book lover. This usually worked well with the person who was buying his library by the yard, and ordinarily was quite sufficient to clinch the bargain.

Many well-known people throughout the country are said to have fallen victims to the swindle. Mrs. James A. Patten, of Chicago, wife of the wheat and cotton operator, is said to have paid $30,000 for some of the "rare" volumes. Mrs. Durand, wife of the founder of Wellesley College, gave up $100,000 to the book agents, and a wealthy man of Greensburg, Pa., is said to have been victimized to the tune of $150,000.

The four agents placed on trial here today are said to have been in charge of the New England territory. Among their alleged victims were a number of wealthy men and women of Boston and other cities of Massachusetts. Though the indictments were returned many months ago the accused men have had their trial delayed by the fact that some of them were in Europe and only recently returned to the jurisdiction of the court.

HIGH LIVING COST CAUSES GAIN IN MIDDLESEX BUDGET

New Brunswick, March 18—The high cost of living has hit Middlesex county. The Board of Freeholders has adopted the budget for 1914, and found that it marked an increase of $80,000 over that of 1913. The figures this year are $421,400, and the board explains that the increase is due to the high cost of living, which, it says, affects counties as well as individuals.

The recent storm, mosquito appropriation and increased amount for roads are three of the items causing advances. The following statement was made as to the increases:

"The main reason is the increased population of the county and the cost of living, which effects the county government as well as the city government and individuals. In addition to this, there is the increased mileage of the county roads, together with the added wear and tear caused by the development of the automobiles.

"Then the Geran law doubled the cost of election expenses. The widow's pension accounts for $10,000 of the increase.

"The road appropriation had to be increased, because of the fact that the two recent snows necessitated an expense for opening of the county roads of from $10,000 to $12,000. The mosquito extermination committee made a demand on the Board of Freeholders for $5,500."

Trenton, N. J., March 18.—Nearly 100 vested clergymen, seven of whom were bishops, walked in the procession that participated in the funeral of Bishop John Scarborough in Christ Protestant Episcopal church.

Among the mourners who crowded into the church, which owed its foundation to Bishop Scarborough's Sunday school class of many years ago, were prominent laymen of several dioceses, clergymen of various denominations and scores of those who had known the bishop as their friend. His five daughters sat in the sanctuary near the coffin with its mantle of palms and flowers.

There was no departure from the regular Episcopal burial service, in which the officiating clergy were Bishop Greer of New York, Bishop Lines of Newark, Bishop Rhinelander of Philadelphia and Bishop Talbot of Bethlehem.

Others in attendance were Bishop Nathaniel Thomas, missionary bishop of Wyoming; Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd, head of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary society, of which Bishop Scarborough was for many years a member, and Bishop Burgess of Long Island. Trinity church, Pittsburgh, where Bishop Scarborough was rector when elected bishop forty years ago, was represented by a clergyman and two laymen.

The senior class of St. Mary's hall, Bordentown, where Bishop Scarborough was to have confirmed a class last Sunday, attended the funeral in caps and gowns.

The burial services at Greenwood cemetery were conducted by Bishop Lines and Bishop Talbot. The standing committee of the diocese, consisting of four clergymen and four laymen, served as honorary pallbearers. They were the Rev. Dr. Hamilton Schuyler of this city, the Rev. Dr. Alfred B. Baker of Princeton, the Rev. Charles M. Perkins of Vineland, the Rev. H. M. Pearse of South Amboy, J. B. Woodward of Bordentown, David E. Baird of Beverley, Charles Townsend and Warren R. Dix of Elizabeth.

Until the election of a successor to Bishop Scarborough the standing committee will act as the ecclesiastical head of the diocese. A call for the election will be issued at the diocesan convention to be held in this city May 12.

A TRIBUTE.

David J. Carney is dead. To a small minority of citizens in the twin municipalities, the simple statement conveys only the information that another soul has been called by its Maker. To a majority of thousands numbered in all parts of the State it marks the passing of a whole-souled, genial, likable and steadfast friend. He has gone in body, but in spirit he will dwell among us until our individual summons come. "Dave" Carney was the friend of every man. All he received for a birthright was a full complement of brains and the natural wit that is a characteristic of his race. They were his ten talents and he made good use of them. His education was derived in the University of Experience, the best institution of learning for making a man's man of the material provided. He never let his left hand know what his right hand did, but there's many an unfortunate who has reason to remember the kind heart hidden beneath the bluff exterior. A merciless arraignment of an erring one oft times ended in a quip that cleared the way for an order redeemable for a big meal. He knew, as few men do, because in the heyday of life he fought a man's fight with himself and won. To master someone else is one thing; to master yourself is another. He never married but the life that might have been shared with a helpmate was devoted to a mother with the ardency of a youthful lover. He lived his life as he believed it should be lived, devoid of cant or pretense, and when the grim reaper first stalked before him he obeyed Bryant's injunction, approaching his grave like one who wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and lay down to pleasant dreams.

FIRE PROTECTION.

There is a large amount of material for reflection in the statements made by Councilman John H. Cose, during his address to the visiting fire chiefs following the official test of the new auto fire engine Saturday afternoon. He has had a great deal more than a bird's-eye view of the fire fighting game, having been a member of the city department for sixteen years, and his observations are not those of an official suddenly elevated and imbued with the idea that he will be accused of malfeasance if he fails to criticise something. Mr. Cose said, among other things, that while Plainfield has had a very efficient fire brigade for many years, the equipment has been deteriorating rapidly in the last decade. The old style steamer, which has done noble work since the present day veterans were boys, is in a bad state of repair and not worth while fixing. Horse drawn vehicles are becoming obsolete in the apparatus field, yet the city has had motor drawn vehicles only a year. It now maintains fire teams for various vehicles, the cost of which approaches $300 monthly. As motor vehicles eat no hay or wear out no shoes while waiting for work and are always ready in an instant, they have every advantage over the horses.

"We have a capable and efficient chief," said Mr. Cose, "and it is the duty of the citizens through their Council to back him up. The motor apparatus has demonstrated its fitness and it is the purpose of the new committee to lose no time adding more to the department. We hope to have another engine before the year passes and in the near future to motorize the apparatus which is now in use and worth keeping. I realize that improvements cost money and that municipalities get theirs through taxation but it is far better to spend a little more now than to lose a lot sometime later. We have had no great conflagrations here in many years but there are still many inflammable frame structures in the congested sections and the experience of Newark and Paterson show us what we can have in the way of devastation once an incipient blaze gets a good start. Those conflagrations, you know, always happen where things are just ripe for them but none seems to realize it until the losses are being figured up."

The councilman's words ring of truth and, as said at the outset, there is much in them for mature reflection.

The following article from the versatile pen of "Beau Broadway," the New York Morning Telegraph's special writer, will be of interest to many Plainfield people who have watched the proceedings in the proposed Morris Canal Parkway project:

Persons with an interest in preserving intact the beautiful sections of country near New York city are likely to be enthused over the ardent battle being waged by Dr. Hudson Maxim and his colleagues of the Lake Hopatcong Inter-Municipal Park Commission for the preservation of Lake Hopatcong.

It is proposed by the Morris Canal Parkway Association to convert the entire canal from Roseville, near Newark, to Phillipsburg into a parkway at a large initial cost for alterations and repairs and the taking up of an endless burden of maintenance expense.

Mr. Maxim has clearly shown that Lake Hopatcong would have to be sacrificed to the parkway project in order to supply its quotum of water to feed the Parkway Canal.

If it be true that the people of Morris county and elsewhere find more freedom, beauty, picturesqueness and pleasure at Lake Hopatcong and choose to go there for an outing rather than to the Morris Canal, then surely we cannot afford to sacrifice Lake Hopatcong for the canal.

Lake Hopatcong does not cost the county anything for its maintenance or upkeep, but, on the contrary, pays into the treasuries of the county and State a large amount of annual taxes, while the Morris Canal would require a large annual outlay for its upkeep and maintenance.

I join with many others in wishing Dr. Maxim success in his worthy warfare.

In discussing the changing of names of the Capitol City streets Senator Martine, of this city, is quoted as follows in the Congressional Record: "Mr. President, as a resident of Washington for the past two years or more, I am interested in this subject. First, I wish to say that I believe that there is a good deal in a name. I have laid out a great many streets and a great many avenues, and whenever the opportunity came, I am frank and free to say that I tried to dignify those thoroughfares with the name of 'avenue.'" To the truth of this statement of our fellow townsman, we solemnly swear. One or two streets of our own south side had their origin in the mind of the Senator, one bearing his name.

The efficiency of the fire drill in the city's educational buildings was put to a thorough test at the Plainfield High School yesterday. In sixty-five seconds after the alarm bells were sounded when the slight blaze was discovered, every one of the several hundred pupils passed out as if nothing unusual had happened. This is a record well worth talking about.

While a New York film concern was posing its actors for a photo play to be entitled "The Pickpocket's Revenge," the other day an official in the crowd was relieved of a roll of bills and a scarf pin. It's the realism in the movies that makes them so popular.

Now that Randolph Marsh has safely planted his seventeenth of March installment of potatoes we can once more take up the Mexican and canal toll questions at the point where we left off.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE FIRE

Wall of Dormitory Building Is Gutted by Flames.

Two hundred and fifty girls, students in Wellesley college, and a hundred other persons, including members of the faculty and employees, narrowly escaped with their lives when fire destroyed College hall, the most pretentious building in the college group, with a loss estimated at $1,500,000. As the result of the fire college sessions have been temporarily discontinued, and special trains have already taken many girls to their homes. No one in the building had opportunity to save any personal possessions, practically all of the refugees being attired only in their night clothing.

FIRE DRILL SAVES 350 AT WELLESLEY

Girl Students Calmly March From Building.

Wellesley, Mass., March 18.—Through the bravery and quick work of the Wellesley college fire brigade, composed entirely of girls, 410 girl students were conducted safely from College hall, the chief building of the college group and one of the oldest, when fire entirely destroyed the structure with a loss which college officials estimate at $1,000,000.

Mary O'Mahoney, chief of the college fire brigade, directed the rescue work, arousing the girls and rushing them partially dressed on to the campus. Through the quick work of the brigade, the big building, more than 400 feet long and five stories high, was emptied in three minutes, with a minimum of hysteria and fright.

Mary Smith, secretary to the dean of the college, rushed into the smoke filled administration office and saved the president's records, the only college records saved.

At chapel, which was held as usual, President Ellen Fitz Pendleton announced that the college will be closed until the end of the regular spring vacation time, April 7. There was not a girl in the school, it was said, who did not attend classes in college hall, which is a combined dormitory, classroom and administration building.

How the fire started is a mystery, but it had gained great headway before it was discovered. One of the girls awoke to find her room filled with smoke, and she commenced to scream. Superintendent Austin heard the chorus of cries as the alarm spread through the building, and he telephoned to the Wellesley police station.

Dense smoke filled the halls and stairways, and the girls were forced to grope their way to the first floor, where they were escorted out of the building and lodged in other dormitories, which were thrown open. Many girls are reported to have lost all their effects, although much personal property was saved by firemen and volunteers.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ENTERTAINMENT ENJOYED

The Korulimo Bible Class, of the First Presbyterian church, held a pleasing St. Patrick's Day social in the church parlors, last night. There were about seventy-five guests who enjoyed the professional and amateur entertainment. The rooms were tastefully decorated in the class colors, brown and gold, and green was also used.

Vocal solos were rendered by the Misses Ruth Sadler, Edythe Bechtel and Emma Mantz. Master Charles Pagilucia, Jr., gave an exhibition of clog dancing and also sang appropriate selections.

The Korulimo band, headed by Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, president of the class, consisting of dishpans, hammers and other utensils played several popular tunes. Progressive games were then played, the winners each receiving gold stars. Refreshments were served during the evening.

OPENING SESSION OF M. E. CONFERENCE

Many Plainfielders Present at Annual Meeting Which Began Today.

Newark, March 18—The fifty-seventh annual session of the Newark Conference of the M. E. church opened in Halsey street church, this morning, this being the seventh time that the conference has met in this church, and Bishop Luther B. Wilson is presiding for the second year in succession. The session began with a celebration of the Lord's supper and a praise service.

These officers were elected: Secretary, Rev. Fred Bloom, of Bayonne; statistician, Rev. Fred C. Mooney, of Elizabeth; treasurer, Rev. Warren B. Neff, of Hoboken, succeeding Rev. Jacob A. Cole, of Passaic. Rev. J. W. Ryder, of East Orange, was also a candidate for treasurer.

Mr. Bloom appointed these assistants: Rev. W. B. Fleming, of Newark; Rev. A. E. Armstrong, of East Orange; Rev. Berriman H. McCoy, of Bloomfield; Rev. George C. Dougherty and Rev. W. A. Coon, of Newark. Rev. Dr. J. A. Guttridge, of Ocean Grove, was made statistician-emeritus, and the assistants are Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of Newark; Rev. W. C. Timbrill, of Caldwell; Rev. Harry A. King, Rev. John H. E. Schultz and Rev. Norman Champlin, of Newark; Rev. J. K. Easley, of Elizabeth.

The treasurer's assistants are Rev. J. W. Ryder, of East Orange; Rev. Christopher vonGlahm, of South Orange; Rev. Charles S. Hunt, of Mountainview; Rev. J. F. Burdenberger, of South Orange.

A memorial service then followed for Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of Plainfield, and Rev. Dr. W. S. Galloway, of Newark, who died during the past year. The morning session closed with the transaction of business matters.

Unusual interest attaches to the conference on the part of Plainfielders for the reason that it is not known whether the local preachers will be returned, and also for the fact that a successor to Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, as district superintendent, is to be named.

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock there will be a business meeting of the conference. An address will be delivered at 10:30 o'clock by Rev. Dr. F. Watson Hannan, of Drew Theological Seminary, at Madison. Rev. Wallace MacMullen, also of the faculty of Drew Theological Seminary, will speak before the convention of the Women's Home Missionary Society tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock there will be a lecture on "The Old Minister and His Influence," by Rev. Nacy McGee Waters, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

PROCTOR'S PICTURES.

New experiences of "Our Mutual Girl" will be seen by patrons of Proctor's theatre, tonight. "The General's Children," a two part drama from the Pathe studios, is another attraction for today, as is "The Coryphee," a two reel drama feature, showing a story of life behind the scenes. "Just a Song at Twilight" is an adaptation new to motion pictures here. There are many other films to be shown. Tomorrow will be seen "In the Old Attic," "Pat and the Poodle," "Saved From the Flood" and "Mrs. Manley's Baby." One famous film to be shown is the picture adaptation of the play, "A Good Little Devil," which will be shown in five parts, with one hundred scenes. This will be presented on Friday.

PARIS ROYALISTS START RIOTING

Demonstrations Follow Murder of Editor Calmette.

CAILLAUX HAS RESIGNED.

Quits French Cabinet Because of the Shooting—All France Is Shocked. Minister of Finance Weeps After Seeing Wife—"Did It For You!" She Says.

Paris, March 18.—The city is well guarded as a result of the public excitement aroused by the Calmette tragedy. Republican guards are stationed in the streets at intervals of a few hundred yards, ready to break up any group which attempts to repeat the angry demonstrations of Monday night, when more than thirty arrests were made.

Disturbances started at the Cafe Napolitain, a journalists' cafe, where demonstrators gathered to the number of about 200. The police began to disperse them, whereupon a bigger crowd gathered and attacked the police. Chairs were hurled at them, tables were knocked over, and carafes and glasses were smashed. Some arrests were made before the crowd was dispersed.

The resignation of M. Joseph Caillaux as minister of finance in the Doumergue cabinet was accepted.

Caillaux visited his wife in her cell. At the sight of her husband Mme. Caillaux burst into tears. Caillaux endeavored to restrain his own emotion, but without avail. He, too, wept and, with his wife separated from him by iron bars, he endeavored to reassure and comfort her.

Mme. Caillaux clung to the bars of her cell and sobbed:

"It was for you! It was for you! I could not bear to see your honesty questioned and attacked. It was the only way I knew."

Caillaux went directly to his office from the prison. There he broke down completely and wept, surrounded by his friends. Those close to Caillaux say that he probably will retire to private life and that he will not be a candidate in the April elections.

New Cabinet Framed.

It was resolved that Rene Renoult, hitherto minister of the interior, should become minister of finance, while Louis J. Malvy, minister of commerce, should succeed M. Renoult as minister of the interior. Raoul Peret, deputy from Vienne and undersecretary of the interior, is to take the place of M. Malvy as minister of commerce.

An attempt by students to start a hostile demonstration before the ministry of finance was broken up by the police. So violent were the students in their denunciation of Caillaux and so thoroughly aroused were crowds that gathered that the police feared a tragedy.

The shooting of Calmette was described in detail to the police in the Figaro office. Friends of the dead editor acted out the parts of the principals in the tragedy. During the autopsy conducted at the hospital it was learned that when Mme. Caillaux purchased the pistol with which she shot Calmette she told the merchant she intended to accompany her husband on a campaign tour and would need a revolver for protection in night travel.

The great beauty as well as the position of Mme. Caillaux resulted in the warden of St. Lazare prison showing her several special favors. Her meals were provided from a nearby restaurant. For lunch she had mutton chops, stewed apples, macaroni and mineral water.

Reports were circulated during the morning that Mme. Caillaux had attempted suicide, but they were believed to be groundless.

Called the "French Lloyd-George" because of his taxation measures, notably the taxation of bonds, Caillaux has been a powerful figure in French politics. As most Frenchmen are bondholders, most of the newspapers are violently opposed to Caillaux and have waged unrelenting campaigns against him. But Caillaux, a trained politician, parliamentarian and fighter, met every attack. He has the powerful support of MM. Clemenceau and Combes and Premier Doumergue.

PASSENGERS RESCUED.

Steamship City of Sydney Is Fast on Ledge.

Halifax, March 18.—Losing her way in a dense fog that hung over the bay of Fundy, the Red Cross steamship City of Sydney crashed into the rocks off Cape Sambro. The vessel is in a dangerous position, and a heavy sea is running. She is fast on the rocky ledge, and there seems little chance of taking her off again. Government vessels from Halifax were dispatched to the aid of the ship within an hour after she had struck.

One of the first of these craft to reach the stranded vessel was the tug Rosemary, which immediately took off the twelve passengers and part of the crew of forty. Captain David McDonald and the rest of the crew elected to stay on board.

The City of Sydney was bound from New York to St. John's, N. F. She struck the ledge of rocks while trying to make Halifax, her only port of call on the trip.

—If you have a really desirable house or apartment to rent, your "ad" will constitute GOOD NEWS to some anxious people in this city.

JOSEPH CAILLAUX.

Husband of the Woman Who Killed Paris Editor.

THREE DIE IN CRASH OF CRAFT ON RIVER

Lackawanna Commuters Are Killed In Collision.

New York, March 18.—Three passengers were killed, five seriously injured and a score more cut and bruised when the Lackawanna railroad ferryboat Ithaca was rammed amidships by a freight car float of the Jersey Central railroad in the middle of the Hudson river.

Two freight cars shot through the side of the men's smoking cabin, tearing a hole about twenty-five feet wide. One of the cars bumped across the floor of the smoking room, crashed into the stairway to the upper deck, broke down the fencing of the carriage gangway and on the rebound fell into the river.

That the accident did not result in a more terrible disaster was partly because the gap in the ferryboat torn by the freight cars, big as it was, did not extend below the water line, and partly because William Ryan and William Peters, two deckhands of the Ithaca, and a clergyman, who afterward disappeared without giving his name, calmed the crowd before it could get into a panic.

Without shipping as much as a bucket of water and without any demoralization among crew or passengers after the shock of the first crash, the Ithaca brought 700 passengers safely to the Lackawanna ferry house in Hoboken.

One of the men killed, George J. Smith, sales manager in New Jersey for the Providence Brass company, was a graduate of Yale and a classmate of former President Taft, having been graduated in 1878.

Smith was dragged out of the wreckage by several men, among whom was the clergyman, who dropped out of sight afterward. When his condition was seen the clergyman offered a prayer as Smith died in his arms.

$35,000 VERDICT STANDS.

Court Upholds Woman Who Sued Steamship Co. For Mistreatment.

New York, March 18.—The verdict of $35,000 recently obtained by Catherine O'Rourke at Mineola, Nassau county, against the Cunard Steamship company for assault and maltreatment probably will stand. Justice Jaycox, before whom the case was tried, denied a motion to set the verdict aside on the ground that it is excessive.

The mistreatment of the plaintiff took place while she was a passenger on one of the company's ships from Queenstown to New York and consisted of false accusations made by some of the ship's crew that the plaintiff was the mother of a new born infant whose body had been found on board of the ship, an attack upon the plaintiff, her imprisonment in a small room on the ship, deprivation of food and drink during a large part of the time she was detained.

FORD ESTATE $6,000,000.

Rubber Man's Will Is Probated—His Brother Gets All.

Newburg, N. Y., March 18.—The will of J. Howard Ford, which was filed in Goshen on Monday, was admitted to probate in this city. It is estimated that the real and personal property, which all goes to a brother, James B. Ford, who is also executor, is worth $6,000,000. Appraisers were named by the surrogate.

Mr. Ford died in New York city on March 3. He was president of the Myer Rubber company and a director of the United States Rubber company. His estate includes the famous stock farm Stony Ford, near Goshen.

Weather Forecast.

Rain in the southern section and snow or rain in north portion. Tomorrow fair and colder, with brisk shifting winds.

Local Boy Heads University Dark-horse in the Intercollegiate Championships.

Although handicapped by a bad shoulder and working with an entire squad of new men, Russell Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley S. Miller, of Union street, who is this year captain of the University of Pennsylvania gymnastic team, continues to win first places on the flying rings in each meet he enters and his team has been pulling out ahead with a regularity that has brought attention to the aggregation from other collegiate quarters. Pennsylvania is now looked upon as a likely aspirant to the intercollegiate title and Miller is practically certain of duplicating his feat of last year, when he won the intercollegiate championship on the flying rings.

In the Haverford College meet at Haverford, Pa., last week, Penn won by a score of 34 to 20. The Quakertown youths took six first places and Miller captured one of these on the flying rings. Penn also defeated New York University, one of the strongest factors in this branch of sport, by a score of 35 to 19, taking four firsts, one of which went to the local boy in his favorite event. In the N. Y. U. meet two Plainfielders performed, Charlie Dutcher sporting the colors of the metropolitan crew on that occasion. Dutcher is the present intercollegiate and amateur champion at club swinging and was plainly off form in the Penn meet, taking only third place. Both Dutcher and Miller are graduates of the Plainfield High School and are seniors in their respective colleges this year. Miller won the Yale cup in the Plainfield High School class of 1910 for general all around excellence in scholarship and athletics.

Early in the season Miller strained a ligament in his shoulder and has been greatly handicapped in his work this year by the injury. He has been visiting Plainfield frequently since the gym season opened at the training camp of Maximus in this city, and this has been the only thing that has enabled him to keep in the sport. He will return home tomorrow for another treatment and leaves here Friday to join his teammates in New York to go to New Haven where a meet is scheduled with Yale for Friday night. The intercollegiate championships this year will be held in New Haven, probably on March 27, and Miller and his charges are planning to take these in also.

During his college career the Plainfield boy has made a wonderful success of his gymnastic work and his loss this year will be a keen one to the Penn faction. Although he is contemplating a return to the institution for a post-graduate course next year he will not take part in athletic work. Miller is president of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association this year.

"JIMMY" CALLAHAN 40 YEARS.

Chicago, Ill., March 18—"Jimmy" Callahan, manager of the Chicago White Sox, and one of the most popular men in baseball, reached his fortieth milestone today, having been born March 18, 1874, in Fitchburg, Mass. Callahan has spent just half of his forty years in baseball. In 1894 he was given a tryout by the Philadelphia Nationals. The next season he played with the Springfield Eastern League team, and in 1896 with the Kansas City team of the Western League. From Kansas City he came to the Chicago Nationals in 1897 and remained with that team until the American League started in 1890, when he jumped to the White Sox. In 1906 he left the big league and started an independent club in this city. In 1911, after an absence of five years from organized baseball he returned to the White Sox and showed that his batting eye was just as keen as ever. In 1912 he became manager of the team. "Cal" was one of the managers of the recent globe-girdling trip of the Giants and White Sox. Immediately after his arrival home he left to join his players who were training in California and is now accompanying the team on the journey eastward.

"Sportdom Tips"

When things don't suit some people they immediately get the idea that the whole world is on the blink and everyone on it is dishonest. Here, for instance, are presumably intelligent persons, declaring against the conditions surrounding the selection of a North Plainfield High School basketball captain and against certain elections that are being conducted in the Plainfield High School. It should be conceded that those actively interested in the welfare of these two institutions know better what is needed and the ones peaking in through the key-hole getting a casual view, should not undertake to launch adverse criticism without first investigating. It is all right in some people's estimation to disrupt cliques but at the same time it is only charitable to allow that all cliques are not objectionable. The "politics" in the local and borough institutions of learning are not for the outsider to discuss and a careful survey should be conducted by probers before an attack is made on the "systems." There is altogether too many people trying to expose corruption and not enough trying to elevate sportsmanship in athletics. The N. P. H. S. basketball election was decided by the team and it is no more than right that a majority should be pleased. The close rivalry exhibited in the contest for office speaks exceptionally well of the ability of the two men after the job. It was hard to select the candidate best fitted for the athletic plum, as evidenced by the many tie ballots cast.

Realizing that the players who fail to make good in fast company must be taken care of in some way or the other, the Federal League, now that it has solidly established the parent organization, is out hustling to create a few minor leagues. A representative of the Federals was in Newark, Saturday and again on Sunday, and it is said his mission there was to secure grounds on which to place a team. It is also claimed that the Feds are after the entire circuit of the New York and New Jersey League, special attention having been attracted to that organization by the recent decision of the owners of the Newark International League Club to put a class D team in the field in Newark this season. The Federal League, it is declared, will corral the New York and New Jersey League, and the "outlaws" will also, it is said, establish another league in the West.

That move to organize a State championship tournament for canoeists has been met with an enthusiastic response from the leading canoe clubs of New Jersey and the event gives promise of being one of the leading features on the Asbury Park summer calendar this summer. Bill Schooley, formerly of this city, is one of the leaders in the movement, and his club in Newark fostered the idea that will now be put to an actual test. Although Plainfield has no organization for the promotion of this line of sport there are a number of enthusiastic paddlers in this city and such a body would no doubt prove popular in these parts.

With Liddy and Johnson making good in the International League and Jack Martin turning down $4,000 offers in the National, Plainfield baseball stock is keeping above the water level.

The annual lull in sporting circles which accompanies spring fever is now holding forth in these parts and the sporting scribe is having the time of his life trying to grind out a column or two of dope. Hence the bunk that is being served minus the relish.

North Plainfield High School has been accused of setting another precedent. "Sport politics" is the latest feature. Now for a Charlie Murphy or Billie Sulzer to put the right man on the throne.

Haven't heard of that Ancient Five of late. The melting snow has evidently drowned out their ambitions to put the kibosh on the younger generation.

Now that Plainfield High School athletes have decided to enter the Union County League, why not extend an invitation to the other members of the organization to hold an athletic meet on Parker Field? It's a shame to see one of the best athletic fields in the State going to waste.

Pingry Oval may be suitable for the county league's annual field and track meet but the facilities offered at Parker Field could not be surpassed for adequateness and a trial is only fair.

Before we had a real athletic field in Plainfield the track sports set up periodical kicks but now that we have one of the best in the State the subject is never mentioned above a whisper.

Hyman Abrams, the Charlie Murphy of the N. P. H. S. athletic forces, is out to have the whole athletic association put to rout for an alleged infraction of the constitution and by-laws. Well, some agitations have known to produce results, Hymie, old man.

Some championship timber from Rahway is performing at the Plainfield High School this afternoon. This is the institution, by the way, which was considered too strong for the Union County League. Give them the "once over."

Haven't heard much from those Leal School athletes since that Plainfield High School game of a week or so ago. Why delay baseball as a result?

KING OF ENGLAND SHOWS HE HAS SPORTING BLOOD

London, March 18—King George attained the distinction last night of being the first reigning British monarch to witness a public exhibition of "the noble art of self-defense."

As the guest of the Second Life Guards, of which he is Colonel, he was entertained at a boxing and fencing tournament at the Regent's Park Barracks. Bombardier Wells, the former British heavyweight champion, and Pat O'Keefe, of Ireland, gave a fast exhibition of sparring and several clever amateurs also took part in bouts.

In sporting circles a boom in boxing is expected as a result of the King's patronage.

WITH THE BOXERS

Mike Gibbons and Gus Christie are to meet in a return bout at Hudson, Wisconsin, March 24.

"Battling" Levinsky and Bob Moha have been signed to furnish the feature bout in a boxing show in Milwaukee on March 23.

Young Jack O'Brien is to try his hand as a referee in Philadelphia. If he makes good he will most likely hang up the mitts and watch the other fellows box.

Promoter Jim Coffroth, of San Francisco, is going to take a whirl with the wrestlers. Jim believes the time is ripe for a few contests between the star grapplers.

Jimmy Johnston, of New York, who is acting as agent for Promoter "Snowy" Baker, has signed Fred Hocks, Young Mike Donovan, Jackie Clarke, Howard Morrow and Young Brown to go to Australia.

TEAMS ARE NEEDED FOR S. S. CIRCUIT

Park Avenue and Monroe Avenue May Not Be Represented This Year.

While every effort has been made to reorganize the Sunday-school Baseball League for the coming season there still remains, in the minds of those actively engaged in the work of arousing and stimulating interest, a strong suspicion that league hostilities will be abandoned for this season. A number of the clubs on the circuit last year have expressed a desire to withdraw whatever franchises they may hold at the present time and it now seems probable that at least a year will elapse before the drawing up of another Sunday-school League schedule.

A meeting of the organization's officials was called some time ago, but owing to conflicting dates certain representatives failed to put in an appearance and as a consequence nothing was accomplished. Until some sort of a gathering is held nothing definite will be known regarding the possibilities of having a league this year.

It has been rumored, and it is a known fact, that the Trinity Sunday school athletes are clamoring for admission to the league and this organization would readily fill one of the vacated places. Trinity had a good team last year and is as good as the general run of baseball nines on the Sunday-school circuit. Hope Chapel stands ready to re-enter the organization and First Baptist is desirous of getting back on the list. Although Monroe Avenue has not been heard of recently it is also probable that this team will be coaxed back into the fold in the event of a movement to reorganize being launched. At least one more team is needed and from present appearances the league will have a pretty hard time trying to fill Park avenue's place.

COMMISSION TAKES ANOTHER SLAP AT BOB FITZSIMMONS

At its regular meeting yesterday, the New York State Boxing Commission adopted a new rule, which is to go into effect immediately, that hereafter no man shall enter the ring in this State as a contestant who is over forty years of age.

The present rule, as it stands, merely precludes youths of less than eighteen years participating. No change in that feature was made, so that the new rules mean that a man over forty years of age and a youth of less than eighteen may not contest.

CENTRAL OHIO DOG SHOW.

Columbus, O., March 18.—The largest dog show ever given under the auspices of the Central Ohio Kennel Club opened in this city today and will continue until the end of the week. Many of the prize winners from the recent shows in New York, Boston and other Eastern cities are included among the exhibits.

BASEBALL NOTES

Christy Mathewson and Jeff Tesreau are tied up with the New York Giants for the next three years.

Baseball is a popular sport at Princeton University. The Tiger nine showed a net profit of more than $10,500 for the season 1912-13.

"Lefty" Leifield, the former Pittsburgh heaver, has turned down an offer from the Federal League and signed with the San Francisco team.

In his nine years in the National League, Mike Doolan, the former Philly shortstop now with the Federals, never had a batting average higher than 263.

Though Clark Griffith may fail to find anything choice in the flinging line among his young pitchers, he will still have Johnson, first name Walter.

Young Riggert appears to be showing the real article in centre field for the Brooklyn Superbas. He has a lot of speed and a wonderful throwing arm.

Pitcher Vean Gregg, the famous southpaw of the Cleveland Naps, has been performing in fine style in the practice games with the Boston Red Sox at Hot Springs.

Catcher "Red" Kuhn, of the White Sox, seriously injured his throwing arm in a recent exhibition game and it is feared he may not be able to play until well after the season opens.

It is said that Ray Caldwell, the Yankee twirler, is in bad with Manager Chance. Reports from Houston are to the effect that Ray fell off the wagon and was set back fifty bones in the way of a fine.

Third Baseman Whitted, of the St Louis Cardinals, is doing some nifty clubbing this spring. He is credited with four hits in a recent game against the Athletics, in which the Cards trimmed the world's champs 8 to 0.

Larry Gilbert, the outfielder who is being given a trial by the Boston Braves, has a slight limp, caused by one leg being shorter than the other. Curiously enough this doesn't seem to interfere with his work in the field.

The Ohio and Pennsylvania League has been reorganized and the name changed to the Pennsylvania and West Virginia League. McKeesport, Beaver Falls, Butler, Connellsville, Uniontown and Charleroi, in Pennsylvania, and Fairmont and Clarksburg, West Virginia, form the new circuit.

WELSH SCIENTIFICALLY DISPOSES OF JOE RIVERS

Los Angeles, March 18.—Ring Note.—The lightweight championships England, Australia and South Africa still remain in Wales—with heavy anchor attachment.

Jose Rivers' efforts to outbox Freddie Welsh reminded one of a child trying to open a Yale lock with a soup ladle.

Welsh, still the peerless and pleasing performer of old, gave the Californian a scientific beating of twenty rounds. Rivers saw more boxing gloves in one afternoon than ever before in his life career, and the smell of leather should sicken him during the remainder of his natural life.

FINAL SPURT WON FOR LOCAL GIRLS

Tied With Trenton at the End of One Half Plainfielders Win Out Handily.

Returning to Trenton to take up the issue where they left off last year, a local feminine basketball team known as the G. Y. M. five, took the measure of the Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls in a closely contested match on the Capitol city court last night, the final score being 25 to 17. Practically the same Queen City representatives lost a series by a count of 2 to 1 to the Trentonians last season and as this is the fourth meeting, matters are now at a deadlock.

Tied at the conclusion of the first half when the score stood 10 to 10, the teams gathered additional speed in the final session and playing without lines the Plainfielders outpointed their rivals to the tune of 15 to 7 in the curtain period. Although feminine contests are in a majority of cases decided by accuracy in foul goal shooting this game had plenty of sensational field goal caging connected with it and no less than fifteen of the two point variety were bagged during the forty minutes of play.

Individualism was also missing in this encounter, a feature that has been so prominent in the other contests between these forces, and the laurels were unusually evenly divided. The quartet of players who failed to break into the scoring were conspicuous along the line of goal prevention and while the forwards and center took charge of the tallying the remaining contestants guarded and passed in excellent style. Miss Helen Hummel led the Plainfield team's scoring with fifteen points, five field and five foul goals, while Miss Ida Hummel caged a trio of pretty two point scores from the field of play. Miss Mair also accounted for a pair of double deckers.

Miss "Dot" Hayes, as usual, led the Trenton team in scoring but she was closely seconded by Miss Welle and Miss Balderson.

The score:

PLAINFIELD.

	C.	F.	P.
Miss H. Hummel, f	5	5	15
Miss I. Hummel, f	3	0	6
Miss M. Mair, c	2	0	4
Miss C. Smith, g	0	0	0
	10	5	25

TRENTON.

Miss Balderson, f	1	2	4
Miss Welle, c	2	0	4

Score by periods:

COUNTY TRACK MEET MAY BE HELD HERE

N. P. H. S. Will Be Invited to Enter Union Co. League Athletic Fest.

Arrangements have been completed by the officials of the Union County Athletic League, of which Plainfield High School is a member, to stage a monster field and track meet on or about June 13. Pingry Oval in Elizabeth and Parker Field have been mentioned as the grounds on which the affair will be staged and the probabilities are that the local rendezvous will receive favorable consideration owing to the central location and the facilities it has to offer.

The meet, which will be open to all schools represented in the league and possibly North Plainfield, New Brunswick and Pingry High School, should result in one of the biggest scholastic meets ever staged in this county.

To date the Union County Athletic League has been merely a name but the officials believe that a track meet will serve the purpose of arousing and stimulating interest. Principal Albert S. Davis, of the Roselle High School, is at the head of the movement and is especially desirous of having all of the schools in the county represented.

NEW SCHOOL NINES FOR P. H. S. SCHEDULE

Outlook for a Banner Year on the Diamond is Particularly Bright at This Time.

Manager Harold Williams, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, today completed his schedule for the coming season. Many new teams will be played this year, such as Westfield, Pingry and Central and Passaic High Schools, and the High School of Commerce, of New York.

There will be fourteen home games and five trips out of town. Captain Rosenson expects to have a team this year which will hold up the standard set by previous teams of Plainfield High School. There is splendid material for a fast infield and outfield and although the pitching staff has been weak there are many in school who can ably hold down the job on the mound.

The schedule:

Saturday, April 11—Camp Bowser, at Parker Field.
Monday, April 13—Roselle High School, at Parker Field.
Wednesday, April 15—Woodbridge H. S., at Parker Field.

Saturday, June 6—North Plainfield, at Hyde Field.

NORTH PLAINFIELD WILL MEET BATTIN PERFORMERS

North Plainfield and Westfield High Schools are scheduled to meet Battin High School, of Elizabeth, on the baseball diamond this season and if the schedule of the latter aggregation is to be taken as a criterion the Central New Jersey aggregations will have to hustle to keep near the surface. Two games with Westfield and one with the boroughites are included in the following schedule:

Wednesday, April 8—Barringer H. S., at Newark.
Saturday, April 11—Carleton Academy, at Summit.
Tuesday, April 14—Central H. S., at Newark.
Thursday, April 16—Roselle H. S., at Elizabeth.

ABRAMS ELECTED TO LEAD N. P. H. S.

Popular Little Guard the First Choice Following Many Heated Sessions.

Although Duclos Van Mater was elected captain of the North Plainfield High School basketball team for next season, at a meeting of the squad yesterday afternoon, the Athletic Association voted that this action was void at a meeting today and when the student body had voted on the subject, Hyman Abrams, the other candidate for the position, was elected by a vote of 25 to 14.

An amendment was made to the new constitution to the effect that hereafter when the athletic teams were deadlocked once in a vote of that kind the matter should come before the association. When this was passed there was nothing left to do but to vote and decide the matter as the team had once been deadlocked. The voting was exceedingly close throughout and the decision was uncertain until the last few ballots had been announced.

GROSEBAKS RETURN AFTER LONG ABSENCE

Other Oddities Reported Because of the Severity of Old Winter.

The announcement in these columns a few days ago that the extreme winter weather has driven game birds and animals to temporary domesticity for supplies of food, has brought many new and old happenings to light. At Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton's place on the Washington Valley road, fifteen English pheasants loiter about the barnyard to eat with the chickens, and a flock of wood doves have encounced themselves beneath the shelter of the barns. The latter have become almost as tame as ordinary pigeons.

For several weeks previous to the warm weather of the past few days, a flock of grosbeaks, or rose-breasted finches, has hovered about the farms along the Valley road. These birds are natives of the Arctic regions and have never been seen south of New Jersey. The presence of a flock in this vicinity is an evidence of the unusual cold and is said to be the first time in twenty-six years a grosbeak has visited near Plainfield.

Squirrels are plentiful throughout this region and the pranks of the little fellows seeking food are getting to be amusing. One farmer at Berkeley Heights discovered yesterday that they had been visiting his cellar regularly and had either carried away or spoiled enough apples to fill two barrels. The squirrels care nothing for the fruit itself but nibble most of it away to get the seed. They are also fond of corn and are eating many dollars' worth stored in cribs.

TIME HAS CHANGED RING GAME SHELFING OLD BOB

Seventeen years ago yesterday Bob Fitzsimmons defeated Jim Corbett for the heavyweight championship of the world at Carson, Nev. It was in the fourteenth round that Bob landed the famous "solar plexus punch" that sent Corbett crashing down to the floor, to arise a defeated champion. The first motion pictures of a boxing bout were taken at Carson, but the best picture of that fight was Langdon Smith's classic story for the New York Herald.

"The Californian lifts himself to his right knee and crawls supinely for the ropes. He topples forward like a child onto his elbows again. The look in his face is that of a man sick to death. Once more the thought that he must get up creeps through his reeling brain. Again he lifts himself to his right knee and tries to grip the floor with his left foot. The foot sprawls away, leaving him helpless just as he grasps the rope."

P. H. S. WILL NOT ENTER ATHLETES IN PENN MEET

Although it has been announced in another local paper that Plainfield High School would be represented by several athletes in the annual intercollegiate relay games of the University of Pennsylvania next month it was learned this morning that there was no truth in the report and the local school will be unrepresented.

The Penn relays are the biggest set of athletic contests staged during the year and Plainfield has never sent a team to compete in them. Although the local and surrounding high schools are annually given a classification on the program, New Brunswick is the only high school in this section which sends competitors out.

So far the only names mentioned are those of Representative Maurice Connolly, of Dubuque, and W. W. Marsh, a prominent manufacturer of Waterloo.

Ex-Judge George Turner, who has announced his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, has had a distinguished public career. He was in the United States Senate from 1897 to 1903 and on the conclusion of his term he was appointed a member of the Alaska Boundary Tribunal. He served as a member of The Hague Peace Commission and recently has been a member of the international joint commission having jurisdiction over waterways between the United States and Canada.

MORE EVIDENCE OF SPRING.

A West End resident phoned the Daily Press today that spring has surely reached that section of the city. A flock of eight robins gathered in his yard this morning and sang as heartily as they do in balmy June, despite the downpour of rain. If you must have comment on this make it yourself.

3 KILLED AS WALL OF ST. LOUIS CLUB FALLS

Score Buried Under Wreckage of Building.

St. Louis, March 18.—The west wall of the Missouri Athletic club building, towering high above the ruins of last week's fatal fire, tumbled over in a high wind. It crashed down through the roof of the four story building occupied by the St. Louis Seed company, killing three persons there and burying a score or more who were in that building or working in the ruins to the rear of it.

The wall was seventeen inches thick and had been regarded with apprehension since the fire. When the high wind arose City Commissioner McKelvey called off 170 city employees who were searching the ruins for bodies. They had been out of the way less than two minutes when the wall rocked over.

The rear of the St. Louis Seed company's building was damaged by the fire, and laborers employed by Contractor Charles A. Hanna were repairing it. A score of them were on the first floor level picking away at debris piled up in the swimming tank. The mass of brick came down upon them, and many of them are still buried under it.

The falling wall crashed through the roof and each floor of the seed company's building as if the building had been made of paper. Employees and others in the store were carried down under the mass. Ambulances were called, and many laborers immediately set to work to rescue those who had been caught. Five persons are reported to be under the ruins. Hermann Cobb, manager of the store, was one of them to be caught. He was rescued.

William Davisson was dead when taken from the ruins. Cobb told his rescuers that another man lay near him under the debris with a scantling driven through his body. In another part of the cellar of the feed store a woman's hand can be seen protruding from a mass of debris. Her moans have ceased, and she is believed to be dead.

SURGEON KILLED IN AUTO.

Train Strikes Dr. G. O. Welshman at Lackawanna Crossing.

East Orange, N. J., March 18.—Crossing the Lackawanna railroad tracks at North Grove street, the automobile driven by Dr. George O. Welshman of 205 Mount Prospect avenue, a well known surgeon, was struck by an eastbound Morristown express. The doctor was killed instantly. His body was hurled twenty feet and his neck was broken.

The flagman was placed under arrest by order of County Prosecutor Louis Hood. Witnesses said that the gates were not down. The auto was dragged along for 100 yards. One of its wheels became detached and, getting under the fourth coach, threw it from the rails.

96 DEGREES IN SAN FRANCISCO

Midsummer Weather Prevails All Along California Coast.

San Francisco, March 18.—This was another day of blistering heat in San Francisco and all along the California coast. The thermometer in Union square registered 96 degrees, which was a record breaker for March in San Francisco, while the weather bureau atop of a skyscraper registered 86 degrees.

There is high pressure from the north, which prevents San Francisco from getting the benefit of cool sea breezes.

TORREON DEFEAT FEARED BY VILLA

Rebel Leader Starts South to Lead Army.

STORY OF BENTON MURDER

Attacked With Knives In Villa's Office, Official Report Shows—His Body Mutilated by Mexicans—Bryan Still Awaiting Report From Carranza.

El Paso, Tex., March 18.—That the skirmishing in the vicinity of Torreon has proved to the advantage of the Huerta federals is declared in El Paso by the Huerta consul general, Miguel Diebold, and color was lent to the story by the hurried departure of Pancho Villa, general in chief of the rebels, from Chihuahua City for the south.

Villa left Chihuahua at daylight, according to an announcement made by his officials in Juarez, and as his intention had been to depart today his hurrying away is believed to indicate that things were not going exactly as he wished.

Washington, March 18.—The facts of the killing of William Benton, the British rancher, as they will be set forth in an official report, became known here.

Benton went to Juarez to get Villa's permission to bring some of his cattle out of Chihuahua for sale in Texas. What had not been known heretofore, however, is the fact that Benton sought to make it worth while for the rebel chieftain to let him get his cattle out, offering in return for this permission to see that Villa got a certain amount of arms and ammunition.

This proposal, it is now reported, was favorably received by Villa. Discussion of the precise terms of the arrangement, however, led to a quarrel between the two men. This quarrel ended in Benton being killed, not by a revolver as previously reported, but by stabbing. The Britisher was attacked with knives by those in Villa's office during the discussion and not a shot was fired. The Britisher was stabbed in many places, and after he was dead his body was mutilated in the unspeakable manner of such frequent occurrence in Mexico. Whether Villa personally aided in the stabbing of Benton is not definitely known.

The body of Benton was buried in Juarez and is still there, according to this official information.

The investigations of the last few weeks have not only established these facts, but have also resulted in the precise place of burial being made known. No steps have yet been taken to recover the body, however, because it is felt that the long period which has elapsed since its interment would make its exhumation a ghastly task, which would contribute no information regarding the state of the body at the time of burial.

Bryan Is Waiting.

It is understood this information will soon, if it has not been already, be placed at the disposal of the governments of the United States and Great Britain. For the British it marks the end of the investigations into the Benton case so far as they are concerned. The British consul, Charles A. S. Perceval, who has been at work in El Paso and vicinity for the last three weeks, has completed his task and will soon return to his regular post at Galveston, Tex.

For the state department, however, the situation is slightly different, as Secretary Bryan is waiting for the report on the Benton case, which has been promised by General Carranza. Carranza appointed a commission to investigate the Benton case, and this commission has been at Juarez for about two weeks. Little has been heard of it in the last few days, and there is yet no indication of when it will present its report. Until such a report is received from Carranza it is not believed that Secretary Bryan will feel disposed to reaching officially any conclusion about the Benton case, though it has been long believed that his personal views must be closely in accord with those of other officials in Washington and of the British embassy.

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

GET IN THE GAME.

Take one home. Teach your wife and avoid some foolish and embarrassing questions at the Polo Grounds next summer.

MAKE A HIT

DEMOCRATS DISCUSS THE SUBJECT OF SOCIALISM

Discussion on socialism was enjoyed last night by the members of the Plainfield Democratic Club at their headquarters, at North and Park avenues, in regular monthly session. Howard G. Lapsley, president of the club, declared himself opposed to socialism in all of its various forms and vigorously arraigned it as did also Daniel J. Couraine. For the sake of argument Henry Rosenbaum defended socialism. Fred Endress and Charles P. Senger gave specific illustrations of places in Europe where socialistic policies were being worked out, today and with some degree of success.

About a score of members were present and listened with interest to the oratory of their fellow members.

NEEDLEWORK

MARGARET LAWRENCE

FOR EMBROIDERING THE BABIES' FIRST CLOTHES

If you are planning an outfit for the little newcomer, purchase the finest, softest of materials and make the little garments by hand, cutting them by the simplest of patterns, for babies' clothes must depend on their freshness and dainty simplicity rather than on elaborate trimmings for their attractiveness. Transfer pattern 14562 includes two dainty yoke designs to be embroidered in French dots and outline or feather-stitching on these little first dresses, also two designs, which include cutting patterns for bibs. These are also to be worked in French dots and outline or feather-stitching and they may be used on yokes of dresses if one prefers. The bibs may be of lawn or handkerchief linen and a pad of quilted cotton should be made to be worn with each one. This pad should be the same shape as the front of the bib, but need not extend around the neck. The two bibs have yoke sections fastening at the back, and if they are tied down at the waist with belts or ribbon, they will stay in place better than the old-fashioned round bibs.

Hot-iron transfer pattern 14562, which includes four designs, can be supplied to readers or receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

PLUM DESSERTS.

WHEN selecting plums be sure that you use only ripe ones. They require plenty of sugar, and when damsons or greengages are cooked the skins should be pricked with a needle to prevent their bursting.

Fruit Cup Custards.

Plum Trifle.—Rub stewed plums through a sieve. Add to each cupful of pulp the whites of three eggs beaten stiff and sweetened. Fill the cups two-thirds full of soft custard and heap the fruit of meringue on top.

Plum Compote.—Take two pounds of sugar to each three pounds of plums. Wash the plums and drain them. Put the sugar on a slow fire in an enameled vessel with as much water as will dissolve it. Let it simmer slowly. Prick each plum with a needle and place the fruit in another cooking vessel. Pour the sirup over it, and cook until the skins break and the plums are thoroughly heated.

Served Ice Cold.

Scalloped Plums.—Take the large red sweet plums. Peel them, remove the stones and cut the pulp in large pieces. Take a fancy dish, place a layer of the prepared plums, then a layer of broken walnut meats, then a layer of sweetened whipped cream and so on until dish is full. Each layer of plums should be well sprinkled with sugar. Cover the top with the cream and set the dish on ice to chill.

With Whipped Cream.

Plum Tart.—Make a crust with half a pound of sifted flour, one-quarter pound of butter, a tablespoonful of sugar, the beaten yolk of an egg, a pinch of salt and just enough milk to mix smooth. Line the edge of a deep pie dish with a strip of this paste, fill it with ripe stoned plums, add a small cupful of granulated sugar and cover the pie with the crust. Ornament the edges and bake in the oven until lightly browned. Sprinkle the top with powdered sugar and serve with whipped cream or a thin boiled custard.

A Substantial Pudding.

Baked Plum Pudding.—Make a batter with two beaten eggs, five tablespoonfuls of flour, a pint of milk and a pinch of salt. Remove the stones from a quart of large ripe plums, crack them and put the kernels inside of the plums again. Mix the fruit with two heaping tablespoonfuls of moist sugar and stir it lightly into the batter. Turn it into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a hot oven till done. Sprinkle powdered sugar over the top and serve hot with half a cupful of butter, a cupful of sugar and a well beaten egg stirred to a cream and flavored.

The Arbutus Was In Bloom.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The First Little Trailing Arbutus Of the Season.

"THE little trailing arbutus was, oh, so very sleepy, but still he must get up," began daddy as Jack and Evelyn settled down for a story. "Really he had slept long enough, and he must wake up his family, for hadn't they the reputation of being the very first arbutus of the season? It had been their pride to have the little children come to them first with their baskets and never to be disappointed.

"Now, the little arbutus knew that this had been the reputation of his family, and he most certainly must keep it up. So he yawned a little. He had had a good sleep. But he must get up. He really, really must. And so he stretched a little bit just a wee scrap, but enough to see out into the world. There were all his little sisters and brothers fast asleep around him, and then he saw a lot of other arbutus buds. But none of them were at all thinking of getting up.

"The woods looked very pretty, he thought, the trees were so dark and big. They almost frightened him at first when he looked up, for he was so very near the ground and they were so very near the sky. But then he looked at the sky, and he saw the big bright sun, such a good, generous sun to cast his warm rays down on the little arbutus so he couldn't get chilled, and the little arbutus decided that moment that the sun was the best thing in the world because he did so much good in helping the little flowers to come out and to keep them warm.

"The little arbutus thought the world looked most attractive. He was glad that at last he had awakened and now it was his duty to awaken his family. So he waited for the big trees to help him. He seemed to know that the big trees would help him. The big trees at last moved. The little arbutus didn't know that it was the wind that made the big trees move. Anyway, they made him tremble enough to nudge his little brothers and sisters.

"He whispered to them softly:

"'Wake up, wake up; the winter's over; the spring is coming. We must take the lead.'

"And the other little flowers, nestling so warmly and comfortably under the green leaves, stretched and burst forth into the most wonderful pink flowers. Yes; the arbutus had every right to be proud of his family.

"And not an hour had passed before two little girls carrying a basket stopped before the arbutus family, exclaiming, 'Here they are—oh, so pink and sweet!'

"And so for another year was this arbutus family the first to come out."

"TOMORROW"

said the languid man, I guess I'll insure. I know it is the safest plan, with no worry to endure. And when tomorrow came around, alas, it was too late, destruction had come with a sudden bound, and sealed this poor man's fate.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

THE SUFFRAGE OUTLOOK IN NEW JERSEY.

If "straws show which way the wind blows," the "straws" of crowded meetings, of churches publicly espousing the cause, of newspapers declaring that hereafter their editorial policy will be on the side of the woman movement, and a keener interest on the part of people hitherto hard to rouse, show clearly that a strong suffrage wind is blowing from the west, which in this part of the world is an indication of clear skies and fair weather.

The attitude of the members of the Legislature this year was a most significant straw. A large majority of its members assured the suffragists months beforehand, without any especial persuasion, that they would certainly vote for their resolution, and the vote in both houses was larger than that of last year, being 49 to 4 in the Assembly, as against 45 to 5 in 1913, and 15 to 3 in the Senate, where the previous year the figures had been 14 to 5. Several legislators have sent me letters which they received from anti-suffragists, begging them, for the most part, not to put the added "burden" of voting upon women's shoulders, and their comments upon the letters were anything but flattering to the writers. One Assemblyman wrote, "It does not seem likely that women voters will be dragged to the polls and forced to exercise their right of franchise any more than men voters are, and everybody knows that less than two-thirds of the men entitled to vote at the last Presidential election took the trouble to do so." Another wrote "My anti correspondent insists that only ten per cent. of the women of New Jersey want to vote, but that queerly enough, this ten per cent. will be able to upset the whole State when they do vote. If it seemed worth while I would suggest to this lady, that if her figures are correct, she and the rest of the remaining ninety per cent. can easily save the State by voting contrariwise to you wicked suffragists."

The number of enrolled suffragists is increasing by hundreds every week, the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association alone having ten thousand members as against seven thousand four months ago. From fifteen to twenty-five suffrage meetings weekly are now being held regularly throughout the State, and this number will be doubled or trebled as soon as warmer weather comes, making street meetings practicable.

The meeting held under the auspices of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage, on March 16, at Proctor's Theatre, Elizabeth, was splendidly attended, there being only a few vacant seats, located at the back of the top gallery, in the whole house. The most significant fact was that an audience which had paid anywhere from twenty-five cents to a dollar for its seats, cheerfully put a hundred and thirty-five dollars in the collection baskets.

The church work committee of the State association is conducting a canvass of the clergymen of the State and the ready response its appeals are meeting is one of the most encouraging features of our campaign work. Many clergymen are offering the lecture rooms and parlors, and in some cases the church proper, for suffrage meetings. One of the prominent ministers who has recently come out strongly for suffrage is Dr. McCauley, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Paterson, who recently made a stirring address on the need of the State of the votes of its women citizens, urging the women of his congregation not to be found in the ranks of the women who are either trying to shirk their plain duty toward the State, or else are indifferent to what he termed "the greatest moral issue of the times." Father McGinley, of Jersey City, recently spoke at a suffrage meeting there in very much the same strain. All over the State clergymen are taking this attitude toward the question, and a number of them have promised to preach suffrage sermons on Sunday, May 3, which will be the day immediately following Suffrage Day which is to be celebrated in some public way not only by every suffrage society in New Jersey, but throughout the whole country.

The New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs has decided to hold its spring meeting one week later than usual this year, so as not to interfere in any way with the celebration of May 3 as Suffrage Day.

The Board of Education of the city of Camden has just notified the suffrage league of that city that it may have the use of the school buildings whenever it wishes them, without any charge except a fee of two dollars to the janitor. Camden is not the first city to do this, as this privilege has been extended to the suffragists of Plainfield, Elizabeth, Paterson, Passaic and other places, where they may have schools entirely free of charge or for a nominal sum.

The leagues in the large cities are rapidly adopting the ward organization method, which has been so successful in New York, Camden, Paterson, Montclair, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Trenton and other places have a complete suffrage organization perfected in each ward and Camden, Montclair and Paterson are now holding meetings weekly in each of the wards in rotation. The ward workers will proceed to canvass their entire district, classifying the residents as either suffragists, anti-suffragists or people on the fence. As soon as this clasification is complete the next step will be to set about the conversion of the people who have not yet made up their minds. The successful operation of this plan in many places is encouraging its adoption throughout the State, and by the beginning of summer the whole State will undoubtedly be organized in this way.

On the whole the suffrage outlook is extremely bright.

Practical Fashion Hints

Collars and Cuffs In Futurist Embroidery.

The new design taught us by the Futurist artists is striking and even startling, but it has gained a wonderful popularity. We have Futurist designs for our dress silks, for the children's cotton frocks, for our sofa pillows, cretonne slip-covers, draperies and our embroideries. Perhaps you don't think these designs are pretty. They aren't intended to be pretty, but they are certainly unusual and attractive. Gradually we may come to think them artistic and pretty when we have been educated by the new art.

The collar and cuff set, shown in the illustration, would make a very smart and attractive trimming for a frock of serge, eponge, wool crepe or one of the cotton ratine weaves. The set would also be appropriate for wear with an afternoon frock of dark blue crepe de Chine, taffeta or charmeuse if embroidered on the finest of batiste in mercerized cotton. Cotton ratine, cotton crepe, batiste or linen in white, tan or a color might be used for this collar and cuff set which should be embroidered in several colors. The edge may be finished with buttonhole-stitch in black or in a bright blue, green red or tango yellow contrasting with the color of the material of the frock. The flowers should be worked in several different colors using combinations of purple, orange cerise, peacock blue, emerald and absinth green, vermillion and magenta. This sounds lurid indeed, but it is amazing to find how attractive the finished article embroidered in these vivid colorings will be. If you are conservative in your taste and do not care to wear all the colors of the rainbow and many more at one time, this set would be good looking developed in three shades of green, lavendar, old rose or brown and yellow to harmonize with the color of the frock with which it is to be worn.

MEMORIAL TO BISHOP PLANNED.

Bridgeton, March 18.—The people of St. Andrew's Episcopal church are already planning to place a memorial to Bishop Scarborough in the church in the form of a new communion set. When the Bishop was here on Sunday, February 22, he remarked to the rector, Rev. J. Clarke Robbins, that the set which the church had was too small and that it would be well to procure new ones. With the announcement of his death, the suggestion is being acted upon and a subscription is being taken up to purchase them. It is expected to have them in place for the communion service on Easter Day.

CHAPTER XI.

THEN came Glendon's turn. From him likewise a speech was demanded, though for principals to give speeches was an unprecedented thing in the prize ring. Billy Morgan held up his hand for silence, and in a clear, powerful voice Glendon began.

"Everybody has told you they were proud to be here tonight," he said. "I am not."

The audience was startled, and he paused long enough to let it sink home.

"I am not proud of my company. You wanted a speech. I'll give you a real one. This is my last fight. After tonight I leave the ring for good. Why? I have already told you. I don't like my company. The prize ring is so crooked that no man engaged in it can hide behind a corkscrew. It is rotten to the core, from the little professional clubs right up to this affair tonight."

The low rumble of astonishment that had been rising at this point burst into a roar. There were loud boos and hisses, and many began crying: "Go on with the fight!" "We want the fight!" "Why don't you fight?"

Glendon, waiting, noted that the principal disturbers near the ring were promoters and managers and fighters. In vain did he strive to make himself heard.

The audience was divided, half crying out, "Fight!" and the other half "Speech, speech!"

Ten minutes of hopeless madness prevailed. Stubener, the referee, the owner of the arena, and the promoter of the fight, pleaded with Glendon to go on with the fight.

"Everybody has told you they were proud to be here tonight."

When he refused the referee declared that he would award the fight in forfeit to Cannam if Glendon did not fight.

"You can't do it," the latter retorted. "I'll sue you in all the courts if you try that on, and I'll not promise you that you'll survive this crowd if you cheat it out of the fight. Besides, I'm going to fight. But before I do I'm going to finish my speech."

"But it's against the rules," protested the referee.

"It's nothing of the sort. There's not a word in the rules against ringside speeches. Every big fighter here tonight has made a speech."

"Only a few words," shouted the promoter in Glendon's ear. "But you're giving a lecture."

"There's nothing in the rules against lectures," Glendon answered. "And now you fellows get out of the ring, or I'll throw you out."

The promoter, apoplectic and struggling, was dropped over the ropes by his coat collar.

He was a large man, but so easily had Glendon done it with one hand that the audience went wild with delight.

The cries for a speech increased in volume. Stubener and the owner beat a wise retreat. Glendon held up his hands to be heard, whereupon those that shouted for the fight redoubled their efforts.

Two or three tiers of seats crashed down, and numbers who had thus lost their places added to the turmoil by making a concerted rush to squeeze in on the still intact seats, while those behind, blocked from sight of the ring, yelled and raved for them to sit down.

Glendon walked to the ropes and spoke to the police captain. He was compelled to bend over and shout in his ear.

"If I don't give this speech," he said, "this crowd will wreck the place. If they break loose you can never hold them. You know that. Now, you've got to help. You keep the ring clear and I'll silence the crowd."

He went back to the center of the ring and again held up his hands.

"You want that speech?" he shouted in a tremendous voice.

Hundreds near the ring heard him and cried "Yes!"

"Then let every man who wants to hear shut up the noisemaker next to him!"

The advice was taken, so that when he repeated it his voice penetrated farther. Again and again he shouted it, and slowly, zone by zone, the silence pressed outward from the ring, accompanied by a muffled undertone of smacks and thuds and scuffles as the obstreperous were subdued by their neighbors.

Almost had all confusion been smothered when a tier of seats near the ring went down. This was greeted with fresh roars of laughter, which of itself died away, so that a lone voice far back was heard distinctly as it piped:

"Go on, Glendon! We're with you!"

Glendon had the Celt's intuitive knowledge of the psychology of the crowd. He knew that what had been a vast disorderly mob five minutes before was now tightly in hand, and for added effect he deliberately delayed.

Yet the delay was just long enough and not a second too long. For thirty seconds the silence was complete, and the effect produced was one of awe.

Then just as the faint hints of restlessness came to his ears he began to speak:

"When I finish this speech," he said, "I am going to fight. I promise you it will be a real fight, one of the few real fights you have ever seen. I am going to get my man in the shortest possible time.

"Billy Morgan, in making his final announcement, will tell you that it is to be a forty-five round contest. Let me tell you that it will be nearer forty-five seconds.

"When I was interrupted I was telling you that the ring was rotten. It is—from top to bottom. It is run on business principles, and you all know what business principles are. Enough said.

"You are the suckers, every last one of you that is not making anything out of it. Why are the seats falling down tonight? Graft. Like the fight game, they were built on business principles."

He now held the audience stronger than ever and knew it.

"There are three men squeezed on two seats. I can see that everywhere. What does it mean? Graft. The stewards don't get any wages. They are supposed to graft. Business principles again. You pay. Of course you pay. How are the fight permits obtained? Graft.

"And now let me ask you: If the men who build the seats graft, if the stewards graft, if the authorities graft, why shouldn't those higher up in the fight game graft? They do. And you pay.

"And let me tell you it is not the fault of the fighters. They don't run the game. The promoters and managers run it; they're the business men. The fighters are only fighters. They begin honestly enough, but the managers and promoters make them give in or kick them out. There have been straight fighters. And there are now a few, but they don't earn much as a rule.

"I guess there have been straight managers. Mine is about the best of the boiling. But just ask him how much he's got salted down in real estate and apartment houses."

Here the uproar began to drown his voice.

"Let every man who wants to hear shut up the man alongside of him!" Glendon instructed.

Again, like the murmur of a surf, there was a rustling of smacks and thuds, and scuffles, and the house quieted down.

"Why does every fighter work overtime insisting that he's always fought square? Why are they called Honest Johns and Honest Bills and Honest Blacksmiths and all the rest? Doesn't it ever strike you that they seem to be afraid of something?

"When a man comes to you shouting he is honest you get suspicious. But when a prizefighter passes the same dope out to you you swallow it down.

"May the best man win! How often have you heard Billy Morgan say that? Let me tell you that the best man doesn't win so often, and when he does it's usually arranged for him. Most of the grudge fights you've heard or seen were arranged too.

"It's a program. The whole thing is programmed. Do you thinks the promoters and managers are in it for their health? They're not. They're business men.

"Tom, Dick and Harry are three fighters. Dick is the best man. In two fights he could prove it. But what happens? Tom licks Harry. Dick licks Tom. Harry licks Dick. Nothing proved. Then come the return matches. Harry licks Tom. Tom licks Dick. Dick licks Harry. Nothing proved. Then they try again.

Dick is kicking. Says he wants to get along in the game. So Dick licks Tom and Dick licks Harry. Eight fights to prove Dick the best man, when two could have done it. All arranged. A regular program, and you pay for it, and when your seats don't break down you get robbed of them by the stewards.

"It's a good game, too, if it were only square. The fighters would be square if they had a chance, but the graft is too big. When a handful of men can divide up three-quarters of a million dollars on three fights"—

A wild outburst compelled him to stop. Out of the medley of cries from all over the house he could distinguish such as—

"What million dollars?"

"What three fights?"

"Tell us!"

"Go on!"

Likewise there were boos and hisses and cries of "Muckraker, muckraker!"

"Do you want to hear?" Glendon shouted. "Then keep order!"

Once more he compelled the impressive half minute of silence.

"What is Jim Hanford planning? What is the program his crowd and mine are framing up? They know I've got him. He knows I've got him. I can whip him in one fight. But he's the champion of the world. If I don't give in to the program they'll never give me a chance to fight him.

"The program calls for three fights. I am to win the first fight. It will be pulled off in Nevada if San Francisco won't stand for it. We are to make it a good fight. To make it good each of us will put up a side bet of

All His Strength Went Into That One Smashing Explosion.

$20,000. It will be real money, but it won't be a real bet. Each gets his own slipped back to him.

"The same way with the purse. We'll divide it evenly, though the public division will be thirty-five and sixty-five. The purse, the moving picture royalties, the advertisements, and all the rest of the drags won't be a cent less than $250,000. We'll divide it and go to work on the return match. Hanford will win that, and we divide again.

"Then comes the third fight. I win as I have every right to, and we have taken three-quarters of a million out of the pockets of the fighting public. That's the program, but the money is dirty. And that's why I am quitting the ring tonight"—

It was at this moment that Jim Hanford, kicking a clinging policeman back among the seat holders, heaved his huge frame through the ropes, bellowing:

"It's a lie!"

He rushed like an infuriated bull at Glendon, who sprang back and then, instead of meeting the rush, ducked cleanly away.

Unable to check himself, the big man fetched up against the ropes, flung back by the spring of them, he was turning to make another rush, when Glendon landed him.

Glendon, cool, clear seeing, distanced his man perfectly to the jaw and struck the first full strength blow of his career. All his strength and his reserve of strength went into that one smashing muscular explosion.

Hanford was dead in the air—in so far as unconsciousness may resemble death. So far as he was concerned, he ceased at the moment of contact with Glendon's fist.

His feet left the floor, and he was in the air until he struck the topmost rope. His inert body sprawled across it, sagged at the middle and fell through the ropes and down out of the ring upon the heads of the men in the press seats.

PLAN TUNNELS FOR AUTO TRAFFIC

Interstate Commission and Engineers to Hold Conference Tonight.

INTERESTS FEDERATION

Ways and Means For the Undertaking Will Be Discussed By Experts Who Have Studied the Project at Length.

Discussion as to the present status of the project to connect New Jersey with New York by means of vehicular tunnels, a bridge spanning the Hudson, or both, will be had tonight in New York. Members of the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission, with their counsel and expert engineers, will meet with the members of the New York State Bridge and Tunnel Commission at the clubhouse of the Automobile Club of America. Full statement is to be made, it is said, regarding plans and scope and ways and means for the undertaking in which both State organizations are vitally interested. The hosts of the commissions will be the Motor Truck Club of America and the Electric Vehicle Association. The Federation of Civic Associations will also be guests. Numerous Plainfield people are expected to attend the meeting.

Few persons who are familiar with the needs of New Jersey as regards transportation facilities, but realize the great and imperative need of improving traffic conditions across the North river, and believe that such an improvement should be made and at the earliest possible moment. Thousands of businesses and tens of thousands of people are daily put to heavy loss and serious inconvenience by reason of the antiquated system of transportation to and from the New York shore, the present facilities being wholly inadequate.

Practically the whole business life of the five northeastern counties of New Jersey is touched by the present limitations and the costly movement of goods and persons across the Hudson. Real estate, building, lighterage, warehousing, freight handling and a host of other activities are hampered and taxed to an extent that seems almost incredible in these days of high efficiency in most things, and larger economies.

In the opinion of the commissions—opinions which they are prepared to back in their reports to the New Jersey and New York Legislatures—the problem should be solved by the construction of both twin tunnels and a bridge. The tentative location of tunnels is from Thirteenth street, in Jersey City, to Canal street and Seventh avenue, in New York; that of the bridge at Fifty-seventh and Fifty-ninth streets, in New York. The estimated cost of the tunnels is $11,000,000; estimated cost of the bridge $42,000,000. No insuperable engineering difficulties are said to lie in the path of either project. The return upon the expenditures for both public improvements would, in the opinion of the members of the two State commissions, both directly and indirectly, be so large as to make the investment one of the wisest that could be undertaken.

Without going into the questions of the bridge and tunnel types under consideration, the method of financing such projects, or even the arguments in favor of the undertaking in whole or in part, an examination into present day conditions of cross-Hudson transportation will prove of decided interest to Plainfield people. The statistics are astounding.

In a single year 6,130,945 vehicles crossed the Hudson, using the only available means of transport, the ferries. They paid in fares $1,700,658. This huge traffic was divided among fourteen ferry lines. It took 919,800 boat trips to transport this great host with its millions of tons of merchandise and commodities. For a continuous period of 48 hours during one week 38,289 vehicles crossed the river, by these same ferries. The maximum number of vehicles an hour was 797; the average fare paid per vehicles, 27.74 cents. Removal of the direct charge of nearly a million and three quarters of dollars by the substitution of tunnels or a bridge, or both, the free use of which is favored by a majority of the members of the New Jersey Commission, for the ferries, is held to be but a drop in the bucket, so to speak. Delays, incident to the present ferry service, are immeasurably more costly than is the service itself, which, generally speaking, is satisfactory neither to the ferry companies nor the public. Most of the railroads operating ferries would be very glad to stop it altogether, except in so far as it protected its franchise rights. For this reason tubes and a bridge, or both, would receive the support of the railroads.

So apparent is the need of highway tubes from Jersey that a private company, the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, has seriously considered the matter of building tubes with its own capital. To that end it has made detailed analysis of the vehicular traffic across the river, some of which has been here quoted.

When considering this project the company planned to charge fares based upon the ferry charges, for the use of the proposed tubes. It calculated the amount of traffic and the amount of revenue which would be diverted from the ferries by the tubes in the Canal street area of New York. Its estimate, the commissions who have considered it believe conservative, concluding on a percentage basis that 2,219,635 vehicles out of a total of 6,130,945 might be expected to use the tubes. This would bring a yearly revenue of $609,239. This amount represents the annual income on a total investment of $11,000,000.

HOPE CHAPEL MEN'S CLUB ELECT OFFICERS

The Men's Club of Hope chapel held their annual meeting, last night, at which many interesting reports were read and the institutional work of the organization discussed at length. The following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year: President, Robert Bailie; first vice-president, J. Fred Wharton; second vice-president, John B Slorah; third vice-president, Alexander Doig; secretary, Frank Rimmer treasurer, Walter I. Firstbrook. The executive committee will meet next Wednesday evening to appoint the standing committees and plan the work of the coming year.

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

My Cleansing, Healing Balm Instantly Clears Nose, Head and Throat—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges—Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Adv.

LOCAL CHURCHES ARE PROSPEROUS

According to Report of Rev. Dr. Randolph, District Superintendent.

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED

Large Increase in Membership and Benevolences — Rev. Willis S. MacRorie May Be Tried at Today's Session.

Newark, March 19.—The presentation of the annual reports of the district superintendents was the first matter of business taken up when the session of the Newark Conference was resumed in the Halsey Street church, this morning. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of Plainfield, whose term expires this year, gave an interesting resume of the work of the churches in his district during the year.

Referring to the Plainfield churches, he reported that Grace church had an unusually large Sunday-school and all departments were in good condition. At the Monroe Avenue church, Dr. Randolph stated that the members had increased the salary of the pastor, paid $1,000 on improvements, there had been thirty-four conversions and the membership during the year had been increased by forty-three.

The work of the First M. E. church was reported to be in a flourishing condition, in fact the church in all respects was never so large. During the year $250 was added to the contingency fund, and both pastor and people are working in perfect harmony.

The Dunellen church during the year installed a new pipe organ and with other expenses, raised $1,800 for these purposes. The Bound Brook church was reported to be the "star charge" in benevolences, and the membership was increased by twenty-five who professed conversion.

The Somerville church was reported to have made many improvements, including the installation of lights. There was raised during the year for improvements $3,600 and a new roof was put on the edifice at a cost of $700, half of which was paid by J. B. Duke, who Dr. Randolph stated, has been inclined to help both the Somerville and Raritan churches through hereditary instinct. Mr. Duke contributes $200 toward the salary of the pastor of the Somerville church and a like amount for the Raritan church, beside giving $1,000 toward the parsonage of the Neshanic church.

The church at Neshanic was reported to have built a new church and parsonage during the year. As for the two churches at Cranford, it was stated that while in the opinion of many there should only be one, both reported increase in membership. New parsonages have been built and are free of debt.

Dr. Randolph commented on the fact that one of the finest edifices in the conference had been completed at Westfield, and $8,000 had been paid toward the debt. The benevolences were being maintained.

It is expected that the trial of Willis S. MacRorie, the deposed pastor of the Martinsville, Mt. Horeb and Springdale churches, will be held during the day. That was the report heard during the early part of the day.

PROGRESSIVE DINNER TO BE MADE COUNTY AFFAIR

The annual dinner of the Progressive Club, of Bound Brook, to be held Wednesday night, March 25, will be made a county affair this year and Progressives from all parts of Somerset county are expected to attend. The principal speakers will be Robert H. Elder, of Brooklyn, and A. Crozier Reeves, of Trenton. Mr. Elder has served as assistant district attorney of Kings county and is a public speaker of wide reputation.

Mr. Reeves is the publisher of the Trenton Times and is very actively connected with the Progressive movement. Irving S. Whiting, of Bound Brook, will preside and among the other speakers are expected to be G. C. Kenyon, of Somerville, and George T. Hughes, of Watchung.

Miss Ruth Dellehunt was given a surprise party last evening when twenty-two of her young friends unexpectedly called upon her. Games and instrumental music furnished the evening's program. Refreshments were served.

METROPOLITAN GETS "THE CONQUERORS"

Impressive Panama Painting to Hang in Museum of Art.

Many Plainfielders who were fortunate enough to see the collection of Panama canvases by Jonas Lie, while they were on exhibition at Knoedler's last January, will recall "The Conquerors," as a wonderful impression of the panorama of the Culebra Cut. This painting was bought and has just been hung by the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Lie's collection of Panama pictures is now on view at The Pennsylvania Academy of Fair Arts, where a special room was reserved for them. From there they go to Washington, D. C., where they will hang in the wonderful hall of The Americas at the Pan-American Union, during the month of April.

This recent honor to Mr. Lie is one of many this season. He has just been awarded the First Hallgarten Prize by the National Academy of Design for his painting "After Glow" of the New York water front. Plainfield, which was for many years his home, has figured more or less in Mr. Lie's art ever since he won a silver medal at the St. Louis World's Fair with his "Mill Race," which was painted here from local studies.

ENTERTAINS COMPANY OF FRIENDS ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Patrick Melvin, of East Second street, celebrated the thirty-eighth anniversary of his birthday, yesterday, and last night he entertained a number of friends at his home, the affair being an informal one. A feature was an elaborate collation served to the guests by Mrs. Melvin. Mr. Melvin has been a resident of Plainfield practically all his life and for a number of years has conducted a restaurant on North avenue.

MRS. HENRY C. MEYER DIES AT SCOTCH PLAINS

Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Scotch Plains, died at her home last night, following a long illness from a complication of diseases. She was recently a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, but failed to get the relief hoped for and upon returning home she failed gradually. Mrs. Meyer was born in New York and had lived at Scotch Plains for thirty years, where she was highly esteemed by everyone who knew her.

Mrs. Meyer was an active member of the Methodist church at Scotch Plains, attending the services regularly until ill-health prevented. There survives beside a husband, two daughters, Mrs. Alexander Muir, of Harrison, and Miss Louise Meyer, of Scotch Plains, and six sons, Charles, Henry C. Jr., William, Albert and Egbert, of Scotch Plains, and Ferdinand Meyer, of New York city. The funeral will be held at the late home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the burial will be in the cemetery at Scotch Plains.

BILLIE BURKE TO APPEAR HERE IN NEW COMEDY

Miss Billie Burke, perhaps, one of the most popular actresses on the American stage, today, will appear at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday night, March 26, in "Jerry," a brand new American comedy by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, one of the most successful comedy writers of the day. "Jerry" is an American play. Its scenes are laid in a Philadelphia suburb and its heroine is a Chicago girl.

There is a combination that promises joy and gladness from the start. Especially with Billie Burke impersonating the Chicago heroine. The plot has to do with the way Jeffery wins a husband. Not an old husband, but the man she wants for a husband. Of course, everyone knows that Miss Burke knows how to dress better than almost any other actress on the American stage and in this play she has exceptional opportunities.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Plainfield High School will meet at the High School, this evening, when Prof. A. B. Meredith will speak on a practical subject. A conference will follow, when parents will have an opportunity to consult with the teachers regarding the work of their children. All parents and the public in general are invited.

ELKS BOWLING LEAGUE.

The Waldorf and Blatz bowling teams of the Elks' tournament are scheduled to meet in a series on the club alleys tonight.

FLOWER MISSION TO BE ORGANIZED HERE

Miss Cornelia K. Hood to Address Preliminary Meeting March 27.

Arrangements have been made to hold a preliminary meeting at the Friends meeting-house on Watchung avenue, Friday night, March 27, when steps will be taken to organize a flower mission, similar to those in New York. At that time Miss Cornelia K. Hood, of New York, who is general secretary of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, will give an illustrated lecture showing the scope of this work in New York.

Heretofore, it has been the custom of a number of Plainfielders, as well as societies, to send flowers to New York to be distributed among the hospitals and charitable institutions. The idea of carrying out a similar plan here was recently conceived by some of the local leaders in the movement. The mission to be formed here will be non-sectarian and it will be the purpose to send flowers to the hospital and in fact wherever they will be appreciated. If there is any surplus flowers will be sent to New York, as usual.

CHARLES R. BOSTWICK ELECTED PRESIDENT

Local Manual Training Instructor Will Head Union County Organization.

Charles R. Bostwick, manual training teacher in the local public schools, was elected president of the Union County Domestic Science Teachers' Association at a meeting held in Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bostwick has been connected with the local schools for seven years, heading the manual training work. He is a graduate of Yale College and has been actively interested in the county organization since its formation.

Yesterday's meeting was called by County Superintendent A. L. Johnson and was largely attended by domestic science instructors. Commissioner Carrie addressed the meeting and the organization which Mr. Bostwick heads was formed at that time to take charge of the interests of the work in this country.

SMALL FIRE IN BUILDING CONDEMNED BY INSPECTOR

A small fire in the dilapidated building owned by Louis Fay on Liberty street, near Third street, was discovered late yesterday afternoon and in response to a telephone message apparatus from headquarters was summoned to the scene, extinguishing the blaze with little damage resulting. The building is the one recently order braced by Building Inspector Doane when the latter ordered Mobus Brothers to proceed with the work necessary to keep the house from being a menace to the neighborhood.

The house has been abandoned for some time and is being used as a "hang out" for hobos who gather there to drink and sleep. It is thought that the fire was started from sparks that remained in a can which the frequenters of the place used as a stove. The flames and smoke were discovered before they made much headway, however, and were extinguished with chemicals.

FUNERAL OF HERMIT IS HELD IN THIS CITY

The funeral services of William Reick, of Ballston Spa, N. Y., was held this afternoon at 200 West Second street, being conducted by Rev. Charles W. F. Attlee. Mr. Reick, who lived for many years as a hermit, died last week at Ballston Spa, and was not discovered until Sunday morning, when he was found by George Lawyer, a neighbor, who notified the authorities. Coroner R. B. Castree expressed the opinion that Reick died of natural causes. A pocketbook found on the body contained but seven dollars. One of the cows belonging to Reick was found starving to death, tied to a tree. Two nieces, who reside in this city, and one brother, John Reick, of Bound Brook, survive.

TO GIVE AN "AT HOME."

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey will give another one of their series of "at homes" at Warren chapel, this evening. An attractive informal program has been prepared and all members and friends of the chapel are invited.

AWAIT ADOPTION ANNUAL BUDGET

Number of New Policemen to Be Named Dependent on Appropriation.

EQUIPMENT IS NEEDED

Every City Department Will Require Increased Amounts—Efforts Being Made to Keep Tax Rate Down.

The question of increasing the number of men in the local police department and providing that department with equipment needed for efficient service, is giving the police board much concern just now. Following several examinations the board has been able to pick possibly six or seven men who, it is believed, would fill the requirements, but it is expected that no appointments will be made until the annual budget is passed upon, or at least the one for the police department, so that the board will know how much money will be available for extra men.

The board feels as though some money must be spent for equipment such as new bicycles and possibly motorcycles, and this will require a considerable sum in addition to the regular appropriation, and besides the patrolmen have already petitioned for an increase in salaries and the board feel disposed to do what they can for the men in this respect, although it may not be possible to make the increase this year.

While the board is of the opinion that a force double the size of the present one would not lessen crime or prevent robberies, it feels as though there should be a natural increase from year to year to keep pace with the growth of the town. The board is striving for greater efficiency all the time, believing that better results can be obtained in that way.

A member of the Council in speaking of the men who make up the police department, remarked that he did not think it was possible to make a good policeman by giving a man a club and revolver and turning him loose on the streets. He expressed the opinion that the policeman must be given intelligent instruction as to what he should do under certain and all conditions and in this way make an efficient and valuable officer of the law.

At the same time that the police board is seeking a larger appropriation, it is realized that large additional sums must be expended on the streets of the city, as well as in the fire department. In the latter department a new automobile fire engine has just been purchased at an expenditure of about $8,000, and it is the intention of the fire committee to secure another motor apparatus, believing that by thus doing away with horse-drawn apparatus, a considerable sum can be saved for there will be no horses to feed and provide shoes for, which is quite an item of expense this year.

There are countless other expenses to be met and the Council is doing its best to keep all appropriations within a reasonable figure and not permit the tax rate to go any higher than is absolutely necessary. Of course, it has no control over the county and State school tax, nor the tax for the Plainfield Public Library, and these things are largely responsible for the big increase each year.

GREEK LETTER FRATERNITY HOLDS SEMI-ANNUAL ELECTION

Duclos VanMater, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. VanMater, of Myrtle avenue, entertained the Phi Pi Psi, a borough Greek letter fraternity at his home last evening. It was the regular monthly meeting and in the absence of President Ashley Burner, Duclos VanMater, vice president, took charge of the meeting. The election of officers for the last half of the year was disposed of as follows: President, Charles Beckman; vice president, Ralph Smalley; secretary, Franklin Lowe; treasurer, Duclos VanMater.

After a few other matters had been dismissed the guests were entertained with victrola and piano selections by Charles Beckman. Supper was served by the host's mother. Those who were presents were Newton Spencer, Franklin Lowe, Roy Love, Ralph Smalley, Charles Beckman, Duclos VanMater and Frank Downing.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Clarence Fortenough, of Watchung avenue, was arraigned this morning in the borough court before Recorder Hand on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. This being the first offense of Fortenough sentence was suspended.

CHARLES W. KRAUSSE GETS A LOVING CUP

President of Master Plumbers' Association Pleasantly Remembered.

The Plainfield Master Plumbers' Association held its annual banquet in its rooms in the Babcock building, last night, covers being laid for about twenty-five members and friends. A feature of the affair was the presentation of a handsome loving cup to Charles W. Krausse, the president, who has served the association in that capacity for some time. The cup was presented to Mr. Krausse by Charles M. Raybert, on behalf of the association, and the former made an appropriate response, thanking the members for the gift.

Den. J. Galbraith was the toast master of the evening, introducing the several speakers, which included William Addis, health inspector of the Board of Health, a former master plumber and honorary member of the association and veteran of the Civil War, who related some interesting anecdotes of the war. Brief remarks were also made by other members of the association, who took occasion to review general trade conditions.

FLYNN AND HIGGINS RAID GAMBLERS' DEN

Peter Riseteo, the Proprietor, Gets Heavy Fine and a Jail Sentence.

Some good sleuthing on the part of Detective-Sergeant Flynn ad Sergeant Higgins, yesterday afternoon, resulted in the "pulling" of a gambling joint that has been run successfully for many months by Peter Riseto, at 166 East Front street. Riseto and a trio of gamblers were placed under arrest and when arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza, in the city court, this morning, the proprietor was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and serve thirty days in the County jail and the other three were allowed to go on a suspended sentence.

The Front street house has been under police surveilance for some time past and the climax was reached yesterday afternoon when Flynn and Higgins laid in wait for the game to start and caught the quartet throwing the dice. The store is conducted by Riseto for the sale of fruit and vegetables and was raided on a previous occasion by the local police when the proprietor was fined $100. Riseto has since been arraigned before the court on serious charges on five different occasions since he came here rom Orange, having been banished from that town for gambling, and each time he has been let off with a fine.

The defendant's place on East Front street was frequented by many patrons and the three apprehended may be able to furnish material evidence for the breaking up of a gang of gamblers who have been reaping a harvest here for some time past. When arraigned in court this morning, Riseto admitted running a place that violated the law. The case was prosecuted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

DISCUSS PLANS TO MERGE HEBREW CHARITIES

The question of organizing a local Hebrew Charity Society was discussed at a business session of Temple Sholem, last night. The proposition was the outgrowth of a report presented by the charity committee of the organization made through Herman Schwed. The report contained a tribute to the work of Miss Mabel Phillips of the local charity organization, and should the proposed society become a realty, it will seek the co-operation of the present charitable institutions. The matter was finally referred to a committee composed of William Newcorn and Leon Livingston and Samuel Hochberger. From present plans, the new organization would take over all local Hebrew charity work.

Reports made by the committee indicate that plans are complete for the concert and ball to be given March 31.

ARRANGE FOR BETTER LIGHTING CONDITIONS

Improvements Being Made at County Jail by Board of Freeholders.

Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, of this city, a member of the county jail committee, together with other members of the committee visited the jail yesterday and arranged for better lighting conditions in response to a request from the State Board of Charities and Corrections. The lights have been so arranged that each cell will have sufficient illumination. There is another matter concerning the sanitation of the jail which will be taken up soon.

The freeholders have been quite anxious to put the county prisoners to work, in accordance with a previous action, but the matter has been held by the Board of Governors of Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, it being the opinion of the governors that that would not be the best place to have the prisoners work, believing that they might frighten the patients at the sanitorium. However, the freeholders feel sure that this can be overcome and they hope to be able to put the prisoners to work within a short time. There was an impression that the money to be paid prisoners would come out of the funds maintained for the maintenance of the sanitorium, but instead it will come out of the county funds.

MACRORIE BEFORE M. E. CONFERENCE

Deposed Warrenville Pastor Alleged to Have Been Untruthful.

ECHO OF COURT TRIAL

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson on Committee to Try Accused Washington Minister—Want More Endowment For Drew Seminary.

Newark, March 19.—Rev. Willis S. MacRorie, formerly pastor of the Mt. Horeb and Warren churches, is again facing a committee in the Methodist Conference in progress here, the charge being said to be one of alleged untruthfulness before the last conference. A year ago MacRorie was acquitted of a charge of improper relations with Miss Edith Nelson, who was a choir singer in his church, and after his acquittal he was tried in the Union County Common Pleas Court and convicted of the charge before that tribunal. As a result of this conviction new charges have been made against MacRorie, who has been suspended in the meantime and these are being considered by the present gathering. The chairman of the committee in charge of the trial is Rev. Dr. Albert B. Richardson, of Paterson, and the sessions are being held in executive session, as was the case at the original trial of MacRorie. It was not known whether or not he would appear before the committee. MacRorie is still living at Warrenville.

Another charge that is being tried in executive session is that against Rev. Jere B. Rhodes, of Washington, N. J., the case being based on alleged ministerial misconduct. The committee on conference relations is trying the case, under the chairmanship of Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, of Morristown, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of Plainfield, is a member of the committee. None of the committee will state just what the charge is based on and Mr. Rhodes refuses to discuss the matter.

Rev. Dr. Ezra S. Tipple, head of the Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, appeared before the conference and pleaded for a larger endowment fund. The amount is now $800,000 and $1,000,000 is needed. He said that the seminary is prosperous but hampered by lack of funds. Rev. Thomas S. Landon, retired, but formerly head of the Bordentown Military Institute, created a laugh when he suggested that in view of the fact that the Catholic Church had been recognized by President Wilson by his attending an early mass on Easter last year, that some steps be taken to have him recognize the Methodist Church this year. Rev. James K. Shields, of the Anti-Saloon League, also addressed the conference.

EXPRESS COMPANY DRIVERS GIVEN TIMELY WARNING

Manager E. V. Clark, of the local branch of the United States Express Company, has informed Mrs. S. H. VanHoesen, special agent for the S. P. C. A., that strict orders have been issued to all drivers about the proper care of the company's horses, being warned to see that the animals are properly blanketed in cold weather.

The drivers have furthermore been warned not to race their horses, nor take one out of the stable if the animal is suffering from a sore or any other ailment. They have also been instructed not to allow ropes to trail from wagons, which on several occasions has resulted in accidents. For disobedience of these orders drivers are liable to long suspension and may possibly lose their positions. The orders assert that no excuse will be accepted for violations.

NASSAU FRESHMEN TO RAISE FUNDS FOR A DINING HALL

Princeton, March 19—President John Grier Hibben has outlined in an address before the freshman class the need of new dining halls at Princeton for the freshmen and sophomores, and in answer to his suggestion that the freshman class provide the money for one of the four halls proposed to be built, a committee was appointed to see the members of the class individually. The prospects of raising money among the class, by contributions from the parents of the students, are said to be bright.

The hall for which the freshmen are to provide the money will be known as 1917 Commons," and the share of money to be raised by the class will be about $100,000. President Hibben stated that if the money was raised within a short time the buildings could be ready for use next year.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

When the average American reads that the Panama Canal is completed and is now about ready for the formal opening to the world's commerce, he still wonders at the enormity of the task of building it. No printed description can tell the full story of the great construction. However, Lyman H. Howe will present at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow and Saturday, an animated record of Uncle Sam's great achievement which will fully enlighten every curious citizen. The film produces every interesting phase of the Canal Zone activity. Under the masterful editing of the Howe organization, the principal incidents of nearly ten years of photographic vigil at the Panama Canal have been put into their natural sequence and will be presented with a degree of realism and perfection that is amazing. It required several hundred kinds of apparatus to create the mechanical "effects" which enliven the reproduction. Mr. Howe has many other attractive features in his new program. There is a striking contrast of the scenic grandeur of the Montana Canyon of the United States with the St. Gothard Mountain, which is between Italy and Switzerland. The traveler has reproduced two masterpieces of natural beauty from opposite sides of the world. The spectator in a comfortable theatre seat may now compare these two world-known picturesque points. The American views were made from a "flat" car attached to the end of the famous cross-the-continent "Olympian" train.

An Inpouring of Women's Suits

Bamberger's—clothiers of the highest type to women. Ours is the broadest line of women's smart spring suits, peerless at their prices. A hundred suits a day are coming in—suits of such elegance and style, we are not timid in claiming for them the peerage that is rightly theirs.

REALLY STUNNING MODELS IN $17.98 SUITS.

Women pause and wonder. Never have they beheld such garments priced at $17.98 as these. Perfectly tailored garments of premier, pebble and walrus crepe, many of them lined with elegant Dresden satin, uncommon in trimming, distinctive in finish; there is no need of further wording. No, their equal at $17.98 is unknown in Newark.

THE $25.00 LINE IS PERFECTION ITSELF.

Suits of mannish serge, broken-check, in black and white; made with a dash and a swing, that is characteristically "snitish," they lead the noble line that sells for $25.00. Poplins, plain and novel weave, mannish serges, and gabardine, many of them lined with a peau de cygne of flamingo hue for contrast, show rakish collars of sombre black, hid under lingeries of most amazing beauty. Sashes, vague or full-defined, tassels, cords and silken loops, used with a freedom that makes this season's styles entrancing, mark many of the suits that women think impossible to buy for $25.00.

Colors, styles and cloth. They have passed the soundest censorship. We know that women with a mind and purse to please will eventually buy their new spring suits at Bamberger's——the house of cultivated taste, the birthplace of reproachless prices.

Bamberger Spring Millinery Stands Supreme!

Milliners of world-wide merit build our model hats. They express the eloquence of charm, the essence of taste and the simplicity of our notable fair pricing.

What is true of our foreign hats applies also to our faithful copies and our self-made models. One can readily distinguish "Bamberger" hats by their very lines. They have a "lilt," a true poetic grace which makes them conspicuously refined.

A floral season, Paris says. Obedient to her demand we have assembled the most striking corbeille of flowers, fruits and meadow bloom. Elegant ostrich and numidi fancies and a collection of Mercury wings in wholesome variety make for a completeness that would be hard indeed to equal.

Remember reading about a tribe of monkeys wanting to cross a stream of any kind, will climb a tree on one bank of the stream, then each take a good, firm tail-hold on his nearest neighbor and swing like a pendulum out of the tree until the lowest one in line can grab a tree on the opposite bank, and thus make a bridge which can be crossed in safety by the remaining members of the tribe?

Wonderful what can be accomplished when all pull together—even if it is only a tail hold.

Those monkeys sure believe in

A LONG PULL,
A STRONG PULL,
AND A PULL ALL TOGETHER.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. Those monkeys wanted to get some- and the get-together spirit.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. hose monkeys wanted to get somewhere and by hanging together were enabled to "come across."

NOT A SUFFRAGETTE

Wife of "Farmer Jim" Gives An Interesting Interview on the Subject of Woman's Rights and Married Life.

Mrs. James Edgar Martine, wife of the Senator from New Jersey and one of the most interesting women in Washington's official life, is of the opinion that childern keep parents apart.

"I have never had any children," Mrs. Martine said in an interview. Sometimes I'm glad, then again I'm sorry. I really think, though, that children are apt to come between a man and his wife and lead their interests naturally apart. Questions come up regarding the children upon which the mother and father disagree, beginning almost as soon as the children are ready to be named Then, too, many women become so enamored of their children that they neglect their husbands. This is naturally resented and the old basis of fellowship is usurped.

"I think that a man and woman will continue more lovable together without children than with them. Of course, in many cases they are a bond and hold a man and his wife together when all other ties fail. But as far as the love side is concerned, it is more likely to continue unbroken if they have only one another to consider. But I am by no means in favor of race suicide. I love children dearly."

Mrs. Martine has merry eyes. A frank expression and a smile always playing about her lips give the idea that she would make a very nice person with whom to be constantly associated. Then, she is a fine house keeper, and it is always a pleasure to find a woman who can go into her kitchen and turn out a famous old-time pumpkin pie. The mention of her womanly qualities led to a discussion of the uppermost question in the public mind at present—woman suffrage. Mrs. Martine is not in favor of giving the ballot to women.

"In the first place," she declared, "women are not physically fit to participate in so intense a game as politics or government. Their judgment is not always clear. There are times when they are high strung and impetuous. These times would affect materially the decisions they would be called upon to make.

"It is said that suffrage only calls for a woman's attention once a year. Why, voting doesn't consist merely of dropping a ballot into a box! That blind following of another person's directions is what the men are trying to be educated away from. Intelligent voting demands close, continued application to a consideration of the trend of national affairs, all of the year and every day. Can a woman do that and attend to her other duties at the same time?

"The man's consciousness of power through his protective and chivalrous feelings will die away. And what is to take his place? After he comes home from his day's work for rest and recreation, suppose the wife starts a wrangle of the affairs with which he has been absorbed all day Will it be rest, will it be recreation for him?

"Women can say all they please about a man's desire for an intellectual wife. Of course, he does not want to feel that he has married an ignoramus; but the frivolty, piquancy and charm always associated with the feminine sex constitute its chief appeal. The fun which men poke and the sense of superiority that they feel are, indeed, the source of their confidence in themselves. A man likes a feminine woman for his wife and in every other capacity, too, I am sure. If God Almighty had intended all to be alike He would have given us beard and muscle!"

Mrs. Martine has rosy plans for the future. She wants to go abroad with Mr. Martine when he retires from the Senate. She thinks the Atlantic too large a mody of water to put between them—so she is willing to defer the pleasures of the Alps, the Louvre, the Luxembourg Gardens, the Grand Canal and Italy's turquoise and sapphire skies until she can enjoy them with her husband.

In view of the fact that Senator Martine is a Democrat, it was interesting to learn from Mrs. Martine that before their marriage she was a staunch Republican. Moreover, they belonged to different religious denominations, a situation plainly calling for some sort of compromise in the interest of matrimonial harmony! Hear Mrs. Martine tell of it, and mark the naivette with which she handled a molehill of contention that might easily have been magnified into a mountain of dispute.

"I was taught" she said, "and long, too, before I had the power of understanding any such weighty subject, that the only profitable political opinion worth possessing was the Republican one. If the Republicans happened to be out of power, I was told not to be faint-hearted or vacillating, but to believe that it was only the crude quantity of the Democrats temporarily triumphant over the fine quality of the Republicans. So early in life I grew opinionated about these questions and mimicked my elders, as young people frequently do, without having any real ideas in my own head on the subject.

"At the same time I managed to acquire and retain a bigoted attitude of mind regarding the 'inferior Democrats' that was quite unwholesome I was also brought up in the Episcopal church and became staunch in my adherence to its practices. I, therefore, found myself as a young lady with two firmly established predilections.

"Then I met Mr. Martine. He was a Democrat and a Presbyterian; a Democrat who knew why he was one and a Presbyterian with a full-grown disdain of the ceremonies of the Episcopal church.

"After a while we were to be married. But how could we ever agree when our opinions were so radically different! I was puzzled. I decided that we would each have to make a concession to the other; so I said to him, 'If you'll be an Episcopalian I'll be a Democrat.' That settled it. Each of us altered one of our views, but cling to the other; saved our self-respect and indulged in a little pleasurable capitulation, which was extremely satisfying. Of course, this is confidentian—Mr. Martine must never know—it really was not a great sacrifice that I made, for my Republican ideas were, after all, considering my youth, but an empty bundle of platitudes.

"When we lived in Plainfield," she said, "I was a director of a branch of the Needelwork Guild. That organization, you know, extends its membership to both England and America. It collects new garments from members and friends to distribute to hospitals and families once every year. I have always taken an active interest in the guild because it seems to me such a fine thing to give new fresh articles of clothing to needy people instead of the cast-offs, which neither inspire respect for themselves nor the donors. When we left Plainfield to come to Washington, I resigned my directorship, but I still retain my membership and contribute my articles as heretofore.

"I became interested on my arrival here in a home for old ladies. Many of the congressional women who called on me asked my co-operation in its support. I became deeply interested, and only the other day I had an opportunity to rejoice that I had."

Motherly is the best one-word description that could be given to Mrs. Martine. Yet that is not exactly apropos, for she is not a mother. But her kindly interest in those with whom she talks and her genuine regain for womanly characteristics lend to her personality a parental quality that inspires confidence and trust. She retains the so-called "old-fashioned" estimate of woman's ability which considers the wife her husband's helpmate.

Her views are but an evidence of her adaptability. She is not a mother, but is satisfied to be just a wife. Mrs Martine as a girl was very fond of both canvas and China painting. She does not play. As she puts it, she took to art and her sister took to music. None of her work has ever been exhibited, for other things came into her life that withdrew her attention from her study before she was proficient. She is not a college woman. A delicate childhood, though as she maintains, one would never think it so to look at her now—prevented long or protracted study in any one line. She was very fond of languages, particularly French and Latin.

"TWENTY YEARS AFTERWARD."

Massillon, O., March 19—Account of the progress of "General" Kelley and his army of unemplowed in their march from California to Wasaington, have recalled to the minds of the older residents of Massillon the fact that today marked the twentieth anniversary of the opening of the Coxey "army" headquarters in this city. "General" Jacob S. Coxey, who still makes his home in Massillon, was the originator of the idea of leading an "army" of unemployed to Washington to demand legislation calculated to better the condition of the masses. After many vicissitudes Coxey's army arrived in the national capitol on April 29, 1894. The "invasion" created considerable excitement in Washington, but about the only result was that Coxey and his chief lieutenant, the late Carl Browne, were lodged in jail for several days because they violated the law by walking on the grass in the Capitol grounds.

Roland Burnham Molineux, the man who twice was on trial for his life and who passed two years in Sing Sing Prison, most of the time in the death house—four years in all in the toils of the law before he was declared innocent of a charge of murder, has written a play, "The Man Inside," which has been staged by David Belasco. It is a play of the underworld, and in this drama he voices his own arguments for penal reform. "The Man Inside" is one of the most talked of plays in New York.

WELCOMING ALIENS.

There is one feature of the work of the Public Recreation Committee about which little has been said. Through the work the members are forming a reception committee to many foreigners who come to Plainfield to live, and are giving them an opportunity to meet pleasant companions amid congenial surroundings. There is room for great development in this phase of the work, and the energetic people on the local committee no doubt plan to take advantage of every possibility.

The making of good citizens of the foreigners who come to our shores is not a hard task, provided they are given the right kind of a reception. The man who is made welcome by the political boss, and urged to take out his naturalization papers, realizes sooner or later that the welcome is given because it serves a purpose. The one who is welcomed because his presence adds to the material advantages of the country, makes the better citizen. Recently the papers have told of the various methods used to make aliens at home in the United States. Fifty of them who took the oath of allegiance to the United States in Salem, Mass., were the honored guests a few days later at patriotic exercises held in the Salem High School. San Diego has held similar exercises, and only a short time ago a monster reception was held in Chicago for 3,000 who had espoused the cause of the Stars and Stripes.

Denver has also started what it is hoped to turn into a national movement. On Washington's Birthday an invitation was sent broadcast urging aliens to co-operate in the celebration held there. In some places the libraries supply literature to new arrivals to fit them and create in them an ambition to become citizens.

Thus it will be seen that there is more than a spasmodic movement to welcome aliens, other than by those who wish their votes. It has been said with some wisdom that citizenship is held at too cheap a value in America. Too often, in fact in a large majority of cases, the swearing of allegiance is attended only by the ceremony of being escorted by the interested vote-seeker. When the oath is taken as a result of an agreement between the alien and the politician, neither the ballot or the privilege of citizenship can be fully appreciated, and the leaven of patriotism is minimized in keeping with the character of the man urging the naturalization.

American citizenship is cosmopolitan, made up of many and various nationalities. Each new American is as much a part of the country as those whose ancestors came over in the Mayflower. We have taken occasion, however, in the past to allow the new arrival to take care of himself. We have held out no hand of fellowship and often have eyed him with apprehension. We have not cared for his patriotism, waiting as it is to overflow for us. Let us nationalize our patriotism; welcome the alien as an equal—for all American citizens are created equal.

The personal touch of native-born with those from over the seas, of descendant of Pilgrim, Cavalier, Virginian and Quaker with the fleeing youth of Russia and ambitious toiler of the Mediterranean, is needed. Therein will we save the nation to a genuine democracy of the Christian type we have espoused.

Perhaps the Recreation Committee members have thought of all this in connection with the splendid work they are doing, and perhaps they are planning just such work for the future, but if they have not the suggestion is here given for what it may be worth. At Hope Chapel, we are told, similar work has been undertaken, and the naturalization of aliens has been brought about as the result of work there. It's worth considering, anyway.

If you are in doubt about spring being here, just read the following effort from the pen of the press agent of the New Jersey Audubon Society:

Spring time is upon us. The few song sparrows that have wintered with us are greeting the bright mornings with delightful melody. Here and there a robin pipes merrily from a tree-top and in the fields and marshes one may catch the gleam of the red-winged blackbird's epaulets. The spring songs of chickadee and white-throated sparrow ring through the woods, mingled with the nasal "yank, yank" of the nuthatch, whose thoughts are now turning to family cares.

Members of the Commercial Club in Aberdeen, Washington, are reported to have voted not to eat veal or calves liver, in an effort to try to offset the shortage in beef. With the present prices the average man does not have to swear off eating beef. He has not the wherewithall to get it.

Some of the things that stick straight up in the air from women's hats this year remind us exactly of the paper ruffle on the end of a lamb chop, as served in some restaurants.

PARIS SYMPATHIZES FOR WOMAN SLAYER

Fear Affair May Equal Famous Dreyfus Case.

Paris, March 19.—Out of the mixture of women and politics, tragedy and cabinet disruption came the almost positive assurance that France will undergo an ordeal second only to that incident to the Dreyfus trial when Mme. Caillaux, wife of the former minister of finance, is put on trial for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro.

While sporadic demonstrations against her husband were occurring in the streets of Paris Mme. Caillaux sat on a little iron cot in her cell in St. Lazare prison brooding and weeping.

The violence of attacks made upon Caillaux and his wife has aroused sympathy for them in some quarters, and it is evident both are on the verge of collapse. Georges Clemenceau, expremier, declared that the entire affair was similar to the Dreyfus case and for the good of France he pleaded that it be permitted to go no further.

The factional strife and public sentiment aroused by the killing of Calmette and the charges made against Caillaux are growing more bitter hourly. The police continued their vigilance in the determination to prevent any serious outbreak and crowds that gathered were speedily dispersed.

Maurice Dewaleff, editor of the Paris Midi, in a savage article declared that Mme. Caillaux must go to prison.

"I have more respect for a street walker than her in her silks," the editorial declared.

MURPHY WILL BE THERE.

No Doubt About His Attending State Committee Meeting.

New York, March 19.—Charles F. Murphy said at Tammany hall that he expects to attend the meeting of the Democratic state committee and the state conference of Democrats at Albany on Saturday. William Allaire Short sent each member of the state committee a special notice of the meeting, but some doubt seemed to exist at Albany as to whether Mr. Murphy would be on hand.

The particular reason for the present meeting is given as being the desire of Mr. Osborn and Governor Glynn to confer with the party leaders from all over the state as to the best means of backing the proposition for a state constitutional convention next year, which is to be voted on at a special election on April 7. It is understood, however, that plans for the fall campaign will be discussed also by the conferees.

SENATE NOT TO ADJOURN APRIL 2

Appropriation Bills Won't Be Ready by Then.

MORRIS CANAL REPORT IN

Present Results After Two Years of Labor—Propose Construction of Boulevard From Newark to Phillipsburg. Senate Passes Pierce Bill—Fielder Defies Bankers on Tax Measure.

Trenton, N. J., March 19.—The senate was informed through Chairman Hennessy of the joint committee of appropriations that it would be impossible to have the appropriation bills in shape in time for the final adjournment on April 2. It is certain therefore that the session will be prolonged for at least a week after that date.

The Morris canal commission presented the results of two years of labor in the form of a report accompanied by bills providing for the abandonment of the canal upon terms which the commission hoped would be satisfactory to the state, the Lehigh Valley railroad and the municipalities and other interests. The bills will be introduced next week, but action is not expected for another year.

One of the interesting features in the canal report is the proposed construction of a boulevard from Newark to Phillipsburg, a distance of approximately ninety miles. It is also proposed that the canal charter be continued under control of the state and that the state receive not less than $1,000,000 in cash from the Lehigh Valley and the sale of canal lands.

Under the bills the Lehigh Valley would obtain entire control of its Jersey City terminals, including the two basins at that point. All water rights of the canal would go to the state, which would hold the charter now subject to the lease of the Lehigh Valley.

The house passed Mr. Kuhlke's resolution requesting congress to aid in the project of building a bridge across the Hudson. The cost of the proposed bridge is estimated at $40,000,000.

By a strict party vote the senate passed the Pierce bill under which $321,000, which would otherwise be appropriated to municipalities for school purposes, will be retained by the state from the taxes on railroads to defray certain expenditures for educational purposes heretofore borne by the state.

Accepting the challenge of the banking interests that they would fight the Pierce bank stock tax bill to a finish unless it were amended, Governor Fielder issued a statement saying it was up to the house to say whether the bankers are to dominate the legislature.

MUST PAY STATE INTEREST.

Jersey Treasurer Will Make Railroad Fund a Source of Revenue.

Trenton, N. J., March 19.—Plans to produce a saving of $18,000 in his department each year were perfected by State Treasurer Grosscup. By dispensing with the service of Robert C. Hutchinson, clerk to the school fund, he saves $3,000 annually, and he has now sent out to all favored banks, in which what is known as the special railroad fund is deposited, word that, beginning April 1, these moneys will have to draw interest at 2 per cent, the same as the other state funds.

This special fund, which amounts to $550,000, is made up of money deposited by corporations engaged in the building of railway or trolley lines and is held until the actual work of construction is completed.

MAD DOG ATTACKS MANY.

Newsboy Bitten Nine Times and Policeman Fifteen.

Paterson, N. J., March 19.—A collie dog went made in Main street, Passaic, and bit Philip Philpone of 14 Astor place on the hand. The dog then ran to Clifton, where he leaped at Stephen Sigler, who beat him off with an umbrella and escaped injury.

Next the animal headed for Paterson, five miles away. There Charles Laniller, a twelve-year-old newsboy, was bitten nine times and Policeman Anthony Kuhn fifteen times before the dog was killed.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

John Boyd, former member of the board of education, was held up in Jersey City by three men and robbed of his watch and $5.

Former Freeholder Coursen of Newton learned of his election as justice of the peace in Fredon township. He has refused to accept the office.

Charles Roessner, who shot his wife and Charles H. Mergard, a boarder in her home, Tuesday, was arrested by detectives in a saloon in Newark.

The grand jury in Paterson has thrown out the charge of arson made by Fire Chief Coyle against Dr. William S. Green an inspector of the board of health. Dr. Green will be reinstated.

A special committee of the Montclair Civic association has reported in favor of the "business manager" form of government for Montclair, but disapproves the Bloom bill now before the legislature.

NEW HOPE FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Congressional Commission is About to Begin Gigantic Task.

Washington, D. C., March 19.—After a delay of many months the Commission on Industrial Relations, is about ready to begin the gigantic task mission on Industrial Relations is ment. Congress in creating the commission assigned to it the following work:

It must inquire into the general condition of labor in the principal industries of the United States, including agriculture, and especially in those which are carried on in corporate forms.

It must study the existing relations between employers and employes.

It must investigate the effect of industrial conditions on public welfare and into the rights and powers of the community to deal therewith.

It must look into the condition of sanitation and safety of employees and the provisions for protecting the life, limb and health of employees.

It must study the growth of associations of employers and wage-earners and the effect of such associations upon the relations between employers and employes.

It must investigate the extent and results of methods of collective bargaining.

It must study any methods which have been tried in and State or foreign countries for maintaining mutually satisfactory relations between employers and employees.

It must study all known methods for avoiding or adjusting labor disputes through peaceful and conciliatory mediation and negotiations.

It must look into the scope, methods and resources of existing bureaus of labor and into possible ways of increasing their usefulness.

It must take up for study the question of smuggling or other illegal entry of Asiatics into the United States or its insular possessions, and of the methods by which Asiatics have gained and are gaining admission into this country.

It must seek to recover the underlying causes of dissatisfaction in the industrial situation.

The personnel of the commission is such as to warrant the public in expecting much of it. The chairman is Frank P. Walsh, of Missouri, a lawyer who has for many years been interested in the relations existing between capital and labor. The other representatives of the general public on the commission are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, of New York, who is deeply interested in welfare work, and Dr. John B. Commons, professor of economics in the University of Wisconsin. Representing organized labor on the commission are James O'Connell, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor; Austin B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor. The three representatives of employers are Harris Weinstock, a prominent California manufacturer; S. Thurston Ballard, a well-known business man of Louisville, and Frederick A. Delano, one of the best known of American railway executives.

The law creating the commission authorizes it to hold sittings and public hearings anywhere in the United States. According to the present plans these hearings will be commenced within the next two or three weeks. It will be the policy of the commission to visit as many of the industrial centres of the country as possible. The cities tentatively selected for holding hearings include New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Paterson, Scranton, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Charlotte, N. C.; Greenville, S. C.; Atlanta, Birmingham, Nashville Louisville, New Orleans, Detroit, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Chicago, Houghton, Mich.; Milwaukee, Madison, Wis.; St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Denver, Trinidad, Colo.; Dallas, Houston, Galveston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Butte and Lead, S. D.

Representatives of labor and capital and persons who may be said to represent the public generally will be invited to appear at these hearings and tell what they know about local conditions as they affect the relation existing between capital and labor. The commission will have the power to compel the attendance of witnesses.

The commission is finally to report to Congress not later than August 23, 1915. It must also make at least one report to Congress by the end of the first year of its existence. The thought behind the legislation which created the commission is that it will go a long way towards bringing the opposing forces of capital and labor together for the common good, a problem which is generally considered to be the most important confronting the American people today.

TELEPHONE ACHIEVEMENTS

Telephone System of Today The Creation of the Bell Co.

In no line of human endeavor has the inventive brain of the scientist contributed more to the world's progress than by the creation of the art of telephony, of which the Bell system is the embodiment.

When the telephone was born, nothing analogous to telephone service as we now know it existed. There was no tradition to guide, no experience to follow.

The system, the apparatus, the methods—an entire new art had to be created. The art of electrical engineering did not exist. The Bell pioneers, recognizing that success depended upon the highest engineering and technical skill at once organized an experimental and research department which is now directed by a staff of over 550 engineers and scientists, including former professors, post-graduate students, scientific investigators—the graduates of over 70 universities.

From its foundation the company has continuously developed the art. New improvements in telephones, switchboards, lines, cables, have followed one another with remarkable rapidity.

While each successive type of apparatus to the superficial observer suggested a similarity, each step in the evolution marked a decided improvement. These changes, this evolution, has not only been continuous, but is continuing. Substantially all of the plant now in use, including telephones, switchboards, cables and wires, has been constructed, renewed or reconstructed in the past 10 years.

Particularly in switchboards have the changes been so radical that installations costing in the aggregate millions have frequently been discarded after only a few years of use.

Since 1877 there have been introduced 53 types and styles of receivers and 73 types and styles or transmitters. Of the 12,000,000 telephone receivers and transmitters owned by the Bell Company January 1, 1914, none were in use prior to 1902, while the average age is less than five years.

Within 10 years we have expended for construction and reconstruction an amount more than equal to the present book value of our entire plant.

Long-distance and underground transmission was the most formidable scientific problem confronting the telephone experts.

The retarding effect of the earth on the telephone current often impaired conversation through one mile underground as much as through 100 miles overhead. Overhead conversation had its distinct limitations.

No possible improvement in the telephone transmitter could of itself solve these difficulties.

The solution was only found in the cumulative effect of improvements, great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard, and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech.

While the limit of commercial overhead talking had increased from strictly local to over 1,000 miles as early as 1893, it was not until 1905 that conversation could be had over long-distance circuits of which as much as 20 miles was in underground cables. By 1906 underground talking distance had increased to 90 miles. By 1912 it was possible to talk underground from New York to Washington.

It was then that the construction of underground conduits from Boston to Washington was determined upon—not that it was expected to get a through underground talk between those places, but in case of storm or blizzard to utilize intermediate sections in connection with the overhead.

Our persistent study and incessant experimentation have produced results more remarkable still.

We have perfected cables, apparatus and methods that have overcome obstacles heretofore regarded as insuperable both to long-distance overhead and underground conversation.

Underground conversation is now possible between Boston and Washington, four times the length of the longest European underground line. This enabled the Bell System in the recent great storm, so destructive on land and sea, to maintain communication for the public between all the principal points on the Atlantic seaboard.

Telephone communication is established between New York and Denver, is potentially possible between all points in the United States, and by 1915 will be an accomplished fact between New York and San Francisco.

In our use of methods or apparatus, we are committed to no one system. We own, control or have the right to use inventions necessary to operate any system recognized or accepted as the most efficient. The Bell System must always recognize, and in its selection must always be governed by the necessities of a national service, with its complex requirements, which is infinitely more exacting than local or limited service.

These achievements represent vast expenditures of money and immense concentration of effort which have been justified by results of immeasurable benefit to the public. No local company unaided could bear the financial or scientific burden of this work. Such results are possible only through a centralized general staff, avoiding wasteful duplication of effort, working out problems common to all, for the benefit of all.

The pioneers of the Bell System recognized that telephone service as they saw it, was in the broadest sense a public utility; that upon them rested a public obligation to give the best possible service at the most reasonable rates consistent with risk, investment and the continued improvement and maintenance of its property.

Without this expenditure of millions and concentration of effort, the telephone art as it exists could not have been developed.

What we have done in working out these great problems in the past should be accepted as a guarantee of what we will do in the future.

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

SCORES WILSON ON TOLLS POLICY

Senator Jones Calls It Irrevocable Act.

GOES BACK ON HIS PLEDGE

Says That President Offers No Reason Nor Does He Cite Facts Upon Which to Base His Assertions—Calls It an Economic Error.

Washington, March 19.—Senator Jones of Washington denounced President Wilson's policy on the repealing of free tolls. This was the first attack on the pending legislation in the senate.

Discussing the president's attitude on free tolls, Senator Jones said:

"It was expressly approved by Mr. Wilson as the candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency of the United States. He took particular pains to tell the farmers of the country that free tolls would be a great benefit to them in regulation of transcontinental railroad rates and assured them that 'Everything that is done in the interest of cheap transportation is done directly for the farmer as well as for other men,' and to impress them with the friendly attitude of the Democratic party and its candidates he assured them that 'Our platform is not molasses to catch flies, it means business, and they who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to very quiet and private retreat.' Our Democratic friends are most solicitous for the farmers during a campaign, but he seems to be their special target in legislation.

"When the president must have thought then that our action in exempting coastwise ships was wise, just, beneficial and honorable, he must have thought the meaning of the treaty clear and plain. He now urges us by special message to repeal this legislation. If we do so it is an irrevocable act. The burden of tolls must rest forever on our coastwise ships unless we see fit to relieve all vessels from tolls. What argument does he present, what reason does he offer for his change of view and for reversing our deliberate legislation? Absolutely none. He says the 'Exemption constitutes a mistaken economic policy from every point of view.'

Contrary to Pledge.

"He gives no reason, he cites no facts upon which to base this assertion, so contrary to his public declaration in the last campaign. I assert that its repeal will be a great economic blunder and will benefit the Canadian Pacific Railway company, Canadian interests and transcontinental lines and others and will injure more or less every other interest in this country. I shall present facts and argument proving this assertion when this proposed legislation comes up for consideration.

"He says the law which we passed is 'in plain contravention with the treaty with Great Britain,' but presents no argument whatever sustaining that contention. It is a mere dogmatic scholastic statement, contrary to the deliberate judgment of many of the greatest minds of the republic and to the deliberate decision of this body by more than a three-fourths majority. Had he not studied the treaty before he made his campaign speech? Was he not familiar with its 'plain' terms then? Did he not then believe our action entirely consistent with our national dishonor? Surely so. A mere assertion to the contrary is not enough now, but he should present the reasons and the argument that has led him to change his mind and now assert that such exemption is contrary to the plain terms of the treaty."

KAISER HAS NEW GRANDSON.

His Only Daughter Gives Birth to Heir.

Berlin, March 19.—The birth of a son to the Duchess of Brunswick, the kaiser's only daughter, finally ends the differences between the Hohenzollern and the Guelph families. A general holiday at Brunswick in celebration of the event was proclaimed. The kaiser cancelled all his engagements so as to be able to see this, his sixth grandson, before leaving on March 22 for his annual trip to Corfu.

As a wedding gift to his daughter, who was Princess Victoria Luise, on her marriage to Prince Ernst of Cumberland, the emperor bestowed the duchy of Brunswick on the couple who were married last May.

NEW U. S. COLLIER AFIRE.

Flames Confined to One Hatch of Jupiter at Mare Island.

Vallejo, Cal., March 19.—The new United States collier Jupiter, which has the record of being the largest electrically propelled vessel in the world, is burning at Mare Island navy yard.

Fire was discovered in hatch No. 13, evidently started by spontaneous combustion. The collier is loaded with coal, which she was to take around Cape Horn to her Atlantic station.

$250,000 Fire In Tuscaloosa.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., March 19.—Fire here destroyed four buildings in the center of the business district with a loss of $250,000.

JAMES W. OSBORNE.

Accepts Position as Deputy Attorney General in Graft Hunt.

James W. Osborne has notified Governor Glynn that he was willing to accept a designation as deputy attorney general to prosecute road grafting cases. He told the governor that he believed he could get indictments in Columbia, Rensselaer, Montgomery, Broome, Ulster, Chautauqua and other counties. "Go ahead," was the governor's reply to Osborne, and it is expected he will soon consult with district attorneys in these counties. Mr. Osborne has presented his bill to Governor Glynn, but the governor refuses to make public the amount asked for. An appropriation of $25,000 was made for the Osborne investigation, of which Governor Glynn said only $2,000 has been spent so far.

FRESH ATTACK ON NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

Commission to Seek For Vanished $12,000,000.

Washington, March 19.—The interstate commerce commission is to hold a new investigation into the financial operations of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road. The investigation, which is made in response to a senate resolution introduced by Senator Norris of Nebraska, is designed especially to find out what became of $12,000,000 expended by the New Haven in the purchase of the New York, Westchester and Boston trolley line, which the commission in a report made public last July declared had "vanished into thin air."

The Norris resolution directed the commission to reopen its investigation of the New Haven. A preliminary inquiry has been in progress for the last ten days, and the commission will now undertake a thoroughgoing investigation, which will include the summoning of many witnesses. It is said that J. P. Morgan will be called.

The Morgan firm on March 9 made public a full statement of its financing accounts with the New Haven, showing that the firm had profited only $350,000 from all its operations for the New Haven, extending over a period of twenty years. The commission intends now, however, to do its best to obtain full light on all the transactions, which were not fully disclosed in its first inquiry. The commission has experts at work not only on the New Haven's books, but on the books of the subsidiary corporations.

The Norris resolution, which is the basis of the coming investigation, was passed by the senate about a month ago. It sought information upon the Westchester deal in particular, but did not limit the scope of the authorized inquiry to this operation alone.

HUERTA SEEKS WILSON'S TERMS

Mexican Dictator Is Badly In Need of Money.

OVERTURES THROUGH LIND

Federals Are Victorious, Is the Report on Border—Huerta Butchers Soldiers—Mutineers Lined Up In Squads and Shot Down.

Mexico City, March 19.—Forced by the increasing gravity of the situation in Mexico from a financial point of view, President Huerta at last appears to be ready to resume negotiations with John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, which were broken off last August.

The minister of foreign affairs, Jose Lopez Portillo y Rojas, has been directed to reopen unofficial diplomatic exchanges with Mr. Lind, according to the report here, and for that purpse went to Vera Cruz today. Whether he will meet Mr. Lind at Vera Cruz or at some point further removed from the public observation is not known. Every effort has been made to keep the meeting a secret, and should it for any reason fail to take place the government would be in a position to fall back upon the explanation, already given, that the minister is taking the trip to celebrate his saint's day, and color is given to this by the fact that he was accompanied by his wife and other members of his family.

El Paso, Tex., March 19.—The thousands of persons in this section whose fortunes are locked up in the military and political developments in Mexico awaited authentic information of the reported battle north of Torreon. In the last twenty-four hours exactly fifteen words of a press dispatch seeped through the censor and over the single telegraph line connecting Juarez with the present war zone. It was so restricted as to be scarcely more than an index of what it is assumed the censor removed.

Meanwhile federal agents here asserted that General Villa, moving confidently in the direction of Torreon, suddenly came upon the enemy a hundred miles north of where he had expected them, was defeated at Escalon, on the main line of the railway, and at Rosario.

Mexico City, March 19.—In squads of a dozen men each 149 mutineers were taken from the federal barracks at Jojutla, lined up against a stone wall and shot.

It required less than half an hour for the slaughter of the men who rebelled at service in the army of General Huerta. The members of the firing squad worked rapidly and pumped bullets into their former comrades as fast as they were lined up.

Bodies were piled high along the wall when the last mutineers were brought out, and those going to their death stumbled over the forms of those who had faced the rifles of the executioners only a few minutes before. With the last mutineer shot the bodies were thrown into one trench.

Huerta has ordered the strictest discipline enforced in all garrisons. A stone wall and a firing squad await the leaders of any rebellious outbreak.

War Office Approves Killings.

The newspapers of the capital printed prominently a statement from the war office announcing in terms of high approval the execution of the 149 mutineers. It was perfectly evident from the tone of the statement that the action of Huerta's officers in carrying out the wholesale executions was pleasing to the administration and was looked upon as serving notice that Huerta has determined to rule his conscripted army with an iron hand.

The newspapers announce that more men were executed at Jojutla than at any single time "since General Scott hanged seventy-eight deserters in the suburbs of the capital in 1847."

ANTITIP BILL ADVANCES.

Moves to Order of Final Passage In the Assembly.

Albany, N. Y., March 19.—The anti-tipping bill introduced by Assemblyman Simpson of Kings was advanced to the order of final passage in the assembly after a motion by Democratic Leader Smith of New York to recommit had been defeated.

The bill prohibits the tipping by guests or patrons of a proprietor, lessee, agent, employee or servant in any inn, hotel, tavern, restaurant, saloon, barber shop, bootblack's stand, dance hall, bath house, public conveyance or common carrier on land or water, theater or other place of public resort or amusement.

P. H. S. DOES LITTLE SCORING IN FAST GAME

Forwards Are Held Tight by Speedy Rahway Guards and Visitors Swamp Locals.

Rahway High School closed its basketball season, yesterday afternoon, with a decisive victory over Plainfield High Schol. The score of the game was 40 to 15. The first half of the contest was close and fast and at times the local boys played a better game than their larger opponents. The Plainfield boys were poor on shooting.

The fast pace soon subsided and Rahway gradually forged to the front, ending the first half with the score at 19 to 10 in their favor.

The second half was much slower than the first, the Plainfield quintet being able to score only five points while Rahway scored twenty-one.

The two Armstrong boys were the stars of the game. A. Armstrong, who played at center, scored seven baskets and his brother six.

The locals will lineup again this year against the Rahway boys when they meet them in baseball.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly tell me if the railroads in Brazil are controlled by American capital and where their centers are?—V. F. O.

Answer—By writing to the Brazilian Legation, at Washington, D. C., enclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope you will be able to obtain the desired information—or to the Brazilian Consulate, 17 State street, New York city.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly tell me which is right: "Where are you boys going?" or "Where are ye boys going?" A says you and B says Ye.—K. F.

Answer—A is correct.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it necessary to get a permit to attend the meetings of the Common Council? If so, where can I get one?—B. D. P.

Answer—The Common Council sessions are open to the public. No permit is necessary.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is paid or given for the best work in literature? For instance, the Nobel prize, given to Tagore, the Hindu poet.—M. C. F.

Answer—The Nobel prize for literature (like that awarded in other lines) amounts to about $40,000. That is what Tagore received.

Sporting Editor:

Query—B says the three most learned men are Aristotle, Pliny the Elder and Leonardo da Vinci. B leaves it to you. How about it?—K E.

Answer—Aristotle was the greatest Greek philosopher. Very probably Pliny the Elder was the greatest gatherer of knowledge in the Roman Empire. His "History of Natural Sciences" in thirty-seven volumes, was the first real encyclopedia recorded, and was up-to-date at that time, more than 1,800 years ago. da Vinci was a great painter, sculptor, architect and student in other directions. Whether he happened to be more learned than some other men of his time, is sometimes claimed for him, but cannot be known. Very certainly there are men in this age of the world who are more learned than any of them because knowledge has increased in such a multitude of directions.

HOPPE AND SUTTON AGAIN

New York, March 19—Willie Hoppe, the "invincible," will defend his title of 18.1 balkline billiard champion in a match to be played with George Sutton at the Hotel Astor, tomorrow night. Only a few weeks ago the youthful champion successfully defended the 18.2 title against Sutton. His brilliant performances on that occasion showed Hoppe to be in such splendid form that there appears to me little chance now that the 18.1 title will change hands.

TOMMY MURPHY-JOHNNY LORE.

New York, March 19—Gotham fight fans are manifesting a lively interest in the ten-round bout to be pulled off tomorrow night between Tommy Murphy and Johnny Lore. The contest will be the last in which Murphy takes part before he meets Willie Ritchie for 20 rounds in San Francisco next month.

Jay Gould, amateur court tennis champion, is now the undisputed champion of the world, having beaten George Covey, the professional champion, in three out of four sets at the Racket club, which, added to the four won on Monday, made it seven to one. The conditions for the match called for the victory to go to the player first to win seven games. The first four, as stated, were played on Monday.

INTER-CITY LEAGUE WILL BE ORGANIZED

Sunday School Organization to Give Way to a Circuit of Wider Area.

A movement will be launched in the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow night to organize an Inter-City Baseball League to take the place of the Sunday-School League that has been operating here with more or less success during the past two years. A meeting of those interested has been called for tomorrow night and at that time it is expected that plans will be completed and a tentative circuit drawn up.

Several local Sunday-school aggregations have been named as probable participants and the other places mentioned are South Plainfield, Bound Brook, Dunellen and Westfield. All of these municipalities have organized baseball teams representing Sunday-schools and a very successful Sunday-School League has been run in Westfield for the past few years. It is rumored that all of these places will have representatives at tomorrow night's session and interest has been aroused in several quarters in each of the towns.

While Plainfield will be represented in the league it is practically certain the the Queen City delegation will be made up of all-star talent and this will probably disrupt the old Sunday-School League's circuit. If enough interest is shown in the project a schedule of games will be drawn up tomorrow night and franchises allotted.

P. H. S. GIRLS' GAME.

The Plainfield High Schools girls' basketball team will go to Cranford Saturday afternoon, where they will lineup against the High School feminine quintet of that place.

NINE VICTORIES AND FIFTEEN DEFEATS THE RECORD OF P. H. S. BASKETBALL TEAM

The Plainfield High School basketball team completed its schedule yesterday afternoon. Although the season has not been a brilliant one as far as winning games is concerned, many new teams have been played this year that have never before appeared on a Plainfield High School schedule. The team has won nine games and lost fifteen. The surprise of the season was sprung when Plainfield defeated North Plainfield in the second game of the interscholastic series. Plainfield finished second to North Plainfield in the Interscholastic League, beating Leal School two games out of three.

Captain Hetfield was the high point scorer of the season, scoring 81 field goals and 40 foul goals for a total of 202 points. Peacock was second with 56 field goals and 42 foul goals for a total of 154 points. This year's team will lose four of its first seven men by graduation. Those who will graduate are Hetfield, Snyder, Gavett and Sminck.

SWIMMERS' CORNER

The Brookline (Mass.) School for Swimming Instructors, started sometime ago by the municipal authorities, is now ready to turn out the first batch of graduates, and if the talent may be judged from recent events the graduates should prove a great boon to water sports.

Convincing proof of the astonishing progress made by the younger generation in water sports came with the holding of the interscholastic aquatic championships at Princeton a few days ago. Not only was every record on the list smashed to pieces, but with one exception the performances compared favorably with those shown in the same pool on the previous day by the 'varsity stars of Yale and Princeton, leaders in the college world.

It is interesting to learn that the Brookline High School boys, who made such a wonderful showing, breaking records in the 50 and 220 yard swims and in the relay race, are all pupils of Matthew Mann, who taught them to swim by means of the elementary crawl and has handled them ever since. The fact is worthy of note because partisans of the breast stroke have severely criticised his methods. If success is any criterion these methods are worth while.

Y. W. C. A. GAME OFF.

The basketball game scheduled to be played next Saturday night between the Plainfield and Trenton Y. W. C. A. teams has been called off by the Capitol City management.

RAHWAY HIGH MAY HAVE TROUBLE GETTING GAMES

The Rahway High School athletic coach who appeared in the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, with his charges when the latter ran away with the Plainfield High School basketball quintet, stated that exactly the same lineup would be available for next year's aggregation. Seldom does it occur in schoolboy athletic circles that a basketball team of Rahway's calibre is held together for two successive years, but the visiting coach declares that he will put the same crew on the floor in 1915.

The Rahway team is recognized as the best in Union county at the present time and the State championship will no doubt be pulled to earth by the experienced aggregation that is due to represent that suburb next season. A number of teams in this section have looked upon Rahway as a dark horse before this time but it is now certain that the manager for next year will have his hands full trying to get teams to schedule games.

LIDDY STILL WORKING.

Eugene Lidgate, the Fanwood boy, and Egan, the Baltimore veteran, are dividing matters up in Johnny Dunn's catching department during the preseason games and the suburban youth appears to be making good in every sense of the word. In yesterday's contest with the Philadelphia Nationals, Liddy rapped out a hit that brought across one of the Orioles four runs, the final count being 4 to 3 in favor of the International Leaguers.

PLAN TO TRANSFER SHOW TO TRENTON

Poultry Fanciers Engage in Lively Discussion at Monthly Meeting.

The announcement that Prof. W. C. Thompson, of the New Brunswick Experimental Station, was to speak before the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement, attracted a large number of chicken fanciers to Exempt Firemen's Hall, last night, to listen to a forceable address on "Poultry Hygiene, Sanitation and Prevention of Disease." The many questions concerning the raising of poultry which seem to be stumbling blocks to so many were discussed in a most able way by the lecturer and the talk was a most interesting one, as well as being instructive.

After the address of the evening, a business meeting of the association was held during which the annual poultry show to be held next fall was discussed. The question of taking the show from this city to Trenton was the bone of contention and it was finally referred to the board of trustees for their consideration. Many of those present were of the opinion that a greater attendance might be secured at the Capitol City. However, the question will be held in abeyance until the trustees make a report on the subject.

Several new members were elected during the course of the meeting, bringing the membership up to 261. The next session of the association will be held April 15.

BIG ATHLETIC FEST FOR PARKER FIELD

Fourth of July Celebration Will Include an All Day Program of Events.

Plans are underway for an all day celebration on Parker Field for July 4 and attractions are being planned that will keep Plainfielders within the confines of the Queen City on that day. Featuring the occasion will be a monster athletic meet under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union which will be held in the afternoon. Supervisor George W. Wriston and the Playground Commission having charge of this rendezvous are arranging the necessary details for the event and the meet promises to eclipse in interest and entries the remarkable success of two years ago when many of the most prominent athletes of the metropolitan district invaded Plainfield to compete for the many handsome prizes offered.

The meet will have a program of events classified in regard to ability and will be open for all athletic performers. It is expected that an array of talent from Greater New York will be on hand at that time to match its prowess against the local and suburban followers of the track and field game. Suitable prizes will be offered in each event and all competitors will be registered under the A. A. U.

In the morning an old fashioned Independence Day celebration has been planned for the field and will include a novelty program made up of pole climbing, greased pig chasing and other attractive events. In the evening the popular centre will be the scene of a pyrotechical display and a band concert will be a side feature.

SCOTCH PLAINS RETURNS.

A return game between the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and the Scotch Plains basketball teams has been arranged for Saturday night, March 28, and will be played in the local association gym.

HUSTLER CAPTAINCY OFFERED TO MARTIN

Plainfield Boy Being Sought by Rochester, But Stallings Turns a Deaf Ear.

John Ganzel, manager of the Rochester team, of the International League, with whom Jack Martin performed last season, has been hot on the trail of Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Braves, during the past two weeks, in an effort to get Jack back on the Hustlers' team, but the Boston leader thinks so well of Martin's work to date that he had turned a deaf ear to all that the International Leaguer has said. Ganzel has offered Martin the same salary he is getting with the Boston team and the captaincy of the Hustlers if the Plainfielder will consent to return to the International League where he will be assured of a steady game.

Because of the fact that "Rabbit" Maranville is a veteran and has been going so good this season, many have been led to believe that Martin would be farmed out once more, but it now appears that the Plainfielder will be retained as a second string man by Stallings or either shifted to another position.

Martin has been suffering from a sore arm and for that reason has not ben able to do himself justice to date, but has succeeded in making a good impression. The Newark International League team arrived at the Dempsey Hotel in Macon, Ga., last night, where the Boston team was already in camp and the International Leaguers proceeded at once to renew old acquaintances with the Boston performers. George Stallings was just bringing in his players from their daily labors when the Tigers arrived. Among the first to renew acquaintances with the Newark players were Joe Connolly and Jack Martin.

MANAGERS SELECTED FOR ATHLETES' ANNUAL PLAY

At a meeting of the N. P. H. S. Athletic Association yesterday afternoon, the following persons were voted to fill the various managers positions for the annual play that will be given April 17: Business, Hyman Abrams and Frank Dunning; property, Roscoe Van Camp and Charles Roll; stage, Lester Chandler and Warren Townley; advertising, Thomas Ball; music, Elmer French; ushers, head, Russell Lee; assistants Daniel Denny, Estes Small and James Goodwin.

P. H. S. WILL ELECT COURT TEAM CAPTAIN FOR 1914-15

Those who sported the Plainfield High School colors on the basketball court this year will have their pictures taken this afternoon in Stone's studio. Following the "posing" the High School athletes will elect a captain for next year from the quartet of eligibles, Peacock, Wheelan, McNamee and Rosenson.

The players in the picture will be Gavett, Peacock, Rosenson, Wheelan, Snyder, Sminck, Hetfield, Coach Patch and Manager Cottrell.

CANN TO THE FORE.

W. E. Cann, physical director of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., has preferred charges against the Colonial basketball team of Elizabeth, in an effort to have the latter disbarred from amateur circles. In the event of this case being won by Cann a team of players in Plainfield here would also be declared professionals, having played against the alleged pro outfit. All of which matters little in these days, professionalism being in many cases linked with amateur work.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD WANTED.

Sunday-School League officials have been trying to get into communication with J. J. Allen, the South Plainfield Baptist Sunday-school's leader, during the past week, but their efforts have been futile to date. If Mr. Allen will send his representatives to the meeting in the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night it would be greatly appreciated.

DUTCHER CLEANS UP.

Ray Dutcher, the Plainfield youth who is performing for the New York University gymnastic team in the club swinging event, took first place in that event against Columbia University, last night. N. Y. U. won easily by a count of 39 to 12.

Y. M. C. A. WILL PLAY.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team will go to Morristown tomorrow night to play the Y. M. C. A team of that place. The previous meeting of these two teams resulted in a three point victory for the home five.

TRENTON NEXT.

The New Jersey State Physical Director's Association, of which E. C. Ostlin and Henri Welle, of the local association are members, has selected Trenton as its next meeting place. The next session will be held in April

STRAY TOPICS FROM OLD NEW YORK

New York, March 19.—The rapidity with which some men have accumulated immense fortunes in the moving picture business the past few years makes the days of the gold rush almost tame in comparison. Marcus Loew, the head of the syndicate which took over two hundred moving picture and vaudeville theatres at one stroke of the pen the other day, was a fur merchant in a small way when he became interested in the "movies" scarcely a dozen years ago. Today he is rated many times a millionaire and is by long odds the biggest man in the moving picture business in the entire world. The career of one of Mr. Loew's partners in the new syndicate is also illustrative of the Midas-like touch of the films. Nine years ago this young man was selling peanuts in an amusement park in Chicago.

This calls to mind the good fortune of another man who got in on the ground floor in the moving picture business. This man had a little office down in Nassau street, where for many years he had eked out a bare livelihood dealing in magic-lanterns and slides. Occasionally he made a sale, but the most of his work was in the repair line. The motion picture machines, being a development of the magic lantern in a way naturally attracted his attention. From the newspapers he learned that the celluloid films frequently exploded in the machines and endangered the lives of operators and caused panics in the audiences. So the little magic lantern dealer put on his thinking cap and in a few days he devised a simple metal hood to cover the machine and render the film explosions harmless. He patented the device and soon was receiving big royalties from the motion picture machine manufacturers. With the profits thus derived he went into the business of producing films and now it is said he has at times as many as one thousand actors and actresses employed to perform before his cameras.

No woman has been wined and dined with greater frequency by hospitable New York than Mrs. Arthur Paget, who is making one of her periodical visits to her native city. It is now many years since Mrs. Paget married and went to London, where she soon became one of the most popular of the Anglo-Saxon hostesses. But despite her long residence abroad she has ever kept in close touch with friends and associations of her girlhood days in New York. As Mary Fiske Stevens—better known as "Minnie"—she was the leader of "The Bouncers," a set of pretty New York girls of long ago who were given additional fame by the clever pen of the late Lawrence Olyphant. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paran Stevens, belonged to intellectual and cultured as well as to the very wealthy section of New York society. Mrs. Paran Stevens had a salon to which were welcome all the clever foreigners whom business or pleasure brought to this city, and her young daughter had many opportunities of seeing members of the great European world of which she was later to become a component part.

The eyes of all women interested in the game of lawn tennis are now turned toward the Seventh Regiment Armory courts in this city, where the annual tournament for the women's national indoor championships was opened Saturday and will be continued all through this week. The perfection of the arrangements and the large and representative entry list combine to give promise of one of the most successful tournaments of the kind in some years. The championship titles in both singles and doubles are to be decided. Miss Marie Wagner, the present champion, is to defend her title against the most expert of the women raquet wielders of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington and several other cities.

Quite the most notable wedding of the Lenten season took place Saturday afternoon in the Chapel of St Bartholomew's church, the contracting parties being Miss Emily Rogers and Henry Keely Brent. The bride belongs to one of the oldest New York families. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pendleton Rogers and a grandaughter of the late Nathaniel Pendleton Rogers, while on her mother's side she descends from the well-known Shillito family of Cincinnati. Mr. Brent, the bridegroom, is a son of Mrs. Charles Scott Brent, of Lexington, Ky. He is a Harvard graduate and a prominent member of the Southern Society of this city.

New York's new $100,000 hospital for animals is now in full operation The institution, the first of its kind in this city, was put up by the New York Women's League for Animals of which Mrs. James Speyer is president. It will accomodate twenty-four horses, thirty-one dogs, twelve cats and six birds. This is about the proportion in which the animals are brought in. The hospital is of four stories and contains the latest improvements in every form for the treatment of animals, including painless electrocution for those whose cases are hopeless. There are segregated wards for contagious diseases, and a diet kitchen where proper food is prepared for the patients.

An energetic campaign for the betterment of conditions under which traveling men work will shortly be started by the Associated Commercial Travelers of America, the organization of which has just been completed in this city. Its membership is now made up from four hundred to five hundred salesmen representing practically every line of merchandise sold in America, and up to date several thousand additional applications for membership have been received. The association will embrace the whole of the United States and Canada and will be open to travelers in any trade or industry, as well as to men or firms employing salesmen. Unlike other traveling men's organizations the association is to have no social or insurance features. It will devote itself entirely to efforts to better the conditions of the men on the road. Among other things it will seek lower railroad rates, changes in the rules regulating baggage and various improvements in the way of hotel accommodations.

PROGRESS OF CHURCH WORK.

Rev. H. H. Wikoff, of San Francisco, gave an illustrated lecture at the Congregational church, last night, on the subject, "Pilgrim Progress West of the Rockies." He exhibited many slides which were enjoyed by a large audience. The pictures gave an excellent idea of the progress of church work on the Pacific Coast.

FIGHTING FORCES OF MEXICO; THE NUMBERS ARE EXAGGERATED

Careful Estimates Show but 83,000 Men Under Arms.

Claims of Huerta, Carranza and Villa Are Wild.

THE avowed and clearly defined end of President Wilson's Mexican policy has been to supplant Huerta with a constitutional government in Mexico without recourse to force or armed intervention. If he succeeds the policy of "watchful waiting" he has been following will have been proved to be successful. If forcible intervention becomes a necessity his policy will not have been successful. Carranza and Villa have proved to be uncertain and undependable factors.

In the event intervention in Mexico is forced upon the United States in order to protect lives and property and to restore order in the troubled land to the south of us, what kind of an army or armies would this government be called upon to face?

Huerta, in true press agent fashion, has caused to be spread broadcast that he already has 150,000 men in the field and that he is soon to add another 50,000 to the number. Villa, the victorious bandit chieftain of the rebels of northern Mexico, has repeatedly boasted an army that varies in size according to his humor from 25,000 to 100,000, while Carranza every once in awhile adds many additional thousands to the figures of the bloodthirsty victor of Chihuahua.

German military authorities have attributed America's reluctance to resort to armed intervention south of the Rio

MEXICO'S THREE FATES—VILLA, HUERTA AND CARRANZA.

Grande to the realization of her hopelessly inferior military position and have stated that Huerta, despite his vicissitudes of the past year, had at his command a more effective force of artillery than that at the disposal of the entire war department of the United States, and the opinion was expressed that Huerta probably had a much larger force of armed troops at his disposal than America could put in the field.

All this is very interesting, but is it true? It certainly is not true that Huerta has an army of 100,000 men much less one of twice that number. As a matter of fact, he has not as many as 40,000, and those 40,000 are scattered from one end of Mexico to the other. As everybody familiar with Mexican conditions is fully aware, transportation conditions are absolutely paralyzed, and it would be practically impossible for Huerta to mobilize even 25,000 men in anything approaching a reasonably short time.

As for the Carranzistas, the Villaristas, the Obregonistas and the Zapatistas and all the other "istas" in Mexico, they have in the field a force which would total about 3,000 more men than Huerta could assemble at the present moment, provided means of mobilization were to be had—and they are not to be had.

The best information now in the possession of the United States government, compiled from reports by counsuls and other government agents and from other reliable sources to the department of state and from the reports of military men of this and other nations who are following the course of events in Mexico, indicates that Huerta has an armed force that is still loyal to the government in Mexico City of about 40,000, while the combined forces of all the rebel chieftains now operating in the revolution cursed republic total perhaps 43,000. This means that in Mexico today are about 83,000 men, almost equally divided between the so called Huerta government and the rebels, most of the latter being pretty well concentrated in the north of Mexico under the leadership of Villa and the lesser of the rebel leaders in Chihuahua, Sonora, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas and Durango. It is in the fact that their forces are more concentrated and accordingly more easily to be mobilized into a single army that the advantage of the rebels lies.

These are the facts of the case, and the numbers fighting in Mexico have been very greatly exaggerated. Intervention, of course, would be a very serious matter and, if it comes, will come only as a last resort, but it is well to know that the opposing forces in Mexico have been greatly exaggerated and that an army of pacification would not have to be anything like as large as has been generally supposed. General Winfield Scott conquered Mexico with only a few thousand men and had but little difficulty in overcoming superior Mexican forces opposed to him. History is not to repeat itself, and the American soldier of today is certainly no whit inferior to his predecessor of 1847.

As for the revolution as it is, it is a startling fact to find just about 1 per cent of the population is engaged in the struggle while the rest of the people are made to suffer through warfare waged by self seeking politicians. A great many of the fighting men were pressed into the service by force in the north and the south. They were content to remain out of the conflict. They sighed for no honors and bullets of the battlefield, but they were not permitted to remain at home in peace. Fearing death, they enlisted. They are always seeking an opportunity to desert.

Thousands of men in the cities have been picked up on the streets and compelled to enter the ranks. Even women are forced to go along with the soldiers to look after the food and other supplies. So there is little real patriotic spirit among the soldiers, and there cannot be in a war provoked and continued to satisfy the ambitions of a few selfish men. The strong men engaged in the conflict are remaining in the background. They seem to fear to speak or make any move that will result in good to Mexico. As an American student of the situation remarked, "Mexico is like a big balloon—it is full of gas, but there aren't enough men in the basket to guide it."

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

A PLATTER-CLOTH IN SHADOW EYELETS

A platter cloth should be embroidered on very heavy, round-thread linen so that it will be a real protection for the table-cloth. This pattern is sixteen and one-quarter by twenty-two inches; a good size for general use. The design is so simple and conventional that it may be used with other linens which may not be decorated with the same motif. Work the scalloped edge in well-padded buttonhole-stitch with number twenty white mercerized cotton, and if you like to make the platter cloth double so that a protector of asbestos or fibre can be slipped inside. Buttonhole the two pieces of material together, finishing one with buttons and loops or a flap on the under side. The design should be worked in solid embroidery and shadow eyelets, which are easier to do than the usual eyelets, and more effective. You will find directions and diagrams for making them on the pattern envelope.

A complete assortment of transfer patterns will be found in the Embroidery Book, which illustrates over 500 designs for embroidering initials, scalloped borders, dress trimmings, waists, underwear, neckwear children's clothes, infants' garments and household linens. It will be sent to readers on receipt of price, 8 cents.

Guaranteed hot-iron transfer pattern 14397 can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

TOMATOES AND MEAT.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Cereal, Cream.
Tomatoes and Bacon.
French Fried Potatoes.
Corn Bread.
Cafe au Lait.

ONE of the most useful summer vegetables is the tomato. Not only may it alone be cooked in many appetizing ways, but it combines nicely with other foods. Tomatoes combined with fish or meats make a wholesome summer dish.

Combined With Fish.

Tomatoes With Fish.—Lay alternate slices of canned tunny and fresh tomato upon a dish and between each slice lay a thin round of onion. Garnish the edge of the dish with a border of sliced cooked, cold potato. Sprinkle the whole with salad dressing.

Tomatoes and Bacon.—Take large, ripe tomatoes and cut them into thick slices. Butter a broiler lightly and broil the slices of tomatoes over a clear fire. Arrange on a hot dish, sprinkle with pepper and place on each a slice of tomato and a slice or two of crisp fried bacon.

Baked In the Oven.

Tomatoes and Eggs.—Take some good sized tomatoes, but not too ripe, remove stalks, halve and seed them season with pepper and oil, place them on a greased pan, then add some minced mushrooms with a little onion and simmer in an uncovered pan with a small piece of butter. Moisten bread in a little stock veal, then crush and break up with a spoon. Add the yolks of two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Remove the mushrooms from the fire and add the above mixture, stirring well. Then garnish each tomato with the mixture. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs, add a few drops of oil and cook in a slow oven for about an hour.

Nice Supper Dish.

Tomatoes and Beef.—Take ripe but solid tomatoes and dredge them with flour. Put a tablespoonful of butter in an agate frying pan and when melted add the tomatoes. Stir and cook smooth. Let cook about five minutes. Have half a pound of dried beef chipped as thin as possible and shredded. Add this to the tomatoes and simmer gently for a few minutes and serve. A green pepper with seeds removed and shredded is a nice addition and gives a bit of color.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Fairies' Party For The Robins.

Each Robin Was Given a Basket.

"DADDY," said Evelyn as daddy came up the stairs ready to tell the children the usual bedtime story, "I saw several robins yesterday and forgot to tell you about them."

"Yes," chimed in Jack; "they were trying to sing and be cheerful, but they looked as if they felt rather cold."

"Well, you know," said daddy, "I think the early comers feel pretty chilly and cheerless, but I must tell you of something that happened today that made them feel happier.

"This was what is was: The queen of the fairies sent me a little wireless message to tell you, for she said she had seen you two children looking at the robins and feeling so sorry for them. So a splendid idea struck her.

"The fairies invited the early robins to a party. They had discovered that some of the robins had already moved near their favorite home. Of course, you know, the fairies have a great many homes."

"It was this afternoon that they had the party, you said, daddy?" repeated Evelyn.

"Yes," said daddy; "I think if you see them tomorrow you'll find them really singing with much more joy."

"What happened at the party?" asked Jack.

"I'll tell you," said daddy. "The robins were invited to be at the party at 3 o'clock. They spent the whole morning getting ready. They smoothed their feathers before a little brook where the sun was shining. It made a fine mirror, and they fussed until they really did look very fine. When they arrived at the place where the fairies had told them to be they saw not a sign of a fairy.

"The place was very beautiful. All around were lovely little white statues. They looked so pretty on the new, soft, green moss. But the robins thought how very funny it was to have everything ready and no fairies in sight, for they were sure the statues were put there by the fairies to make the party especially attractive. They asked each other if they could have mistaken the hour for which they were invited.

"In another moment, though, the little statues were dancing and singing. And there was such excitement among the robins, for the fairies had fixed themselves up as statues and given the robins a real surprise. The fairies did entertain the robins delightfully.

"Then the robins cheered up, and they sang too. After the party was over the fairies gave the robins little straw baskets to carry home in their beaks. These were full of the finest new, fat spring worms."

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

Prof. A. B. Meredith will make an address at the Parent-Teacher meeting tonight in the High School library.

The literature table will be literally stacked with good things. Fifty copies of "Health and Hygiene," a magazine much in demand, will be there.

A box of literature on "Humane Education" has been sent us by Miss Yarrow, of the Philadelphia Humane Society, for free distribution. A number of paper-bound books and stories will be given away, such as the following: "Black Beauty," "The Strike at Shanes," "The Lady of the Robins," a romance of New York's 400; "For Pity's Sake," and Bernard Shaw's much talked-of work, "The Doctor's Dilemma," also the Angell Prize Contest Recitations. The New Jersey Vivisection Investigation Society gave us a generous supply of leaflets, exposing the horrors of vivisection. These will be given away. This humane literature should reach every house, for if a child is taught to be kind to dumb creatures, he is forming a habit which will lead him to be kind and merciful in his dealings with men and all living things in after years.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox has a most convincing article on the cruelties and uselessness of vivisection in the March Cosmopolitan.

In the March Nantilus Magazine published in Holyoke, Mass., Orison Sweet Marden writes a delightful article under the caption, "Happy Childhood Makes Efficient Manhood." He makes this statement: "If children are allowed to give vent to all that is joyous and happy and spontaneous in their natures, they will be infinitely more likely to blossom out into helpful men and women, instead of sedate, suppressed, sad-faced individuals. There is many a poor wretch in the failure army today who can trace his failure and disappointment to early discouragement.

"A poor boy who had been taken from the slums to a boy's farm home and who had been told all his life that he was good for nothing, said to the other boys: 'I dunno nothin' and I allus did. My parents allus told me I was nobody and never would be.'

"It is criminal to make a child think he can never make anything of himself. Children are very easily discouraged; their progress is to a great extent dependent upon praise. Parents or teachers should see the ideal side—the best things in children, and dwell on these."

Children by their innocence, their simplicity, their frankness, their trustfulness, the spontaneity of their lives, teach us something—something also by their faults. For in their faults we can often, if we will, see our own reproduced. They give back to us what we have given them, love for love, service for service, pride for pride, vanity for vanity, selfishness for selfishness. The shadows that we see upon our children's hearts are the shadows that we ourselves have cast there. The mother comes from the party to talk about the glory of a new dress, and then rebukes the little girl for boasting of her new shoes or her new frock. The father at the table commends himself for the shrewd device by which he has made money out of another's loss and then scolds the elder brother for greed in over-reaching the younger one. We have differnet names for the same qualities when we see them in ourselves and in our children. It is a decent regard to appearances in the mother; it is vanity in the child. It is tact in the father; it is lying in the child. It is discretion in the father; it is cowardice in the child. If you do not like the pictures that you see on the screen, correct the screen, for what you see is that which you yourself have cast upon the little life God has put in your keeping. If you reprobate or dread the fault in your child, scrutinize your own life and see whether there be not there a greater sin to be throttled.—Lyman Abbott, in Outlook.

LEHIGH VALLEY PUTS NOVEL TUG IN COMMISSION

A tug that will be able to take off its hat, so to speak, and bow to the bridges as it passes under them, has been launched by the Lehigh Valley Railroad for use in New York harbor. It has been named characteristically "The Black Diamond," and as far as capacity goes, will be a sister tug to the "Auburn," which is the most efficient tug for its size in New York harbor. It can take two of the biggest carfloats, one on each side, and shove them up-stream against the current when the river is jammed with ice.

Tugs that have their smoke stacks on hinges are common enough, and no novelty, but one that takes its smoke stack off complete and politely, will be something new to New York.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

A very serviceable apron is shown in No. 8247. It is suitable for gingham, madras, cotton crepe or figured calico and is ample enough to serve as a house dress as well as an apron.

If preferred the sleeve may be omitted and the neck cut lower in a round or square effect. Soutache braid or the old fashioned white cotton rickrack make very effective trimming for a garment of this description if trimming is desired.

To make this apron in size 36, 4 yards of 36 inch material will be necessary. If made without the sleeves, 3¼ yards will suffice.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes; 32 to 44.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

CONTROVERSY IS EXPECTED OVER SELECTION OF BISHOP

Trenton, March 19—It is regarded as not improbable that the death of Bishop Scarborough may precipitate an interesting ecclesiastical controversy when the time comes for the selection of his successor. Although the actual election may be deferred until the fall, it is accepted as likely that the subject will be given serious consideration at the diocesan convention that will meet May 12 in St. Michael's church, this city.

Some delegates to the convention think that after the regular business has been concluded a brief adjournment, perhaps to a date in June, will be taken for the purpose of considering the selection of a bishop. Others are inclined to the belief that the choice will be deferred until the fall.

It is not an unlikely inference that there will be some conflict at the convention between high and low churchmen. There have already been indications of such differences in the diocese, although they have not been so marked as might be expected where the selection of a bishop is involved. Although the tendency of many of the larger churches in the diocese is toward high church ideas, the low churchmen are sufficiently numerous to make it almost certain that the new bishop will not be an extremist as a high churchman.

In view of the situation it would not be surprising if, as in the case of Bishop Scarborough, selection were made from outside of the diocese. It is probable that some support, at least, will develop in favor of Rev. R. Bowden Shepherd, archdeacon of the diocese, and now a resident of this city.

The Abysmal Brute

CHAPTER XII.

THE audience broke loose. It had already seen more than it had paid to see, for the great Jim Hanford, the world champion, had been knocked out. It was unofficial, but it had been with a single punch.

Never had there been such a night in fistiana. Glendon looked ruefully at his damaged knuckles, cast a glance through the ropes to where Hanford was groggily coming to and held up his hands.

He had clinched his right to be heard, and the audience grew still.

"When I began to fight," he said, "they called me 'One Punch Glendon.' You saw that punch a moment ago. I always had that punch. I went after my men and got them on the jump, though I was careful not to hit with all my might.

"Then I was educated. My manager told me it wasn't fair to the crowd. He advised me to make long fights so that the crowd could get a run for its money. I was a fool, a mutt. I was a green lad from the mountains. So help me God, I swallowed it as the truth.

"My manager used to talk over with me what round I would put my man out in. Then he tipped it off to the betting syndicate, and the betting syndicate went to it. Of course you paid.

"But I am glad for one thing. I never touched a cent of the money. They didn't dare offer it to me because they knew it would give the game away.

"You remember my fight with Nat Powers. I never knocked him out. I had got suspicious. So the gang framed it up with him. I didn't know. I intended to let him go a couple of rounds over the sixteenth. That last punch in the sixteenth didn't shake him. But he faked the knock out, just the same, and fooled all of you."

"How about tonight?" a voice called out. "Is it a frameup?"

"It is," was Glendon's answer. "How's the syndicate betting? That Cannam will last to the fourteenth."

Howls and hoots went up. For the last time Glendon held up his hand for silence.

"I'm almost done now. But I want to tell you one thing. The syndicate gets landed tonight. This is to be a square fight. Tom Cannam won't last till the fourteenth round. He won't last the first round."

Cannam sprang to his feet in his corner and cried out in a fury:

"You can't do it! The man don't live who can get me in one round!"

Glendon ignored him and went on.

"Once now in my life I have struck with all my strength. You saw that a moment ago when I caught Hanford.

"Tonight, for the second time, I am going to hit with all my strength—that is, if Cannam doesn't jump through the ropes right now and get away. And now I'm ready."

He went to his corner and held out his hands for his gloves. In the opposite corner Cannam raged while his seconds tried vainly to calm him.

At last Billy Morgan managed to make the final announcement.

"This will be a forty-five round contest!" he shouted. "Marquis of Queensbury rules! And may the best man win! Let her go!"

The gong struck. The two men advanced. Glendon's right hand was extended for the customary shake, but Cannam, with an angry toss of the head, refused to take it.

To the general surprise he did not rush. Angry though he was, he fought carefully, his touched pride impelling him to bend every effort to last out the round. Several times he struck, but he struck cautiously, never relaxing his defense.

Glendon hunted him about the ring, ever advancing with the remorseless tap-tap of his left foot. Yet he struck no blows nor attempted to strike. He even dropped his hands to his sides and hunted the other defenselessly in an effort to draw him out.

Cannam grinned defiantly, but declined to take advantage of the proffered opening.

Two minutes passed, and then a change came over Glendon. By every muscle, by every line of his face, he advertised that the moment had come for him to get his man.

Acting it was, and it was well acted. He seemed to have become a thing of steel, as hard and pitiless as steel. The effect was apparent on Cannam, who redoubled his caution.

Glendon quickly worked him into a corner and herded and held him there. Still he struck no blow nor attempted to strike, and the suspense on Cannam's part grew painful.

In vain he tried to work out of the corner, while he could not summon resolution to rush upon his opponent in an attempt to gain the respite of a clinch.

Then it came—a swift series of simple feints that were muscle flashes. Cannam was dazzled. So was the audience. No two of the onlookers could agree afterward as to what took place.

Cannam ducked one feint and at the same time threw up his face guard to meet another feint for his jaw. He also attempted to change position with his legs.

Ringside witnesses swore that they saw Glendon start the blow from his right hip and leap forward like a tiger to add the weight of his body to it. Be that as it may, the blow caught Cannam on the point of the chin at the moment of his shift of position.

And, like Hanford, he was unconscious in the air before he struck the ropes and fell through on the heads of the reporters.

Of what happened afterward that night in the Golden Gate arena columns in the newspapers were unable adequately to describe. The police kept the ring clear, but they could not save the arena.

It was not a riot; it was an orgy. Not a seat was left standing.

All over the great hall by main strength, crowding and jostling to lay hands on the beams and boards, the crowd uprooted and overturned.

Prizefighters sought protection of the police. But there were not enough police to escort them out, and fighters, managers and promoters were beaten and battered.

Jim Hanford alone was spared. His jaw, prodigiously swollen, earned him this mercy.

Outside, when finally driven from the building, the crowd fell upon a new $7,000 motorcar belonging to a well known fight promoter and reduced it to scrap iron and kindling wood.

Glendon, unable to dress amid the wreckage of dressing rooms, gained his automobile, still in his ring costume and wrapped in a bath robe, but failed to escape.

By weight of numbers the crowd caught and held his machine. The police were too busy to rescue him, and in the end a compromise was effected whereby the car was permitted to proceed at a walk, escorted by 5,000 cheering madmen.

It was midnight when this storm swept past Union square and down upon the St. Francis. Cries for a speech went up, and, though at the hotel entrance, Glendon was good naturedly restrained from escaping.

He even tried leaping out upon the heads of the enthusiasts, but his feet never touched the pavement. On heads and shoulders, clutched at and uplifted by every hand that could touch his body, he went back through the air to the machine.

Then he gave his speech, and Maud Glendon, looking down from an upper window at her young Hercules towering on the seat of the automobile, knew, as she always knew, that he meant it when he repeated that he had fought his last fight and retired from the ring forever.

SENATOR JONES.

Severely Criticises Wilson's Policy on Free Tolls Bill.

© by Chinedinst.

Defense of exemption from tolls for American coastwise ships passing through the Panama canal and strong criticism of President Wilson for urging repeal of that exemption were made in the senate by Senator Jones of Washington. "We are expected," he said, "in schoolboy fashion to do as we are told and ask no questions. The president's message," he added, "was not only remarkable for its lack of facts, dearth of reason and for the sublime assurance of the schoolmaster that the boys would do what he wants, but is more remarkable for its conclusion."

U. S. COURT UPHOLDS MARCONI'S PATENTS

Rivals' Use of Wireless Devices an Infringement.

New York, March 19.—Judge Veeder in the United States district court in Brooklyn recognized the validity of the wireless telegraph patents of Guglielmo Marconi, and if the decision is sustained the Italian inventor will probably have a monopoly of the world's commercial wireless telegraphy.

Millions of dollars in royalties depend upon the ultimate issue of the case of the Marconi Wireless Telegraphy Company of America, which controls all the Marconi patents here, against the National Electric Signaling company, in which Judge Veeder had just filed his opinion. It is said that even the United States government itself will be found to have infringed.

According to Judge Veeder's decision all of the wireless telegraph concerns now operating in this country have infringed upon Marconi's patents and that of Sir Oliver Lodge, the noted British scientist. The Lodge patent is owned by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America.

Judge Veeder holds that to Marconi and Sir Oliver Lodge belongs the credit of practical radio telegraphy.

Marconi is now for the first time unquestionably recognized as the man who made wireless possible. And, according to directors of the company, this is the first time Marconi is assured of any real financial returns upon his invention.

The patents in question are those granted to Sir Oliver Lodge on Aug. 16, 1898, and to Guglielmo Marconi, June 28, 1904. The former covered the use of self inductance coils between two capacities, and the latter is for what is known in wireless parlance as "four circuit tuning."

SEARCH FOR THE DEAD.

Falling Wall After St. Louis Fire Killed Six Persons.

St. Louis, March 19.—Search for the six persons missing and supposed to be under the wreckage of the St. Louis Seed company building was resumed. Three men and one woman are known to have lost their lives when the west wall of the Missouri A. C. crashed down upon the seed shop, burying a full score or more persons beneath the ruins. Twelve persons are known to have been injured. Three bodies have been recovered, and the fourth has been located.

Although other sections of the Missouri A. C. walls threatened at any time to collapse, the police had to fight back the crowd of curious who threatened to invade the ruins of the seed store to view the rescue work. Two other persons are missing.

MAYORALTY FIGHT IS NEARING AN END

Milwaukee in the Midst of a Bitter Political Campaign.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 19.—The bitterest political campaign in the history of Milwaukee is rapidly near an end. Only three days remain in which the aspirants for office may make their final appeals to the people who will select their candidates at the primary election to be held next Tuesday.

The great fight is for the mayoralty, and though the primary is only for the purpose of selecting the nominees it is believed that the results of the primary vote will indicate rather conclusively who is to be the next mayor.

The big point at issue in the mayoralty contest is whether the city shall continue under a non-partisan administration or return to the old Socialist regime. In 1909 the Socialist party was victorious in the municipal elections and elected Emil Seidel to the mayor's chair. It was the first time in the history of the country that any city of the size of Milwaukee had come under the control of the Socialists and in consequence the administration of Mayor Seidel was watched with close interest. Mayor Seidel, possibly because of conditions over which he had no control, failed to bring about any of the so-called reforms in municipal government that had been promised in his campaign for election. His administration failed to please the majority of the people and at the expiration of his two-year term Seidel was defeated for re-election.

Seidel was succeeded in the mayoralty in 1912 by Gerhard A. Bading, who was a candidate on a non-partisan ticket and elected on a platform that promised, first of all, efficiency and economy in the administration of the city affairs. Milwaukee has now had two years of non-partisan government and at the primaries next Tuesday the voters will decide whether they desire to continue it. Mayor Bading is a candidate for renomination and Emil Seidel, as the standard-bearer of the Socialist party, is again his principal opponent.

The supporters of Mayor Bading declare that the results of the two years of non-partisan government have been so generally satisfactory that the administration should be indorsed by an overwhelming vote of the people in favor of Bading's renomination. The claim is made that during the two years of non-partisan rule the city taxes have been decreased materially despite the fact that more streets and other improvements have been made than during any two previous administrations. It is further claimed that the public finances are now on a sounder basis than ever before in the history of the city.

But despite these assertions in his behalf the present administration every member of which is seeking re-election, faces formidable opposition. As already pointed out this opposition comes principally from the Socialist element. Seidel is held up as the candidate of the masses, while Bading is contrasted as the choice of the privileged classes.

The large Socialist vote is expected to be solidly behind Seidel, while the opposition will be handicapped by the fact that two other candidates are in the field to split up the Bading vote. These two candidates are former Mayor David S. Rose and former Congressman Theobald Otjen. Rose filled the mayor's chair for five terms and for many years was one of the foremost political figures in Milwaukee. Soon after the expiration of his last term he went West and was absent from the city for several years. Since his return he has been conducting a vigorous campaign for the mayoralty nomination. But political conditions in the city have undergone momentous changes since he held sway and it is considered doubtful if he can muster a sufficient number of his former followers to land him the nomination.

Former Congressman Otjen is not expected to figure conspicuously in the results of the contests. He is the owner of considerable property on the South Side and his candidacy is the result chiefly of the opposition that has developed among the people of this section of the city to a sewerage project that is fathered by the Bading administration.

The issues of the campaign are clear-cut. Mayor Bading stands on the same non-partisan platform on which he was first elected. Seidel, the Socialist candidate, advocates municipal ownership of public service corporations. Rose promises millions of dollars' worth of public improvements and a reduction of one-third in the tax rate, with the further intimation that his election will mean a return to the "good old times" that prevailed during his former administrations. Otjen stands upon his record as a citizen and his opposition to the location of the proposed sewage disposal plant.

PASSES ANOTHER MILESTONE.

Washington, D.C., March 19—William J. Bryan added another year to his age today, having been born March 19, 1860. Many men prominent in public life called at the office of the Secretary of State during the day to offer their congratulations, while from all parts of the country a countless number of letters and messages poured in from personal friends and admirers of Mr. Bryan who were unable to extend their greetings in person.

GAVE "500" PARTY.

Mrs. William Naschwitz entertained several friends at a "500" party at her home in Depot Park, yesterday afternoon. The affair was in the nature of a St. Patrick's Day reception, the decorations being appropriate to the day. The guests included Mrs. William Woodruff, Miss Anna Boss, Miss Nell Merrill, Miss Isabelle Randolph, Miss Myrtle Reynolds, Mrs. Wendel Mosher, Mrs. Edward J. Smalley.

Rev. W. W. Newbury, of Newark, will continue the series of Bible lessons at the corner of Duer street and Craig place, tomorrow at 3:30 and 7:45 o'clock.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color. Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

'TRADE IN OUR TOWN' A SLOGAN

Suggested at Banquet of Somerville Merchants' Association.

DISCUSS CIVIC AFFAIRS

Plainfielders Among Speakers at Annual Event at that Place—F. G. Thomas, President of Association, Toastmaster.

Somerville, March 20.—The banquet, held under the auspices of the Somerville Merchants' Association, last night, at the Country Club, was one of the best thus far held by this growing organization. The trips to and from the clubhouse were made in John Frech's old time stages. The menu provided was pronounced excellent by all present. Tables for the dinner were spread in the new dining room recently added to this popular clubhouse, the table at the north side of the room being occupied by the officers of the association and the guests of the evening.

President F. G. Thomas presided as toastmaster, and introduced in happy vein the speakers of the evening. William Jeffery, president of the Plainfield Board of Trade, gave some excellent advice as to what the Somerville organization could do in bettering the civic affairs of the town, particularly as to the schools, borough government and affairs. Former Judge Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, spoke forcibly of the needs of Somerville, and brought to the attention of the members what could be done for the betterment of Somerville by united effort through organization. A. E. Force, president of the Plainfield Merchants' Association, gave a heart to heart talk to the members as merchants, and endeavored to show, and did show them how they could best conduct their business to the best advantage.

The last speaker of the evening was C. H. Dunning, a recent addition to the population of Somerville, who gave an instructive talk on "Advertising," using plain, but forcible language, and his address was well received and many of the ideas advanced by him will no doubt be adopted by the merchants in conducting their advertising campaigns.

He advised the adoption of a slogan by the merchants, for use in their "ads." and also to be placed on billboards about the town, particularly on roads leading to Somerville. He aptly suggested the slogan, "Trade in Our Town—Somerville," and this met with instant favor by his hearers, and no doubt will be taken up by the Merchants' Association.

"Will" Lyle, the blackface comedian, furnished entertainment. During the progress of the dinner an orchestra of five pieces rendered a number of selections.

The Plainfielders who attended the banquet were William Jeffery, A. E Force, Herman Schwed, Samuel Rothberg, Morris C. Van Arsdale, J. H. DeMott.

THE VALUE OF MOTION PICTURES IN EDUCATION

Herbert E. Parker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., addressed the directors of the Elizabeth Y. M. C.A., last night, on "How the Association May Utilize the Educational Possibilities of the Motion Picture," his talk being largely from his experience in the association work in this city.

The Elizabeth directors were so convinced of the value of the motion pictures in association work that they decided to provide a full equipment at once and use the pictures as a means of education in the work being carried on in Elizabeth.

The officers were elected as follows: President, Miss Agnes Leighs; vice-president, Miss Josephine Snyder; secretary, David Wardrop; treasurer, Thomas Heron; corresponding secretary, Miss Elizabeth Becker.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK ON EDUCATION

Prof. A. B. Meredith Addresses Parent-Teacher Association.

One of the most successful and interesting meetings of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Plainfield High School, was held at the High School, last night, when following an instructive talk by Prof. A. B. Meredith, assistant State Commissioner of Education, on "High School Education," there was a helpful conference of parents and teachers regarding the work of children in the High School. Mr. Meredith presented many valuable suggestions which it is believed will assist the parents who have children in the higher grades.

The conference of parents and teachers also proved helpful. These meetings are more and more becoming an exceptional opportunity for parents to keep in touch with the work their children are doing and it is believed will prove of great benefit.

Those present last night were much interested in inspecting recreation furniture which has been installed in one of the rooms. These chairs and desks are made so that the children can move about at will and are far more comfortable than the old style furniture. The chairs and desks will be given a month's trial and if they prove satisfactory they will be used in all of the class rooms The parents who inspected the furniture last night seemed to be well pleased.

REGIMENTAL DRILL FOR CIVIC AFFAIR

New Features Being Added to Fourth of July Program for Parker Field.

Suggestions relative to the civic celebration proposed for Plainfield on Independence Day have begun to pour into the hands of those at the helm and additional features have been added to those announced in this paper yesterday. Many valuable hints have been submitted by those who desire to see the project made a grand success and the co-operation so necessary for the success of a thing of this nature has been assured.

One of the brilliant features of the occasion promises to be a regimental drill in which the members of Company K, Second Regiment, of this city, will be the participants. When approached on the subject, Captain Peterson expressed himself as being heartily in accord with such a feature and this number will probably be added to the program for July 4. Whether the drill will be held in the morning or afternoon remains to be decided but present indications favor the holding of the drill in the morning during the novelty events.

The soldiers will appear in full regalia and will go through a number of army manoeuvres. The centre portion of Parker Field, enclosed by the saucer track, offers an excellent place for such a drill and could be utilized for this purpose while other events are being run on the cinder path.

RECEPTION AND DANCE TO BE HOUSEWARMING AFFAIR

The annual reception and dance of the Plainfield High School Alumni Association which is usually held during February will take place this year as soon as the new auditorium in the High School building is completed. It is expected that the affair will be an unusually large one as it will be somewhat in the nature of a housewarming in celebration of the High School's new equipment.

No definite date has been set for the reception and dance owing to the uncertainty as regards the completion of the work of alteration that is going on at the High School.

The annual meeting of the association and the prize speaking contest will also be deferred until the new auditorium is available.

To Whom It My Concern.

M. A. Parrott, who has been employed as a reporter for the Daily Press for six weeks, is no longer connected with this newspaper, and the Plainfield Press Company will not be responsible for any act of his whatsoever. Persons are warned against giving him money or anything else on the claim that he is employed by the Daily Press.—Adv. 3 20 2 ***

DEMOCRACY OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Miss Fola LaFollette Says the Struggle is for Enlarged Opportunities.

BALLOT GIVES POWER

Leisure is Given Women in Trust for Society—Speaker Miss Elizabeth Ogden Also Addresses the Meeting.

Miss Fola LaFollette, daughter of United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, addressed a gathering of more than three hundred people in Columbus Auditorium, last night, on "The Democracy of Woman's Suffrage." The meeting was held under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and was considered one of the most successful of the many arranged by the league. Miss LaFollette held the close attention of the audience for more than an hour, and after the meeting many remained to enjoy an informal discussion.

"The only real thoughtful reason against woman suffrage," said Miss LaFollette, "is disbelief in Democracy. The struggle of women for votes is merely the next step in the struggle for enlarged human opportunity and is not a struggle of one sex against the other." Miss LaFollette spoke of the unprecented number of women of leisure at the present time, and referred to the leisure as given to them in trust for society, and urged them to think of it in this way.

Her main appeal was for an opportunity for woman to serve through the ballot in doing the same work for society which she used to do in the home. The industrial revolution has deprived her of her opportunity to minister to the needs of her children as she used to do. The ballot alone can restore this power to her

Mrs. Champlain L. Riley introduced the speakers. Preceding Miss LaFollette, Miss Esther G. Ogden, vice chairman of the joint legislative committee, spoke on the successful passage of the "Suffrage Resolution" through the Legislature, the vote this year being larger than that taken a year ago, being 49 to 4 in the Assembly, and 15 to 3 in the Senate.

Miss Ogden also brought out the fact that the labor unions of the State, through the "Labor Advocate" of Elizabeth, severely criticised Assemblyman Leonard for espousing the anti-suffrage cause.

Announcement was made of the organization of the Junior League of Plainfield and of the Equal Suffrage League of Watchung. It was also announced that a Union county conference is to be held in the Public Library at 2 o'clock on Thursday March 26, to consider the best method of campaign work.

RUNAWAY ENDANGERS LIVES IN WILD RUN

Two Steeds Race Through Business Section—Some Narrow Escapes.

The lives of many pedestrians and other people in vehicles of various sorts were endangered shortly after noon today by two runaways in the business section. Fortunately both passed along without serious accident or any great damage.

The first flight was that of a team of horses belonging to the Siegel-Cooper-Greenhut Company, and attached to one of the concern's big wagons. The animals took fright on Madison avenue, near Fourth street, while the driver was in a house. They ran at top speed north, crossing Second and Front streets safely, although several collisions were barely averted. The team continued running as far as Greenbrook road, where they were brought to a halt.

A short time after the New York rig had passed by, a horse belonging to Ercole Brancati, of Terrill road, came careening into town, with an overturned two-wheeled gig dragging at its heels. The runaway started at Terrill road and continued down East Second street, crossing Watchung avenue, Park avenue, and other cross streets without harm, but fetched up with a crash against a post in front of the Central Publishing Company's place on Central avenue. The horse was uninjured but the vehicle was badly wrecked.

TO UNVEIL TABLET.

The Daughters of the American Revolution will unveil the tablet that is to be placed on the Public Service Corporation building in New Brunswick marking the site of Washington's headquarters on Friday afternoon, April 3. The dedication exercises will be conduted in the First M. E. church, the speaker of the occasion being ex-Governor J. Franklin Fort.

FIND AN INSURANCE POLICY FOR $3,500

Godfrey Reick Not in Destitute Circumstances as Supposed.

Godfrey Reick, whose funeral was held at 200 West Second street, yesterday afternoon, following his untimely death at Ballston Spa, N. Y., was a former resident of Plainfield and for several years was employed by the late Seymour G. Smith. He had been living on a farm at Ballston Spa for the past seven or eight years. Following the death of his second wife, Mr. Reick lived alone and the fact that he was dead was discovered by George Lawyer, a neighbor, who went to visit the man.

John Reick, a brother of the dead man, who lives at Scotch Plains, made a search of the premises and found in addition to $7 on the body, three $1 bills, a bank book and a paid-up life insurance policy for $3,500. All the circumstances point to the fact that Mr. Reick's death was from natural causes. He owned a cow, which was found in a starving condition in a barn and a calf was also found strangled to death. The burial of Mr. Reick was in Hillside cemetery.

FUNERAL OF DAVID J. CARNEY IS HELD

Prominent Personages Attend Obsequies at St. Joseph's Church.

The funeral service of David J Carney, former editor of The Review, was held at 9 o'clock this morning a St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many men prominent in local, county and State affairs. Among those present were David E. Crater, Secretary of State former United States Senator James E. Smith, Jr.; while there were also present a large delegation from Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O E., as well as borough and city officials. There was a wealth of floral tributes from relatives and friends and the Elks.

Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, conducted a high mass of requiem, and preached the sermon. He was assisted by Father Poli. Father Miller's sermon was an impressive one, in which he urged all to be prepared for the last call. Mrs Venenze presided at the organ, during the mass.

The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the pall-bearers, all personal friends of Mr. Carney were Judge William A. Coddington, former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Julius M. Williams, George Andrews, Morris C VanArsdale and Hyman Adelberg.

COURT SUSTAINS IRA G. HULBERT'S WILL

Mrs. Myra Gillman Will Get Property of Adopted Father.

Elizabeth, March 20.—Judge James C. Connolly in the Orphans Court, here, today, dismissed the caveat filed against the will of Ira G. Hulbert, of Plainfield, by John M. Hulbert, of Newark, and Mrs. Jennie Clarkson, of Rahway, in their contest of the will and codicil, the decision being in favor of Mrs. Myra Gillman, of Newark, an adopted daughter of Mr. Hulbert, to whom he left his estate. Judge Connolly sustained the will, it being his opinion that Mrs. Gillman was entitled to the property. The contestants were nephew and niece of the deceased.

Mr. Hulbert died in Plainfield on New Year's Day last, aged 81 years. He lived on West Front street, that city. His property is said to be worth about $5,000. His will was witnessed by John A. Worth and E. A. Marsh. Shortly after his death steps were taken by John M. Hulbert and Mrs. Clarkson to break the will and prevent Mrs. Gillman from getting the property, which had been left to her by Mr. Hulbert.

LADIES' AID MEETING.

The Ladies Aid Society of Hope chapel held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon, the reports of the various officers being read. A most encouraging report was presented by the treasurer, showing that the society has experienced a very prosperous year. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Thomas Hendry; vice-president, Mrs. James Heron; secretary, Mrs. Ferdinand Denklau; treasurer, Mrs. Donald McInnes.

SIMPLE LIFE FOR HEIR TO $30,000

Edward Riley Returns From Virginia Where He Investigated Terms of Will.

WILL PURCHASE LIVERY

Back in Plainfield to Stay—To Dispose of Property Worth $10,000—Sixty Days will Elapse Before He Collects Residue from Estate.

Susceptible to the taunts of his friends, many of whom looked upon the announcement of a bequest left him by his uncle as a practical joke, Edward Riley, of 140 East Second street, went to his former home in Warranton, Va., to ascertain the exact circumstances surrounding the case and has just returned to Plainfield with some legal facts that make him heir to about $30,000 in property and cash. He is the sold benefactor in the will of Thomas Riley, of Waterloo, Va., and came into possession of knowledge that led to his trip to Virginia through a news item published exclusively in the Plainfield Press, February 13.

Riley has been an orphan since he was two years of age and left Virginia six years ago. When his uncle died he was left heir to the large fortune, but his whereabouts were at that time unknown. A story published in this paper regarding the windfall left to the missing Edward Riley was brought to his attention and an investigation followed revealing the facts of the case as published, to be true.

He accordingly left for Virginia and engaged counsel to prove his identity. He encountered little difficulty in making himself known and sixty days from March 1 will come into possession of the estate, this lapse of two months being merely a formality required by the laws of Virginia. The windfall includes $20,000 in cash and $10,000 in real estate consisting of 296 acres of land and four buildings. The land is valued at $50 and acre, according to Riley, and he intends to dispose of the real estate either in its entirety or in small plots and is at the present time interviewing prospective purchasers. The houses are about sixteen miles from Warranton and five miles from a railroad.

Riley, who is fifty-eight years of age, will return to Plainfield and live the "simple life" according to a statement he made this morning. He is married and at present lives on East Second street. When questioned regarding his plans for the future he stated that he would first buy a comfortable dwelling and settle down for life. Although he will have enough money to put him on "easy street," the heir claims he wants something to occupy his time and contemplates the purchasing of a livery stable business in Plainfield which he will conduct in the future.

When originally informed of his bequest Mr. Riley was not inclined to look upon it seriously as he and his uncle had never been on the best of terms and he left home following a quarrel with the relative. After coming East the Plainfield man lost all track of his uncle and as a consequence did not hear of his death in the South.

HERBERT SCHINKEL DEAD BY DROWNING

Former Local Boy Met End When Canoe Capsized at Englewood.

Herbert Schinkel, son of John C. Schinkel, for several years a resident of this city, was drowned on Sunday in the Hackensack river, near Englewood. Word of his death reached Plainfield this morning. The Schinkel family moved to New York several months ago, after the O. X. O. bread business was discontinued in this city, but Herbert, who was employed as apprentice in the Daily Press office, continued to commute to Plainfield from Manhattan. The young man had a large number of friends in this city, who will be surprised to learn of his death, as he was of a very likeable character, steady and honest. He was active in baseball and athletics, having played baseball on the Netherwood Athletic Club team. Before working in Plainfield, he was employed on the New York Press.

Young Schinkel left the Press about a month ago to take a similar position in New York. While employed here he saved part of his wages each week to buy a canoe, and it was this that caused his death. He was out in it on the Hackensack river last Sunday, when it capsized, and before anyone could reach him he was drowned.

Funeral services were held yesterday from his late home, 307 West 24th street, New York city, and the burial was at the Lutheran cemetery in Brooklyn.

THIS PARROTT SURELY WAS A REGULAR "BIRD"

Reporter Failed to Pay Hotel and Other Bills and Quit Job Suddenly.

M. A. Parrott, for the last six weeks employed by the Daily Press as a reporter, is no longer connected with this newspaper. A number of peole about town are looking for him with considerable interest, as is also the case in New York. Since he came here he succeeded in running up bills at two local hotels and elsewhere and passing a bad check, and yesterday a phone message was received from a New York hotel that he had departed from it without settling with the cashier.

Parrott was engaged upon apparently oog recommendations. Soon after coming to Plainfield he started a plan to publish a "Plainfield Magazine," but as it was not wished to identify this newspaper with anything of the kind he was notified to discontinue such work. In the meantime he apparently has been proceeding with the plan "on the quiet." On Washington's Birthday he came to the Queen City Hotel with a woman whom he said was his wife, and ran up a bill which he was unable to pay, and has not since settled, although repeatedly saying that he would be in funds to do so. He also passed a check at the Kensington Hotel which was later returned as "No good."

Last week Wednesday morning he placed an advertisement in the New York World for a young man who could put up a cash bond of $75 to act as an advertising representative and collector in New York city. He engaged a room at a New York hotel on Tuesday of this week and had some of the people who answered the advertisement call upon him there, finally telling one young man to come to Plainfield on Wednesday, bringing the $75 with him and he would be put to work. He 'phoned The Press that he could not get to work on Tuesday, because his "son" was ill, but he was apparently using the time to interview prospective "solicitors" who had $75 cash available for a bond.

The World became suspicious, and through the department maintained to investigate advertisements which may prove fraudulent, it started to look up Parrott's record. He suddenly developed reticence concerning his affairs, directly in contrast to his former attitude, but maintained that there had been nothing wrong about his offer to engage help, as he really intended to put the magazine out. When a representative of the World interviewed him at the Press office Wednesday afternoon he was given to understand that unless he made good on his promises to pay his debts in town by today, he would have to seek employment elsewhere, and yesterday morning he left a note saying he was going to New York to get the money. He has not appeared at the Press office since, but he was seen in town this morning.

SURVEY PLANNED FOR NEW COUNTY

Chamber of Commerce to Wage an Aggressive Campaign.

PREPARING A REPORT

Newton B. Smalley and John J. Varley Set Forth Advantages to be Gained by Having a County Seat Here.

The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to take charge of that body's interests in the new county idea met last night, in the Babcock building and considered tentative plans for a campaign which will be waged in that direction. A map was drawn up by the committee, which includes the territory that will be involved and will be presented at the next monthly meeting of the organization. In the meantime the map will be on exhibition in the chamber's rooms in the Babcock building.

President Smalley, of the civic body, will appoint a permanent committee at the next meeting to inquire further into the subject.

In commenting on this matter this morning, Secretary J. J. Varley said: "It is not the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce to urge this or any other proposition unless it is a matter of deep and widespread public interest. The committee appointed by President N. B. Smalley for a preliminary survey of the subject will report its findings at the next meeting of the chamber, at which time a permanent committee will be appointed and an exhaustive and complete study of the question instituted. For several months members of the Chamber of Commerce and several well known citizens of the borough and the city have commented seriously and favorably upon the prospect of securing the advantages that would accrue to this and nearby communities by the establishment of a county seat in Plainfield. It would mean a great deal to the merchants in a business way; to the taxpayers in the economical conduct of the county business and to all the inhabitants by the solution of many vexing municipal problems."

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, now the president of the Chamber of Commerce, said: The advantages of the new county are innumerable, but we are not going to ask the people involved to take anything on faith. We are going to study this problem thoroughly and will during the course of our study give to the public through the newspapers all the facts and data discovered and compiled by the men in charge of this work. As it now looks the new county will contain at least sixty square miles of territory and between 50,000 and 60,000 inhabitants. No point in the county will be over seven and one-half miles from the county seat, and the average distance will certainly be less than five miles. The convenience of doing county business at a point so close to the home of each citizen, the advantage of spending the county money in the immediate vicinity of the property taxed for the purpose, and the economy assured by the present high class condition of the area involved all strongly appeal to those who have given this matter serious consideration. The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to deal with this important problem will welcome every honest criticism and objection to it. All sides of the questions will be fully considered. Complete statistics will be gathered, analyzed, compiled, and presented to the public for their full consideration, and final approval or disapproval. If this is not going to be a good thing for the people living in the territory, this study will show it. On the other hand if it is a desirable thing, the Chamber of Commerce will feel that it has performed a civic duty when it has collected and submitted the facts to the people of the city, the borough and the related surrounding territory."

AMAZONS OF THE ALPS.

Big and Brawny, They Do the Roughest Kind of Heavy Work.

On the mountainous slopes of the Bardonecchian district of the Alps there is a curious race of powerfully built people. For some reason best known to themselves they build their dwellings in spots inaccessible to ordinary mortals. The people of the neighboring valleys are quite a different class of beings and are looked upon as weaklings, which they certainly are compared with the sturdy men and women who ascend the steep and rugged roads leading to primitive cottages. The men are rough of mien and boast a physique that is extraordinary, but they are not so remarkable as the women, who may be described as peaceful Amazons.

Most marked is the difference between the women who live in this portion of Italy and the French ones whose home is but a few miles away in the valley of the Isere, between Chambery and Modane. The latter are ordinary peasantry, but the former attract the attention of the visitor immediately by reason of their size, strength and powers of endurance.

There are several types of women in this district of the unfrequented Alps. Dark complexions suggestive of southern Italy, brunettes and blonds may be seen working side by side. All, however, are tall, well built and muscular. The work these women are capable of and which they do cheerfully is enough to terrify any average laborer in the British isles. It is not a little gentle farming or milking or anything that can be done with comparative ease, but hard, laborious work of all kinds, requiring much physical strength and sustained effort.

To see women carrying loads of a hundredweight and more for miles along rough roads and up steep inclines is quite common, and that a stranger should comment upon the feat is to them incomprehensible. They have been accustomed to work since the days of their girlhood and cannot imagine the delicate ladies of the big towns.—London Standard.

Antarctic Explorer Stackhouse to Enter Field Of Shackleton and Koenig

DESPITE the discovery of the south pole by both Amundsen and Scott, the antarctic regions continue to offer a vast and tempting field for exploration. It is announced that Sir Ernest Shackleton has a quarter of a million dollars now in hand for his proposed expedition across the antarctic continent. A controversy has arisen between Sir Ernest and Dr. Koenig, leader of the Austrian antarctic expedition, whose aims are practically identical with those of Shackleton and who proposes to cross the antarctic continent in the same way and from the same base as Sir Ernest. Dr. Koenig claims the prior right to use that base, the Weddell sea, but Shackleton holds that he formulated his own plans and gave them publicity long prior to the announcements made by Dr. Koenig. The two expeditions will therefore enter the same field, and a race across the unknown continent is probable.

Meantime still another expedition is under way.

J. Foster Stackhouse is completing his plans for an expedition into the antarctic regions. He has secured Captain Scott's old ship, the Discovery, which will be commanded by Lieutenant A. E. Harbord, R. N., who was navigating officer on the Shackleton expedition of 1907-9. As chief surveyor of his expedition Stackhouse has appointed Baron Congleton, a cousin of the late Charles Stewart Parnell and, strange to say, a determined opponent of home rule.

The expedition is being organized for purely scientific researches and will endeavor to explore the little known coast between Graham Land and King Edward VII. Land and the interior of the latter. It will therefore enter part of the territory which Sir Ernest Shackleton hopes to cover in his more ambitious enterprise.

Between these two sections of discovered land stretches a vast and practically unexplored region. The expedition will attempt to determine whether this intervening space is land or sea, whether King Edward VII. Land is part of the great antarctic continent or merely an island or group of islands set in the frozen sea.

The existence of Graham Land and of Coats Land, Enderby Land and Kemp Land on the Atlantic border of the great ice barrier, as well as the discovery of land south by Lieutenant Filchner of the German expedition, in 1911, supports the continental theory. On the other hand, the great area of pack ice massed on the north and west coasts of King Edward VII. Land points, Mr. Stackhouse suggests, to the drift of ice northward from the Weddell sea to the Ross sea, presumably through a strait separating King Edward VII. Land from Graham Land. This is the most southerly of British possessions.

The crew of the Discovery will consist of twenty-five men, and in addition there will be five scientists, several of the ship's officers also undertaking scientific observations. They will have an aeroplane for photographic survey work, and this, too, will be useful in enabling the leader to choose the best route when he wants to advance. Most of the navigating and scientific staff already have been chosen.

The expedition will be away for three or four years. From Cape Town, where the scientific instruments will be finally tested, the Discovery will sail to the Falkland islands, a distance of about 5,000 miles. Deep sea soundings, which will have considerable hydrographical value, will be taken in these little frequented seas. On the way the Discovery will ascertain the exact number of islands contained in the Sandwich group and determine the position of the Shag rocks.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB TO PROMOTE SPORT

All Around Competition Will Hereafter Be Boosted by the Organization.

Twenty-five members of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club met in their temporary quarters in Depot Park, last night, and an initiation committee consisting of Julius Dickhundt, Gus Johnson and Lester Renninger was appointed. The April entertainment committee was named and is composed of Herbert Alberts, Bill Cooper and Lester Renninger. It was decided to purchase a suitable club button or emblem and a committee composed of Jack Horner, E. A. Gowdy and Al Bowlby was selected.

Considering that the club has been active scarcely two months the condition of the treasury is encouraging. A committee of club members are now at work looking over various tracts of land in this section on which a one story frame building with ample space for dancing and entertainments will be built. There will be a baseball diamond, shooting range, running track and everything necessary for thletic games, dancing and sports of various kinds.

The club intends to promote not only motorcycle races, hill climbs and blind races, and everything pertaining to motorcycle sports, but intends to promote field sports, shooting matches, baseball games and other contests of endurance and strength for which suitable prizes will be offered.

The meeting wound up with an excellent hot lunch served by the club chef, Harry Uhler, Jr., who was ably assisted by J. J. Moore, L. Hampson and Jack Horner. Among the speeches enjoyed by the members, the most noteworthy were those of President Auerbach, Secretary Klein and Treasurer Hampson. A. G. Bowlby called attention to all of the members of the sale of tickets for the dance.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST WOMEN ELECT OFFICERS

Interesting Reports Read at the Society's Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Women's Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was held yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance of members: These officers were reelected: President, Mrs. David M. Runyon; vice-president, Mrs. F. St. John Fitch; secretary, Mrs. Anna Wood; treasurers, Mrs. Frank Goff and Mrs. B. F. Hadley.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed a most successful year. Besides sending away a barrel of clothing and several Christmas boxes valued at $150, the society has received and expended over $700, leaving a substantial balance in the treasury. About $450 of the above sum has been sent to Lona Bata, Africa, to support an orphanage from which place a most interesting report of the year's work was received and read.

One item from the letter was as follows: "Thanksgiving service held and over four hundred came fifty or sixty miles, many on foot. Splendid service. Fifty-one baptized, many backsliders received again, offering 600 francs."

Especially interesting was a letter received from Mrs. Peter Frederickson, teacher of this school, who wrote "we expect to go home on furlough this spring, leaving Congo the end of March and arriving in America early in May. We want to visit our Plainfield friends just as soon as we arrive."

There was also an interesting letter from a converted native which translated reads as follows:

"To friends ours in foreign country Plainfield: Hearken, much peace, happiness and health we send you brothers ours in the Christian fold. We are having much joy in hearts ours because of our King Jesus Christ. Our faithful lovers and teachers, Tata and Mama Frederickson are leaving us soon for foreign country. We have happiness in hearts ours because they are happy and will see children in the foreign country. We thank you much for the teachers you have sent on the long trail to help us know and love our Saviour. The pale faces who love us have told us of the love of God by their good works and out of God's book. I am teaching school and am taking the message of Jesus to my people who do not know Him. We are going to take our bodies into the Keinpese country and teach our people the message of the real King. We will be faithful here on top of the earth and look on His face in Heaven."

BETTER SPELLING.

President Joffery, of the Board of Trade, on behalf of that active body, is now investigating the qualifications of the local young people who graduate from the grammar and high schools and enter business. He is trying to learn how they write, figure, spell and read, and is making inquiries of business men who now employ those who have recently left the local schools to enter business. The results will be compiled into a form for ready reference and submitted to the members of the Board of Trade.

Probably he will find that the greatest percentage of criticism in the replies comes as a result of poor spelling. In our experience with high and grammar school graduates we have found this the greatest fault, although the percentage is really small.

An article recently appeared telling of the method which was adopted by the superintendent of the Minneapolis schools, in an effort to remove this criticism by business men. There Dr. C. M. Jordan sought the aid of merchants, bankers and others in the city in compiling and adapting to practical use in the schools a list of words most frequently misspelled in business. In order to make his purpose plain he sent the following letter to those whom he approached:

For use in our schools, I wish to prepare a typewritten list which shall cover the words, short and long, most frequently misspelled by those who enter the employ of business houses, and I should be glad to have you put this letter in the hands of one who can give me a list of not to exceed 50 words, including some peculiar to the vocabulary of your business.

The real need of spelling in the schools today is to fit students for life, especially for the modern commercial life where one never has occasion nor time to avail one's self of the old-time words which were memory tests pure and simple instead of a training for life. The demand today for better spelling is recognized but it is for spelling of a different standard. The aim in the public schools should be to promote better spelling in business and here is the new duty of educators.

While such a method locally would be of untold value, a more permanent one by which all of the schools of the country could aid the business men and pupils, would be by the publication of a standard text-book in spelling along the lines suggested by the Minneapolis educator. The co-operation of leading educators and business men would prove to be well worth the effort, and in the meantime, pending its appearance local lists could be prepared.

STATE COMMISSIONS.

In these days when commission government is being tried in cities in nearly every State in the Union, and with marked success in most cases, it is not surprising that people are endeavoring to apply the theory to even larger subdivisions of government. Here in New Jersey we have commissioners, or small boards of freeholders in many counties, and there is a bill before the Legislature to make them compulsory in all counties.

Now a serious proposal is made for the government of a State by commission. In Oklahoma it is pointed out that the present Legislature consists of 143 members, with about 60 attaches, and that there are thirty other elective State officials and seventeen appointive heads of departments, which with numerous boards, make up 300 State officials. It is proposed to substitute for these a commission, and to do it Constitutional amendments are suggested as follows: (1) Repealing the legislative sections; (1) repealing the sections creating the several State officials; (3) creating a commission of between 15 and 24 members elected from as many districts, in which would be vested the legislative and executive power of the State; (4) giving the commission power to appoint all clerical officials; (5) requiring the commission to elect committees from its membership to correspond to the various existing boards; (6) giving the commission power to convene for legislative purposes at any time; (7) subject the members of the commission to recall.

Should such a plan be adopted it would be revolutionary at least, and the chances are that the progressive Western State where it is proposed would be even better governed than it is now.

It is said that one of the things which makes men hesitate about becoming candidates for the local police department is the fact that they are put to an expense of nearly $200 the first year for uniforms and equipment, which many are not in a position to assume After the first year the drain for this equipment does not fall so heavily, as a comparatively small number of taings have to be purchased. The police board could remove this objection by supplying the first equipment to all men who are accepted for the force, with the understanding that it must be kept up at their own expense after appointment. Perhaps if such a plan of action were decided upon the number of desirable applicants would be much larger.

The contributed editorial for tomorrow has been written by Allen E. Beals, who has done great good for the boys of Plainfield by his continued activity in the Boy Scout work. As has been the case in the editorials contributed in the past, Mr. Beals will have something to say of interest to every Plainfielder.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

The citizens of Plainfield have been repeatedly warned that their sewer promoters were leading them up to wrong road when they came to Darling farm, Middlesex borough, and were cautioned to go slow on purchasing the Darling farm a fortnight ago. It is reported that a first purchase price of five thousand dollars has been paid, the balance to be paid within 60 days.

If this be true, it is an evidence that a grievous mistake is being made, and that the fair minded people of the city are soon to be convinced that they have been led by a coterie of false prophets and self-seekers who have acted on the principle "After us the Deluge" and deluge it will surely be, a deluge of litigation with Middlesex borough and others. A deluge of money to pay, and a deluge of the chagrin of defeat at the end, whether they succeed in getting the sewer at Darling farm or not. For it is a first principle of Christian ethics "That you cannot injure another without at the same time injuring yourself."

On Monday last when a large delegation from Middlesex borough told the Council Board of Plainfield "That they should not cross the line of Middlesex borough until their homes were sacrificed by litigation" they were ready to back up the assertion and have instructed their counsel. Judge W. A. Coddington, to lay out a campaign of four years' litigation, believing that within that period the level headed, and fair minded citizens of Plainfield will check the foolish move and either enlarge and improve their present sewer beds or enter a scheme with seven other municipalities and go out in the bay at tidewater. It is not believed that the persons who for four years have been pushing this sewer project to Darling farm are truly representative of the people of Plainfield or their interests. Judge Coddington has in his possession, survey maps and estimates compiled by one of the ablest engineers in the State, and is ready to show Plainfield and the courts where they can have all the sewer accommodations they will need for thirty years to come at an expense of one hundred thousand dollars.

Whereas the extension to Darling farm, Middlesex, will cost three hundred thousand dollars if there is no litigation, and perhaps a half a million before they get their four miles right of way and get through with the Middlesex litigation.

There is not an inch of ground for Plainfield to stand upon from a moral standpoint. Not even that of necessity, and it has been inconceivable to the citizens of Middlesex how such a God fearing, intelligent and clean living a city as Plainfield could ever entertain a purpose to do such a sin to a baby brother borough, just out of the cradle, but with an inheritance in ratables and prospects to be envied. Plainfield is noted throughout the State as a righteous city. Their liquor laws and Sunday ordinances are copied far and wide. Their Civic Code of Ethics is based upon Christian principles as far as concerns their own citizens. Their clergy are high class, really good men who have taught the citizens to observe the Golden Rule. They have been a great power in making the greatness and fine character of that city, always interesting themselves in civic affairs.

It is to be hoped that they will now use their good offices with these sewer promoters and the members of the Council Board, and tell the truth to the taxpayers. Endeavor to lift the scales from their eyes and like Moses lead them with their sewer from the wilderness of doubt, back to where they belong at present or out to the Promised Land at Tidewater.

T. W. SISTY.

SWEDEN'S TROUBLED THRONE

King Gustav Advocates National Defense, but Meets Much Opposition.

The throne of Sweden appears to be trembling in the balance. King Oscar, father of King Gustav, lost the throne of Norway. Will the son lose that of Sweden? On the question of national defense he broke with his cabinet and even threatened to abdicate, but the cabinet resigned, leaving, however, troubled waters behind. The new prime minister, M. Hammarskjolds, is expected to accomplish wonders, but in certain quarters it is thought that he can do little against the radical parliament.

The king's own individuality and opinions are very decided. The subject of national defense is one that he has taken to heart deeply and he is not a man to let his opinions be subordinated to any technicality connected with his office. This was shown in the emphatic declaration which he made to the gathering of 30,000 peasant farmers who demonstrated in favor of a stronger navy at the royal palace recently.

The policy of a stronger defense, he said, should and must be carried out. In this he is absolutely at one with Dr. Sven Hedin and the Conservative party, through whose enthusiasm the remarkable demonstration was organized.

On the other hand, the elections of 1911 produced a large Liberal-Socialist majority pledged to the reduction of military expenditure. The ministry refused to make the concessions to the king's views which he expected and the climax was reached when he made the pronouncement which the ministry asserted was a threat to override them or abdicate.

They addressed a remonstration to him and in parliament some strong speeches were made about what was termed King Gustav's "unconstitutional" attitude. How much the new prime minister can accomplish with the present parliament remains to be seen. There is no doubt that the trouble with Russia and the obstructions raised against practical measures for defense have won over to the government many constituencies, particularly among the rural population, who in 1911 returned Liberal-Socialist majorities.

It is the action of King Gustav in openly taking sides in a political issue, just as his father did in the fight which caused Norway to secede, which causes people to ask if he is not embarking on a policy which may have an analogous result. Moreover, there are reports that the royal family is divided on the issue before the country. Crown Prince Gustav Adolph is said to be opposed to the policy of increased armaments advocated by his father.

REVIEWING RECORDS IN MACRORIE CASE

Special Committee Expects to Present a Report Tomorrow.

Newark, March 20.—The trial of Rev. Willis S. MacRorie, the deposed pastor of the Mt. Horeb, Springdale and Martinsville M. E. churches, which was begun by a special committee of the Newark Conference, yesterday, is still on behind closed doors at the Central M. E. church. The committee refuses to give out any information concerning the progress of the trial. Considerable time has been spent in going over the records of MacRorie's trial in the Union county court, as well as the church trial a year ago. It is expected that some decision will be reached tomorrow. The charge against MacRorie is "untruthfulness."

The special committee which has been investigating the charges against Rev. Jere B. J. Rhodes, of Washington, N. J., has been in session at the Continental Hotel, and it is said that the committee has already exonerated the pastor and will recommend to the conference tomorrow that there is not sufficient evidence to place Mr. Rhodes on trial.

The morning session of the conference was taken up with the reports of officers of the various societies and addresses. Rev. S. B. Goff, of the temperance society, addressed the conference on temperance, declaring that Methodists should be filled with zeal in this cause to such an extent that they would be willing to die for national prohibition. Rev. Dr. W. I. Hazen, of the Bible society, also spoke. He said that last year 3,000,000 Bibles were distributed in eighty different languages. He said that $1,000,000 is needed to carry on this work.

Others who addressed the conference were Rev. Alva Kaynett, representing home missions; Rev. Dr. Frank Mason North, corresponding secretary of the foreign missionary society, and Rev. Judson S. Hill, head of a mission school at Morristown, Tenn., who brought word of the great need of help in that part of the South. He told of the progress being made in educating the negroes of the South.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MRS. JOHN GALBRAITH

A farewell reception was tendered to Mrs. John Galbraith and daughter, Miss Helen Galbraith, of West Third street, last night, by members of Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H., of which they were both members. Euchre proved a pleasant pastime for the early portion of the evening while vocal and instrumental music entertained the guests later. Mrs. C. J McCarthy and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald won handsome prizes at the card games. Refreshments were served at a latehour. Before the departure of the gusts, Mrs. Galbraith was presented with a table cent r piece. Mrs Galbraith will shortly move to Newark ,where she will make her home.

Herring, at his home in The Bristol, and was witnessed only by the necessary attendant. Mrs. George Vaness and John Strindberg stood up with the couple. Following the nuptial ceremony, the bride and bridegroom left for a brief wedding trip.

Mr. Haskard is one of the West End's most popular young men, having always lived in that section. He has been engaged in business with his father. Mrs. Haskard has always lived in the West End, and has many acquaintances throughout Plainfield. The young couple will make their home in this city.

INFORMAL "AT HOME."

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey gave an informal "at home" reception at Warren chapel, last night, many of their friends and memb rs of the chapel being in attendance. Members of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies assisted in receiving. A musical and literary program formed the feature of the evening and refreshments were served at the conclusion. Among the numbers on the musical program were bano and mandolin solos by Albert and Clifford Leow, piano selections by George Walsh, and whistling solos by Miss Edith Hamilton, accompanied by Mrs McKelvey. Mrs. John Snyder was chairman of the refreshment committee.

GETS VERDICT FOR $32.05.

John VanDoren, of Bound Brook, was given a verdict for $32.50 in the District Court, yesterday, in his suit against the City Boarding Stables, to recover payment for a horse said to the defendants. The suit was for $40. The defendants claimed that the animal was suffering from heaves and had been ordered killed, when it was represented as being sound.

LIE PASSED IN ULSTER DEBATE

Carson Starts For Belfast After Heated Argument.

CRISIS FEARED IN ULSTER

Grave Events Are Impending, and Rumor Is Current That the Government Is Preparing For Military Occupation of the Province—Liberals Challenged.

London, March 20.—Grave events are pending in Ulster, according to the Unionist newspapers, and a rumor is current that the government is preparing for the military occupation of the province.

There are various indications that a crisis has been reached.

Stirring scenes marked the debate on Irish home rule in the house of commons. The lie was passed between Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulstermen, and Joseph Devlin, secretary of the Irish Nationalist party.

A. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, made a strong speech and moved a vote of censure on the government for failure to explain further the details of the proposel local option vote by the nine counties of Ulster on the home rule question.

The Unionist leader finally proposed that a referendum vote be taken in the entire United Kingdom on the home rule bill and promised that the Unionists should abide by the result of such a vote. Sir Edward Carson backed up Mr. Law's offer, but Premier Asquith in a short speech indicated strongly that he did not think much of the proposal.

The government issued a denial of the report that warrants charging sedition and criminal conspiracy had been signed for Sir Edward Carson and other Ulster leaders. The report, however would not down. It was put out first by the Globe, which is usually one of the best informed London newspapers The Globe declared that the report was published on unquestionable authority.

How Devlin Started It.

Sir Edward Carson had just finished an attack on the government when Joseph Devlin, secretary of the Irish Nationalist party, began a review of Sir Edward's political career, with especial reference to his earlier associations with the home rule bill. In the midst of the accusations Sir Edward jumped upon a bench and shouted:

"These are infamous lies, and you know it!"

The speaker pounded with his gavel for more than five minutes before the noise ceased.

The Ulster leader was told that he must withdraw his statement or apologize to Mr. Devlin. Sir Edward thereupon withdrew the phrase "infamous lies" and substituted "willful falsehood." Mr. Devlin then proceeded with his speech. Suddenly Sir Edward left his seat and hurried from the room He left London at 6 o'clock, saying that he was going to Belfast.

Urging the adoption of his motion to censure the government for its attitude on home rule and its refusal to make the proposals of concessions to Ulster more formal, Mr. Law said that the situation was now more dangerous than ever. Before a vast crowd which filled the commons chamber, he challenged the government to a referendum on the proposed concessions and promised that the opposition would accept the result as final.

"If the government is serious," declared Bonar Law, "it ought to explain the concessions proposed for Ulster definitely. The Unionists are opposed to home rule in any form, but they are not willing to slam the door of peace."

THAW PETITION AT ALBANY.

Roll Containing 500,000 Signatures Lugged Into Assembly Lobby.

Albany, N. Y., March 20.—With a petition half a mile long and said to contain 500,000 signatures of citizens of New York state, two attorneys, two press agents and a messenger representing Harry K. Thaw stood in the lobby of the assembly approaching every member.

Although Assemblyman John B. Golden had a long speech prepared in defense of Stanford White's slayer, he held up its delivery at the eleventh hour because of the absence of members who had promised to vote for his resolution. He declared that he would make his plea on Monday night to have this state cease its efforts to return Thaw to Matteawan.

The L. N. Danbeller Lost In Storm Off Cuban Coast.

New Orleans, March 20.—The auxiliary schooner L. N. Danbeller, with a crew of eleven men, foundered in a storm off the coast of Cuba Sunday, according to a cable from Cienfuegos. Lifeboats and wreckage were found overturned.

The craft was fitted with ninety horsepower engines and had been suspected of filibustering in connection with the Mexican revolution and lately with becoming troublesome in Venezuela.

Weather Forecast.

Fair in the interior, but unsettled on the coast today; tomorrow, fair, with moderate north winds.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE IS LOST IN THE SENATE

Fails to Get Necessary Two-thirds Vote.

Washington, March 20.—While the cause of suffrage did not win in the senate, it is regarded as intensely significant that a majority of the senate went on record in favor of a constitutional amendment for equal suffrage. The vote was 35 to 34 in favor of the resolution, but as two-thirds were required to adopt the resolution the vice president announced that it had failed of adoption.

This defeat is the hardest blow the equal suffrage advocates have received in their campaign to force congress to act favorably on the equal suffrage question. Just before the final vote on the resolution proper two test votes were taken on amendments restricting suffrage to white citizens.

Senator Vardaman's amendment to repeal the fifteenth amendment of the constitution, enfranchising negroes, was lost by a vote of 48 to 19.

An amendment offered by Senator Williams of Mississippi restricting woman suffrage to white women was lost by a vote of 44 to 21.

No announcement was made for Senator O'Gorman as to how he would have voted if present.

Immediately after the vote, which was followed with keen interest by the crowded galleries containing many suffragists, Senator Shafroth of Colorado, a strong advocate of woman suffrage, offered a resolution in the form of a constitutional amendment which he tried to introduce, but which was finally cut off entirely by a motion from Senator Hoke Smith to go into executive session.

Announcement was made for Senator Root that if present he would have voted against the resolution. Similar announcements were made for Senator Fall of New Mexico and Senator Saulsbury of Delaware. Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island announced that if he had not been paired he would have voted against the resolution.

C. W. MORSE RETURNS.

Says New Haven Road Has Been Permitted to Act Illegally.

New York, March 20.—Charles W. Morse, without his mustache and looking a bit younger than he did when he sailed away two months ago to take the baths at Wiesbaden, arrived with Mrs. Morse by the Hamburg-American liner Imperator and declared he had never felt better in his life.

He said he had been greatly benefited by his vacation and the baths and had come back to do work in his usual strenuous way. He said he knew nothing definite about the troubles of the New Haven railroad. He did know that the company did not want to give up its steamship lines and its valuable water front property. Then he added:

"The New Haven has been permitted to act illegally for twenty years and does not want to stop. Is there anything strange in that?"

"Did you say illegally?"

"Yes. Mr. Mellen told me that he had permission from Mr. Roosevelt to do the things that were subsequently said to be illegal."

WHY SPEAK OF LOVE WHEN IT COSTS SO MUCH

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

"Sportdom Tips"

The movement inaugurated by the Playground Commission to stage a monster field and track meet here on July 4 is a creditable one and those interested in athletics in this city should do their part toward making the affair a grand success. Since the big meet two years ago athletics have found a firmer foot-hold in Queen City soil and in the event of a meet being arranged for Independence Day, a feature which now seems certain many local competitors will no doubt enlist in the cause. Co-operation on the part of all hands is necessary to produce results and if we are going to make the affair a creditable one we cannot afford to shift the bulk of the work to the shoulders of certain individuals. Plainfield has the facilities for events of this nature and many towns having far fewer advantages are better known in the sporting world.

Now that North Plainfield High School has disposed of the basketball captaincy it is up to the public to give the new leader the "once over. Hyman Abrams well deserves the honor that has been bestowed upon him by the members of the Boys' Athletic Association and his election has been received enthusiastically by everyone connected with the borough school's athletics. He is popular, a fine player and should prove an excellent leader. The close race waged between Van Mater and the captain-elect speaks unusually well of their respective merits. It was difficult to arrive at a choice and while Van Mater was defeated he took it like a real sport and was one of the first to extend a glad hand to his lucky opponent.

Although many times during the past week or so it has been rumored that the basketball curtain had been drawn the cold snap seems to have given the popular indoor pastime a new lease on life and a number of the local and suburban fives are contemplating further competition. Among the most prominent in the come-back list is the Y. M. C. A. The association quintet will go to Morristown tonight to lineup against the association five of that place, which defeated it earlier in the season by a three point margin. A Scotch Plains series is also underway with prospects of some good games and keen rivalry.

Plainfield High School girl athletes, after having won the Interscholastic League championship, have taken up basketball in real earnest and are now playing the pastime in mid-season style. Tomorrow afternoon P. H. S. feminine cohorts go to Cranford and a couple of more games are also on the bill for the remaining months of winter.

Plainfield High School has concluded its basketball program and the athletic talent will now turn its attention to baseball. Wednesday afternoon the P. H. S. youths played their last game and the season's resume, while not over brilliant, is a creditable one taking all of Captain Hetfield's trials into consideration. Hetty had a hard time trying to turn out a team but his zealous efforts helped to pick up nine victories during the season.

The election of a basketball captain for 1914-15 promises to evoke just as much interest in Plainfield High School as it has recently brought to the surface in the borough. Several likely aspirants have been brought to light and the High School players will have their troubles in trying to arrive at a popular choice.

Haven't heard anything more about this backstop wonder who was going to fill the shoes vacated by Peacock in the P. H. S. camp. Captain Rosenson must be coaching him behind the scenes or in a dark alley.

We note that Martin, Johnson and Lidgate are holding their own on southern soil just at the present time. Plainfield has proven a brooding camp for many of the present big leaguers and we would not be surprised to see one of this trio turn into a Ty Cobb or a Tris Speaker some day in the near future.

We see Nibs Hand is still paying his occasional visits to Plainfield. The Feds and Internationals have steered shy of Scotch Plains evidently.

Jack Martin has been offered the captaincy of the Rochester Hustlers. Worse things than this have been known to be wished on ball players. Cheer up, Jack.

An outlaw baseball league is in progress of organization hereabouts. With a few millionaires and a Joe Tinker that Inter-City League would stand a pretty fair show of awakening a little enthusiasm hereabouts.

In our opinion Physical Director Cann, of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., will have some work to do if he attempts a crusade against professionalism. Imagine anyone trying to stamp out this evil in a place like Elizabeth.

The much-abused Union County Athletic League is in bad again. This time the announcement comes that the league has disbanded, and, according to reliable information at hand, it is likely that the association will remain disbanded unless some assurance is given that altogether different methods than those used heretofore are to be employed in conducting the affairs of the body after reorganization. At present the schools which might be expected to make up the league circuit seem to be divided into two factions, one comprising Rahway, Westfield and Plainfield, while Roselle, Cranford and Roselle Park seem to stand together. Probably it is going a bit too far to say that the schools are divided into factions, but nevertheless it is a certainty there is one grand split with the first three school teams standing out so determinedly for a change in the business methods of the league that unless somebody gets busy with a peace offering in the near future any effort to reorganize the league this spring will likely fall as flat as the proverbial pancake, which, according to the best authorities at hand, may be interpreted as meaning considerably flat. A new items yesterday state that Huerta, the big chief down Mexico way, killed off something like a gross of mutineers in batches of a dozen, just to show who was boss. Of course, that hasn't got anything to do with excise conditions in Elizabeth, but suppose this dictating "greaser" was bossing the Union County League. Ugh!—Elizabeth Journal.

—If it would be "good business" for you to sell that real estate now, advertise it NOW.

WOMEN TAKE TO BOXING.

Paris, March 20—The title of world's champion woman boxer is claimed by Mlle. Marthe Carpentier, who yesterday announced her willingness to meet all comers. She is a good-looking French brunette, eighteen years of age, weighs 127 pounds and is 5 feet three inches in neight.

Mlle. Carpentier, who is in no way related to the French champion of the same name who has twice defeated Bombardier Wells, has been trained by M. Albany, an expert boxing and jiu jitsu instructor for the past six months. In the mornings she helps her mother in a little grocery shop in the Ternes quarter of Paris, and devotes her afternoons to her boxing lessons and general training exercises.

"I have always been fond of sport," she said today, "and I don't see why boxing should be forbidden to my sex. So long as brutality is prohibited I don't see why a few rounds with the gloves occasionally shouldn't be beneficial to any young woman. I know it does me good. It is apt, of course, to spoil a woman's beauty, but bruises do not last forever.

"Before I took lessons in boxing I was very nervous and irritable and timid. I would not have ventured into a crowd alone for anything. Now I'm not afraid to go anywhere.

Her first serious match will be with Miss Grace Cleveland, of Geneva, who has signed up for a ten-round contest.

SKATING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

New Haven, Conn., March 20—The annual contests for the figure skating championships of America, which began this afternoon at the arena in this city, have brought together some of the most graceful figure skaters in the world. The contests this year are conducted for the firt time under the auspices and rules of the International Skating Union. The two days' program calls for competitions for the men's and women's championships, also for pair skating. Of late years figure skating has gained a strong hold on the devotees of winter sports in America. It is many years since it was first introduced in this country. It is known to have been an institution in colonial days. In 1772 Benjamin West, the famous painter, was a skilful skater, and during a visit to England he captivated the Londoners with his graceful gyrations on the Serpentine. The Philadelphia Skating Club on the Schuylkill river was founded in 1843 and a few days later Boston and Philadelphia skaters introduced figure skating in New York. In 1868 the National Amateur Skating Association was organized to conduct annual championship contests in figure skating.

AMATEUR SPORT FOR PLAINFIELD

Baseball Team Composed of College and Unpaid Stars Will Be Formed.

MANY PLAYERS IN LINE

Parker Field Will be the Scene of a Revival of the Sport that Was Popular Here Years Ago—Howard Craig Mentioned as Captain.

A movement has been started in this city to organize an amateur baseball team to represent Plainfield in Saturday afternoon competitions during the coming season, members of the Playground Commission being in back of the new project. Howard Craig, who last year captained the Plainfield champions, has been mentioned as a leader for the new aggregation and he has expressed himself as friendly to the new idea. With Craig at the helm the amateur stunt would no doubt prove a big success locally and many old-time rivals could be brought to Plainfield over the week-end. Parker Field will be turned over to the new aggregation and the home games will be played at that place.

A number of years ago Plainfield was represented by one of the strongest amateur baseball nines in the State and the old-time ball players well remember the keen and interesting diamond exhibitions put up by the Queen City representatives against nines from Montclair, Summit, Elizabeth, Westfield and other New Jersey towns. College nines were also brought to Plainfield during the summer months when amateur baseball was at its zenith here.

A wealth of good material is available locally and many college stars return home for the summer and would welcome an opportunity to keep in condition. Among the Plainfield collegians who would be in line for berths on the team are Clyde Doane, who plays with Williams College; Harold Schenck, of Rutgers College; Jack Riffert, of Swarthmore; Monroe Good, of Colgate; Herbert Stine, of Springfield Training School; James Nash, of Temple University, and many others who have starred in recent years on collegiate teams. This list is only a casual survey of the material that could be brought to light and a score of other college stars would fall in line for such a movement if publicly launched.

Plainfield has supported semi-pro ball in grand style for some years and it goes without saying that amateur competition could be made a paying proposition for those who back it. The players do not necessarily have to be college graduates and there are many performers who are desirous of keeping their amateur standing and at the same time are at the present unable to get the playing they desire. The amateur team would serve as a club where local ball players could perform without endangering their standing in other lines of sport. Many college athletes refrain from semi-pro ball during the summer months because of the possibility of getting into difficulties with the college athletic associations and this phase would be eliminated by an amateur nine.

WALDORF AND BLATZ IN TOP RUNG FIGHT

Competition is Close in the Elks' Bowling League Tournament.

Teams No. 3 and 5, captained by Waldorf and Laing respectively, are now engaged in a hard fight for first place honors in the Elks' Bowling League, and according to the weekend statistics compiled by Secretary V. W. Nash, Jr., matters are now tied up for the top rung position, each team having won four and dropped a pair. Waldorf's team lost an opportunity to forge to the front last night, by dropping the initial game of a series to the Blatz contingent.

After losing the first Waldorf's youngsters came back and took the remaining pair in easy fashion, the second by a margin of ninety-eight pins and the final one by a twenty-six pin advantage. Double centuries were rolled by Blatz, Leonard and C Swalm, the latter setting up the individual high mark in the second game. The score:

TO DECIDE FISH PROBLEM.

Hackensack, March 20.—Whether a quantity of fish was caught in State waters or in tide water is one of the problems Justice of the Peace James Bratt, of this place, will be called upon to decide tomorrow evening. The question as to whether pike live in fresh water only will also be determined. David B. Earle is charged with netting a quantity of fish in State waters above the dam at New Milford, and disposing of them to the highest bidder. Earle admits he caught the fish, but asserts they were caught below the New Milford dam in salt or tide water, hence outside the jurisdiction of the local courts.

NEW STAR HAS MADE KNOWN HIS DESIGNS

Holy Cross Will Be Strengthened by Addition of Former Lehigh Captain.

When the 1914 football season blows around and the initial Holy Cross practise is called by "Doc" Doyle, a new face will appear on the gridiron togged out in football regalia to try out for the left halfback job. This new aspirant is John Borst, of Westervelt avenue, and his past performances hail him as a wonder with the cleated shoe.

Borst captained the Lehigh University football eleven in 1910 and is fresh from the college gridiron. He is an unusually husky youth and is by far the largest man in the Holy Cross group with the possible exception of Dick Harrington, who just can't help being so big. Borst has come to live in Plainfield and also intends to don baseball woolens for Plainfield this season.

Jack Ricketts is the present left halfback for the red and white eleven and the Plainfield warrior will have his hands full trying to hold down the place with the collegian as an opponent.

SLOCUM AND FREDDY GIVE UP PRO BALL

Promising Young Companions Will Devote Their Attention to Business.

Otto Frederickson, Plainfield's promising young southpaw, has announced that he will remain within the confines of the Queen City during the coming season and devote his baseball throwing entirely to week-end semi-professional competition. Freddy has other interests that are occupying his time this year and a position which he holds with a local concern is far more renumerative than the diamond sport as played in the minor leagues.

Freddy went to Winston-Salem last year, but the management of the club neglected to provide three squares a day and the promising young career of the Netherwood youth was brought to a sudden halt. He flew the coop and renounced professional baseball as a part and as a whole, vowing never to don the uniform of a pro team again. Although gave promise of becoming a big league star Frederickson had designs on Queen City life and preferred to pitch around here and earn less money than to be tied up under a minor league contract. He consequently returned home and during the latter part of last season pitched some fine week-end exhibitions.

In the event of the organization of a local team here this spring Freddy will probably be one of the mounds men and he is also looking for a job with other nearby semi-pro aggregations.

Louis Slocum, an old friend of the southpaw, has also decided to give up league ball and will turn his attention to local or suburban competition. It is a significant fact that both of these youngsters, who have been lifelong companions and teammates, should decide to abandon the sport at the same time for the same reason and Plainfield teams will be well fortified with pitching material as the result of their action. Both are good pitchers and can keep in training with a couple of games each week.

Smart Toggery for Out-of-Doors

SPRING fashion openings in Paris have brought out an unequalled variety of two and three piece suits, having jackets and coats of different lengths as well as breadth, and made of plain and fancy fabrics. Suit coats are cutaway in front, while the backs are full, plaited or circular. Some skirts are bouffant, others have tunics and tiers; and still others introduce pleats in new ways which actually give greater breadth at the foot, though its existence is disguised. From these facts and many more modifications of recent modes, we conclude that there is a grouping about for the something altogether new, which as yet does not appear as an overshadowing innovation.

It is a far cry from the days of the mannish tailor-made with canvased fronts, and the stiffly boned fitted waists to the supple garments of the coming season. To-day, costuming is rather the business of dressmakers than of men tailors. The frills and furbelows, whether few or many seem more within the province of the fair sex to make as well as to wear.

The models illustrated on this page are a few of the plainer types which will be worn for practical outdoor service. That on the left, (coat 8133, skirt 7971) is a very smart design used as well for silk as for woolen material: and also smart for many kinds of cotton fabrics which will vie in favor with more expensive weaves. The jacket has the loose back that every woman will have sooner or later, for it is the newest idea for outer wraps of every description and use. The back section forms the sleeves, and joins the front with a raglan seam giving the yoke effect. A soft plait in either side of the front gives fullness enough to make the garment right for either a slender or a stouter figure. It is just as smart for misses as for grown women. The belt of black and white check matching the contrasted skirt is another style feature of the moment. The sleeves are short, though long ones will be used also, as noticed in the other street suit at the right (coat 7955, skirt, 7420). This coat suggests the tailor-made more than most new models. It has a long straight back, and fronts cutaway in lines that are becoming on a stout woman. Plain cheviot in navy blue is the material, with a blue and white skirt that has three straight breadths, and is two yards on the bottom. The other checked skirt is narrow, and a tunic effect may be had with the pattern from which it can be copied.

As for separate wraps, fashion emphasizes the loose coat made of many kinds of soft woolen and cotton materials. Golfine is the craze, and it comes in beautiful light colors that set off summer dresses. Light weight woolen materials are also shown in the model of the picture, No. 8130. This sports coat is featured in all sizes. It has the raglan front, and square loose back, with a wide belt and pockets adding a "swagger" look that is approved for the purpose. The simple style, and the absence of tailoring mentioned heretofore, make it possible for any woman who can sew to have this fashionable necessity for very little money. The dress shown with the coat, (8058) is made of black and white checked ratiné. It has a two-tier skirt. Each pattern is 15 cents.

A Virot Hat and A Novel Neck-Ruff

Pressed Milan and hemp hats with wide upturned brims, and a "fancy" of ostrich feathers of ribbon are smart and jaunty for early Spring. A short ruff of plaited maline, with a nosegay at either end, as shown, takes the place of a fur scarf on cool days.

Stenciled Scrap Basket

Scrap baskets designed to match other accessories of a bedroom or library are oftener more appropriate than an odd basket. The one shown above is made of linen covering stiff pasteboard. The decoration is stenciled in color. It is one of five patterns which come ready for stamping or stenciling under number 14336. A single motif, such as this may be used on lampshades, curtain corners, bureau and table scarfs.

Embroidered Between-Meal Cloth

An effective and durable between-meals cloth can be made of tan linen or crash with the conventional design shown above. The rougher surface of the crash is more artistic for the purpose, if coarse embroidery cotton of silk floss is used. Three shades of old blue will be good; or green, if that should chance to be in accord with the color scheme of the room furnishings. The cloth is twenty-two inches in diameter. The pattern is 15 cents.

DRAPED skirts are mentioned among some of the most attractive costumes shown in the spring opening of the Callot Soeurs of Paris, whose latest creations are said to be entirely different from those of their rivals, and not extreme. One of these admirable styles which American women of conservative taste will appreciate is the gown of gray satin charmeuse having the flowing graceful lines that add height and dignity (No. 8218). The train is less in evidence, since dancing has become so popular, but for formal occasions many older women prefer to wear a gown with it. This is characterized by the "elegant simplicity" which many couturiers are offering; and which we can approve for more reasons than one. Such dresses help to solve the dressmaking problem, and to reduce the cost of good dressing. It is on the fabrics of wonderful textures and coloring that the notable designers depend to a great extent for their appeal in the creations we shall see and want to duplicate in the coming weeks of spring and summer sewing.

Among the favored colors are turquoise, salmon pink, sulphur, lettuce green, coral pink, all the amber and yellow tan tints; black and white.

Net and chiffon plaitings, lace ruffles and batiste embroideries are coming into greater favor with the "fluffy" fashions designed for delicate thin wash materials, lacey evening frocks, and flowered taffetas. But in the handsome reception model, there is no other decoration than the ornaments on the front of the girdle, and on the sleeves. The bodice is surplice, and the skirt is draped with the modish peg-top effect. Pattern No. 8218 will reproduce this model, and it has beside a guimpe and a fichu accessory. The price is 15 cents.

Practical Hints for the Housewife

WOODWORK which has grown dull with time and the accumulation of dust may be restored by first cleaning thoroughly with kerosene on a flannel cloth. It should then be polished with a mixture of two parts of turpentine to one of linseed oil. Apply this with a soft cloth, and rub with flannel until every trace of the liquid seems to have disappeared. Repeated applications and continued rubbing will give a rich gloss, to wood trim or mahogany furniture.

To Clean Delicate Lace

Real laces which become soiled from wearing may be cleaned by applying powdered magnesia or French chalk to them. Lay the pieces out smoothly on tissue paper and dust the powder over them. Fold and put away for several days. Then brush with a nail scrub, and if the soil has not come out give a second application. Laces that have grown yellow need to be bleached with chemicals used by professional renovators.

Washing Soda for Cleaning

To easily and effectually clean oil cruets put some washing soda into the cruet and shake it with a little water. The oil and soda will make soap, which then cleans the glass, and leaves it shining. Washing soda sprinkled on a greasy girdle immediately after frying, and dissolved with a little boiling water, will similarly turn the grease into a soapy mixture and make the cleaning task much easier.

Cheese pastries are growing in favor for dinner and luncheon dishes. There are delicious puffs made with grated English cheese as follows. Rub together two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour, add one-half cup of milk, and put in a double boiler for ten minutes, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Take from the stove, add the beaten yokes of three eggs, and a cupful of grated cheese. Allow the mixture to cool. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs about twenty minutes before serving, put into a pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

Sardines au Gratin

Sardines will make an unusual luncheon dish served au gratin. Into a shallow baking dish sprinkle fine bread crumbs, and place a layer of sardines on it. Add a few drops of lemon juice, a layer of breadcrumbs, and bits of butter to moisten them. Cook for ten minutes until the fish are thoroughly heated and the crumbs are browned.

Codfish Soufle

To one cupful of boiled and flaked codfish, add one cupful of mashed potatoes, one-half cupful of milk, one beaten egg, salt and pepper to taste. Put this into a buttered baking dish, and bake in the oven until browned. Other fish may be similarly served. Where ramekins are used, this dish will make an excellent luncheon course, cooked in the individual portions, with a very little cheese grated on the top just as the fish is put into the oven.

SCHOLASTIC LEAGUE BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Each Team Will Meet the Other Two Contenders Twice This Season.

Interscholastic Baseball League competition will get under way April 25, when the North Plainfield High School and Leal School baseball nines meet in the opening game on Crescent Oval. To date the time and place for five contests has been announced, Plainfield and North Plainfield meeting twice, Plainfield and Leal twice, North Plainfield and Leal once. It is probable that another contest will be announced later between Leal and North Plainfield.

Three fields have been secured for the organization's games and several offers of trophies have been made to the schools for competition. Leal School will have Crescent Oval for its home grounds, Plainfield will play on Parker Field and North Plainfield will hold forth at Hyde Oval. All three of these diamonds are in excellent shape and will afford excellent places for the playing of league games.

The schedule:

April 25—N. P. H. S. vs. Leal's, Crescent Oval.

May 6—P. H. S. vs. Leals, Parker Field.

May 16—P. H. S. vs. N. P. H. S. Parker Field.

May 23—P. H. S. vs. Leals, Crescent Oval.

June 6—P. H. S. vs. N. P. H. S., Hyde Oval.

MONTCLAIR WILL OPEN WITH LEAL OPPONENTS

Leal School baseball players will open the Montclair Academy team schedule in this city April 18 when the Montclair athletes will invade Plainfield for their annual tilt with the locals. Included in the game arranged by the Academy manager are many bookings with old time Leal rivals, many of which appear on the local nine's schedule this season:

The Montclair schedule:

April.

Saturday, 18—Leal School at Plainfield.

Friday, 24—Bloomfield High School at home.

Wednesday, 29—Mount Pleasant Academy at home.

May.

Saturday, 2—Newark Academy at Newark.

Wednesday, 6—Carlton Academy at home.

Saturday, 9—Morristown School at Morristown.

Saturday, 16—Bordentown Military Institute at Bordentown.

Saturday, 23—Kingsley School at home.

Friday, 29—Montclair High School at home.

LOCAL LEAGUE TIMBER

Jack Martin saw his Boston Braves defeat the Newark Internationals by a score of 3 to 2 on the Macon field yesterday afternoon. The local youngster also had the pleasure of seeing his rival, Maranville, stir up the populace with sensational tactics around the shortstop territory. The Cuban was a terror to the Tigers and he scored two runs besides piling up enough assists to sink a ship.

Carl Johnson again held up the Jersey City team's catching burden yesterday afternoon, when the Internationals overwhelmed Trinity College by a count of 11 to 1. The local school teacher handled three putouts and a couple of assists in excellent style.

Lidgate and Egan divided up the catching honors for the Baltimore Orioles, yesterday afternoon, when the Internationals beat the Philadelphia Nationals by a count of 7 to 6. Liddy's slate consisted of three putouts.

Johnny Clough, who played left field for the Dunellen team of the Central New Jersey League, last season, has signed with the Lakeside A. A., of Elizabeth, for the coming year.

The Rochester Hustlers and the Boston Braves are training at Macon, Ga., this season, both teams living in the same hotel. Jack Martin is a former Hustler and present member of the Braves and has been holding many secret conferences with John Ganzel since the Hustlers arrived in camp. Many rumors have been circulated regarding these sessions, but nothing definite is known concerning Jack's plans for the season.

Tommy Mullin has not heard from his Brunswick manager to date, but expects to receive a notification to appear in the Southern camp some time next week.

NO CAPTAIN ELECTED.

A hitch has occurred in the proposed election of the Plainfield High School basketball captain for next year and no choice was named as proposed yesterday afternoon. It is probable that the players will get together some time next week.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN WINS NATIONAL TENNIS TITLE

Mrs. Samuel F. Weaver, formerly of Central avenue, and Miss Clare Cassel, won the national tennis doubles championship in the finals played yesterday afternoon, defeating Mrs. Marshal McLean and Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, by scores of 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. This pair was heretofore unknown in championship competition and their victory came as a big surprise to the tennis followers that witnessed the match.

Mrs. Weaver was active in local tennis competition while a resident of this city and took a prominent part in the Plainfield Country Club's tourneys, winning many prizes in the singles. The victory yesterday was no fluke, for the losers were of real championship calibre. Mrs. McLean won the national outdoor title in 1906.

BORO FRESHMAN ATHLETES ENTERTAINED BY MANAGER

The members of the boys' and girls' basketball teams of the freshman class of the North Plainfield High School, were entertained last evening by Miss Emma Mantz, at her home on Pearl street. WOMEN'S ACTIVITY IN POLITICS SHOWN School Elections Indicate a Decided Interest in State Affairs.

Trenton, March 20.—If the elections for school trustees held throughout the State this week are any criterion, the women of New Jersey will take a very decided interest in politics and campaigns, if they be given the full right of suffrage, as provided in the woman suffrage amendment to the State Constitution, which was passed by the Legislature. The women of the State may now vote at school trustee elections and reports received at the State House show that they manifested unusual activity in these elections this year.

Students of the suffrage movement declare that the campaigns of the past two years to get the equal suffrage resolution through the Legislature, culminating each year in a big hearing at the State House, has greatly widened public sentiment in favor of women voting, with the result that very many more women are interesting themselves in governmental affairs, both State and local. This is cited as the reason for the great interest this year among the women in the school elections.

DR. BALLARD SAYS HE'LL DIE FIGHTING IN LAST DITCH

Ocean Grove, March 20.—"You may say the president of the association states that the only place he will die in the Ocean Grove borough fight is the last ditch." Thus spoke Rev. Dr. A. E. Ballard when asked for a statement following the signing of the bill.

"The borough bill was not passed fairly," said Dr. Ballard. "Five of the Democratic Senators of their own volition, several of them in writing, had expressed their conviction that the bill ought not to pass. Some of them had said to me they were being forced by party pressure to vote for the bill even after they had gone to President Slocum and asked to be released. At least one of the five asked to be released from party pressure on the ground that he had promised to vote against the bill, and saw no reason for changing his mind.

"Before leaving the State House on the evening the bill was brought up, I knew that the five Democratic Senators had agreed, under pressure from President Slocum, to go back on their convictions and vote for the bill. It was one of these five who informed me the bill would not be brought up until next morning. Consequently I did not remain at the State House. I don't suppose my remaining would have made any difference, as the matter was all fixed.

"The association will take the same interest in fighting the referendum as it has taken in fighting the bill in the Legislature, believing that a borough government will result in an unmitigated disaster to the objects and purposes for which Ocean Grove exists.

"For years, during this agitation for a borough, influential members of the association, who have contributed largely of their own personal resources toward the expenses of the religious services, have seriously discussed the question that in the event of a borough government controlling this religious resort, they saw no reason why they should continue the services of religion during the season—services whose financial receipts never approximated their expenses.

The referendum clause of the bill just signed by the Governor provides for the question of a borough or no borough to be submitted to the legal voters of Ocean Grove on the first Tuesday in May.

THE NEXT CHIEF OF STAFF.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Major General William W. Wotherspoon, who is believed to be slated to succeed Major General Leonard Wood when the latter's tour of duty as chief of staff of the army expires next month, has the reputation of being one of the most thorough students of military matters in the army. He is an authority on the theory and tactics of war, and has published several valuable pamphlets dealing with phases of the war game. In addition, as president of the War College and more recently as assistant chief of staff, he has been foremost for several years in planning and deciding movements of the army. He, with his assistants in the War College, made out the schedule by which troops were first mobilized on the Mexican border when affairs in the southern republic assumed a threatening aspect in 1912.

General Wotherspoon is a native of this city. He was appointed to the army as a second lieutenant in 1873 and was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in 1879. During his entire military career he has been identified with the infantry branch of the service. From 1905 to 1909 he served on the general staff and during a part of that period was president of the War College. For one year, beginning in May, 1909, he was assistant to the chief of staff and then followed another two-year period as head of the War College. At the beginning of 1912 he was placed in command of the Department of the Gulf and continued at that post until transferred back to Washington to act again as assistant chief of staff. General Wotherspoon was born November 16, 1850, so that if he is appointed to the position of chief of staff he will have but eight months to serve before he is retired for age.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

A BUREAU-SCARF IN THE NEW EYELET WORK

It is now customary to have the bureau-scarf exactly fit the top of the bureau on which it is to be used. Eyelet work is especially attractive, as it shows the polished surface of the wood through the embroidery, and the design we are illustrating, 14602, although so effective, is very easy to work. The transfer pattern includes a bureau-scarf eighteen by forty-two inches, which may be made a little larger or smaller by adding or omitting scallops, also a pin cushion-cover five and one-half by seven and one-half inches. The pattern should be stamped on firmly woven, round thread linen, fine mercerized cotton poplin, handkerchief linen or fine lawn. Finish the scalloped edge with well-padded buttonhole-stitch, which may be worked with number twenty-five white mercerized cotton. The eyelet work is very easy to do, and explicit directions and diagrams for the stitches are given on the pattern envelope. If you prefer, however, the design may be carried out entirely in solid embroidery.

The Embroidery Book, which illustrates a complete assortment of designs for embroidering initials, scalloping, dress trimmings, waists, underwear, children's clothes, infants' garments, towels and other household linens; also includes directions and diagrams for embroidery stitches and a sample transfer pattern will be sent on receipt of mailing price, 8 cents.

Guaranteed hot-iron transfer pattern 14602 can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

For the young girl the long waisted frock is still favored. This is a very pleasing model; it closes diagonally on the side, has a round collar, a removable chemisette, a full length sleeve and a four-gored skirt, draped slightly on the side front.

Serge, eponge, poplin or one of the new cottons could be used to advantage. If a very dark serge or ratine were used the collar and cuffs would be effective in an Indian silk or silk eponge; the sash would lend a pleasing note if fashioned of Roman striped silk.

No. 7753 may be made up for a girl of sixteen, with 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14 to 18.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME NOVEL CUTLETS.

CUTLETS, real or imitation, are appetizing additions to the meal.

Veal and mutton cutlets are slices of meat cut horizontally from the upper part of the leg for broiling. Imitation cutlets are prepared to resemble them.

Some recipes for easily prepared cutlets are given here.

A Simple Dish.

Egg Cutlets.—Take five hard boiled eggs, cut fine, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of onion and three tablespoonfuls of flour. Melt the butter in a pan, add the flour and stir until smooth. Add milk and then the other ingredients and season with salt and pepper. Shape, roll in egg and cracker crumbs and fry brown in fat.

Made With Beef.

Beef Cutlets.—Run lean raw beef through the chopper (as for hamburg steak), season with sage and pepper, moisten with cream, then mold in cutlet form and broil. Serve with a brown sauce made by browning a slice of onion in two tablespoonfuls of butter, adding a little salt, pepper and two tablespoonfuls of stock. Boil until smooth; then add a hard boiled egg chopped in small pieces.

Liver Cutlets.—Take half a pound of calf's liver sliced thin, scald it by pouring boiling water over it; then wipe each slice dry. Beat up the yolk of an egg and dip the slices in it; then cover with fine, dry breadcrumbs, sprinkled with salt and pepper, and fry brown in bacon or ham fat.

A Dainty Way.

Sweetbread Cutlets.—Soak two parts of sweetbreads in cold water, changing the water at least four times every quarter hour. Cover with boiling salted water to which one tablespoonful of lemon juice has been added. Let simmer twenty minutes, drain and plunge into cold water, drain again and chop finely when cold. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, blend with half a cupful of flour, add gradually one cupful of milk, season with half a teaspoonful of salt, a grating of nutmeg and a little white pepper. When thick and smooth take from the fire, add one beaten egg, the chopped sweetbreads, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Put back on the fire, cook until heated, cool, shape into cutlets, dip in beaten egg, then in the crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with cream sauce.

"It had a fox's head on it!" she cried.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Little Mildred's Muff Was Lost and Found.

"MILDRED had lost her muff, and it had turned very, very cold," remarked daddy to Jack and Evelyn. "She lived in a small town near a big city. She went to school in the city. Every morning she took the train into the city and came back by train in the afternoon. It was on her way to school one morning that she lost her muff. She discovered that it was gone just after she stepped off the train. But the train had gone on, and there was no calling it back just for a little girl's muff. She walked on, feeling, oh, so badly, for the muff had been a Christmas present from her daddy. On it was a little fox's head, which she always called Gypy.

"When Mildred reached school she told her schoolmates of what had happened. They tried to comfort her for the loss of the muff by telling her that this special day was probably the only cold day they would have, for it had been warm of late and probably would be warm again the next day.

"But Mildred was not comforted. She told them that unless it was very hot her hands were cold. Besides, her daddy had given her the muff.

"Mildred's daddy was not very well off, and Mildred feared it would be a long time before she ought to expect another muff.

"When she got home that afternoon she told her mother and daddy what had happened. They felt so sorry for her and tried to comfort her by telling her that maybe it had been found. Mildred's daddy said that he would telephone to the railway station to see if anything had been seen of it. So he at once telephoned. Mildred stood by listening. Mildred's daddy feared that nothing would come of it and was surprised to realize that they were really asking for a perfect description of it.

"'Mildred,' said her daddy, 'they're asking me if your muff had a head on it. Did it?'

"'Oh, let me talk, daddy!' And Mildred grabbed the receiver.

"'Yes, yes,' she cried excitedly into the telephone; 'it had a black fox's head—Gypy's head—on it!' Then she heard the joyful words:

"'I think it's been found and been brought here.'

"Mildred could hardly wait until the morning came. Then she went with her daddy to the lost and found department of the railway station.

"As soon as she got inside she cried, 'There is my muff over there with all those umbrellas and books!' And she jumped up and down with happiness.

"The old man who handed it to her said:

"'Well, it's a pleasure to have anything found which belongs to a little girl who is so fond of it.'"

BURNING BARN FRIGHTENS RAHWAY THEATRE AUDIENCE

Rahway, March 20—A barn on the property of the M. Boyne estate, adoining the Empire Theatre in Irving street, was burned Wednesday night shortly before 9 o'clock. At the time an entertainment was being given in the theatre to a crowded house under the auspices of Union Council, No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M. Several women cried fire, but a panic was averted and the house was emptied in less than two minutes. When the fire had been subdued, the audience returned and the entertainment was finished. The barn was filled with shingles, the property of Miller & Hoff, whose loss is $1,000. The loss on the barn is $500.

NO REBUTTAL IN MARTINE'S REPLY TO GEORGE RECORD

Washington, March 20—The formal reply sent by Senator Martine to George L. Record in acknowledgement of the receipt of Record's letter on canal tolls contained no rebuttal to the several questions and arguments advanced by Record on behalf of President Wilson's appeal for repeal of the free tolls clause.

In effect, the Senator reassured Mr. Record that the regard he held for his friend of many years was still unabated. The Senator added that he could not agree with Mr. Record's views on the tolls question, and referred Mr. Record to an interview printed recently for an expression of how the Senator feels on tolls.

"My dear George:" wrote Senator Martine. "Acknowledging your letter of the 11th instance, relative to the Panama Canal tolls question, I want to simply say that I need not recite to you the esteem in which I hold you and your opinions. This I have felt from our first acquaintance many years ago. But on this particular matter of canal tolls I cannot concur in your judgment. You have, no doubt, seen my views as expressed in a recent interview. I have nothing to add or detract from that.

"With kindest regards and assurances of a personal desire to see you, I am, sincerely yours,

"JAMES E. MARTINE."

THEATRE FOR MORRISTOWN ON SITE OF PARK HOUSE

Morristown, March 20—Former Assemblyman James J. Lyons has purchased the Park House property, fronting on the Morristown Green, and says that he will erect there a theatre capable of seating about 1,500 persons. The property has a frontage of about 105 feet.

Preliminary plans for the playhouse comprehend the use of about seventy-five feet for the building and drive to the rear. On the street front containing two stores with offices above and a foyer to the theatre proper. Five feet will be left along the Becker block for an exit, and a driveway will be laid out on the other side of the building.

The plans call for an auditorium seventy feet wide with two galleries above and an ample number of boxes. The stage will be of a good size and fitted with modern appliances and plenty of dressing rooms. Entrance and exit to the second gallery will be by the side drive.

The Park House was for many years a licensed hotel, but for a quarter of a century had been conducted as a boarding-house only. This building, one of the old landmarks about the Green, will be moved, according to Mr. Lyons' plans, and utilized for other purposes on the rear of the lot.

ALLEGED THIEF IS ARRESTED.

New Brunswick, March 20.—Under arrest at Schenectady, N. Y., and awaiting extradition in this city is Carl Hoffman, charged with stealing eleven pigs from Alan R. Kelly, of New York, who raises pigs at East Spotswood. Last October he gave employment to Hoffman, who remained with him two months. One day in December, Hoffman loaded eleven pigs and started for South River. He failed to return. It was said he had delivered the pigs and collected $92.94 for them. County Detective John R. Ferguson traced Hoffman to New York State, where he was captured.

The Ultra Coats of Europe

Are Just Here from the Steamers—To Sell at the Lowest Prices in the History of Fine Tailoring.

At $12.75 to $85—Exclusive

The fabrics are beautiful and they are luxurious—some of them are so soft that they just seem to melt when one feels them. This is because we personally selected every material, and were fastidious that they should be the best of their weaves. Even at $1 there are coats of hand-woven Irish tweed—the genuine Donegal fabric.

What colors! Indeed, the tones of gold, mustard, tango, green, apricot, leather and brown are so rich and distinguished that it is easy for one to desire several coats—capes, too.

Lustrous Cordeline Coats, $12.75 to $29.50
Coats of Fine Velvet Cloth, $19.50 to $25
Coats of Sunshine Cloth, $19.75

The Gilet in every instance is practically a coat, but we call it a waistcoat because the back is of silk and the front is either of checked worsted or corduroy and the cape is of plain or plaid worsted.

Mrs. Patrick Campell is to play the flower seller in Bernard Shaw's new play, "Pygmalion," which will be produced in London soon.

Sometime this spring, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pinafore" is to be converted into a water spectacle and staged at the New York Hippodrome.

"Cordelia Blossom," a comedy in four acts, by George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester, is to have its first production Easter week.

John Mason has been selected for the principal role in "Drugged," a new play by Owen Davis which has been accepted for production by A. H. Woods.

"Young England" is the title of the latest operetta by Leo Fall, composer of "The Dollar Princess." The book was inspired by the methods of the militant suffragettes.

Dr. H. H. Butler, of the Board of Health, received word Wednesday that a dog killed by him last week was suffering from rabies. The State Board of Health made the report after an examination of the animal's head. No other dogs were known to have been bitten by the rabid dog.

SEMINARY COMMENCEMENT.

New Brunswick, March 20.—A slight change is to be made in the program at the 130th annual commencement of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary this year. Instead of holding these exercises on the evening of May 21, the date set for commencement, as has been the custom in the past, they will be held at 11:45 o'clock in the morning. This is to allow the members of the board of superintendents as well as the students themselves to get away the day of graduation. There are seven students in the senior class this year. Examinations will begin May 12. May 12-9 will be given up to written examinations, and May 20-21 to oral examinations. At the commencement to follow on this latter date addresses will be made by Rev. Herman Hageman, of Claverack, N. Y., representing the board of superintendents, and by Professor Edward P. Johnson, instructor in sacred and ecclesiastical history of the seminary, representing the faculty. The alumni dinner will be held immediately following commencement at 2 o'clock. The orator will be Rev. Dr. Louis H. Holden, of New York.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

PRINCIPALS IN TRAGEDY.

Mme. Joseph Caillaux and Calmette, Who Was Slain.

Mme. Caillaux's assassination of Gastor Calmette, editor of the Figaro, brought about another change in the French cabinet when Ernest Monis, minister of marine, added his resignation to that of the minister of finance, Joseph Caillaux, husband of the murderess. A meeting of the cabinet council accepted the resignation. Mme. Caillaux is still the object of deep sympathy, and crowds took advantage of the mid-Lenten holiday to gather at the gates of St. Lazare prison, where she is held. The police, massed about the place, prevented serious demonstrations.

PARIS TRAGEDY CAUSES ANOTHER RESIGNATION

Minister of Marine Leaves French Cabinet.

Paris, March 20.—Mme. Caillaux's assassination of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, brought about another change in the French cabinet when Ernest Monis, minister of marine, added his resignation to that of Joseph Caillaux, minister of finance. A meeting of the cabinet council accepted the resignation, and for the present Albert F. Lebrun, minister of the colonies, will act also as minister of marine.

M. Monis appears to have withdrawn from the cabinet reluctantly, and only after several of his colleagues had intimated that he must or they would resign. He has been summoned to appear before the committee of inquiry appointed by the chamber of deputies for examination. Today Joseph Caillaux, Mr. Fabre, the public prosecutor, and M. Bidault de l'Isle, president of the court of appeals, also will go before the committee.

Maurice Barres, the academician and novelist, who is regarded as one of the leaders of the new spirit in France, is among those added to the old parliamentary committee appointed in 1911 to investigate the Rochette affair. The committee has decided to meet twice daily. The revelations, it is said in parliamentary circles, may deeply affect the elections which are to be held on April 26.

Mme. Caillaux is still the object of deep popular sympathy, and crowds took advantage of the mid-Lenten holiday to gather at the gates of St. Lazare prison, the women's penitentiary, where she is in custody.

ELLIOTT EXPECTS AGREEMENT

New Haven Road Hopeful After Directors' Meeting.

New York, March 20.—As a result of the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the New Haven, Howard Elliott, chairman of the board, expressed the belief that at his conference with Attorney General McReynolds in Washington an agreement would be reached between the road and the department of justice.

"I think I may safely say," said Mr. Elliott, "that the chances for a settlement seem much better than they have been for some time."

Mr. Elliott would not say what had taken place at the directors' meeting but said that the whole situation had been gone over thoroughly during the meeting, which lasted for four hours. Twenty of the twenty-three directors were present, the only absentees being William Rockefeller, Charles F. Brooker and Morton F. Plant.

Lose Eighty-eight Umbrellas Daily.

London, March 20.—Every day eighty-eight Londoners lose their umbrellas according to latest Scotland Yard statistics. During the past year 84,376 lost articles of all descriptions were reported to the police.

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD, ENDS COLD OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Goes—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely, fullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleasing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. Adv.

ACCUSED OF SLAYING FATHER.

Media, Pa., March 20—The case of John D. Lee, under indictment for the alleged murder of his father, came up for trial here today. The elder Lee, who was a former deputy tax collector and prominent politician of Philadelphia, was shot and killed in a boathouse at Essington, November 10 of last year. It is alleged that the killing occurred during a quarrel. The defense, it is understood, will be that the father drew a revolver, which was exploded when young Lee tried to take it away from him.

Remember reading about a tribe of monkeys wanting to cross a stream of any kind, will climb a tree on one bank of the stream, then each take a good, firm tail-hold on his nearest neighbor and swing like a pendulum out of the tree until the lowest one in line can grab a tree on the opposite bank, and thus make a bridge which can be crossed in safety by the remaining members of the tribe?

Wonderful what can be accomplished when all pull together—even if it is only a tail hold.

Those monkeys sure believe in

A LONG PULL,
A STRONG PULL,
AND A PULL ALL TOGETHER.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. Those monkeys wanted to get somewhere and by hanging together were enabled to "come across."

HUERTA DID NOT SEND AN ENVOY

Senor Portillo Went For a Day of Rest.

NO NEW NEGOTIATIONS ON

Vivid Details of Execution of 149 Given by Captain Toledano — All Faced Death Bravely — Whole Army Sees Piles of Dead Mutineers.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, March 20.—The developments seem to show that the visit here of Senor Jose Lopez Portillo y Rojas, the minister of foreign affairs in Huerta's cabinet, was for the purpose of spending his saint's day (St. Joseph's day) quietly and not to reopen negotiations with John Lind, President Wilson's special representative in Mexico, as was reported. The gravity of the financial situation was said to have prompted Huerta to send his foreign minister to confer unofficially with Mr. Lind.

There was nothing in the movements of Senor Portillo y Rojas to indicate that he entertains any idea of visiting Mr. Lind. The latter says he has no information on the subject, but he does not deny that it is possible such a conference might be solicited by the minister of foreign affairs.

Mexico City, March 20.—Vivid details of the bloodiest execution in recent history were brought here by Captain Adan Toledano, who was an eyewitness to the shooting of 140 prisoners and the hanging of their nine leaders following a mutiny at the Jojutla barracks, in the state of Morelos.

"It was on the morning of Friday, the 13th, that the men were lined up and executed," said Captain Toledano. "It was horrible, but was the only thing to do. The nine leaders were hanged to trees near the spot where their followers were shot. The mutineers were brought out in squads of a dozen each, and the executions were carried out rapidly, with the whole army looking on.

"An embankment served as a wall before which the traitors were lined up. As they were shot the bodies were piled up, and the troops then were marched by so that the soldiers could get a close view of the dead mutineers and profit by the lesson. This is the usual custom in cases of execution for mutiny."

General Castro, who was in command at Jojutla at the time of the wholesale executions, said:

"We captured Jojutla after three hours of fighting, and I personally ordered the execution not only of 149 mutineers, but also of fifty others captured in nearby towns the next morning. The 149 were shot in squads. It was the only way to quell the mutiny and to compel discipline.

Made Report to Huerta.

"I did not personally witness the executions, but have received full reports from my officers showing that they were carried out as ordered. And I have made a complete report to President Huerta."

Captain Toledano said that he was with the troops at Cuernavaca one week ago when word was received telling of trouble at Jojutla.

"The reports said that the soldiers had revolted and killed General Altriste," said Captain Toledano. "We started with special trains immediately for Jojutla. General Castro, military governor of the state, was with us, and we reached Jojutla at about 7 o'clock in the evening.

"There were 900 of us and 250 mutineers. By midnight we had taken the town, and the soldiers brought in 149 prisoners.

"General Castro held an investigation, and, according to the evidence he obtained, most of the prisoners were convict soldiers, mainly thieves and pickpockets, and he ordered them to be shot in squads the next morning, Friday, March 13."

400,000 MINERS MAY STRIKE.

Apparently Little Chance of Wage Agreement With Operators.

Chicago, March 20.—Serious talk of the possibility of a great coal strike involving between 300,000 and 400,000 bituminous miners was heard here when mine operators from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana and miners' representatives resumed their efforts to reach an agreement on a wage scale.

The miners were considerably less optimistic as to the possibility of an agreement. The operators previously flatly rejected demands for an average increase in wages of 6½ per cent, declaring that a warm winter left them with surplus stocks.

PRESIDENT REBUKES SENATOR

Tells Him Carden's Visit Came After Tolls Speech Was Printed.

Washington, March 20.—President Wilson told Senator Jones of Washington that he had been "skating on thin ice" when he intimated in his senate speech that the president's address urging repeal of the exemption from Panama tolls had been prepared at the request of Sir Lionel Carden, British minister to Mexico. Jones had called at the White House on another matter, but the president took occasion to inform him that the address was in the hands of the printer three days before Carden called.

MRS. JOHN AVA W. ASTOR.

Arrives on Imperator to Attend Son's Wedding.

The giant Imperator the triumphant bronze eagle at her bow clipped like a Thanksgiving turkey and four of her lifeboats smashed by a great storm, docked with the story of a night of peril when she lay hove to in midocean for six hours. While the vessel, her steering gear useless, was being driven by a 100 mile an hour gale Friday night a baby was born in the steerage, a cook died in the second cabin and Mrs. John Astor gave a dinner party in the Ritz-Carlton restaurant. Mrs. Astor is here to attend the wedding of her son, Vincent Astor, to Miss Huntington April 30.

SHIP SINKS LAUNCH; FIFTY ARE DROWNED

Italian Torpedo Boat Crashes Into Vessel.

Venice, March 20.—Fifty of the sixty-five passengers on a steam launch, most of whom were women and children, were drowned when a torpedo boat crashed into the pleasure vessel near the Lido. The launch sank immediately.

The people on the launch were returning to Venice from the Lido, where a large number of excursionists had spent the holiday, St. Joseph's day. The launch had hardly started when the torpedo boat was sighted coming at high speed toward the harbor. The captain of the launch apparently miscalculated the speed and distance and did not alter his course, with the result that the torpedo boat struck his vessel with terrific force aft. The launch sank immediately in deep water, taking down all those in the cabin, who were drowned without making a sound.

The other fifteen passengers, who were on the deck, were picked up from the sea. Many boats from warships in the harbor, including one from the German cruiser Goeben, gondolas and other craft rushed to the point where the launch had gone down, but did not effect any rescues of those in the cabin, as not one of them came to the surface.

About twenty bodies were recovered. Many people who are still at the Lido now refuse to return by the pleasure steamers and consequently gondolas have been sent to bring them here.

The cardinal patriarch of Venice, who hastened to the scene, gave absolution to the drowned. Subsequently he telegraphed an account of the disaster to the pope, who replied by sending his condolences and blessing.

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

GET IN THE GAME.

Take one home. Teach your wife and avoid some foolish and embarrassing questions at the Polo Grounds next summer.

MAKE A HIT

With the folks by obtaining one. You'll make an error if you don't. It is as much fun for the grown-ups as it is for the youngsters. Get a grand stand seat for the price of a score-card and make rooters out of the entire family.

SOCIALIST MAY GO TO CONGRESS

Other Parties Alarmed at Candidate's Strength.

AFTER BREMNER'S PLACE.

Democrats Especially Fearful Wilson's Hope of Indorsement Will Fail—Election to Be Held In Seventh New Jersey District on April 7 For Selection of Successor to Late Congressman.

Paterson, N. J., March 20.—Republicans, Democrats and Progressives are beginning to be alarmed over the possibility that Gordon Demarest, who will be the Socialist candidate for congressman at the special election on April 7 in the Seventh New Jersey district, may get more votes than any of his competitors. If it should so happen that he is elected he will be the only Socialist representative in the Sixty-third congress. The last and only Socialist to go to Washington as a representative was Victor Berger, ex-mayor of Milwaukee.

The special election has been called for the selection of a successor to Robert G. Bremner, Democrat, who died of cancer. The actual Socialist campaign will not be started in earnest until after the primary on Tuesday next. It promises to be one of the hottest fights the party has ever made.

Just now the Socialists are getting in readiness for their first big meeting Eugene V. Debs, who was a candidate for the presidency, will be the speaker. An effort is also being made to prevail upon ex-Representative Berger to tell Passaic people how and why he went to congress.

Passaic county is the strongest Socialist center in New Jersey. When Demarest ran for mayor of Paterson last November he polled 4,700 votes. There are several hundred more out and out members of the party in the city of Passaic and its environs. The Socialist propaganda has been pushed with a vengeance since the big silk strike in Paterson, and it is no secret that many mill operatives not Socialists are kindly disposed toward the party. The I. W. W. silk strikers are practically all with it.

The Socialists say that their cause would receive a mighty boom throughout the country if in spite of President Wilson's desire to see a Democrat returned to Washington as an indorsement of his administration a Socialist should be elected.

TWO JERSEY BOYS DISAPPEAR

Parents Hear That Woman Took One Into a Basement.

Newark, N. J., March 20.—Walter Mason and Samuel Siegel, both eight years old, who live next door to each other at 69 and 71 South Orange avenue, left their homes Wednesday afternoon to play and neither has been seen since by their parents.

Worried over the absence of the boys the parents and police searched all night along the Morris canal and through the city streets without getting trace of them.

A woman told Mrs. Mason that she saw a woman with a handkerchief around her head stop Walter and offer him candy. She said the woman took him through an alley near the court house and then down into a basement.

MAD DOG'S SEVEN VICTIMS.

Case of True Rabies, Says a Hospital Laboratory.

Paterson, N. J., March 20.—The rabid dog which appeared in Passaic bit at least seven persons instead of three, as reported at first. There is a report that two more children were bitten but the authorities have thus far failed to find them.

The Newark City hospital, to the laboratory of which the dog's head was sent, sent word that it was a case of true rabies. Serum was at once ordered and all the victims were treated.

MARTINE ATTACKS SUFFRAGE

New Jersey Senator Speaks Against Proposed Amendment.

Washington, March 20.—Attacking the suffrage amendment in the senate, Senator Martine of New Jersey declared that the equal ballot "had not proved a panacea for all the evils in Colorado." He said the mine strike situation showed this particularly.

Senator Thomas of Colorado retorted that he had never contended that suffrage was a "general panacea."

BRIEF STATE ITEMS.

It took a jury twenty minutes to convict William Cerrenero of white slavery in the quarter sessions court in Newark. Jennis Shanks was the complaining witness.

Patrick Murray of Preakness, who swallowed poison Sunday morning when he heard that his fiancee, Miss Jessie Henn, had killed herself with strychnine, has practically recovered.

At the Grove street crossing of the Lackawanna in East Orange, where Dr George T. Welchman of Newark was killed Tuesday, a similar fatality was narrowly averted when George Weaver, a driver, was hemmed in on the tracks by two trains. They stopped a few feet from him.

MACRORIE IS FINALLY DEPOSED

Former Pastor of Mt. Horeb Church is Found Guilty of Charges.

AFTER SECOND TRIAL

Newark Conference Sustains Report of Special Committee—Former Pastor to Retain Church Membership.

Rev. Willis S. MacRorie, the former pastor of the Mt. Horeb, Springdale and Martinsville M. E. churches, was finally deposed as a minister by the Newark Conference, yesterday, following a third trial, the second by the church and one in the Union County Courts. The charge against MacRorie was that of untruthfulness, of which he was found guilty. He still remains a member of the Methodist Church.

The trial of the former minister was conducted behind closed doors, and while it seemed to be the opinion that MacRorie would be dropped from the ministry, the fact did not become known until the special committee made its report and was sustained by the conference. A year ago MacRorie was tried by the conference, and at that time he was suspended for six months, it being the judgment of the church body that he had acted in a manner unbecoming a minister.

Since that time, MacRorie was tried in the Union County Court and found guilty on an indictment returned by the grand jury, his case having been reconsidered following the action of the conference. He was sentenced to a prison term, but this has been stayed by an appeal, no decision having been given as yet by the higher court. The MacRorie case has attracted state-wide attention and the latest decision seems to meet with the approval of a majority of the members of the conference.

The committee found Mr. MacRorie guilty of the charges of untruthfulness, growing out of statements he made last year when he was tried on a charge of immorality. He was suspended for six months at that time.

Mr. MacRorie was formerly pastor of the churches at Mt. Horeb and Springdale. He was arrested in 1912 by the authorities of Union county, at which time his name was linked with that of Miss Gertrude Nelson, a member of his church at Mt. Horeb. At the time of his arrest, he is alleged to have written a confession, but later repudiated it. The grand jury did not indict him. Subsequently he was charged with immorality by two ministers. The court which heard the case did not sustain the charge, but found him guilty of imprudence and unministerial conduct.

During the trial Mr. MacRorie was asked if it were true that he had made a confession, and he denied it. He was also asked if he was the author of certain letters to the girl, and he also denied this. Later he was indicted by the Union county grand jury and during his trial he is alleged to have admitted the letters and confession originated from him.

A jury of ministers was appointed by the conference, the Rev. A. B. Richardson, of Paterson, presiding, to try Mr. MacRorie on the charge. The Rev. Warren R. Neff, of Hoboken, and the Rev. Ralph B. Urmy, of Morristown, were appointed to represent the church, and the Rev. Rufus L. Boyd, of Jersey City, and the Rev. Warren L. Hoagland, of Phillipsburg, appeared for Mr. MacRorie.

The trial committee met yesterday in the Central Methodist Episcopal church, Newark, behind closed doors and heard the testimony. After the evidence was heard the committee returned to the conference and recommended that Mr. MacRorie be unfrocked. The conference sustained the committee.

It developed at the conference yesterday that the charges against the Rev. J. B. J. Rhodes, of Washington, were unfounded. He was charged with alleged unministerial conduct.

An executive session was held this morning for the examination of candidates for the ministry, resulting in the acceptance of the following into full membership: George C. E. McGill, of the Union church at Totowa; W. D. Stickley, Sargentsville; George Townsend, Hainesville and Layton; J. C. Lydle, Sparta; J. L. Davis, Ridgefield Park; S. S. Benson, Stillwater; Edward Betterton, New Dover; S. G. Willie, Branchville, and H. G. Conger, Vernon. The accepted as trial members were J. A. Oakes, West Summit; H. K. Quimby, West Orange; M. H. Senior, Paterson; Philip S. Watters, assistant pastor of the Centenary church, Newark.

Devotional exercises occupied the time this afternon, and tonight there will be two talks on temperance. It was thought this morning that the conference would not finish its session on Monday, but would run over until Tuesday.

JUNIOR SUFFRAGE LEAGUE IS FORMED

Miss Dorothy Parvin is Chosen President of New Organization.

Officers were elected and a constitution adopted at the meeting of the Junior Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield at a meeting held at the Plainfield Public Library, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of completing the details of the organization. The temporary officers were Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, chairman, and Miss Poucher, secretary.

The constitution of the new league prepared by Miss Robinson, was adopted by the meeting and officers were elected as follows: President, Miss Dorothy Parvin; vice-presidents, Miss Helen Hyde and Miss Marjorie Robinson; secretary, Miss Dorthy Lyon; treasurer, Miss Louise Booth; auditors Miss Timpson and Miss Eva Selden.

The annual dues of the league will be fifty cents. The league voted to be an auxilary to the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield and will pay twenty-five cents annually to the parent organization for each member. The president will sit on the executive board of the older league and it is understood that there will be close cooperation between the two.

Mrs. Maxwell Perkins gave a delightful recitation which added a touch of merriment to the meeting. The next meeting will be held Tuesday afternoon, April 7, at 3 o'clock and it is believed that the first Tuesday afternoon of each month will be fixed as the regular time for meetings. Much good is expected from the Junior League and its staff of officers. As an aid in laying out programs for the coming year members are urged to provide themselves with a little book entitled "Discussion Topic for Suffrage Clubs," by Gertrude Nelson Andrews.

WILL PREACH A SERIES OF SERMONS ON HABAKKUK

The services tomorrow at the First Baptist church will be of special interest. In the morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, will begin a series of three sermons on the Prophet Habakkuk, reciting the book Sunday by Sunday and selecting a characteristic text from each of its three chapters. These sermons, it is believed, will be very instructive in nature and interesting in material.

In the evening the usual services will be held. A sermon of special evangelistic character will be preached, followed by the ordinance of baptism. The services at the First Baptist church are of increasing interest and helpfulness and the pastor intends to emphasize this feature more and more both upon the Sabbath and upon Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all those having no other church connection.

CHARLES PFLEGER WEDS MISS RIMMER

Ceremony Performed This Afternoon by Rev. Frederic L. Greene.

Miss Alice Eccles Rimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, of Essex street, and Chas. H. Pfleger formerly of this city, but recently of Norristown, Pa., were quietly married at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, at his home on West Fifth street, and was witnessed only by the family of the bride.

The bride wore a becoming blue traveling suit and carried a bouquet of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Rimmer, her parents, acted as the attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for Norristown where they will make their home in the future. The groom holds a responsible position in that city with the Newbold Construction Company. He was employed until last June in the local plant of the International motor concern.

Mr. and Mrs. Pfleger are well-known throughout the city and particularly in the West End. Mrs. Pfleger has been prominent in the work at Hope chapel, where both she and her husband have been members of the church choir. Their absence from the city will be regretted by a host of friends, but all unite in wishing them success and happiness in their new home.

RUDOLPH SPIEGEL'S FUNERAL IS HELD

Many Societies and Relatives Attend Obsequies at German Reformed Church.

The German Reformed church at Craig place and Duer street was crowded to its doors, yesterday afternoon, when the funeral of Rudolph Spiegel, whose death occurred in New York, took place at 2:30. In addition to the large gathering of relatives and friends, there were delegations from five organizations of which he was a member. The service was conducted by Rev. George Hauser, who also spoke briefly at the late home on Somerset street.. The singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein sang a German selection, "Schlas Wohl," and August Wolf, financial secretary of the organization, delivered an oration.

A turn-out of twenty-five members of the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association acted as an escort for the body from the house to the church and later as far as Fourth street and Park avenue, from which an escort of six in charge of former Chief Julius Stahl, proceeded to Hillside cemetery, where burial was made. At the grave Past Chancellor John M. Ulrich, of Perseverance lodge, conducted the Knights of Pythias ritual. The flowers were usually numerous and included twenty two set pieces, many of them coming from friends and business associates.

The pall-bearers were Morgan Tutton and C. F. Boice from Perseverance lodge, Charles L. Holstein and John Green from Miantonomo tribe of Red Men, and Charles F. Meyer and Leto Kuntz from the Gesang and Turn Verein.

RUNAWAY HORSE CRASHES INTO DR. FRENCH'S AUTO

A horse belonging to Charles W. Squires, attached to one of his milk wagons and driven by William Henry, took fright by the sudden starting of an automobile at Watchung avenue and Seventh street, shortly before noon today. The animal ran north on Watchung avenue, despite Henry's attempts to stop it, and before going a block, crashed into the side of Dr. French's auto, standing near the curb. The horse continued on and at Fifth street just grazed A. M. Griffen's large work wagon with a number of men in it.

At Fourth street, the rig struck a culvert, dishing a wheel and overturning the wagon. Henry escaped injury by jumping. The horse was caught before going further.

The damage altogether was quite serious, as beside the smashed wagon and battered auto, a large quantity of milk was lost and bottles smashed.

MISS SMITH AT THE ORGAN.

Miss Justina Smith, of St. Joseph's church, presided at the organ at the funeral service of David J. Carney, yesterday morning, rendering the impressive music during the high solemn requiem mass. She is the soprano soloist at St. Joseph's church.

HONORED MOTHER MARY GABRIEL

Students at Mt. St. Mary College Give an Entertainment.

Mother Mary Gabriel was honored last night at Mt. St. Mary College when the pupils gave an entertainment in recognition of her patronal feast day. Many parents and friends of the young girls who took part, were among those present.

A cantata was presented by the junior department of the college, and was creditably given by the young women. Among those prominent in the musical were the Misses Marion Floersch, Clare Hall, Ruth Weaver Anita Maguire, Mary Noonan, Pearl Jones, Mary Gibbons, Alive O'Donnel, Alice Alkazin and Pauline Watt.

The senior girls entertained with a "Grecian Harp Dance" and was presented by the Misses Kathleen Brown, Ella Convery, Helena McHale, Clare Miles, Agnes O'Conner, Emily McCloud, Jeanne Hamilton, Regina Birmingham, Dorothy Watt and Frances O'Hara. Selections by the college glee club concluded the evening of entertainment.

ACKERMAN CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED BATEMAN

Former State Senator Seeking Appointment to Civil Service Commission.

Former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street made it known yesterday afternoon that he was a candidate for the appointment to the Civil Service Commission. Charles H. Bateman, the present incumbent, retires this year. The latter is a resident of Somerville and well-kown in newspaper work.

The salary of the civil service commissioner is $2,000 a year and the term is four years. It is said that Speaker Beekman, of the Assembly, favors the reappointment of Mr. Bateman. Both Ackerman and Bateman are Republicans and it is expected that Governor Fielder will select a member of this party, thus maintaining the balance of two Republicans and two Democrats.

CONVICTED GAMBLER GOES FREE BUT MUST LEAVE TOWN

Upon his promise to quit the town the sentence of thirty days in the county jail levied on Peter Riseteo in the city court Wednesday morning for running a gambling den in his store on East Front street was lifted yesterday and he is now making preparations to move from Plainfield. Riseteo was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Roundsman Higgins and Detective Sergeant Flynn and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza was fined $100 and sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Although the jail sentence was remitted by the court the offender had to pay the $100 and was told to leave the town as soon as he could get his chattels together. Riseteo is an old offender and although he has been fined on numerous other occasions the sentences have done little to reform him. In remitting the jail sentence the court took advantage of an opportunity to banish him from town.

Following her arrival home she grew steadily worse and Dr. Endicott diagnosed the case as appendicitis after an examination this morning and an immediate operation was ordered.

SUNDAY SCHOOL METHODS DISCUSSED

Miss Slattery and Rev. Dr. Littlefield Make Intersting Addresses.

An audience that filled the parish house of the Congregational church to overflowing last night, attended the conference of Sunday school workers and heard an interesting and instructive address delivered by Miss Margaret Slattery, who is active in promoting Sunday school work in this State. Preceding Miss Slattery's talk an open conference was held, the Rev. Milton Littlefield presiding. Questions pertinent to Sunday school endeavor were distributed among those in the audience and individuals asked various queries which were answered by Dr. Littlefield.

Miss Slattery outlined the course she pursues in interesting young people in Biblical work and suggested various methods that might prove applicable to local work along this line. The speaker is an organizer and conductor of Bible classes and she has numerous outlines of work which she described in detail at last night's meeting. Miss Slattery suggested a definite schedule of work for teachers and scholars in Sunday school work and urged the following of a specified line of work.

She advocated a graded system of instruction and told of the object of rescue work among the younger generation. Her remarks were enthusiastically received and many valuable points were gained by the Sunday school workers who attended.

DESCRIBES BIRTH OF THE TELEPHONE

A. B. Wilson Addresses Interested Audience at Marconnier Church.

Addressing an appreciative audience at Marconnier Reformed church, last night, A. B. Wilson, local commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, told the story of the birth and development of the telephone. The subject of the lecture was "Our Most Democratic Institution—The Telephone." It included views and descriptions of the first telephone, the first telephone exchanges and the operations and construction of the equipment now in use.

Mr. Wilson told how Alexander Graham Bell, a poor young man, struggled to secure recognition for his wonderful invention and was finally recognized by the Emperor of Brazil at the Centenial Exposition. When the latter was given a demonstration of the invention he exclaimed, "My God, it talks!" Thus the telephone was given to the world.

The speaker in describing the first telephone exchanges explained that boys were employed as operators, but did not prove satisfactory, and in their place appeared the "soft-voiced" girl. Mr. Wilson said that the rush of girls into the business world was a real blessing when they took possession of the telephone exchanges.

"The girl and the telephone are natural friends," said Mr. Wilson, "and suit each other to perfection. They make such a good team that today a telephone call means politeness and twenty seconds, instead of bedlam and 300 seconds, as was the case when boys were on the job. The first telephone directory in New York city was printed in 1879 and contained 252 names. Today there are 8,300,000 telephones in this country and only 4,000,000 in the rest of the world."

A comprehensive explanation of the workings of the telephone was given with splendid views of operators making local and toll connections, of the schools where employes are trained, the information desk, switchboards, underground cables and other interesting features of the business.

FINANCE COMMITTEE STILL WORKING ON ANNUAL BUDGET

The Councilmanic finance committee met, last night, to continue its work on the annual budget which is to be presented in April for adoption. DROWNING STORY WAS EVIDENTLY BOY'S JOKE

Herbert Schinkel Not Dead, and Apparently Sent Report to Papers Himself.

The biggest fake which has been "put over" locally was printed in Plainfield, last night, and investigation proves that it was evidently the result of a prank on the part of the person directly concerned in the story. Both local papers recorded the death by drowning on Sunday last in the Hackensack River of Herbert Schinkel, for several months the apprentice in the Daily Press office, and son of John C. Schinkel, who formerly conducted the O. X. O. bakery on North avenue. The information for the story came in a letter supposedly written by John C. Schinkel, and received yesterday by Robert Scott, an employe of the Press.

This morning a friend of the Schinkel family called the Press office on the 'phone, and said that she had received a letter yesterday from Mrs. Schinkel written on Thursday, in which it was said that Herbert was working near home, and was talking about getting a canoe, so that he could get some out of door exercise. There was no intimation that anything had befallen any member of the family. The Daily Press immediately called the Englewood Press on the 'phone, and learned that no drowning had occurred near that town. Then John C. Schinkel was called at his place of business in New York. He was asked:

"Did you write a letter to Robert Scott, telling of Herbert's death by drowning?"

"No, I haven't heard anything about it, and Herbert was home last night. Why do you ask?" said Mr. Schinkel. It was then explained that both local papers had printed an account of the boy's death on the strength of the letter which Scott had received yesterday morning. Mr Schinkel then expressed himself in no uncertain terms about the matter, and said that it undoubtedly was a joke on the part of his son, or that the boy "had a finger in it, sure." He also said that young Schinkel would have a time far from pleasant when he arrived home tonight.

The letter upon which the story was based was written upon a letterhead of a bakery which the senior Schinkel formerly conducted in Englewood, and read as follows:

"307 West 24th Street, N. Y.

"Dear Bob—I am writing this to let you know that Herbert is dead. He was drowned last Sunday in the Hackensack River where he was out in a canoe which he had just bought. I want you to put this in the Press and the Courier on the first page, as his friends might see it. He was buried today in the Lutheran cemetery in Brooklyn.

"Please give the poor boy a good write-up so as to make it sound good, get in some stuff about baseball and athletics, I guess your sporting editor could fix it up, and send me copies of both the Courier and Press, as I would like to see it.

"I would like to get over to see you but my wife is almost crazy about his death and I cannot safely leave her.

"Hoping you will do me this slight favor, I remain, your friend,

"SCHINKEL."

COPPER WIRE THIEF CAUGHT

Isaac Houston Arrested by Railroad Detective Laverette.

SEVERAL COILS FOUND

City Judge William G. DeMeza Imposes $10 Fine, But Scores the Western Union Telegraph Company for Carelessness.

Charged with taking copper wire belonging to the Western Union Telegraph Company from the tracks of the Central Railroad, Isaac Houston, of 937 West Front street, was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning and sentenced to pay a fine of $10. The accused was arrested by Detective Laverett, of the New Jersey Central, who discovered the plunder in the rear of Houston's house.

The defendant's property abuts on the Central Railroad tracks and in testifying in court this morning, he claimed that he did not know the value of the wire and merely removed it from the tracks and threw it into his back yard, where it was found.

In passing sentence Judge DeMeza took into consideration the man's previous good reputation and took occasion to arraign the Western Union for carelessness in leaving the wire along the tracks. Since the storm of three weeks ago large coils of copper wire have been placed at frequent intervals along the railroad banks and serve as a temptation to owners of property in the vicinity of the railroad who take the wire for the purpose of mending fences and building chicken coops. Many complaints have been received from the Western Union authorities stating that professional thieves are stealing the wire and the apprehension of the local machinist will probably have little effect, it is believed, in diminishing the crime as he was in no way affiliated with the gang that is operating on the road.

DECREE OF DIVORCE FOR MRS. ESTELLE CLARKSON

Mrs. Estelle May Eick Clarkson, of Dunellen, was granted a decree of absolute divorce from her husband, Thomas E. Clarkson, of this city, in the Court of Chancery, Trenton, yesterday. The Clarksons were married secretly in 1907 in Newark and have lived together only a short time since then. Mrs. Clarkson charges her husband with willful, continued and obstinate desertion.

A short time after the couple's marriage, Clarkson met with an accident which resulted in the amputation of his leg. He was driving a vacuum cleaner in New York when the vehicle was struck by a Lexington avenue surface car and the chauffeur's leg was so badly crushed that he had to have it cut off. The court granted Mrs. Clarkson the right to assume her maiden name. Judge William G. DeMeza represented Mrs. Clarkson in the legal proceedings.

QUARTET WILL SING STAINER'S "THE CRUCIFIXION"

These services have been greatly enjoyed by large congregations, and will be continued during the next fall and winter season.

NO LOOKING BACK IN PLAINFIELD

New Evidence Constantly Being Published.

Since the long succession of Plainfield reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. Plainfield evidence continues to pour in, and better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. E. Dorflinger, of 610 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J. She says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were crying for help in giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dorflinger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Remember reading about a tribe of monkeys wanting to cross a stream of any kind, will climb a tree on one bank of the stream, then each take a good, firm tail-hold on his nearest neighbor and swing like a pendulum out of the tree until the lowest one in line can grab a tree on the opposite bank, and thus make a bridge which can be crossed in safety by the remaining members of the tribe?

Wonderful what can be accomplished when all pull together—even if it is only a tail hold.

Those monkeys sure believe in

A LONG PULL,
A STRONG PULL,
AND A PULL ALL TOGETHER.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. Those monkeys wanted to get somewhere and by hanging together were enabled to "come across."

Reindeer of Alaska, An Important Industry, Aided by Government

THERE are not less than 30,000 domesticated reindeer in Alaska today, according to estimates of the department of agriculture. This means that the reindeer industry is by far the largest agricultural proposition in Alaska at this time, and more stringent government measures should be taken to prevent the rapid destruction of these animals. The industry under scientific management should develop rapidly, according to experts, and the present herds form a very promising basis upon which a great industry may be built.

It appears that there have been instances of cross breeding domesticated reindeer and the native wild caribou. It is thought that the blood of the latter could be used to good advantage in building up the reindeer herds. At present the domesticated deer seem to decrease in size and otherwise degenerate because of the lack of careful selection of breeding animals. The caribou are superior in size and vigor, but are so wild as to make their domestication impracticable.

That portion of Alaska which offers the fewest other agricultural opportunities is the region best suited to the reindeer. So the industry may be developed without encroaching on other lines of farming. The existence of white reindeer moss in all the arctic region of Alaska permits the occupancy of vast regions that would otherwise be uninhabitable. The reindeer subsist mainly on this native herbage winter and summer. They require no shelter and little care beyond the restraint of a herder to keep them from wandering. The meat is of excellent quality, and the skins are valuable. In Europe the deer are used for dairy and transportation purposes, and, while little attempt has been made in our territory along these lines, there are possibilities of similar development.

At present the individual ownership of reindeer is principally restricted to Eskimos and Indians. Some of the missions still possess herds, and there are a few government herds. Breeding deer may be sold to whites. The Alaska division of the board of education has supervision of all herds, the teachers of the government school for native children located nearest a herd having immediate charge.

A HERD OF REINDEER.

The object of the importation of reindeer from Siberia into Alaska, which began in 1892, was originally to furnish a source of supply for food and clothing to the Eskimos along the shores of the Bering sea and the Arctic ocean. In twenty years the reindeer industry has elevated the Eskimos in northern and western Alaska from nomadic hunters and fishermen, eking out a precarious existence upon the rapidly disappearing game animals and fish, to civilized, thrifty men, having in their herds of reindeer assured support for themselves and opportunity to acquire wealth by the sale of meat and skins to the white men in those regions and the shipment of meat and skins to the states.

In order to make the natives preserve and accumulate the reindeer intrusted to them and to preclude the possibility of the reindeer industry being taken from the natives, no native has been permitted to sell or otherwise dispose of female reindeer to any person other than a native of Alaska. Strict adherence to this fundamental principle has built up for the natives of northern and western Alaska this industry, which is especially adapted to them and which affords them assured means of support. There is grave danger that granting to the natives permission to dispose of female reindeer to white men would rapidly deprive the natives of their reindeer and destroy this great native industry, which is the result of twenty years of careful oversight and fostering care.

Under a recent executive order the Aleutian islands have been set aside as the Aleutian islands reservation, under the charge of the department of agriculture and of the department of commerce, for the purpose of making experiments in raising fur bearing animals, in developing the fisheries and in propagating reindeer. In compliance with the request of the department of agriculture plans have been made to deliver to that department fifty reindeer from the herds of the department of the interior for use in stocking Umnak and Attu islands, upon which the government has no representatives.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, MARCH 21, 1914.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Allen E. Beals, Scout Commissioner, Plainfield District.

THE BOY CITIZEN.

The boy is our greatest national institution. He is the American of tomorrow. Hence the Boy Scout.

A good scout is a certified citizen. He is put on his honor to live up to a code of ethics that guarantees a square deal to everyone with whom he comes in contact; including his parents. And a scout's honor is as good as a Government bond.

He starts out not with the idea of doing the other fellow before he gets a chance to do him, but with a good turn without hope of reward. He is not a mollycoddle. If there is a chip in the crowd the belligerent shoulder will not belong to a scout. He meets scowl with smile, folded fist with a friendly, though none the less courageous open palm and incivility with courtesy. His physical training is his coast defense. He is reverent. He puts his God and his country's welfare before his own interests; therefore he is not a malefactor of great wealth in the making.

There are now approximately 150 embryonic citizens of this type in Plainfield. There would be three times that number if there were more men willing to give an hour a week. But these 150 scouts are giving at least 150 demonstrations each day that not only does scout craft pay, but that it is a positive benefit to the city.

Scouts do not destroy public property, nor are they found gracing the street corners of our city. Their recreative hours are spent in some profitable employment. A boy who had perfected himself in electrical work in scout craft was drafted as an emergency lineman to help put the city's fire alarm service back in working order after the recent storm. Another scout knew how to release a horse and driver from the fearful danger of a live electric wire. Another scout knew enough about surveying to temporarily help his father while the regular assistant was sick. Another knew how to tend a neighbor's little boy when he lay stricken by an accident on a couch of poverty and pain. Another boy scout in an emergency knew the location of the nearest fire alarm telegraph station that was in working order. Another scout knew how to save his companion from drowning on an ice pond this winter. Another scout knew how to make a timely tourniquet when a deep cut on her arm threatened his mother's life. Another scout had the courage to attack a drunken man who was annoying a woman with a baby carriage. Two scouts insisted upon proper reverence being shown the flag of our country. Two others knew how to carry an injured man almost a mile for much needed surgical attention.

The scout counts acts like these merely as his daily good turn. He seeks neither praise nor publicity for acts of heroism. His part is to act the man in a manly way and let it go at that.

Scouts stand for what is clean in speech and acts. He is schooled not only to abhor dishonesty and the lie, but to protect the public treasury from becoming a feeding trough and the national honor from being a thing of fiction and a point of gibe. The scout is taught to honor and protect woman and to help and not to hinder her campaign for purity in home and commonwealth.

The Boy Scout movement is trying to help answer the supplication of the man who prayed:

God give us men, a time like this demands
Strong minds, true hearts and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who have opinions, and a will,
Men who have honor, men who will not lie.
Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog
In public life and in private thinking,
Men who can face the blatant demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without blinking.
For while the rabble, with its thumb-worn creeds
Its large professions, and its little deeds,
Mingle in the common strife, lo, Freedom weeps
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps.

GORGAS, SURGEON GENERAL.

His Brilliant Achievements In Sanitation Merit His Reward.

The appointment by the president of Colonel William C. Gorgas, medical corps, U. S. A., as surgeon general of the army to succeed the late Brigadier General George H. Torney has met with widespread approval. In addition to being made the head of the army medical corps, Colonel Gorgas will have the title of brigadier general.

the Panama canal zone and is credited with having made the building of the Panama canal possible. He is now in South Africa on a special mission from the British government to improve sanitary conditions in the diamond mine region.

His brilliant achievements in sanitation have made him eminent at home and abroad and written his name into the permanent records of medicine. He is the world's foremost authority on applied sanitation on a large scale, with the achievement to his credit of having created a perfect malarial and yellow fever prophylaxis in Havana, Ecuador and in the canal zone. The latter, which was a death trap to the French, is now immune from tropical diseases.

On the strength of the results at Panama Colonel Gorgas has predicted that in the course of two centuries the settlement and development of the semitropical American countries will have progressed to such an extent that the centers of wealth and civilization will be in the tropics again, as they were at the dawn of history. He has expressed his conviction that, with yellow fever, malaria and other maladies peculiar to the tropics banished, life in these climes will be found more healthful than in the temperate zones.

WEDDED TO SEA CAPTAIN, HONEYMOON TO NORWAY

Summit, March 21—In St. John's English Lutheran church at noon yesterday was solemnized the marriage of Miss Emily Platou, of Christiana Norway, and Captain Sigvard Rynning of the steamship Vera, of the Norwegian Line. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Knapp, the pastor of the church.

The bride is a granddaughter of the former head of the Norwegian navy, Herman Smith, and is the daughter of Christian Frederick Stroud Platou, a retired naval officer. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Darby, of 111 Summit avenue, friends of the bride. Captain and Mrs. Rynning will sail for Norway in a few days.

DR. CRAWFORD MAY BE MORRISTOWN PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Crawford, of Bernardsville, will, it is understood, become pastor of Morristown church, to succeed Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, who is slated to go to Centenary church, Newark. Mr. Crawford's selection was decided upon by the official board of the Morristown church at a meeting Thursday night, following which a committee waited upon Bishop Wilson, with a request that Mr. Crawford's appointment be confirmed.

Mr. Crawford is thirty years old and son-in-law of Bishop Anderson. The Morristown church provides a $15,000 parsonage and a stipend of $3,000 a year.

Mr. Crawford for one year occupied a charge at Chester and in the last five years has preached at Bernardsville.

Shortly before Mr. Crawford was assigned to Bernardsville, trouble had developed in that congregation, resulting in a division and the formation of a Congregational body. Affairs in the Methodist church were in a dobutful state, and he was chosen as the man who could cope with the situation. Within a short time he aroused interest to such a degree that a new and larger edifice was erected.

MOTHER TONGUE OF N. J. SHOWS INTERESTING FACTS

Washington, D. C., March 21.—The largest element among the 1,435,985 persons of foreign white stock in the State of New Jersey in 1910 was the English and Celtic (including Irish, Scotch or Welsh) group, according to the mother tongue bulletin which has been issued recently by Director William J. Harris, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. By mother tongue is meant the native language, or that spoken before immigration, and the report covers all white persons of foreign stock, including the foreign born and also the natives, one or both of whose parents were foreign born.

As thus reported, the total foreign white stock whose mother tongue was English and Celtic (including Irish, Scotch or Welsh) numbered 463,965. This number represents 19 per cent. of the total white population of the State, which numbered 2,445,894. On this same basis, those whose mother tongue was German numbered 372,275, or 15 per cent.; Italian, 193,923, or 8 per cent.; Polish, 107,657, or 4 per cent.; Yiddish and Hebrew, 83,734, or 3 per cent; Scandinavian, 40,136, or 1.6 per cent.; Magyar, 34,682, or 1.4 per cent.; and Dutch and Frisian, 28,307, or 1.2 per cent. The number of people of foreign white stock in New Jersey reporting other principal mother tongues were the Swedish, 20,046; Norwegian, 8,883; Danish, 11,207; French, 20,345; Bohemian and Moravian, 6,656; Slovak, 23,505; Russian, 4,031; Ruthenian, 4,477; Slovenian, 7,039; and Lithuanian and Lettish, 8,701.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A dance which out-tangoes the Tango and goes a step or two beyond the Maxine will be introduced for the first time here when Alice Lloyd appears at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, March 28. This dance is called the X-Ray Dance, and is spectacularly produced for the purpose of revealing more than mere grace and agility. It is an original production by Tom McNaughton and became a sensation in London as the principal attraction to "Over There," the last of the London revues. This dance cannot be executed in a parlor and probably would not be likely to find its way into the fashionable cafes. It requires for its presentation an intricate electrical equipment operated by six men especially engaged therefore. The dancers are clad in white silk and diaphonous veilings. Floods of light are aimed from every possible angle and so focused that on the dancers in the center where the rays meet the effect is as near the actual scientific X-Ray as a theatrical producer could or would dare to show for purposes of entertainment. No one ever criticised the dance as improper, but it has been reviewed as the most daring of an era in which the dance has crept and leaped further and further from the old methods. The coloring and lighting effects change during the progress of the numbers to throw various effects by the penetrating lights of different colors and power. To enhance the spectacle the dancers' costumes are wire with insulated current carriers in her hair and the man his pocket. The dancers are especially imported from England for the American revealment which has been copyrighted by William Morris.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Guy Bates Post and "Omar, the Tentmaker," Richard Walton Tully's Persian love play, are now in the third month of success at the Booth Theatre in New York. The popularity of the Rubiayat was a help from the beginning. Other factors said to count towards the play's success are its romantic atmosphere characteristic of Tully plays, the splendid acting of Guy Bates Post and the luxurious beauty of the spectacle which led the critics of The Globe to write "Nothing more beautiful has ever been seen on the American stage."

Laurette Taylor will play her five hundred and twenty-fifth consecutive performance as Peg in Oliver Morosco's production of J. Hartley Manners' comedy of youth, "Peg O' My Heart," at the Cort Theatre tonight, and on Monday night will begin the sixty-seventh week of her engagement at the Cort. Miss Taylor continues to attract capacity audiences

All the world loves a mystery, especially when presented in stage form with the cleverness that is found in Geo. M. Cohan's "Seven Keys to Baldpate," a puzzle play that has absorbed the attention of Astor Theatre patrons for nearly eight months, and which, notwithstanding the Lenten season, is still attracting the same capacity audiences that have prevailed since the initial Broadway production of this intensely interesting farce.

Friedrich von Flotow's ever popular "Martha" will be sung by the Century Opera Company, under the direction of Milton and Sargent Aborn, in the twenth-eighth week of Grand Opera "for the people" (in English) at the Century Opera House. This melodious opera with its spirited fair scene and its beautiful duets and quartet, to say nothing of one of the most beloved songs ever composed in "The Last Rose of Summer," was the first production at Court Opera, Vienna, on November 25, 1847. The first London production at Covent Garden, in Italian, was made July 1, 1858, and the first American production, in German, was in 1852.

"Too Many Crooks" proceeds upon its mirthful way at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre in the presence of assemblages leaving no vacant places in the audience room. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that from many of the performances large numbers of persons are turned away in excess of the capacity of this resort, and it is apparent that the popularity of Mr. Craven's comedy might insure full houses in a much more spacious theatre. The management, however, is entirely content to let the piece stay where it is, and formal announcement is made that seats may be ordered for an presentation up to Washington's Birthday of next year. It is very rarely that a playwriter registers a complete success with his first attempt at supplying a full evening's entertainment, as in this instance, where the outcome astonished no one more than the author himself. "I thought the comedy had a fair chance to get past," said Mr. Craven to an interviewer, "but I never dreamed it would be such a hit as it has turned out to be and I didn't really believe it for the first couple of weeks. Even now I'm afraid to turn over in bed, for if it's all a dream I'm blessed if I want to wake up."

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there a hotel paper or journal in which hotel people advertise for help?—H. J. U.

Answer—Hotel people as a rule use the papers in the towns where they do business.

Sporting Editor:

Query—In case of war with Mexico, would it be necessary for Company K to fight?—K. Y.

Answer—Whaddayamean, fight? That depends whether or not such a war should last for a long time and require a larger force than the regular army. In that case the "reserves," consisting of the National Guard, would be called upon and in that case none could tell in advance what particular regiments. New Jersey troops will probably be given a show, however, as President Wilson hails from these parts.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the meaning of the word "poukusenie?" In what language will it be found?—J. S.

Answer—We have no knowledge of the word you mention and as far as we can learn it belongs in no particular language. Ask those who you heard use it.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What causes the eclipse of the moon and how often does it occur?—J. K. T. P.

Answer—An eclipse of the moon is caused by its entering the earth's shadow whenever in the course of its revolutions around the earth it reaches a point where the earth is directly between it and the sun. Eclipses do not occur at regular intervals. Astronomers can calculate them for each year beforehand, knowing the laws which govern the motions of the sun, planets and their moons (or satellites).

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the "legal age" of a person?"—H. J. Y.

PUTTING FINAL TOUCHES ON THE SPRING TRAINING

Chicago, Ill., March 21.—Minor league baseball organizations in all parts of the country have about completed preparations for the opening of what they predict will be a season of blue-ribbon prosperity, and this notwithstanding the threat of the Federal League to grab all of their players who showed class, without the formality of handing over real money for their release.

While keeping one eye on the Federals the minor league magnates have kept steadily on the job all winter, strengthening their circuits wherever possible, making up the season's schedules and signing managers and players. Numerous changes in circuits and in team managers have taken place since the close of last season.

One of the most notable of the changes was the transfer of the Toledo team, of the American Association, to Cleveland. The Cleveland team will be managed by the veteran Jim Sheckard and will play its home games on the American League grounds while the Naps are on the road.

Two others new managers will pilot teams in the American Association. Bill Armour returns to the game as manager of the Kansas City Blues and Jack Hendricks will have charge of the Indianapolis outfit.

The Southern League circuit remains the same as last year. New managers selected including the following: Miqua Finn, Memphis; Harry McCormick, the former Giant, at Chattanooga; John Dobbs, at New Orleans; Robert Gilks, at Montgomery, and Bris Lord, formerly of the Boston Braves, at Mobile.

Erie, Pa., and Toronto, Ont., have displaced Berlin and Guelph in the Canadian League circuit. One result of the new arrangement has been to elevate the league to a Class B organization. George Smith, former Boston-Buffalo manager, will pilot the Erie team.

The "Little Old" New England League has dropped Fall River, and Brockton and admitted Fitchburg, Mass., and Lewiston, Me., to the circuit. Fred Lake, veteran big league player and manager, will own and manage the Fitchburg team, while William McMahon has been signed to manage the Lewiston outfit.

In the Tri-State League, Reading takes the place of Atlantic City. Harry (Izzy) Hoffman, formerly of the Chicago Cubs, has been signed as pilot of the new team. In the same league, John Castle, who managed the Atlantic City team last season goes to Allentown as manager. The veteran Zeke Wrigley will lead the Trenton team.

Several mangerial changes have been announced in the Three-League recently. Clarence Rowland owner and manager of the Dubuque team for several years, has signed as manager for Peoria, while Forrest Plass succeeds Rowland at Dubuque. Howard Wakefield, formerly of the Cleveland Naps, joins the league as manager of the Springfield team.

Five of the eight clubs in the New York State League have engaged new managers for this season. The new managers are Fred Payne, Syracuse; John Kelly, Scranton; Pete Noonan, Wilkesbarre; Wid Conroy, veteran big league infielder, Elmira, and Eddie Phelps, former Brooklyn catcher, Albany.

The Waterbury franchise in the Eastern Association has been bought by Lee Fohl, who managed the Akron, O., team last season. Meriden in the association last season, has been dropped and the team transferred to New Britain.

At the recent meeting of the Northern League, Minneapolis and La Crosse were dropped and Fargo, N. D., and Fort William, Ont., added to the circuit.

The South Atlantic League will open the season with the eight-club circuit this year, having granted franchises to Columbia, S. C., and Augusta, Ga. Both cities were members of the league several years ago.

Clinton and Marshalltown, Iowa, are the new cities in the Central Association circuit. They supplant Monmouth and Kewanee, Ill.

In the Virginia League, Roanoke loses its manager, "Buck" Pressly, who goes to the Norfolk team as pilot.

The new managers in the North Carolina League include Louis Cook Asheville; Thomas L. (Red) Owen, Greensboro, and Jack Spaulding Charlotte.

A notable change among Texas League managers is the selection of Pat Newman to succeed John Fillman, the veteran manager of the Houston team.

Of the new leagues to start business this season the Colonial League seems to be attracting most attention. This league will have a tight little circuit made up of Brockton, Fall River, New Bedford and Attleboro, Mass., and Woonsocket and Newport, R. I.

The old Western Association is to be revived by cities of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma and a new Ohio and West Virginia League is to be placed on the map before the season gets under way.

BASEBALL DROPPED BY SOMERVILLIANS

Jack Torpey and His Crew Will Cast Their Lots in Other Parts of the State.

Semi-professional baseball will be abandoned at Somerville this year and that town will be unrepresented on the baseball diamond according to information coming direct from that village today. The Somerset county seat has always been a prominent contender in Central New Jersey baseball competition and it is a regretable fact that circumstances have forced the retirement of the creditable diamond performers.

Jack Torpey and his men have lost a lot of hard dollars in promoting the game in Somerville and have decided to put the lid on before the finances become too tangled up. Last year and the year before Somerville ran a close second to Plainfield for the Central New Jersey League title, after season matches being necessary in both cases. All of the Somerville players intend to remain in the sport however, and will scatter to different parts of the country performing on other lots.

Dunellen is understood to be on the trail of some of the best players and others will cast their lots in Scotch Plains and Bound Brook, the latter place being talked of as a substitute for Somerville in Central New Jersey competition.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Now that the scholastic basketball season has drawn to a close we are at liberty to hand out a few suggestions which coaches can profit by using next season while shaping their squads. It has been a noticeable and at the same time regrettable condition in many cases this year, that players have exhibited a woeful lack of real basketball knowledge. Some players enter the game knowing nothing of the fundamentals of the court sport and think only of throwing the ball in the direction of an iron ring. This question has been discussed year after year but continued emphasis is still needed. If there ever was a game in which team-work is of paramount importance, basketball is that game, and yet we see every season a number of teams going down to defeat because they tolerate one or more "stars" who persist in "playing to the galleries" rather than doing their share as a part of the team. The glory of the team can only be brought about by every unit of the machine dropping into place at the right time and performing its function without hoping for individual glory, having in mind only the advancement of the team as a whole. Some people in every day life cannot work with others, they are so selfish they want all the glory for themselves and the only reason they agree to be associated with others is the opportunity to use them for their own selfish ends; to use a common expression "they do not work well in double harness." If you have a "star" player tell him "a thing or two" in plain English. If he persists in "grand stand" tactics remove him from the team and let him sit in the gallery where he belongs. Team work wins games, individual work loses games.

Many reports concerning slight injuries to ball players while in spring training are circulated by camp writers during the spring months every year and these false alarms do nothing but cause consternation in the homes from which the athletes come. A majority of ball players have families dependent upon them and when an erroneous and much enlarged report reaches the home town and family fireside the relatives are led to believe that the player has been seriously injured and they worry until his ultimate recovery is announced. Jack Martin has been the object for many sport writers who practise this stunt and the local boy's friends have been greatly annoyed by recent reports. The truth of the matter is that Martin has not been injured enough to make the fact noticeable this year and the sprained ankle yarns are all erroneous. Lidgate has also been dealt with in a similar matter and the stories have had little or no grounds in most cases. Take all of these reports with a grain of salt.

The "mugging" season for basketball players is now at its zenith. Plainfield and North Plainfield High School basketeers have already posed for the camera man and the Leal School quintet and the Y. M. C. A. five will go through the ordeal in the near future. The manufacturer of camera plates always anticipates a boom in his business at this period of the year, a majority of court performers (both male and feminine) being noted for their ability to smash plates while posing.

The proposition to place an amateur baseball team on Parker Field this summer is a highly creditable one and has already met with a ready response from every side. College ball players welcome such an opportunity to keep in condition and the Plainfield nine should be a winner if formed. Plenty of material is lying dormant in these parts during the summer months and after the colleges close a wealth of stock will be available.

KIELY'S TEAM LOST THREE LEAGUE GAMES

Poor Pinning Marks Competition in the Elks' Club Bowling League.

Some low scores rolled by individuals resulted disastrously for Kiely's team of bowlers in the Elks' Bowling League race on the club alleys, last night, three games in quick succession being dropped by comfortable margins to the Stout aggregation. Shotwell's low counts together with some poor exhibitions by other members of the combination gave the Stout team a big advantage which lasted throughout the whole trio of contests.

Stout and Kiely were the only players taking part in the series that pinned double centuries. Although on the losing side Kiely captured the high individual score mark with a 226.

YEA BO! FIVE HOURS AUTOING FOR NOTHING

Y. M. C. A. Basketeers on Joy Ride to Morristown—Johnny Jinx Prominent.

Members of the local Y. M. C. A basketball quintet, which was scheduled to play on the Morristown Association's court, last night, left here enroute to that town at 7 o'clock last night, and although "on the road" for five full hours the scene of battle was never reached. An automobile was used in the cross-country jaunt and after making good time between here and Springfield with only one interruption, and that for "soft gasoline," the initial appearance of the jinx was encountered where the three counties bump into one another just outside of Milburn.

A rear wheel of the big auto swipped an ugly looking piece of iron from the macadam roadbed and the trip was brought to an abrupt halt when the air escaped from the tire, leaving the party stranded in the wilderness. The chauffeur "took a chance" on mending the bursted tire while the other members of the party repared to a roadhouse which happened to be handy in the immediate vicinity. Following an hour and a half's coaxing and experimenting the driver gave the task up as a bad job and proceeded on three tires and a rim to a garage a mile down the road where a new inner tube was installed.

In the meantime the basketball players and their friends engaged in a "hot stove league fanning bee" awaiting the return of the unfortunate car owner. At 10:30 o'clock the journey to Morristown was resumed after wiring the cause of the delay of the athletes of that place and being in turn informed that a gallery of spectators awaited the arrival of the tardy Queen Cityites.

Things went smoothly for a mile or so until the same old jinx stretched its arms across the road and placed the "Indian Sign" on the delegation for another count. This time the radiator of the car was found to be on fire and in reversing the engine the chauffeur came within an ace of climbing to the lofty heighths of a big elm tree on the side of the road. This put a grand finale on the trip, all deciding that they had enough joy riding for one night and the driver was ordered to turn the auto's nose toward the Queen City's great white way.

Like a balky horse that yearns for the warmth of the stall the touring car sped at post haste for Plainfield leaving the hoodoo far in the rear. When the machine "went," but it only did this in spasmodic intervals, it shattered all speed records and had the unfortunate break not occurred at Springfield the crew would probably have arrived at the Morristown rendezvous a short time before the last straggler left the cheering section.

Morristown was never reached and as a consequence the game was never played although one of the largest crowds of the season gathered in the galleries anxiously awaiting the arrival of the visiting aggregation. For two hours the spectators clung to their seats and it was 11 o'clock before the game was finally called off.

MANAGER DAY ARRANGING SCHEDULE OF TRACK MEETS

Manager Alfred Day, of the Plainfield High School track team, has been busy the past few weeks arranging a schedule for the coming season. At present the track team consists of three members, Day, Runyon and Mann, but as soon as the weather permits tryouts will be held at Parker Field and a full team formed.

The schedule arranged as as follows:

April 18—New York University games.

April 25—Somerville High School dual meet (pending).

May 2—Princeton Club games (Newark).

May 16—Open.

May 23—Princeton University games.

May 30—Rutgers College.

June 6—Championships (Tavers Island).

BASEBALL NOTES

Number One outfit of the White Sox was trimmed pretty regularly by the Coast league teams this season.

In the practice games of the Detroit Tigers the sweet walloping of one Kavanaugh caused H. Jennings to see visions of another Cobb or Crawford.

An attack of malaria may keep Heine Wagner, shortstop of the Red Sox, out of the game until the championship season is under way.

A New York scribe says the Giants who made the world tour have become chronic tea drinkers. Larry McLean was not a member of the touring party.

The Indianapolis Federals look to have a strong pitching staff, with Falkenburg, Mullin, Mosely, Kaiserling and Billiard in the squad.

The Fort Wayne team of the Central League is to open the season at home this year for the first time in the dozen years it has been in the circuit.

The Marshalltown Central Association team is to be known as the "Ansons" in honor of Cap Adrian Anson, the old Chicago player and manager, aand the first white child born in Marshalltown.

None of the Athletics' recruits seem to have it on George Brickley, a brother of Charlie Brickley, of Harvard football fame. Brickley, a right-hand sticker, is the hardest hitter of any of Mack's youngsters.

Now that he has signed Mike Doolan, Manager Otto Knabe, of the Baltimore Federals, would give his shirt to land Hans Lobert. All three played together with the Phillies for several years.

Miller Huggins says his Cardinals will not be crippled by the desertion of Evans to the Federals, since he had planned to can Steve anyway. It must be true that all of the players who jumped to the Feds were ready for the scrap heat when they flopped.

In the recent series between the St Louis Browns and the Chicago Cubs the Cubs started off like sure winners. But it all ended with the start When the series concluded the Browns had the Cubs looking like Kelley's army at Sacramento.

According to the recent statements of certain big league moguls John McGraw is the highest salaried manager and Tris Speaker, Johnny Evers and Ed. Sweeney are the highest salaried players. If this is true Ty Cobb must have to buy a ticket to get through the gate.

WESTFIELD SCHOOL LEADERS SELECTED

An enthusiastic meeting of the Westfield High School Boys' Athletic Association was held in the Mt. Ararat school yesterday afternoon, and an election of officers for athletic teams next year took place at that time.

Robert Cairns was elected assistant manager of basketball, William Gilmartin, of football, and Henry Bourne, of baseball. The captains and managers with the assistant managers follow:

Track—Clifford Ewing, manager.

Baseball—Harold Cruttenden, manager; Henry Bourne, assistant manager.

Football (next year)—Robert Cairns, manager; William Gilmartin assistant manager; Harry Randall, captain.

In addition to the elections, Mr Persall mentioned the fine prospects for baseball while Mr. Ewing spoke for the track team. Mr. Martin said that suits had been purchased for both teams.

WOMEN GOLFERS TO HAVE BUSY SEASON

Ten One-day Tournaments Arranged for Metropolitan District This Year.

The Women's Metropolitan Golf Association will have an active season this year so far as its one-day tournaments are concerned, for no less than ten fixtures already have been arranged. The season will begin on May 5 on the links of the Englewood Country Club, and the spring schedule will close on July 13, when the Hollywood Golf Club will be visited. There is one tentative date, May 7, at Dunwoodie. The others, however, are scheduled. The list of events follows:

May 5, Englewood Country Club; May 7, Dunwoodie Country Club; May 12, Montclair Golf Club; May 14, Knollwood Country Club; May 19, North Jersey Country Club; May 21, Piping Rock Country Club, June 8, Apawamis Club; June 15, Fox Hills Golf Club; June 17, Scarsdale Golf and Country Club; July 13, Hollywood Golf Club.

Changes have been made in the time for two out of the three regular tournaments held annually by the Shawnee Country Club. As the open fixtures, which last year attracted an entry second only to the national championship, conflicted with the national open in August, the dates for the Shawnee event have been changed to July 14 and 15.

SCOTCH PLAINS SECONDS WIN OVER GRACE FIVE

The Scotch Plains Parish House second team defeated the fast going Grace church five on the 'Plains court last night. The final score was 44 to 38. The game was clean and fast throughout, especially in the final period, when the visitors almost tied the score. In the first half the home team was the whole show and their opponents could get but six points. The playing was loose in this half but the church boys changed their tactics in the second and outscored their rivals. For the visitors Coudray and McNamee were the main point getters, and Hall, Marston and Anson kept their team in the lead throughout the game.

ATHLETES WILL HAVE TO QUIT SMOKING OR BASEBALL

At a meeting of the Cranford High School Athletic Association, yesterday afternoon, it was voted to enter a team of athletes in the Union County Athletic League's annual field and track meet which is scheduled to be held on Pingry Oval, Elizabeth, or Parker Field, Plainfield, June 13. Elmer Packer, a star miler, was selected to captain the team.

Baseball uniforms were ordered for the coming season and plans discussed for the opening of the schedule the first part of April. Richard Paul, the diamond leader, placed a strict ban on smoking and informed the players that they would all have to "cut the smokes or quit the team."

HOMESTEAD LANDS.

Since the enactment of the enlarged-homestead law 211,000,000 acres have been classified by the United States Geological Survey as non-irrigable and designed by the Interior Department as enterable under this law in 320-acre tracts, the limit being twice that allowed under the original homestead law. During the month of February 3,312,206 acres were thus classified by the Survey and thrown open to entry by Secretary Lane. The States most affected were Colorado, where 1,129,000 acres were so designated; Montana, with 1,590,000 acres; and Oregon, with about 300,000 acres.

SIGNS OF SPRING STIMULATE TRADE

Building Inspector Doane Reports Renewed Activity In Building Trades.

While the frost is fast disappearing from the ground and weather conditions are so greatly improved that they have been ideal for the building trades, the dull spell in that direction has yet to be broken. During the past week but two permits have been issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane, one of which covers the two frame houses to be erected by Morris Israel at 1218-1222 West Third street as described on our building page of last week. These dwellings will be for two families each and will be erected at a cost of $4,000.

The other permit calls for an addition to the store located at 234 West Fourth street, which is owned by Thomas Cantor. The structure will be a frame one and will cost about $300. The contract work will be done by Louis Cohen.

One permit is still held in abeyance, calling for the erection of a hollow terra cotta block private garage and work shop by David Huston on East Seventh street, just west of Richmond street. The structure will be a one story affair, with a floor space 50 ft. by 45 ft. The floor and roof beams will be hemlock and spruce, while the foundations will be of concrete. William H. Kirch, the architect, will do the carpenter work, while the masonry work will be taken care of by Joseph Brandt.

TEAMS WANTED FOR S. S. BALL LEAGUE

Enthusiastic Meeting Held in the Y. M. C. A. Parlors—Trinity Enters.

An enthusiastic meeting of those interested in launching a Sunday-School Baseball League this season was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors, last night, and present indications point to an organization this year that will even surpass the marked success of the two previous summers. It became known last night that the First Presbyterian nine would not be in the race this season and as a consequence F. O. Dunning, who has been acting at the head of the organization will resign and a successor will probably be appointed at the next meeting.

A new aspirant to vacated franchises loomed up last night, Trinity Sunday-school players announcing their intention of entering the league this year. Hope Chapel will be back again this year as will also First Baptist and Monroe Avenue. This quartet of Sunday-schools were represented at the meeting held last night and all declared that strong teams would be turned out this year.

The circuit this year will probably be a four team one, but efforts are now being made to increase it to six or eight. Westfield and Bound Brook Sunday-schools have been communicated with but in each instance failed to have a delegate present. A committee was appointed to wait on local Sunday-school superintendents in an effort to arouse interest in other local schools and prior to the next meeting which will be held Friday night in the Y. M. C. A., a number of prospective entrants will be interviewed. Fred Smith, representing Trinity church, was elected secretary of the league at last night's meeting. At the next meeting a schedule of game will be drawn up and final plans made for the season of playing. The teams in the league last year will use the same fields and Trinity players are looking over several diamonds in this city and borough, one of which will be secured for a home field.

TWO BASKETBALL GAMES IN Y. M. C. A. GYM TONIGHT

Two games of basketball will be played in the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. gym tonight, the association quintet lining up against the Leal School five of this city, and the Plainfield High School team playing the New Brunswick High School representatives in the preliminary attraction.

Both contests give promise of being fast ones as a large amount of rivalry exists between the contending factions in each case. The first game will be called at 8:15 o'clock.

CANDIDATE TO PREACH.

Rev. Robert C. Douthit will preach at All Souls' Unitarian church, tomorrow morning as a candidate. His subject will be "The Beatitudes and Modern Man."

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

NEEDLEWORK

By

MARGARET LAWRENCE

NIGHTGOWNS SIMPLE TO MAKE AND TO EMBROIDER

A nightgown, such as this, is one of the simplest garments possible to make, for it is cut in one piece by pattern 7267, which comes in sizes 32, 36, 40 and 44; requiring 3¾ yards of 36-inch material for the 36-inch size. The embroidery design, which finishes the neck and sleeves, may be stamped with transfer pattern 14493 and carried out with number twenty-five white mercerized cotton in solid work or solid embroidery combined with eyelets. The buttonholed scalloped edge makes the most satisfactory finish for underwear, for it outwears lace and insertion and costs much less. Such a nightgown might be made of batiste, nainsook, fine long cloth, crêpe de Chine or fine cotton crêpon. With 3¾ yards of material, two 15-cent patterns and a little spare time, you can make a duplicate of a French hand-embroidered nightgown that would cost many times as much if bought ready-made. In fact, the home-made underwear is really much more satisfactory than the French lingerie, as fine long cloth wears better than the material used in the imported garments and even if you are an amateur embroideress you can work the scalloped edge more firmly than it is often done for the trade.

Some Cookery Suggestions

DELICIOUS BAKED APPLES.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Baked Apples
Cereal.
Creamed Eggs on Toast With Bacon Curls.
Warm Rolls.
Coffee or Cocoa.

THE winter apples which are now abundant in the market may be baked in a number of tempting ways. They are one of the most wholesome of foods and should be served as often as possible.

Combined With Nuts.

Baked Apples With Nuts.—To each half dozen large apples take three-fourths of a cupful of nut meats—butternuts, black walnuts or hickory nuts will do. Chop the meats fine and add a half cupful of sugar. Core the apples and fill the centers with the nuts and sugar. Bake in a rather deep dish, with a cupful of boiling water added. When tender remove carefully, place in a pretty dish, pour the juice over the apples and crown with whipped cream or meringue made from the whites of two eggs.

Combined With Crumbs.

Baked Apples and Raisins.—Take eight tarts, one cupful of seeded raisins, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of stale bread or cakecrumbs and one tablespoonful of butter.

Wash, pare and core the apples. Wash the raisins through two waters, place them in a double boiler and steam for a half hour, then stuff them into the apples. Brush a pudding dish with half the butter and put in the apples, adding one-half cupful of cold water. Sprinkle with half the sugar and put into a moderate oven and bake until the apples are tender. Mix the other half of the sugar with the bread or cake crumbs and sprinkle over the top of the apples, dotting with the remainder of the butter, and bake.

Served With Jelly.

Stuffed Baked Apples.—Take six apples, core and fill with sugar, allowing a scant one-half cupful of sugar to the apples. Cover the bottom of baking dish with boiling water, to which add two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Bake the apples in sauce in a hot oven, basting often. When cooked remove to dish and fill cores with apple jelly and pour over all any juice left from baking. Then sprinkle the whole with chopped nuts and serve with cream, whipped or plain.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Spring Work For the Squirrels.

They Found Plenty of Nuts.

"A LITTLE girl named Gwen had fixed a squirrel house on a pear tree near an old apple tree. From the little house the squirrels could jump about the branches, and that is what squirrels enjoy doing. They certainly had the most beautiful time playing," said daddy as he began Jack and Evelyn's story.

"Now, the apple tree was near Gwen's bedroom, and the squirrels could jump from the apple tree to her window sill, where they were very likely to find nuts waiting for them.

"When the days began to get a little warmer Gwen hung just outside the window sill a little hammock and waited to see if the squirrels would dare to swing in it. Having all the nuts Gwen put on her window sill and seeing her do such kind things so often made them pretty tame. And, too, they appeared to realize that it was Gwen who had seen to the building of the little house.

"But the hammock seemed very strange to them at first. However, one very brave squirrel thought he'd try it and jumped into the hammock. Gwen was watching back of a curtain, and it was all she could do to keep from crying aloud with joy, for she was so pleased that one of the squirrels was actually using her little hammock. After awhile the other squirrels tried it.

"Before long one of the old squirrels began to scold for all he was worth. Oh, he was very much annoyed, and all the squirrels stopped swinging in the hammock. They seemed to be paying great attention to the old squirrel, and Gwen wondered what it was all about.

"The old squirrel was the leader, and he was the one who always gave the directions and did all the managing. This, in squirrel language, was what he said:

"'Now, don't you know you can't spend all your time idling! You are the laziest lot of squirrels I have ever known. Don't you know that you must get to work? This is the season for us to tap the sirup from the maple trees, and you are spending your time swinging in a hammock. It is all very well to play, but then there is work to be done. We don't want to waste our time and let all the good sap go, do we? And you really do want the maple sirup, don't you?'

"Off they started to scamper to the nearest maple tree. Gwen put on her hat and coat and followed along to see what they were going to do. They got all the sap they wanted and smacked their lips over it. They enjoyed the work really, for it meant good times to follow, and they were glad the wise old squirrel had told them about it in plenty of time."

TRY A PRESS WANT AD

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

"Demand 'Votes for Women' and have your wages raised," is the wording of a suffrage handbill used to influence wage-earning girls and women.

There seems to exist three distinct classes among the working girls, when presented with this fallacy.

The better educated, more intelligent ones resent it, and while listening politely, feel for the most part as one who said, "Do they think we have no sense? My brothers all vote, but it don't give them a penny more." Then there are the thoughtless younger girls, who are credulous for the moment, but who are usually easily convinced that there is no proved connection between "Votes for Women" and higher wages or shorter hours.

The class most impressed is that in the lower East Side of New York, from which the suffragists draw many ill-educated recruits, and of which Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont said, "How would the authorities like me to go down on the lower East Side and invite those people to riot."

These people are Socialistic by heredity and training, and it takes but little fuel to start the flames dormant in each against capital.

Socialism terms them the "proletariat"—working class—no destiny—wished from. the. bourgeosie"—capital class.

Marx says—connivist manifesto—"Of all the classes that abound face to face with the bourgeosie, the proletariat alone is the really revolutionary class. The other classes decay and finally disappear in the face of modern industry; the proletariat is its special and essential product."

To this class does the Socialist-suffragist appeal successfully with the hand bill quoted above.

How correct is the implied assertion that "Higher wages and shorter hours" automatically follow the gaining of the ballot by women?

Dr. Helen S. Sumner in "Equal Suffrage," says: "Taking public employment as a whole, women in Colorado receive considerable less remuneration than men." She explains that it is the old story of demand and supply in the commercial world and that suffrage has no effect upon the wages of either men or women.

"The wages of men and women in all fields of industry are governed by economic conditions" (page 155).

She further shows, that while the average weekly wage of women in Colorado is 97 cents higher than in the United States as a whole, that of men in Colorado is $3.63 higher.

That in the United States as a whole women receive 55.3 per cent. of the average men's wages.

In Massachusetts 62 per cent. of men's wages.

In Colorado women receive on an average only 47 per cent. of the average of men's wages.—(Page 67).

Chapter 16 of the report of the Commissioner of Education in 1908 shows the following: That the average pay of female teachers in Utah is 70 per cent. of the male because while in Maine it is 75 per cent, Virginia 80 per cent., Indiana and Missouri 90 per cent., and in New Mexico 99 per cent.

In Wyoming the average monthly wage of men teachers is $85.26, of women $52.05, or a difference of $32.21 per month, while in Iowa the difference is $21.81, South Dakota $20.44, Ohio $14.50, Pennsylvania $14.38, Oklahoma $8.61, and North Dakota $8.24.

In the Southern States the difference ranges from $20.22 in Louisiana to $6.16 in Alabama.

Be it further noted that the equal pay for men and women in New York city was granted in a male suffrage State by a man-elected legislature.

In the year 1912 thirteen hundred and seventy-two laws were passed by the legislatures of thirty-two States affecting the employment of women and children, most of them for the reduction of the working hours and for the restriction or prohibition of night work.

But eight of these laws were passed in Woman Suffrage States.

Dr. Helen Burnet quotes a labor leader as saying that "Organized labor is the only force that has benefitted the condition of wages of workers," and again that the trades unions started by women in Colorado have most of them failed (pp. 172-177) because of the difficulty of keeping the women organized.

A writer in New Zealend recently said (and this is as true of one country as another) that the "loud cry of equal pay for equal work, as referred to the labor of men and women, was and always would be an absurdity, since women are physically unfit to do the equal work."

Every woman knows this is true and any one with knowledge of the commercial world, knows that when an exceptional woman proves herself equally efficient with a man for any certain position, she can, if permanent, demand and will receive the salary belonging to it.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

No. 8051 is a new and attractive one-piece dress with a drop-shoulder, an unusual collar, a full length sleeve, which may also be made in elbow length, a shaped girdle and two useful patch pockets, one on each side of the skirt. These pockets may be omitted if they are not fancied.

This frock may be made up attractively in almost any suitable material. Wool eponge and serge are extremely practical for general or business wear and a rather smart little afternoon costume may be evolved by using faille or one of the other soft silks or silk poplins.

The following device for marking both sides of the material (where it is cut double) I have found very useful. It is called "thread marking" and is employed by many tailors and gown makers:

Take a piece of sharpened tailor's chalk and while the pattern is still on the material mark the seam allowance, tucks, plaits, etc.; remove the pattern and with a double basting thread take straight, deep basting stitches about a quarter of an inch apart along the dotted chalk line. Do not draw your stitches tight, but rather let them be loose enough for each stitch to form a small loop or arch; carefully draw the material apart to the full extent of the stitches and cut the line of stitches exactly in two between the two pieces of goods. This leaves a line of cut stitches on each piece of goods, marking both sides exactly alike.

This dress may be made in size 36 with 4¾ yards of 36 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes; 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

A Unique Window Show

A constantly gathering throng of interested observers threatened to obstruct the traffic on Sixth Ave. and 19th St. to watch a modern exhibition of 'phone efficiency afforded the public in the show windows of Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company yesterday.

These enterprising merchants are demonstrating in a novel way the trend of the times towards concentration of effort and unique specialization in the solving of the question of the most complete service to the consumer.

In one of their main windows has been installed a telephone exchange where deft-fingered, alert-looking girls are kept busy attending to the calls from people who are unable to attend in person to the purchasing of food supplies. This is an annex really—for the use of the grocery department solely. Formerly, the orders for food supplies were received and transmitted through the main telephone switchboard, located on the third floor (this main switchboard, by the way, was until a very recent period, one of the largest private switchboards in the world).

Increasing volume of business necessitated the installation of this exchange specially equipped for the use of the food store. The work of the girls in receiving and transmitting the calls to the food experts affords much entertainment for the curious.

This window demonstration is for only three days, the sole purpose of the merchants in making it being a desire to demonstrate to their customers and the public in general the firm's efforts to increase its possibilities for the better service of its army of patrons.

It is the intention to transfer the equipment, after the three-day demonstration, to the mammoth order room of the grocery department on the fourth floor of the building.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.—Adv.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

PELLAGRA NOW MENACES NATION

Fifty Thousand Known Cases in the Last Six Years.

FUNDS NEEDED TO FIGHT IT

Startling Report of Surgeon General Blue to Secretary McAdoo Is Likely to Result In Call Upon Congress to Make Appropriation For a Hospital In the South.

So alarming are the reports of the spread of pellagra laid before Secretary McAdoo by Surgeon General Blue of the public health service that congress probably will be urged to make a special appropriation to rent a hospital building in the south, establish laboratories there and make a study of the disease in all its phases.

Since the disease was discovered in 1907 there have been about 50,000 cases of it in thirty-four states of the Union, and a national remedy, a national defense, is said to be imperatively needed.

While pellagra has been recognized for several hundred years, it is still one of the most baffling diseases with which the medical profession deals. The public health service has been struggling hard with investigations of the disease since its discovery in this country a half dozen years ago, but the alarming extent to which it has spread has brought a flood of appealing letters to Secretary McAdoo and has led to a determination to urge congress to act quickly.

Sometimes Causes Insanity.

In some of its phases pellagra resembles leprosy, and in some respects it is even more to be dreaded than leprosy, physicians say, because pellagra frequently affects the mental organism and leaves its victims insane.

One physician, in reporting conditions in his locality, recently said:

"Calling it 'pellagra,' the public does not know the nature of the malady and gives very little heed to its great menace, but were we to speak of it as leprosy the whole country would be crying out in wild alarm. And, so far as the public menace goes, we are not yet justified in saying that it is not just as great a dread as leprosy itself."

Corn Diet Theory Unproved.

There has been a popular notion that it is caused by a corn diet, but physicians are not yet ready to adopt that theory. One of the chief purposes in establishing the special hospital is to develop research in that direction. It is also unknown whether or not the disease is communicable and by what means it is transferred, if at all.

The most characteristic symptom of the disease is an acute rash on the hands and parts of the body. This manifestation is said oftentimes to resemble a scald or severe sunburn. Soon after this appears, in severe cases, the patient becomes seriously ill, and many times death or insanity quickly follows. Sometimes the attacks disappear and recur with increased violence.

While probably existent in parts of the United States for a great many years, pellagra was an unknown and a negligible quantity in this country until six years ago. Appearing then and recognized in small numbers in Alabama, it has since steadily increased in the number of its victims, and the territory involved, until it has become a national problem.

GEN. BUCKNER IN HISTORY.

Last Confederate Lieutenant General Responsible For Grant's Sobriquet.

With the death of General Simon Bolivar Buckner in his ninety-first year the last lieutenant general of the Confederate army has passed to the great beyond. General Buckner was a former governor of Kentucky and candidate for vice president on the gold Democratic ticket in 1896. He was leader of the Law and Order league, which helped to put down night riding in Kentucky.

General Buckner commanded a Confederate brigade at the battle of Donelson, surrendering the fort on Feb. 16 to General Grant, and it was through General Buckner that General Grant became known as "Unconditional Surrender" Grant. Buckner wanted to know what terms he could get if he gave up.

"No other terms than an unconditional surrender can be accepted," replied the Union general. "I propose to move immediately upon your works."

General Buckner was the oldest living graduate of West Point.

LIVER DIET CAUSE OF GOITER.

Discovery Is Made Through Experiments on Fish.

Goiter is caused by improper nutrition, according to an announcement in the Journal of Experimental Medicine, the official organ of the Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research.

Dr. David Marine of the H. K. Cushing laboratory of Western Reserve university in Cleveland has demonstrated that brook trout fed on liver in hatcheries developed the disease and that a group fed with whole sea fish did not contract it. Fish suffering from goiter recovered on a sea fish diet.

The observations of Dr. Marine are important, as the exact cause of the disease has been unknown.

Increase in Insurance in Force in 1913, Over $195,000,000

The annual addition to the Insurance in Force is a great test of a Life Insurance Company's progress. The Prudential's addition of over $195,000,000 in one year, 1913, is greater than the total amount of business accumulated through years of growth by a large percentage of America's Life Insurance Companies.

STUDEBAKER

The Studebaker "SIX" Touring Car $1575

IT IS perhaps the greatest achievement among all those which stand to the credit of Studebaker factories that such a car as the electrically lighted, and started, seven-passenger Studebaker "SIX" can be sold to the public completely equipped for $1575.

The time is past when anyone can well question the desirability of owning a "SIX". The mechanical advantage of a six-cylinder car can be easily demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt, both in theory and in actual experience; in fact, it is not too much to say that when you have gotten acquainted with such a car as the Studebaker "SIX" it will be impossible to persuade you that a four-cylinder car of the same horsepower can equal it.

Let your mind dwell for a moment upon the striking fact that you can purchase the Studebaker "SIX" for $1575. Here is a car of unexcelled design, simple, accessible construction, highly efficient, skillfully designed and honestly built. It is a seven-passenger car, with rich body upholstery, whose luxury is enhanced by the very unusually efficient electric starter and electric lighting system.

The remarkable nature of this achievement becomes clear when you realize that amongst comparable six-cylinder cars there is practically none to be found within $400 to $800 of its price.

There is also this additional advantage in the Studebaker "SIX." That its light weight makes it very easy on tires, and exceptionally economical in the use of fuel.

The principle of the "SIX" motor, produces continuous flow of power. There is no lag in the engine. For this reason the wear on the motor, as well as on the transmission and rear axle is much reduced.

The finish and equipment of the Studebaker "SIX" is superb. The long lines of the body are exceptionally handsome. The paint work is lustrous. The detail of the two disappearing seats, as a small example of careful work, is particularly good; they fold forward into a recess at the back of the front seat, leaving the tonneau clear when the auxiliary seats are not in use.

Measure against the Studebaker "SIX" any car which may be suggested to you, and the predominance of this "SIX" will force itself upon you convincingly.

MRS. L. M. SPERRY IS NINETY-THREE

Aged Borough Woman Celebrates Anniversary Tomorrow.

IN EXCELLENT HEALTH

Reads Newspapers and Magazines and Goes to Church — Granddaughter's Husband to Observe Birthday.

Mrs. Lois M. Sperry, who is perhaps among the best preserved of the residents in this section who are nearing the century mark, will celebrate the ninety-third aniversary of her birthday tomorrow at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edmund P. Stevens, on Grandview avenue, the borough, where she has been living for many years. The event will be of double interest for the reason that her granddaughter's husband, Rev. J. S. Burton, of Suffern, N. Y., will celebrate the anniversary of his birthday at the same time.

Mrs. Stevens has planned for a family gathering tomorrow and the affair promises to be of unusual interest. Mrs. Sperry, who was born at Annsville, Oneida county, New York, has been a resident of the borough for many years. She is enjoying exceptional health, being able to read the newspapers and current magazines without the aid of eyeglasses. She evidences great interest in current happenings and when the weather is favorable she regularly attends service at Grace M. E. church, walking both to and from her home. She frequently joins in the festivities of the younger members of the household and despite her advanced years, declares that "she does not feel nearly as old as she looks."

There are several women living in the same neighborhood who are nearing the century mark, including Mrs. Mary A. Everett, who will be ninetytwo in August; Mrs. Maria B. Claypool, who is past ninety-three, and several others. These aged people occasionally visit back and forth and thoroughly enjoy talking over the olden days.

COLORED WAR VETERAN GETS INTO MORE TROUBLE

Arrested twice within forty-eight hours, Robert Jones, who claims to be a Civil War veteran, was ordered to leave town within thirty minutes by Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning. Jones, who says he is seventy-nine years of age, but who looks much younger, was picked up by Central Railroad Detective Charles Laverette, Saturday night, and when arraigned in court, yesterday, gave a long tale of hard-luck. He is a conversant individual and his tale of woe won the sympathy of the court. He was provided with food and left the court saying that he was going to return to the soldiers' home at Hampton, Va., of which he claimed to be an inmate.

A short time after he went from the court room he was arrested a second time on a Central Railroad train. He had barricaded himself in a toilet of one of the passenger trains and refused to come out when the conductor called for his ticket. The train was stopped and Jones removed to police headquarters.

MISS MEHL RECOVERING.

Miss Ethel Mehl, daughter of Captain and Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, who was operated on at Muhlenberg Hospital, Saturday, for appendicitis, was reported today as resting easily, with excellent chances for complete recovery. The young woman was stricken Friday at the Montclair Normal School, where she and her sister are students. She was graduated from the Plainfield High School last year.

WARD-BROWN.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Edna Brown, of DeKalb avenue, and Matthew Ward, of Bergen street. The couple were married Saturday, March 14, by Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, in the presence of a small company of friends. The couple will continue to live in this city.

HOSPITAL DANCE.

The Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital announce a dance for the benefit of the hospital to be given on Friday night, April 26, in Columbus Auditorium. The music will be furnished by Muller's orchestra.

SOMERSET COUNTY PRISONERS.

At the present time there is confined in the Somerset county jail at Somerville, ten prisoners awaiting disposition of their cases. Of these eight are foreigners and two colored. Nearly all of the prisoners are charged with assault and battery.

BUSINESS PICKING UP AT SAURER PLANT

Concern is Now Working Nights to Fill Their Orders.

That trade conditions, especially in the automobile line, are improving, is indicated by the fact that the local plant of the International Motor Company has at the present time more orders on hand for trucks than at any time since it was located in this city, and a force of about 250 men are employed in the various departments. Recently, the plant has been operated four nights a week, including Saturday, and no time is being lost in turning out the motor trucks. Yesterday several trucks were taken out on the roads in this vicinity for testing purposes.

The orders that have been coming in for trucks recently are from the Standard Oil Company, a large asphalt concern and several other big corporations. If the present conditions continue the force at the plant will doubtless be increased within a short time. It is the belief of the heads of the concern that the outlook for business is brighter and that the recent slackness in trade is only temporary.

DINNER AND ANNUAL MEETING OF PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS

Members of the Park Avenue Baptist church are planning a big dinner, to be held on Wednesday night, in connection with the annual meeting of the church, in the church parlors. The dinner will begin at 6:30 and after the inner man has been provided for speeches will be made by W. W. Woodbury Pratt, George E. Hall, F. St. John Fitch, B. F. Hadley and others. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the church, will act as toastmaster.

Following the dinner a business meeting will be held at which five deacons, a clerk and a missionary clerk will be chosen. The members and friends and all who are interested in the welfare of the church are invited to attend.

DR. WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS TO LECTURE ON "PANAMA"

Dr. William L. Saunders will give an illustrated lecture on the Panama Canal at the "Kettle-Drum" social in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Saunders' personal inspection of the canal enables him to speak with authority, and the slides which he has secured from Washington, being official, will give an accurate presentation of this modern wonder of the world.

The Women's Guild, under whose auspices the "Kettle-drums" are given each month, extends a cordial invitation, not only to the members of the parish, but also to their friends No admission fee is charged for these entertainments.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DEBATE POSTPONED

At the Request of J. B. Betts Argument is Deferred for a Few Weeks.

J. Brognard Betts, assistant State commissioner of education, who was challenged to a public debate on the high school consolidation subject by former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, at a school meeting held last week, has asked for an indefinite postponement of the public argument in a letter forwarded to his opponent-to-be. Mr. Betts, in a letter to Mr. Smalley today, asserts that his time is taken up with Legislative affairs just at present and claims that he will not be ready for the debate for a few weeks.

The challenge grew out of an argument that took place in the Somerset School, last week, Mr. Smalley favoring the retention of school pupils and the high school in the borough, while the State official advocated the combining of Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools. The debate was originally set for tomorrow night, but Mr. Betts' request will be granted by Mr. Smalley. In a statement made to a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Smalley said:

"People have purchased property in North Plainfield and moved to that municipality under the impression that there is a permanently established high school there. To move the school to a point a mile and a half from where it now stands would be a violation of confidence. I can say all I have to say in thirty minutes and am willing to allow Mr. Betts an hour to present his case. We have a high school established and it is one of the few assets that North Plainfield has.

"All of the high schools of New Jersey are under the direction of the State Board and the subjects taught in Plainfield are the same as those of North Plainfield. The Plainfield High School is out of the way for the borough children, being located in the extreme southern portion of the city."

MAYOR CLARK MEMBER OF HOSPITAL BOARD

Will Represent the Borough as a Governor of Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, is now a member of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, having been appointed to fill one of the vacancies which occurred recently caused by the resignation of former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and former Mayor Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., formerly of the borough, but now of New York city.

It has always been customary for the board to have a representative of the borough on the board, for the service has always been extended to that municipality. The board now has an agreement with the borough whereby the latter pays $1 a day for each indigent patient sent to the hospital from that place. The board has a similar arrangement with Plainfield.

MRS. JAMES MORAN PASSES AWAY IN THE BOROUGH

Mrs. Mary Moran, aged 53 years, widow of James Moran, died yesterday at her home, 57 Brook avenue, where she had lived for a number of years. She was a devout Christian, a member of St. Joseph's church, the Rosary Society and the Third Order of St. Francis. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Vincent J. Carroll, and two brothers, John and Patrick who live in Ireland. The funeral will be held Thursday morning at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

DR. SYMONDS TO LECTURE.

Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, of Montreal, Can., will give three Lenten lectures at Grace church, beginning today, on "The Story of Progress in the New Testament." The first lecture will be given this evening at 8 o'clock and continue tomorrow and Wednesday evenings. He takes the place of Rev. Dr. H. P. Nichols, of New York, who was prevented from coming here on account of illness.

WILL HOLD RUBBER SOCIAL.

A rubber social will be held in the Netherwood Reformed church on Thursday night, March 26, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Admission will be the donation of an old rubber article.

REV. F. J. HUBACH MAY BE APPOINTED

Prominently Mentioned as Successor to Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph.

2 OTHER CANDIDATES

M. E. Conference Appointments to Be Made This Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Anderson and Rev. C. C. Cain Will Probably Return.

The Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, is one of the three candidates being suggested by the delegates at the annual conference of Methodist churches being held in Newark to fill the office of district superintendent, which was recently held by the Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of this city, whose term has expired. Mr. Hubach has been pastor of the local church for the past two years, coming here from Phillipsburg, Pa. It is believed that Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Rev. C. C. Cain will be returned to their present charges by the Bishop. The Rev. John R. Wright, of Jersey City, and Rev. J. H. Massman, of Mariners Harbor, are the other candidates for the position of superintendent.

During the executive session of the conference held this morning, the high cost of living was discussed by the delegates and a number of suggestions made in an effort to alleviate the stress placed on clergymen as the result of the increased expenditures thus necessitated. It was decided to raise the minimum salary limit from $600 to $800 and in cases where parishes cannot afford this sum, the balance will be made up by the conference.

It was voted to enter protests against the sale of liquor after 1 o'clock on Sundays, the serving of liquor in hotels on Sundays and the delivering of liquor anywhere in this State by dealers holding local licenses. The law which allows hotel proprietors to serve intoxicants to patrons on Sundays was the cause for a lengthy discussion.

The Bishop named Rev. Dr. Ralph S. Urmy as the presiding officer for this morning's session and the Rev. Fred Claire Baldwin led the devotional services.

MRS. MARY SHILLINGER PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Mrs. Mary Shillinger, wife of Herbert Shillinger, a life long resident of this city, died suddenly at her home, 220 Church street Saturday night. She was taken seriously ill on Watchung avenue earlier in the evening and removed to her home in a cab. Dr. C. A. Gesswein was called to attend the woman, but upon his arrival life was extinct.

Mrs. Shillinger was subject to attacks of heart failure and this is assigned as a cause for her death. She was 39 years of age and is survived by her husband and three sons, Herbert E., Andrew W. and Edward J., all of this city. She is the daughter of the late Bridget Berry and Patrick R. Field. The funeral service will be held at St. Mary's church Wednesday morning and the interement will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

SURVIVOR OF DRAFT RIOTS VICTIM OF HEART FAILURE

William Stevens, colored, whose home was on West Third street, was stricken with heart failure on North avenue, Saturday night, and died within a few minutes. Dr. Pittis was called but found the man beyond aid on his arrival.

Stevens was sixty-five years old and came to Plainfield from New York when a boy. He was in the danger zone in the metropolis when the Civil War draft riots broke out and narrowly escaped the fate of many of his kinsfolk. N. B. SMALLEY TO RUN FOR CONGRESS?

Howard Woolston Says Former Mayor Will Enter the Race.

Howard Woolston has trotted out a new candidate for Congress in the Fourth district, composed of Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon counties. It is none other than former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, and Mr. Woolston has been sounding out the Smalley sentiment elsewhere in Somerset county and finds it strong. When the former Mayor was approached about the matter, this morning, he did not say that he would be a candidate, but at the same time acted as if he might consider the matter seriously. "Several of them have been after me to run, but I have not taken an active part in politics for some years, and I don't know whether I want to get back or not," was the way he put it "When I do make up my mind I will let you know, though."

While Mr. Smalley is reticent when questioned on the subject, not wishing to commit himself, his friends feel sure that at the proper time he will announce his candidacy and they declare that he will have plenty of support throughout the Congressional district. Since retiring as Mayor of the borough, Mr. Smalley has not been very active in public affairs, aside from school matters, being a member of the North Plainfield Board of Education, and his friends believe that should he decide to enter the Congressional race he would make a great fight.

WANTS TO COLLECT $10 FROM AN HEIR

Edward Riley, Beneficiary in $30,000 Windfall, Alleged to Owe Woman Two Pigs.

Claiming that she paid him $10 for a couple of live pigs that were never delivered, Mrs. Angeline Kraft, of Jerseyland Park, appeared as complainant in the city court this morning, against Edward L. Riley, of 140 East Second street. Riley, according to his own story, is heir to $30,000 in cash and real estate and is awaiting a settlement at the present time.

Mrs. Kraft said that she had agreed to pay for the porker on the installment plan and when $10 was forfeited she was to receive in return the pigs. Mrs. Kraft claims that she lived up to her part of the contract but never received the squealers. She is employed in a North avenue restaurant and because the money was paid at that place Mrs. Kraft made application to the local police this morning to have Riley apprehended.

According to his schedule given out last week, Riley is supposed to be in Richmond, Va., at the present time looking after his bequests. The estate to which he has fallen heir consists of $20,000 in cash and $10,000 in real estate and Mrs. Kraft will be right on hand to collect her share of his windfall when he sets foot on Plainfield soil again.

MOTHERS' CLUBS MEET IN TRENTON

Consider Advisability of Establishing Schools for Degenerate Children.

Nearly one hundred presidents of Parent-Teacher Associations in New Jersey attended the annual session of the Mothers' Clubs of the State, in the William G. Cook School, Trenton, Saturday, and among them were the following from this city:

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, of the High School; Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., a State officer; Mrs. O. H. Smith, of the Bryant School; Mrs. J. E. Kimball, of the Washington School; Mrs. George O. Stevens, of the Irving-Jefferson Schools; Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, of the Franklin-Whittier-Stillman Schools; Mrs. G. G. Monro, of the Plainfield Mothers' Association; Mrs J. A. Foulks, of the North Plainfield Association, and Mrs. Herbert E. Parker, also a State officer.

The principal topic of discussion was the advisability of establishing schools for the degenerate and subnormal children in various communities in the State. The opinion generally expressed was that these schools scattered throughout the State would be beneficial to such children, because it was pointed out the average school teacher cannot give attention to them and devote the time necessary to the normal children.

No definite action was taken, but it is likely that committees will be appointed to bring the matter to the attention of the various school boards of the State. Miss Lillian Williams, of the State Normal School, Trenton, spoke on "The General Education of Feebleminded Children."

Among the other speakers were Miss Ella Kite, of the Vineland School for Deformed and Feeble-Minded Children, and Mrs. Alexander Marcey, vice-president of the organization.

Mrs. I. H. Welling, of Trenton, and Mrs. Howard Downs, of East Orange, were elected delegates to the International Congress of Mothers Clubs at Washington, to be held April 22 to 27. The organization will meet again next November.

ITALIAN STABBED BY COUNTRYMAN

Antonio Carnevale in a Serious Condition Following Fight.

ASSAILANT IS ARRESTED

Giovanno Villano, Suspected of the Crime, is Being Held to Await Result of the Victim's Injuries.

Because he interfered in a wrangle between two men on Second street, Raritan, Saturday night, Antonio Carnevale is in the Somerset Hospital, at Somerville, in a serious condition from a number of stab wounds inflicted upon him by Giovanno Villano, a fellow countryman.

Villano and Rocco Yemma were quarreling over the former's abilities as a hair cutter, he having cut the hair of Yemma's son, with whom he boarded, which was displeasing to Yemma. The latter wished the hair cutting to be done by a brother-in-law, who is a barber in Raritan, and when he met Villano on the street he upbraided him for doing the work. This incensed Villano and a fight ensued, in which Yemma was getting the worst of it. Carnevale came up at this time and took a hand in the affair, with the result that Villano turned on him and stabbed him several times. One of the cuts was across the abdomen and another near the heart. Carnevale fell to the sidewalk and Villano took to his heels.

Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning Marshal Hanlon, of Somerville, saw a man walking along the railroad tracks near the Centre street bridge, at Somerville, and placed him under arrest. He was identified yesterday as the attempted slayer of Carnevale and is being held awaiting the result of the latter's wounds. Carnevale was at once removed to the hospital, and this morning his condition is still serious, but he will probably recover. Yemma received only slight wounds in his fight with Villano and is in no danger. Carnevale came to Raritan only a few months ago from Italy.

J. C. Hartpence, formerly employed by J. B. Losey, has purchased the business of G. H. Mundy, on South Bridge street.

There will be a social in the Second Reformed chapel on Thursday evening to the members of the Sunday-school. Light refreshments will be served. On Monday evening, April 6, will be held the annual supper and conference of the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school, in the chapel. The Ladies' Bible Class will have charge of the good things.

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon T. Stryker of New York city, were guests of relatives in town yesterday.

It is feared that there is likely to be a strike by the plumbers of this section on April 1, if no agreement can be reached by that time. Some time ago the local union of plumbers notified the employers of an increase in wages to be demanded on April 1. This the bosses are not willing to grant at this time, because of the condition of business, but several conferences between the employers and representatives of the union have been of no avail, the men refusing to recede from their position. The carpenters had also planned to request an increase in wages, but it is understood that they will not do so this spring.

A meeting of the Past Councilors' Association of Somerset county will be held this evening in the rooms of Ivanhoe Council. State Councilor Frank Muda is expected to be present.

Remember reading about a tribe of monkeys wanting to cross a stream of any kind, will climb a tree on one bank of the stream, then each take a good, firm tail-hold on his nearest neighbor and swing like a pendulum out of the tree until the lowest one in line can grab a tree on the opposite bank, and thus make a bridge which can be crossed in safety by the remaining members of the tribe?

Wonderful what can be accomplished when all pull together—even if it is only a tail hold.

Those monkeys sure believe in

A LONG PULL,
A STRONG PULL,
AND A PULL ALL TOGETHER.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. Those monkeys wanted to get somewhere and by hanging together were enabled to "come across."

GUNMEN SEND LAST PLEA FROM SING SING

Four Who Will Die Proclaim Innocence.

Ossining, N. Y., March 23.—From the death house at Sing Sing prison the four young men who are sentenced to die during the week of April 13 for the murder of Herman Rosenthal sent out a final appeal to the public for aid. They worked upon it for hours, each of them making suggestions to "Lefty Louie." They signed it and sent it to town yesterday by the counsel, Charles G. F. Wahle.

"Lefty" has always been the brains of the crowd and their review of the decision of the court of appeals is in his labored hand. There is no word of pathos in it. Since they entered the death house each of them has had a transcript of the testimony taken at their trial and that of Lieutenant Charles Becker. Their copies are thumb worn, and these men, who never looked at a book from the time they left school, could give you pages and folio numbers of every bit of the testimony. Their appeal is the expression of their view of the legal points at issue.

"We have the records of our case," says "Lefty," "and now that we have the copy of the opinion handed by the court of appeals we cannot understand it. We are not lawyers, but such facts as these we cannot realize."

They say they cannot understand how the court of appeals could sustain their conviction on the testimony of Rose, Webber, Schepps and Vallon when the conviction of Lieutenant Becker was set aside on the ground that these four men were unbelievable. Pointing out that it was claimed these four men conspired with Becker to employ men to kill Rosenthal the gunmen say:

"You will find in the records Harry Horowitz ('Gyp the Blood'), Jacob Seidenshner ('Whitey Lewis') and I swore we seen Harry Vallon, Bridgy Webber and this stranger shoot. This is the God's truth, so help me God, that we are innocent."

Rosenberg's name comes first under the paper and is separated from the others by a line to show that he wrote the appeal. The other three names are written at various angles to the page, showing that the paper was passed from cell to cell. The name of Seidenshner is scrawled perpendicularly to the document.

HESSIAN FLY IN IOWA.

Southwestern Part of State Prey to Wheat Pest.

Randolph, Ia., March 23.—The Hessian fly has appeared in southwestern Iowa and, while the season is not sufficiently advanced for any considerable damage to have resulted, there is apprehension as to the final outcome.

In order that there might be no doubt, specimens of the pest were sent to the state agricultural college, and the official reports show the sample to be Hessian fly. The area of the affected district has not been ascertained, but it is supposed that it spreads over a great part in the southwest.

Out of Work, Kills Himself.

New York, March 23.—Out of work and despondent, William E. Denyse, a painter, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at his home, 616 Halsey street, Brooklyn. His twelve-year-old son found him unconscious. He died soon after.

FIELDER WARNS TO PASS TAX BILL

Predicts Democratic Defeat if Pierce Measure Fails.

HOT FIGHT IS EXPECTED

Everything Points to a Warm Debate When Bill Comes Up For Third Reading In Lower House Tonight—Governor Sure Measure Will Go Through Assembly.

Trenton, N. J., March 23.—Governor Fielder gave out a statement, in which he said that unless the legislature passes the Pierce bank tax bill it will mean the loss of the state to the Democratic party. He asserted that he has enough votes to get the bill through the assembly tonight. It will then go to the senate.

The bill provides for a tax of 1 per cent on capital stock, surplus and undivided profits. Governor Fielder is willing to compromise on three-fourths per cent with the bankers, who insist that one-half of 1 per cent is all that they can well afford to pay. The governor says he will not go that low.

Everything points to a hot fight when the bill comes up for third reading in the lower house tonight. Governor Fielder is exerting every effort to win the support of the Democratic legislators, but it is admitted that he is having a hard time of it. The bankers likewise are showing signs of fight and are not leaving a stone unturned.

With the Republican members and the Smith-Nugent assemblymen against the bill even intimate friends of the governor spell defeat out of the strife. Though Governor Fielder declares that unless the bills pass New Jersey will not be in the Democratic column next fall, opponents of the measure predict that the Democrats will be defeated just the same.

The 1 per cent tax on capital, surplus and undivided profits is equivalent to a 10 per cent tax on the net earnings as an average throughout the state among the trust companies. A three-fourths per cent tax is equal to 7½ per cent on earnings, and one-half per cent, such as the bankers say they are willing to pay, equals 5 per cent of earnings.

The national banks will pay taxes equivalent to from 3 to 15 per cent of the net earnings, according to the banks. This, the banking interests say, is unfair. They say that there is no other business that has to pay such a large amount of net earnings for the privilege of doing business in New Jersey.

BIG GIFTS TO REBUILD CHURCH

Montclair Pledges Grow From $14,000 to $43,000 at One Meeting.

Montclair, N. J., March 23.—Members of the First Congregational church, which was destroyed by fire Friday night, gathered in the old First Presbyterian church and arranged for a congregational meeting on April 1, when plans will be made for rebuilding.

The Rev. Dr. Charles S. Mills, the pastor, had received pledges of $14,000 for the new building fund when the meeting began. While the meeting was in progress Dr. Mills received two telegrams from members of the congregation who are in distant parts of the country, one announcing a contribution of $5,000 and the other of $3,000. Before the end of the meeting the pastor had pledges aggregating $43,000. All were voluntary offers. One wealthy member contributed $6,000 and another $5,000.

MISSING BOYS DROWNED.

Morris Canal Yields Bodies of Two Who Disappeared Wednesday.

Newark, N. J., March 23.—Water receding from the upper level of the Morris canal broke the ice and gave up the bodies of Walter Mason and Sammy Siegel, each eight years old, who had been missing since Wednesday afternoon.

The boys lived at 69 and 71 South Orange avenue. When they did not return home Wednesday night and a search failed to reveal traces of them another little boy, Willie Stevens, who lives in the neighborhood, told the parents of the missing ones that Sammy and Walter had asked him to go to the canal and play with them. It was decided to drag the stream, and permission was obtained from the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, owner of the canal.

FROM 'JAG LIST' TO 'FOWL BAN'

Tenafly Doesn't Want Promenading Chicks and Ducks In Streets.

Tenafly, N. J., March 23.—Not satisfied with having caused a furore by appointing a board of protectors which established a "jag" list, the Tenafly borough council is now advertising an ordinance that will prohibit chickens, geese, ducks and other fowl from promenading the streets and sidewalks. Negligent owners will be subject to a fine of $10 or a short term in jail.

Mrs. A. Constance Hellyer, a member of the board of protectors, has been compelled to tender her resignation as a member of the civic association because of the intense feeling engendered by reason of the board's action.

ASSESSING COLLEGES.

The effort of W. de LaR. Anderson and the members of the North Plainfield Township Committee to force the assessment of Mt. St. Mary's College has been laid to politics, and has caused much adverse comment. Their contention that the educational institution is one conducted for profit does not seem to agree with the opinion of many people who have investigated the matter, and apparently does not agree with the opinion of the Supreme Court of the State in a similar case affecting Seton Hall College. Assessor Bodin has stated that he expects to assess land which the college has acquired recently and which is not necessary to the proper conduct of the educational work of the college, but that he will not place an assessment on the college buildings or the land immediately adjoining.

In the Seton Hall case the village assessor placed a valuation upon some land which had not been assessed before, and was not used directly for educational purposes. He was sustained in his contention by the county board, and the matter went to the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes who also affirmed it. A certiorari to review the judgment in the Supreme Court resulted in an opinion by that body that the taxation of this land was proper because "these tracts (in question) do NOT include the land upon which the college buildings are erected." In other words the part of the property used for educational purposes, although tuition is charged, is said by the Supreme Court to be non-taxable. In the Mt. St. Mary's case Assessor Bodin was sustained by the county board, and when he assesses land which has been acquired by the college since last May, which he says he intends to do this year, and which is not used directly for educational purposes, he will undoubtedly be upheld by the county board.

Mt. St. Mary's College is doing a splendid work. It is true that in cases where the parents of the pupils are able to pay a sum in keeping with that asked by other high class educational institutions they are called upon to do so, but it is equally true that when parents in moderate circumstances wish to send children to the school they are not refused. Any effort to tax an educational institution of this kind is inexcusable, and Assessor Bodin merits congratulations for his attitude in the matter.

Former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman would accept the position which becomes vacant this year on the State Civil Service Commission. Charles H. Bateman has held the place since the board was created five years ago, and he has made a good commissioner, but Mr. Ackerman would be equally successful in the place. He it was who drew the bill which resulted in the creation of the Civil Service Commission in 1908 and it was largely due to his efforts and study of the question that the legislation was passed, although without the help of Joseph P. Tumulty, now secretary to the President, but then a member of the House of Assembly, the act would not have become a law that year. If Senator Ackerman should be appointed to the commission by Governor Fielder he would bring a wide experience to the work which would prove invaluable.

Some of those New York reporters have a crafty way of putting humor across in the news columns. One of them wrote that an actress who had been pushed down stairs during an argument and received a broken leg, had taken no steps to recover damages from the guilty person. Who ever heard of a person with a broken leg taking steps of any kind?

The heirs of a Yonker's man had his body cremated and sent the ashes to Germany by parcels post. In the event of people making general use of the mails for this purpose we offer the suggestion that they take extra precautions to have the address perfectly plain as packages of this kind have a tendency to go to the dead letter office.

A noted suffragette leader in Philadelphia gave a big reception at her home the other day, in the course of which young women representing cards portrayed the statement that "Women are trumps." Was it malice aforethought or a compositor's mistake that made an evening paper's report of the affair put it, "Women are chumps."

The one and only Lillian Russell has arrived in New York after a trip to Central America and in an interview to a newspaper man remarked that the Costa Rica girls are the prettiest she has ever seen. If the fair Lillian is the beauty authority she pretends to be, she must have had blinders on the last time she was in Plainfield.

A perverted sense of humor caused a former employe of the Daily Press to send a story to this paper about his death, signing his father's name. The serious consequences with might result from a prank of this sort are such that we regret that there is no law under which the responsible party can be prosecuted. cuted.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Might I beg space for the following, which contained many typographical errors in Saturday's issue, in the Anti-Suffrage Column?

I gladly assume full responsibility for these, since the copy was not typewritten, but am all the more anxious for the corrected article to appear.

Thanking you in advance.

R. A. LAWRENCE.

Lack of space makes it impossible to reprint Miss Lawrence's article in full but we gladly rectify the errors made.

Quoting Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the article was made to read, "How would the authorities like me to go on the lower East Side and invite those people to riot?" The would "invite" should have been "incite."

"Socialism terms them the proletariat'—working class—no destiny—wished from the bourgeosie—capital class" should have read "working class to distinguish them from the bourgeosie."

"Marx says—connivist manifesto" should have read "communist manifesto."

"In the year 1912 thirteen hundred and seventy-two laws" should have read "in the year 1912-13, seventy-two laws."

"Dr. Helen Burnet quotes a labor leader as saying that 'Organized labor is the only force that has benefitted the condition of wages of workers.'" This should have read "Dr. Helen Sumner quotes a labor leader as saying that 'Organized labor is the only force that has benefitted the conditions of wages of workers.'"

TORREON BATTLE NOW IMMINENT

Villa Is but a Few Miles From City.

READY FOR BIG FIGHT.

Advance Guard, Commanded by Leader, Captures Brittingham — Many Federal Troops Killed—Rebels Victorious So Far and Have Completely Routed Opponents.

El Paso, Tex., March 23.—Pancho Villa and his rebel soldiers drove the federal defenders of Torreon farther back toward their final base. His advance guard is in Brittingham, a manufacturing town, only six miles from Gomez Palacio, another manufacturing town and a suburb of Torreon. This is the location of the advance guard of the main army commanded by Villa himself.

The advance guard of the east wing, according to advices, is very close to the eastern suburb of Torreon and has had hot fighting all day.

Brownsville, Tex., March 23.—The defeat of a force of 3,000 federals under General Guardiola, near Guerrera, has been reported to Constitutionalist headquarters at Matamoras. Attacked from the front by a large body of Constitutionalists under General Carranza and then flanked by a force under General Villerdeal, the federals were completely trapped and retreated in disorder, leaving their dead and wounded on the field. More than 500 were killed and wounded. The engagement lasted only a few hours. A large quantity of arms and ammunition was captured.

El Paso, Tex., March 23.—Gleeful to the point of hilarity Saturday night rebel lieutenants of Pancho Villa spent an anxious Sunday. There was no jubilation and little enthusiasm. Throughout the day they asserted that they had heard nothing from the front at Torreon, which they declared would be in the hands of Villa before today. Reporters who remained on watch at military headquarters throughout the day saw no messages passed in from the telegraph office to General Manuel Chao, rebel military governor of Chihuahua, or to any of his subordinates, and the official declaration of no news was generally accepted.

The declaration of Gonzales Garza, legal adviser to the rebel officials, that "No news is good news" was not borne out in the demeanor of the officials. Evidently they are anxious to hear from their chief and how it was going with him. Some of the officials, including General Chao, attended the last day's races of the Juarez season, but there was not the same hilarity in the official box as was evidenced three weeks ago, when Villa himself was the center of attraction and the attack on Torreon was being planned instead of made.

106 Federals Killed.

The last advices the officials had to go on during the day came to General Chao early, adding but little to the other messages. They merely gave some of the locations of rebel troops and a few minor details—for instance, that seventy-five dead federals had been found in the vicinity of Tlahualilo, following its capture by the rebels and stating that the rebel loss in that engagement had been seven wounded, among them Colonel Isaacs.

With 106 federals killed at Bermejillo when the rebels took the place and seventy-five at Tlahualilo, the fire of the rebels appears to have been most effective, as this would account for almost 200 dead in two minor engagements, in which the rebels claim to have lost comparatively none. Rebel advices to the Juarez officials also declared that few wounded federals were found, indicating that the rebel bullets were going true to their mark. Villa boasted of this in messages to his subordinates in a declaration that "it pays to waste a little powder and a few pills for practice before a battle."

SKULL BROKEN; LOCKED UP.

Prisoner Found Unconscious In His Cell In Paterson.

Paterson, N. J., March 23.—A well dressed man who said he was James F. Boyle of Asbury Park was arrested here on the charge of intoxication. He was found unconscious in his cell at police headquarters later. At the Protestant General hospital it was found that half of his body had been paralyzed and that there was a deep gash in the back of his head. In a brief period of consciousness he said he was a traveling salesman for a New York firm.

The man was found by Patrolman Charles F. Kearney in the gutter near Railroad avenue and Market street. Several of his pockets were turned inside out, and he was unable to walk. The theory advanced by the police was that he was attacked and robbed and that his hair hid from view the wound in his head when he was arrested.

Buffalo Charter Vetoed.

Is the Advice Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring Gives to Women in Sermon.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, in his discourse on "Choosing a Husband," at the First Presbyterian church, last night, cautioned the unmarried women present that it was not wise for any woman to start out in life with the idea that the man she intended to marry does drink occasionally, gets gloriously drunk, but that she hoped to reform him. He said that the wisest counsel he could give under such conditions was "don't."

"If a man does not think enough of you to give up his rum and his rumminess before you are married to him," said Dr. Herring, "he surely will not give it up after. Investigate the subject for yourself. Give the man of your choice six months or a year's probation.

"Again, don't marry a man whose life is unclean. Don't marry a 'fallen man.' A young man may have the outward evidences of a gentleman, be faultlessly dressed, have a good position, plenty of money and educated, but with heart and lift of uncleanness. The stamp of man thinks his rakinsh life is an evidence of manliness and he is not satisfied with his own fallen nature, but he is contemptible enough to endeavor to drag down the unfallen young man into the slime with himself.

"There are two elements in love. A craving impulse and a giving impulse. The lowest kind of love has only the craving impulse. Goethe loved the simple girl Frederica and then after awhile 'threw her aside as a sucked orange.'

"Young woman, the kind of a husband you should seek should be a man devoid of the rum habit, should be morally pure. There are so many men forever starting something and then giving up. I pity their wives. Yet with all your wisdom, you may make a mistake in your choice. You need a higher power to help you. Pray about it."

MEAGRE FACTS RECEIVED REGARDING ROOSEVELT PARTY

New York, March 23—Only the barest information has been received here regarding the accident which is reported to have befallen Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his party in the wilds of South America. A message was received from Anthony Fiala yesterday, saying, "Have lost everything in the rapids. Telephone my wife and sister."

It is thought that the accident happened on an unknown river called "Rio Duivata," or River of Doubt. It is known that all of the equipment was lost, and there is some doubt here as to whether or not the party will be able to continue, as there is no place that it can be replaced. The rafts containing it are supposed to have been lost in a rapid. The nearest town to the accident is Santarem, Brazil, which is located at the junction of the Tttajos and Amazon Rivers.

The arrest of the eighteen men was brought about through the efforts of special officers of the Treasury Department. United States Attorney John W. Preston, who is conducting the prosecution, will endeavor to prove that the defendants were members of a gigantic smuggling ring that has defrauded the Government of hundreds of thousands of dollars during the past few years.

MORSE ANTS TO BE DEPORTED

No Foreign Insects Are Allowed to Land in United States.

Washington, March 23.—Mrs. C. W. Morse's pet ants cannot be admitted to the United States. No stretch of the immigration laws will permit these undesirable alien insects to enter. They will be deported at the expense of the steamship company that brought them over.

This is the dictum of the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture, as announced by Dr. Leland C. Howard, chief entomologist.

"The description of the Morse ant colony, 'brown meadow ants,' is new to me," said Dr. Howard. Doubtless they are some ordinary and common European variety of the ant family perfectly familiar to entomologists under some other designation."

WHY BURGLARS HELP BUSINESS

Once there was a skeptic. A skeptic is one who declares he knows nothing about anything, and becomes very angry when you agree with him.

This skeptic did not believe there were any natural blondes. He was so skeptical about everything that he would even put mucilage on the backs of stamps.

This skeptic was also a merchant. He also did not believe in advertising.

It happened that at one time he needed a night watchman. He supposed reliable night watchmen were plentiful. As a matter of fact they are rarer than dividends.

None of the merchant's acquaintances professed any anxiety to assume the place, so he was forced to advertise in the "Want" columns of a newspaper that his establishment needed a night watchman. He did not believe the "ad." would bring the desired results.

He was right! But the following morning he found that his store had been burglarized three times during the night.

"Surely" he reflected, "if burglars are responding so readily to advertising, perhaps the law-abiding classes are influenced by it. Henceforth I shall advertise my wares."

Adelberg's has never needed the patronage of burglars to recognize the benefits of advertising. That is why you will find our advertisements in the local papers.

We will endeavor to make them as interesting as is consistent with the purpose of the Adelberg Store—to sell Clothing for the Family on credit—at cash prices.

MILWAUKEE CAMPAIGN CLOSES.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 23.—Political leaders gave final instructions to their lieutenants in the Milwaukee campaign today and the lines were drawn tight for the primary election tomorrow, when candidates are to be named for mayor and other officials to be voted for in the next municipal election. The advocates of non-partisan government are making a hard fight to continue the present administration in power, while the Socialists are fighting equally hard to bring about a restoration of the Socialist regime, which came to an end with the non-partisan victory two years ago. It is generally believed that the results of the next election can easily be forecasted from the size of the vote received by the mayoralty candidates in the primary tomorrow. The candidates for mayor are Gerhard Bading, the present incumbent, and the head of the non-partisan candidates; Emil Seidel, former mayor and choice of the Socialist party; David S. Rose, another former mayor, and Theobald Otjen, former congressman.

HOUSEWIVES PRESERVE EGGS.

New Brunswick, March 23.—The members of the Housewives' League propose purchasing a big lot of eggs in April or May with the idea of preserving them and saving the profit usually made by the middlemen. They hope to get eggs at twenty cents a dozen and preserve them in water glass. The inspection of bakeries is being continued. One of the big barkeries has not yet been licensed because not up to the requirements.

STATE BOARD APOLOGIZES.

New Providence, March 23.—A report that the State Board of Health apologized to them for having put them to any inconvenience was made by the committee of three which went before the board Tuesday in behalf of the property owners of Clinton and Madison avenues. The residents had been notified to stop the flowage of sewage into the Passaic River, it being reported to the board by one of its inspectors that cesspools along the two thoroughfares overflowed into the river. This the residents denied. They sent William T. Hickson, Wilbur F. Brower and J. P. Flock to the board to explain the case. After the committee had showed the State authorities that what overflow there was went into a hog on Mr. Hickson's property, and that the inspector's report was wrong in other instances, the board said it would have the streets inspected again. This was done Friday. The inspector found the sewage conditions satisfactory.

SEEK CLEMENCY FOR MURDERER

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23.—The State Board of Pardons, which met here today for a session of several days, is expected to receive and act upon a petition for clemency in the case of George Miller, one of four men who were involved in the murder of Mrs. Mary Nichols in this city five years ago. The murder was one of the most brutal and revolvting in the records of this county. The aged victim and her gardener were at work in a field near her home on the outskirts of the city. The four men, who were under the influence of liquor, attacked the couple for the purpose of robbery. The gardener was gagged and tied, but the woman made resistance and was clubbed to death. The proceeds of the robbery amounted to $7.50, which the four men divided among themselves. All four were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. Miller's friends now ask clemency on the ground that he was but nineteen years old when the crime was committed and was influenced by his older companion.

SPECTACULAR FINISH PUT Y. M. C. A. AHEAD

Finally in the Last Few Minutes of Play Sewed up a Nip and Tuck Contest.

Chauncey Stewart's phenomenal final shooting came within an ace of putting a crimp in the Y. M. C. A. team's chance of victory in a game on the association court, Saturday night, when an All-Star quintet was passed out by a score of 45 to 38. The score falls far short of indicating just how closely matters were contested, the count standing a tie a few minutes before the final whistle sound. Playing with a patched up team the Y. M. C. A. put up a fine exhibition of passing and many clever shots were pulled off by individuals.

Thirteen field goals comprised Stewart's collection and it was his prowess that kept the Y. M. C. A. basketers continually on the offense. Rough house tactics instilled life into the contest during the second half and many of the shots caged while the score zig-zagged back and forth came from difficult angles.

At the completion of one half of play the visitors led by a count of 22 to 19 and starting off with a rush in the second period they increased their advantage to ten points by the middle of the last session. The Y. M. C. A. team started a steady climb at this juncture, however, and soon traded their rivals and finally secured a one goal advantage, the first they were in the lead during the game. Stewart soon came back with a tying count however and in another instant had put his team in front again. Spectacular field goal shooting came to the fore at this time and three field goals from the centre and extreme corners of the court gave the home team the decision. Joe Savett and Dan McNamee put up the best all around games for the association five, the latter taking part in a second game of the evening, having played two full halves with the High School previous to the Y. M. C. A. game.

CHAUNCEY STEWART WILL CAPTAIN LEAL'S QUINTET

Chauncey Stewart, the smallest player in interscholastic athletic competition hereabouts, has been elected captain the Leal School basketball team during the coming season. Stewart has been a member of the aggregation for two years, playing forward. He will return to the private school next year as a senior.

The captain-elect succeeds Fred Dickerson. He was manager of the team during the past season and was the chief point winner for the aggregation. Besides being a leader on the basketball court Stewart is also a clever ball player and will hold down second base for the private school combination this fall.

Chauncey Stout's quintet in the Elks' Club Bowling Tournament is showing the way to the eight other contestants according to the weekly statistics officially compiled by Secretary V. W. High score honors belong to Nash's aggregation with 833 while Stout is also a runner-up in this department with 825 for a record. Frank Blatz, captain of Team No. 7, which is wrestling with Kiely's pets for the cellar championship, holds the best individual average in the 175 class with 190.4. In the 165 class Vail is the guiding light with 178.2, while Demler is second with 173.2. Howard Woolston leads the 155 class with a mark of 159.1 and Harold is second with an even 155. High leads the 145 class with 164.4 and Swalm heads the list in the 135 class, his average being 162.5.

Kiely holds the individual high score belt having knocked over 226 of the wooden images in a single game during one series. Waldorf, VanEmburgh, Demler and High are runners up for the high score lead with a record of 223 stowed away.

LAST GAME RESULTS IN SERIOUS INJURY

Unfortunate Finale Placed on P. H. S. Court Season When Captain is Hurt.

Playing his last game of scholastic basketball on the Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night, when the Plainfield and New Brunswick High School teams met in their annual encounter, Captain Andrew Hetfield, of the local five, suffered a severe and painful injury which will retire him from all sports for some time to come. Hetfield and two Brunswick players came together with terrific force in the centre of the floor soon after play had started and when the mass was untangled Hetfield was found to be suffering with a broken nose. He retired from the game and was taken to the office of a physician nearby who dressed the wound.

Hetfield has been unfortunate in basketball competition during the past two years and has probably suffered more injuries than any other individual playing the game in this section. Last year his most serious mishap was a bruised thigh which he still carries done up in bandages. He sustained this while a member of the Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball team.

Although troubled by his injured leg this year, Hetfield has put up a splendid game for P. H. S., and had the accident happened earlier in the season the High School coach would have had his hands full trying to unearth a fitting substitute. Hetfield is also a clever baseball player, being in line for the third base job on the school nine this year and it is now thought likely that he will have to abandon the diamond sport for a time at least.

HOLY CROSS TEAM WILL MEET TO ELECT MANAGER

Members of the Holy Cross football team are planning to call a meeting sometime this week for the purpose of electing a manager for next year. "Doc" Doyle, the present incumbent, is the most likely candidate for the position, although he has steadfastly maintained that he will not accept the election for another term.

Doyle has been at the helm for two successive years and has given up a large amount of his time to the duties. He has been a competent leader and has presented excellent bookings each year. In the event of his refusal to accept the task for another season some other member of the present roster will be nominated.

STATE FEMININE TITLE.

Unconquered by any of the high school teams that have endeavored to best them this season, the South Orange High School girl basketball players lay claim to the high school girls' championship of the State. A record said to be unsurpassed by any school girl team hereabouts is held by the village lassies, who have participated in twenty-two games, winning eighteen, losing three and tieing in one.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Baseball captains, coaches and those trying for berths on clubs of major or minor importance are in bad with the weather man again. This is nothing new, it happens annually, and it is now up to the athletes to adorn the side lines until mother nature gets ready for their reception. Just when most of the scholastic pilots were planning to get their charges out into the open air and when the diamonds were beginning to take on their natural form once more the snow king makes his appearance on the horizon and blasts all hopes of open air drills for two or three weeks at the least. Gymnasiums will be popularized in the meantime and limbering up tactics will be resorted to by schoolboy leaders. Little time now remains before the opening games and the ball tossers have been watching every move of the weather man during the last two weeks. The unexpected and unheralded fall of snow came as a rude jolt to the athletes and promises to remain for a while.

Plainfield High School basketball activities were treated to an unfortunate finale on the Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night when Captain Andrew Hetfield broke his nose in the last game on the schedule. The P. H. S. team was finishing a season that has been featured by an unusual display of hard luck and the injury to the captain was the climax of the jinx's plot. "Hetty" has been one of the most efficient basketball leaders the Plainfield school has had in several years and during his regime has played and led the team in a way that has been satisfactory to all concerned. P. H. S. has been unfortunate in recent years, to have captains who have been ineligible during some games because of scholarship deficiencies, but Hetfield has off-set this dope by taking part in every game and leading his team mates in points scored. He has had more than his share of hard luck in basketball and has taken part in many games when he should have been in bed. Hard luck, Hetty.

Present early season prospects indicate that the Central New Jersey Baseball League will be a thing of the past this season. Without Somerville in the running Plainfield would have things all its own way, if past performances may be taken as a criterion, and it will probably be impossible this year to get up enough interest to warrant reorganization.

That Scotch Plains-Y. M. C. A. basketball series is due to get under way in the Association gym next Saturday night. Followers of the court game are thus assured of some more good contests before the season closes.

Rumor has it that Westfield and Bound Brook will be represented in the Sunday School Baseball League this season. Just at present it looks as though the Bible School magnates would have to go to one of these towns to get enough contenders to organize a circuit.

Bowling appears to be the coming winter indoor sport in Plainfield just at present. This year, as never before, interest has been rife on every side and well nigh a hundred sportsmen are taking part in active competition. Six teams in the Columbus Club league and nine in the Elks' league furnish sustenance for seventy-five pinners.

Christy Mathewson has predicted a failure for the Federal League. What will become of the $2,500,000 that the outlaw promoters have sunk in the fiasco? It looks like a pretty healthy failure.

With "Rabbit" Maranville going great guns down in Macon just now Jack Martin isn't having much of an opportunity to display his wares to George Stallings. 'Twas ever thus for Jackie.

Chauncey Stewart, the smallest performer in local interscholastic basketball circles, has been elected to captain Leals next year. Congratulations, "Peanut."

What do you think of that North Plainfield High School group as camera busters? Basketball players would probably prove to be prize winning exhibits in a rogue's gallery.

Today happens to be the second day of spring.

P. H. S. DROPS LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

New Brunswick High School Had Little Trouble in Trouncing Local Quintet.

Outclassed from start to finish, the Plainfield High School basketball team was forced to swallow another defeat on the Y. M. C. A. court, Saturday night, when the New Brunswick High School aggregation took home a 33 to 21 verdict. Suffering a big handicap in the opening minutes of play when Captain Hetfield was injured, the locals let the Brunswick players run up an advantage which was never headed.

The Plainfielders at times were a dozen or more points in the rear and passed up numerous opportunities to make two point scores. Spectacular goal shooting on the part of Denizer was largely responsible for the visitors win. He bagged eight field goals from every conceivable angle on the floor and had his guard continually hanging around his neck in an effort to curtail the onslaught.

The Brunswick team outweighed the locals considerably and this helped to some extent in the work of rolling up the score. For Plainfield, Acting-Captain Peacock led the individual race for point laurels, with five from the foul line and one field goal to his credit. Rosenson and McNamee tied for high field goal honors each bagging a trio during the encounter.

NO LOCAL BOWLERS IN ANNUAL CONGRESS

Three Elks' League Men Will Represent Elizabeth in the Banner Event of Year.

For the first time in the history of the big event Plainfield will not be represented by a team of bowlers in the American Bowling Congress which opened in Buffalo today. Other years, four, six and eight pinners have sported the Queen City's colors in the congress tournament, but those who promoted the affair in other years have decided not to take part in the present competition.

The nearest town to be represented will be Elizabeth. The Union county seat men left Betsytown Saturday night for the event and got into action this morning. Included in the list are three Elks' Bowling League pinners, Captain Henri Clauss, Justus Bock and Joe Nolte.

Joe Nolte, Freddy Kling, Al West, Henry Clauss and Justus Bock will compete in the five-man series and if they show the form displayed throughout this season, Elizabeth should be in for a prize. Tomorrow morning at 10:30 the two-man series will be rolled. The following have been selected as teams: Joe Nolte and Frank Housbeck, Freddy Kling and Al West and Henry Clauss and Justus Bock. The singles, in which all six will participate, will take place in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

LOCALS A BIG SCARE BUT THAT WAS ALL

Heralded as "Champions of the Garden State" Plainfielders Got Scared.

In a poorly played basketball game a local team picked from the Senior League of the Y. M. C. A., went down to defeat at the hands of the fast Columbia Club, of White Stone, Long Island, Saturday night, by the score of 48 to 8. The locals were up against one of the strongest teams that could be brought together by the Columbia manager, as he was under the impression that they were to play the champions of New Jersey, and had hired players from the New York State League to play against them.

The locals were greatly handicapped by the slippery floor on which they played, not being used to performing on such they had great difficulty in holding their feet. After the game refreshments were served to the teams and dancing was enjoyed till midnight. The team arrived home at an early hour and were none the worse for the game they played.

PENN GETS BIG REGATTA.

NORTH PLAINFIELD'S DOUBLE CHAMPIONS DURING THE BASKETBALL SEASON OF 1914

North Plainfield High School basketball players have completed one of the most successful seasons of court competition in the history of the school, capturing both the Interscholastic and Somerset county titles during the season. The team is on of the fastest and most evenly balanced ever turned out from the borough institution and won a large majority of its contests during the season.

Practically the only aggregation in this section to score a victory at the expense of the "Canadians" was the Y. M. C. A. outfit, and with this one exception North Plainfield cleaned up on everything.

Captain Burner, Roy Love and Frank Dunning graduate from school this year. Next year Conroy, Townley, Abrams, VanMater and Newkirk will be on the job. Hyman Abrams has been elected captain of next year's quintet.

CLIFF RANDOLPH TO HAVE LEAGUE BOSS

Major Club Star Has Been Signed to Handle the Perth Amboy Team This Year.

When Cliff Randolph dons a Perth Amboy baseball uniform this season he will be under the management of a former major league star, Bob Ganley, having been signed by the head of the Amboy club to pilot his aggregation on the diamond during the coming season. The local boy was signed by Pfau and Gillian, who were at the helm of the Atlantic League club a few weeks ago and will continue as a member of the team under the new management. Pfau and Gillian will continue as directors of the organization.

The fact that a man of Ganley's calibre has been signed to direct the destinies of the Perth Amboy organization shows that no stone is being left unturned to secure a winning club for that city. He began his professional career as a member of the pennant winning Rome (N. Y.) club, of the New York State League. A few seasons later he went to the strong Pacific Coast League and as a leading batter of the Des Moines club, of the Western League, was picked up by a Pittsburgh scout in 1905. He played two seasons with the Pirates and for three later seasons with the Washington Americans and Connie Mack's Athletics. In 1910 he was a popular members of the Newark Internationals. He began a managerial career in Fredricton, Me., in 1911, and to demonstrate his success it is enough to mention that he has won three successive pennants for his team in the strong Maine-New Brunswick League. Ganley batted at a .336 clip.

PLAN FOR VICTORY.

Manager John Gates, the promoter of the All-Star East Orange basketball game, which will be played here April 2, would like to have all the members of the Nonpareil Club to meet at the clubhouse tonight to rehearse some yells that will be used to spur their team on to victory on that night. Gates is confident of victory and will back the team to the limit. A good game is expected as both teams are in great form and will play their hardest. Dancing will following the game till a late hour.

BASKETBALL TO BASEBALL.

Frank Bruggy, left fielder for the Plainfield champions of the Central New Jersey Baseball League last season, quits basketball tonight to take up the diamond sport once again. Bruggy has been playing guard on the Gloversville team, of the New York and New Jersey Basketball League. It is likely that he will sign with the Lawrence team, of the New England League, for the baseball season.

WAGNER OUT FOR SEASON.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 23.—"Heine" Wagner, Red Sox shortstop, may be lost to the Boston American League Club for the entire season. He is suffering from an attack of rheumatism and physician say he will find it troublesome for quite a while.

'PLAINS MAY NOT HAVE SUNDAY BALL

Owner of Ball Park Has Been Petitioned to Withhold the Rental This Year.

According to Joe Alberts, manager of the Scotch Plains baseball team for the past five years, semi-professional ball will be dropped at that place this year. For several years the team has been playing Sundays as most of the players work Saturdays. There is considerable opposition to Sunday ball in the 'Plains and the owner of the ball field, now used says he has been asked to stop the rental of the field for Sunday competition, and has about decided to do so.

Most of the players have their eye on several teams in this vicinity that have offered them good inducement to don their spangles and unless Manager Alberts gets busy very soon there will be no players to use if he does succeed in getting a field. Most of the fans will be lost on Sunday if Alberts fails to get a field as a good many followers from here went to see the little manager play and also to see his brother "Henny" perform in the left garden.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS ON SOMERVILLE LINKS

Extensive Remodeling Has Been Going on During the Winter Months.

Extensive improvements have been added to the Somerville Country Club's golf course during the winter months and an army of workmen are still busily engaged in remodeling the greens. To-date one hundred and seventy-nine new traps and bunkers have been added to the links and there have been several other changes in this interesting course.

The principal feature of the remodeling comes at the seventh hole a one-shot affair of about one hundred and fifty yards in length. A green there has been made of the plateau variety and so thoroughly surrounded with trouble that it is necessary to pitch directly on the green from the tee to get the best results. Somerville recently joined the ranks of the United States and New Jersey Golf Associations and plans a number of important competitions this year.

TO FIX DATE AND PLACE.

The New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement will meet tonight at the Frost building to discuss the date and place for holding the annual show next fall. There has been some talk of transfering the show this year to Trenton, where it might draw larger crowds. Plainfield fanciers, however, have registered serious objections to this move and there is a strong possibility of keeping the event in this city.

CARNIVAL OF SPORT.

Chicago, Ill., March 23.—All arrangements have been concluded for the first annual indoor athletic carnival of the Sportsmen's Club of America, which is to be opened in the Coliseum tomorrow night and continued until the end of the week. The carnival promises to be the biggest affair of its kind ever pulled off in Chicago. The first four nights will be largely preliminaries to the grand finale which is to be held Saturday night. Star athletes from all over the middle West are entered to compete in the athletic events. In addition, the program will include competitions in boxing and wrestling, fencing and revolver and rifle shooting.

FEDS HAVE SPENT $2,500,000.

Chicago, March 23.—The Federal League already has spent $2,500,000 in its campaign, according to figures given out Saturday by President Gilmore. The expenditures included rental of grounds, money spent for stands and buildings and advance salaries to ball players.

WORLD'S RIFLE RECORD.

Washington, March 23.—Scoring 999 out of a possible 1,000, a new world's record, the Warren, Pa., rifle team, the present title holders, won the second national interclub championship last week, not a defeat having been registered against the team in the thirteen-week match.

OUTCOME OF ELECTION IS AWAITED WITH INTEREST

Washington, D. C., March 23.—Both Republicans and Democrats in Washington are awaiting with considerable interest the outcome of the contest in the Seventh New Jersey Congressional district, where a primary is to be held tomorrow for the nomination of candidates for the seat made vacant by the recent death of Representative Fobert G. Bremner. The final choice will be made at a special election which Governor Fielder has called for April 7.

The Wilson administration quite naturally is desirous that a strong Democrat shall be nominated and elected to succeed Congressman Bremner. The latter belonged to the Democratic party and the election of a Republican to succeed him would of course, be hailed by the Republicans as a repudiation of the Wilson policies in the President's home State. The Seventh has always been regarded as a pretty close district and as some of its large manufacturing interests are understood to have been adversely affected by the new tariff the Republicans entertain strong hopes that they will win in the April election.

According to the latest reports received here a dozen Republicans and half as many Democrats are contesting for the nominations of their respective parties. In addition, the Progressives and the Socialists will have candidates on the ballot. Whoever is elected will have less than a year to serve, as another Congressman will be chosen at the general election in November to fill the regular term beginning March 4 next.

ULSTER AFFAIR WORRIES LONDON

Heads of Government Anxious For Adjustment.

LEADERS AND KING CONFER

Asquith, French and Churchill All See Monarch at the Palace—Many Wholesale Resignations In Army—Three Thousand Men Ready at Belfast.

London, March 23.—The gravity of the Irish situation was again emphasized by a further series of conferences in London between the ministers themselves and between the ministers and the king. Apart from these conferences there were no important new happenings either here or in Ireland so far as can be learned up to the time of sending this dispatch. The archbishop of Canterbury conferred for two hours with the British premier, Mr. Asquith.

Immediately after the archbishop took his departure the prime minister went in his automobile to Buckingham palace, where for more than an hour he had an audience with King George.

Sir John French, field marshal, also had an interview with the king, and subsequently Mr. Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and Mr. Asquith met for the second time.

There was no rest for the government ministers, who were busy in secret conferences at the premier's residence. Mr. Churchill was with Mr. Asquith as early as 10 o'clock. A little later Mr. Churchill left by a private door and hastened to the war office. He met Colonel J. E. B. Seeley, the war secretary, running out and had a long and earnest talk in deserted St. James' park. Then Mr. Churchill hurried back alone to Downing street, where the premier had been joined by the home secretary for Ireland. A long conference followed, Mr. Asquith's callers evidently stopping for luncheon.

All Quiet in Belfast.

Though there was no knowing what the day might bring forth in the Ulster crisis, indications were that nothing serious would arise to disturb the usual peace.

It was evident that John Redmond's appeal to his adherents at Belfast to abstain from the parade, which might have disastrous results, had been listened to.

Belfast is quiet except for preparations going steadily on for attack and defense. Three hundred more troops embarked at Dublin, a lieutenant commanding.

Disaffection throughout the army is continuing, and, though the greatest secrecy is being maintained by the war office, the whole country knows that as military preparations proceed more and more of the army officers are throwing up their commissions.

General Gough's refusal to march against Ulster is proving irresistible and hosts of other persons occupying important positions in the army, and even men in the rank and file, are continually growing more and more restless.

It was common talk among the soldiers at the canteens that "they had enlisted to defend the king against his enemies and not to shed the blood of his subjects."

So the army is threatened with a split from which it may take years to recover. The story of the disaffection in the British army at the time of the American War of Independence, when the great army leaders refused to fight against the colonists, is being repeated.

In the meantime in Ulster toasts are being enthusiastically drunk to the king and to the success of Sir Edward Carson. Also the mobilization of the Ulster army goes on, and it will be quite ready for action within the week.

The latest news from Belfast does not show any surface indications of an overhanging crisis. Everybody apparently was occupied in the usual way though many feel that they are resting on the brink of a volcano.

WORKED WITH BROKEN NECK.

Negro Convict Finished Day's Task and Dies at Night.

Greensboro, N. C., March 23.—That Tom Rogers, a negro convict serving a term on the county roads, broke his neck by a fall and then worked for three or four hours is the assertion of Dr. W. M. Jones, county physician who examined the body of the negro.

While cutting cordwood near the county convict camp at Reedy Fork, Rogers was thrown by a piece of timber and had a hard fall against a stump, which struck him just under the jaw. While there was a slight abrasion on the neck and Rogers was shocked by the fall, he did not consider it serious, and in a few minutes was free from pain. He kept at work until supper time, ate heartily and retired. At 10 o'clock he died.

Dr. Jones examined the body and declared that his neck was broken by the fall.

ROOSEVELT PARTY LOSES EVERYTHING

Caught In Rapids of Brazilian River.

Santarem, Brazil (via Pernambuco, St. Vincent, and the Azores), March 23.—We have lost everything in the rapids (presumably rapids of a tributary of the Amazon river). Telephone my wife of my safety. ANTHONY FIALA.

Anthony Fiala, the well known arctic explorer and resident of Brooklyn, who sent the above message, is one of the members of the party of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt which plunged into the unexplored wilds of Central Brazil about nine days ago, expecting to reach Manaos, the commercial metropolis of the Amazon country, about 900 miles from the mouth of the river. Santarem, whence the message comes, is on the Tapajos river, close to its confluence with the Amazon and about 500 miles from the mouth of the latter.

Inquiries made showed that the Roosevelt family had heard nothing yet from the colonel concerning the mishap to the expedition or his own situation. It need not be inferred from this fact, however, that the colonel has sustained any personal injury. On the contrary, Mr. Fiala's silence on the subject indicates that the colonel is safe and that the loss is confined to the equipment and the archaeological and other specimens gathered by the expedition, for the understanding with Mr. Fiala was that any personal injury to the colonel was to be cabled immediately and fully. It is also probable that Mr. Fiala himself is not at Santarem, but has intrusted his message to some native on the way to that town.

What the equipment of Colonel Roosevelt's party was to make the trip down this unknown river is largely a matter of conjecture. After leaving the upper Parana and Paraguay rivers, which flow southward and join the Rio de la Plata, the party had to traverse the plateau, extending through Paraguay and Brazil, a trip of 500 miles or so, which the party started to make on horseback.

GLYNN BOOM LAUNCHED.

Democrats Are Wondering What C. F. Murphy Will Do.

Albany, March 23.—Democratic state committeemen who are here are canvassing the effect of the speech of William Church Osborn, the new chairman of the committee, in launching a boom for Governor Glynn for the nomination next autumn. They are recalling that while Charles F. Murphy and the Tammany committeemen were most polite in applauding the governor when he entered the Ten Eyck hotel room where the meeting was held and listened with great interest to the governor's speech urging the committeemen to do their part in getting out the vote in April for the constitutional convention, Mr. Murphy did not speak to the governor. They also note that while the governor was holding a levee with some of the committeemen in the committee room, Mr. Murphy was outside and held the largest levee.

But if there was any thought of Tammany opposition to the nomination of Governor Glynn it was not brought to the surface, nor did it shape itself in any expression.

TORPEDO TEST FOR NO. 39.

Armor Plate Planned For Battleship Will Be Fired At.

Newport, March 23.—To determine whether or not the armor to be used in battleship No. 39, the keel of which was laid at the New York navy yard on March 16, is to make the vessel torpedo proof, an important test will be held off Norfolk during the present week.

The torpedo boat Morris, regularly attached to the station here, has been detailed to be used in the test and will fire a Whitehead torpedo of the very latest design and charged with 300 pounds of guncotton at a caisson sixty feet long and twenty-five feet wide. This caisson will be constructed of the armor plate such as will be used on No. 39.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

THE EMBROIDERED BLOUSE FOR WEAR WITH A SPRING SUIT

For wear with the new spring suit you will need at least one or two new blouses of washable materials; blouses that are dainty and dressy enough for afternoon, church and occasions when a plain tailored waist would not be appropriate. There are several pretty new crepey materials in silk and cotton, appropriate for making these blouses. Crêpe de Chine, Canton crêpe, fine net and crêpe voile are also satisfactory fabrics, as they launder exceptionally well. Whatever the material, it must be very soft, and in fitting your garment be sure to have it very blousey at the waist-line to give the correct line. The one-piece model 8121 is a very good pattern to use, as it is unusually easy to make and is appropriate for these materials. It is cut in sizes 34 to 42 and requires 2⅛ yards of 36-inch material for size 36. The collar, cuffs, revers and simulated waistcoat-tabs may be of the material of the blouse, or of very fine net embroidered in solid work in white or a color. Very narrow plaited net or lace may be buttonholed to the scalloped edge if one likes a more elaborate waist.

Guaranteed patterns can be supplied to readers for blouse 8121 and transfer pattern 14670 at 15 cents each.

Rowdy Was Delighted With the Music.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Rowdy Shared His Beautiful Home.

"ROWDY was a beautiful and very handsome bulldog. He had a lovely white throat, too, and when he went out into the street he wore a fine big collar, which made him look very distinguished," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn.

"Rowdy belonged to a little boy named Alfred. Alfred's mother was a very rich lady, and Rowdy had all the comforts that any dog could possibly ask for. He slept in Alfred's room in a beautiful basket.

"Alfred and Rowdy were really inseparable companions. Alfred was not a very strong little boy. He couldn't join in all the sports that other little boys enjoy. Because of Alfred's ill health he and Rowdy were all the better companions.

"Alfred had a phonograph, which he used to play a great deal. Rowdy would sit before it, so delighted at the music. He'd put his head on one side first and then on the other. Of course Alfred would talk to him and ask him how he was enjoying the music. Rowdy would wag his tail to show he thought it was fine.

"In the afternoons Alfred and his mother used to take drives in a lovely big open Victoria. One afternoon it was beautifully bright and sunny. Alfred's mother said:

"'We'll go for a nice long drive today.'

"'Rowdy!' called Alfred, for Rowdy was fast asleep on the sofa.

"Rowdy jumped up eagerly as if he knew something pretty nice was going to happen.

"'Rowdy, how would you like to take a drive? Speak and say if you would like it.'

"So Rowdy wagged his tail and gave a bark as if to say, 'Charmed!' Rowdy's best collar was put on, and off they started. They had not gone far before they passed a poor, pathetic little waif dog. Rowdy was not snobbish and proud as some dogs might have been, brought up in all the comforts that he had always had. Instead he seemed to feel very sorry for the little waif dog and whined sadly. Then he tried to jump out of the carriage.

"'Do you want to take the little waif dog driving?' said Alfred to Rowdy. And Rowdy showed as well as he could that he would like that tremendously.

"They took the poor little homeless dog back with them and gave him good food and a nice home. Rowdy seemed to be glad to give such happiness to a little friendless dog, and he seemed to feel that it was giving the dog rare pleasure to have a master like Alfred."

TRANSMITS VOCAL SOUNDS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC OCEAN BY WIRELESS.

Vocal sounds, but not actual words, have been transmitted by wireless telephone across the Atlantic Ocean from Clifden, Ireland, to Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, according to a statement made by William Marconi, the inventor of the wireless telegraphy.

Signor Marconi declared that no conversation was held in the recent experiments made by him.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

In planning the little one's wardrobe, whether for school or more dressy occasions, it is well to remember that children grow rapidly. While materials for frock or suit are not expensive, there is no reason in the world why they should not be made to do for more than one season. In wash materials especially, it is wise to allow one-half inch at all seams for shrinkage; the allowance for the natural growth of the child may be arranged in various ways. An inch or two may be left on the sleeves by laying in a pleat or two at the cuff, or in case of short sleeves, halfway between shoulder and elbow; on the skirt, a wide tuck may be taken on the inside of the hem, to be let down when necessary. No. 8000 is a long-waisted blouse dress for a child of from 8 to 14; it has a set-in sleeve, a pretty diagonal closing and a pleated skirt attached to a separate underwaist.

For a child of 12, this pattern requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting goods for the collar, cuffs and belt. The underwaist requires ⅝ yard of lining or muslin.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8 to 14

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Banishing Odors.

Very often when the dining room is near the kitchen the odor of cooking becomes unpleasant. By pouring a few drops of oil of lavender into a glass of very hot water the air of the room is purified almost instantly. This is also useful in a sickroom. If the lavender is prepared just before dinner is ready to be served the room will be filled with a faint but very acceptable odor of freshness.

For the Children

Dog Which Is Fond of Playing Tennis.

The dog so nimbly jumping with his mouth agape to catch a tennis ball that has been batted to him is a wire haired fox terrier. He lives in England, and when he plays tennis with his young mistress his cup of happiness is full. He is so quick that he rarely fails to catch a ball that is anywhere within his reach, frequently leaping several feet in the air to accomplish his purpose. His mistress is Lady Rosamond Butler, and she dearly loves a game with her dog. The picture was taken just as the dog made a great jump to retrieve the ball, but the picture does not show whether he succeeded or not. At any rate, he made a brave try for it and deserved to get it.

A Handy Straw Man.

In Korea there exists a very odd belief about protecting a person from evil and from the results of committing a crime or misdemeanor.

First of all, when the Korean realizes that he has committed a sin he hunts up a sorcerer who sells various "charms."

The sorcerer makes for the penitent person a life size straw man, concealing therein a number of small coins, and then proceeds by incantations to lure the evil spirits out of the real person's body into that of the straw man. The buyer then takes this straw man home, dresses it in some of his cast off clothes and throws it into the street.

All passersby help to destroy the straw man partly because they believe in helping the penitent man to get rid of the evil spirits and partly because they know that there is money hidden within. It is thought that the angry spirits are thus appeased by the destruction of the proxy sinner.

A Nervous Tree.

In Idaho there exists a species of the acacia tree which is entitled to be classed as one of the wonders of plant life. The tree attains a height of about eight feet. When full grown it closes its leaves together in coils each day at sunset. When the tree has thus settled itself for its night's sleep it will flutter violently if touched, and if you shake the branches it will emit a nauseating odor strong enough to bring on a headache.

In Idaho it is called the "angry tree," and it is said that it was discovered by some men who were making a camp for the night and placed one end of a canvas covering over one of its sensitive branches to use it as a support. Immediately the tree began to jerk its branches sharply. The motion continued with increased nervousness, until at last there came a sickening odor that drove the tired men to a more hospitable camping place.

Hide and Seek.

When we play
The children say:
"You be 'It.' I hate to be!"
But I make Them all take
Places straight in front of me.
"Een—ter—ey, on—ter—ey, cute—er—ey corn,
Apple seed and brier thorn.
Fire, brier, limber lock,
Three geese in a flock.
One flies east;
One flies west;
One flies over the cuckoo's nest.
One, two, three,
Out goes she!"

Then if "she"
Comes to me
I am "It" for this one play.
Then they run—
Oh, what fun!—
While I hide my eyes and say:
"Five, ten, fifteen, twenty,
Twenty-five, thirty, thirty-five, forty,
Forty-five, fifty, fifty-five, sixty,
Sixty-five, seventy, seventy-five, eighty,
Eighty-five, ninety, ninety-five, one hundred'
Coming whether your're ready or not!"

Then I go,
Creeping slow,
Seeking, seeking, one and all.
Low and high,
Passing by,
I can hear them softly call:
"Coo—oop! Coo—oop!
Come and find me! F-i-n-d me!"
Then at last
Scurrying past
Runs a girl with laughing face.
Then I fly,
I must try
To get before her to the base.
Strike it hard and as I hit
Shout: "Five, ten! You're 'It!' You're 'It!'"

SPRING WRAPS.

The Short Bolero Coat Is Again Very Much In the Lead.

GRACEFUL IN THE EXTREME.

Long, Sloping Shoulder Lines With Gauntlet Cuffs Are Popular Types. Gayly Colored Porcelain Buttons Favored Decorations.

Soft woolen fabrics with ribbed surfaces which have very much the same appearance as corduroy velvets are being used extensively for the making of three-quarter length coats. These wraps are cut in loose fitting shapes and drawn in round the hips with a broad band of the same material, which gives that long waisted effect seen in the case of so many new models.

The sleeves are cut with long, sloping shoulders and finished with gauntlet cuffs, while the coats are fastened, as a rule, with large porcelain buttons. In various shades of golden brown and mustard yellow these coats are particularly smart, and they are being made also in leaf green, purple and dark crimson, as well as in pale colors for evening wear.

As to the new evening coats, they offer infinite variety alike in fabric, color and design. Some of the prettiest of all are made in chiffon velvet, with dainty linings of floral ninon, printed with small pompadour bouquets composed of miniature roses and forgetmenots. Other very successful wraps are made in brocaded satin, lined with crepe de chine, left amply wide in the region of the hips, but draped closely round the figure below the knees to give the favorite pegtop effect. Some of these coats are arranged with low collars, while others are very becomingly finished with upstanding ruffles of chiffon velvet, which fit quite closely round the throat.

For very slight girls some of the new bolero coatees are sufficiently attractive—for example, one composed of stamped velvet in a rich shade of electric blue and bordered with black. The fronts were rounded, and the back hardly reached the waist line. The border of soft velvet formed a narrow collar, and it also appeared on the ends of the long, tight sleeves.

One little coat was lined with shot taffeta, which showed shades of rust red and blue, and it was to be worn over a tango tea gown of supple black satin.

A particularly smart little hat accompanied this costume. The crown was rather high and shaped like a cone, while the brim was very narrow and straight. The hat was entirely covered with wide bands of electric blue silk braid, and at one side there was a jaunty little mount made of black horsehair and jet beads.

Another admirable bolero was of similar outline. In this case the material was cardinal red velvet, and there was a collar in silk guipure of the same shade of red. This collar was bordered with velvet, and the same stuff appeared on the curved puffs which fell over the hands. It was a very smart little coat and was worn over a plaited skirt of navy blue moire.

Fashion is going to the opposite extreme of tight swathing, new coats and other wraps being voluminous.

The sleeves to jackets are kimono shaped to permit the wearer to slip the coat on over the masses of lace and embroidery which decorate every new lingerie gown.

The short coat worn with the lingerie gown shown here was of satin in a shade that harmonized with the flowered ribbon girdle just below it. The gown was one of the smartest of embroidered batistes, inset just above the hem with a band of fillet lace.

LOVE OF CHRIST IS STUPENDOUS

The Finite Being Unable to Understand It, Says Rev. G. R. Maguire.

WHO CAN FATHOM IT?

The Idea That God Does Not Love Us Until We Love Him is Unscriptrual, Says Preacher in Interesting Discourse.

"Love" was the subject of Rev Gabriel Reid Maguire's sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening, quoting from the third chapter of Ephesians in which Paul speaks of "The Love of Christ Which Passeth Knowledge." In part Mr. Maguire spoke as follows:

"The love of Christ is like the sky, which we may clearly see, but whose real vastness we cannot measure; like the deep sea into whose bosom we can look a little way, but cannot fathom. If Paul, who could lay his head upon a block, who could be chained to a rock, who could be thrust into a dungeon, and who had looked into the face of Jesus on the Damascus turnpike, could say that the love of Christ passeth knowledge, certainly he knew what he was talking about. We finite beings haven't the brains to comprehend the magnitude of this love, nor the eloquence to picture it.

"Where did the love of Christ start? This river of love began to flow before the world was created, and is as old as the Father's love to His son. Before the first beam of sunlight flowed to this earth, before an angel ever loved an angel, before creatures were, Christ loved us—you and me. Who can fathom it? The idea that God does not love us until we love Him, is unscriptural; there isn't a single verse in the Bible to substantiate such a doctrine. The nearest illustration we can find is the love of a mother for her child. Your mother loved you before you knew she was your mother, and God loved us before we knew God. No wonder Paul threw up his hands and exclaimed, 'the love of Christ which passeth knowledge.'

"Who was it that loved? It was Jesus, the Son of God, the second person of the Blessed Godhead, that loved. His name is Mighty Counsellor, the Prince of Peace, the Lord of Lords, Emanuel, Jesus the Savior. Talk about your B. A.'s, D. D.'s, Ph. D.'s and F. R. G. S. When you come to examine the title of Jesus, you have to stand back reverently and bow your head. He is the Bright and Morning Star, the Light of the World, the Rose of Sharon, the Lily of the Valley. His riches are infinite. He that loves us is Lord of all. All the crowns of Heaven are cast at His feet. By Him were all things created in Heaven and on earth, yet He loved you and me. It means much to be loved by one greater than yourself; it is great to be loved by an angel, but it is wonderful to be loved by the Son of God.

"Whom did He love? Us! He came into this world to save sinners, 'of whom I am chief,' said Paul. If Paul were the chief of sinners, where do you and I come in? It must be amusing to the angels in Heaven to see some of us strut around here on the earth, holding a little piece of parchment which states that we have graduated from a certain college or university, and tacking some letters to our name in the way of a title, while we look wise and discourse on daisies or bugs or warts, and call them all by long Latin names. Here is Paul, who forgot more than we ever knew, a lettered man and a graduate, yet who throws up his hands and exclaims, 'I am the chief of sinners.' We were all miserable sinners as black as hell can paint us. Had Christ loved one as glorious as Himself, we would not have wondered—the holy angels, or some one lovely, gentle and kind, great or noble; but he loved sinners—the poorest, filthiest, meanest wretches that crawl on the ground. Paul, the blaspheming Saul; the woman by Samaria's well; the dying thief on the cross. We were as black as hell when Jesus looked upon us and loved us. He who was so great and lovely and pure, loved us that He might wash us and save us.

"What did this love of Christ cost Him? He bore the hot wrath of God.

It was the love of Christ that made Him leave his Father's throne for the manger; that drove him into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil; that made him hungry and thirsty at Samaria's wayside well, that led him into dark Gethsemane, to sweat great drops of blood, that drove darkened the heavens and caused him to cry out, 'My God, my God, why hath thou forsaken me?' We were plunging into hell, and he plucked us out and gathered us to his bosom.

"Christ loved us so graciously. There is nothing in us to merit His love, but much that deserves his hatred. The natural heart is in enmity against God, deceitful in many ways. Christ loved you and me only because He is gracious.

"He loved us condescendingly. I have always admired Peter's protest against Jesus washing his feet. Peter couldn't submit in silence to Jesus performing the work of a slave for a poor Galilean fisherman. But how small was that beside the washing of the souls of men. Many are too proud to have the Nazerine wash their souls; they are trying to cleanse themselves, but they never will be able to do it.

"Christ loved us extravagantly. He washed us in His own blood; so deeply dyed in sin was the soul, that it took the blood of Christ to cleanse it. If you will just come to Jesus as you are, weary and worn, sin-polluted, and confess your weakness, He will cleanse you; but if you try to make atonement yourself, you will utterly fail. May God help you tonight to let Jesus cleanse you."

'THE JUDGMENT,' THEME OF SERMON

The Words "Fire and Brimstone" Figurative, Says Rev. Dr. P. B. Strong.

PUNISHMENT IS SEVERE

Seems to Be God-Implanted in the Heart of Man That After Death He Shall Be Called to Account, Declares the Preacher.

"The Judgment," was the subject of a discourse of unusual interest preached by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, at the First Baptist church, last evening, basing his remarks on the words of Scripture from Revelations 20:12-15: "And books were opened and another book was opened which is the Book of Life and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in the books, according to their works. And if any was not found written in the Book of Life, he was cast into the lake of fire."

"Judgment is not an idea peculiar to the Christian religion," said Dr. Strong, "Some notion of judgment prevails in almost every religion known to man. Perhaps the Egyptian religion is the best illustration of this truth outside of Christianity. Every human mummy bears testimony to the belief. It seems to be God-implanted in the heart of man that after death he shall be called to account for the deeds done in life. The words 'fire and brimstone' are doubtless wholly figurative, but the punishment of those who reject God will be none the less terrible. Whatever heaven is not, hell is. If there be joy, peace, contentment, love and perpetual delight in heaven, the reverse, coupled with unquenchable remorse, will be the portion of those who would not heed God when they had opportunity.

"'Books were opened,' the writer of the Apocalypse tells us. The record of past deeds will be laid bare. What human being, however virtuous and godly, would be willing to stand or fall on the merits of what those records of memory must reveal? But 'another book was opened, which was the book of life,' a register of those who, acknowledging their sin, and insufficiency, have accepted the atonement of Jesus Christ, whose blood was shed for the sins of the whole world, whosoever would receive Him. Our greatest concern is that we get our names written there.

"How may we do this? Not by gold, nor genius, nor virtue, nor by membership in the church—these count for nothing without faith in and acceptance of the Lord Christ. This having been done, no matter what the other books may reveal of sin and failure, if sincere repentance has followed, and we honestly and earnestly have striven to conform our lines to His life, that Book of Life shall counterbalance all the rest, and God and heaven shall be ours thru the merits of His Son."

Following the discourse the ordinance of baptism was administered to three boys, Harold Allen, Irwin Lance and Elston Lance.

CAPTAIN JAMES PARKER IS DEAD

Veteran of Two Wars Passes Away at His Home in Perth Amboy.

FORMERLY LIVED HERE

Gained Country-wide Prominence as Counsel for Admiral Schley—Was Oldest Lawyer in the State of New Jersey.

Captain James Parker, father of Mrs. F. E. DuBois, of Washington avenue, the borough, and Andrew McLean Parker, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Princeton, and a man of country-wide prominence as a veteran and lawyer, died yesterday at his home in Perth Amboy, where he had been living for many years. Death was due to the infirmities of old age. Captain Parker had been in feeble health for some time, and his death was not unexpected.

During the early days of Plainfield, Captain Parker lived here and was a member of the village board, which preceded the present governing body, the Common Council. During his service Park avenue was widened and extended. Captain Parker was a member of Grace church, this city, and always retained an interest in the parish. He was a close and warm friend of the late Bishop John Scarborough.

Captain Parker was considered the oldest practicing lawyer in Middlesex county, up to the time of his retirement a few years ago. He was appointed a referee in bankruptcy for New Jersey and was afterward succeeded by Judge Adrian Lyon.

Captain Parker was a member of the G. A. R. and of the New York Commandery of the Loyal Legion. He was a friend of President Lincoln, and during the Civil War often had the President as a passenger on the revenue cutter, of which he was captain, on the unannounced trips that the President made to the Union lines in Virginia.

Captain Parker volunteered for the service at the outbreak of the Civil War and was assigned to the navy. He was senior naval officer in the assault on Fort Fisher and was recommended for promotion for gallantry by Admiral Porter. He resigned in 1866, but had he continued in the service he would have become admiral in 1884 and would have been retired as senior rear-admiral in 1894.

Captain Parker, who is a scion of the famous New Jersey Parker family, had his office for over twenty years in the same building on South street, Perth Amboy, which his father, grandfather, and great grandfather occupied before him. He was born however, in Newark, Ohio, on June 15, 1832. His father, who bore the same name, was at one time judge in Ohio.

He entered the U. S. Naval Academy, November 14, 1846, as midshipman, and in March, 1847, was assigned to the sloop of war, "Saratoga," in command of David G. Farragut, afterwards adwiral of the navy. He served in the navy throughout the Mexican War, and in 1851 returned to the academy, graduating in 1852 second in his class.

He resigned his commission in 1856 and studied law in Ohio in the office of Salmon P. Chase, afterwards Chief Justice of the United States, and was admitted to practice in 1857. He was admitted to the New York bar, where he practiced for a number of years, principally in admiralty cases.

In 1891 he was admitted to practice in New Jersey and established his Perth Amboy office. President Cleveland nominated him for United States district attorney in 1895, but for political reasons the Senate refused to confirm him.

Captain Parker became a national figure in 1901 as counsel for Rear-Admiral Schley, his old personal friend, who asked for a court martial on charges of misconduct at the battle of Santiago. He was associated in that case with the late Isidor Raynor, United States Senator from Maryland, and their efforts led to a practical vindication for the admiral.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION OF MISSIONS ELECT

Encouraging Reports Received at the Annual Meeting Held Yesterday.

An enthusiastic gathering of the Federation of Women's Missionary Societies was held yesterday afternoon at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at which time reports from the various officers were read and officers were elected for the year. A musical program was well rendered by an orchestra of young women representing the six denominations of the federation, under the direction of Mrs. Grace P. Williams. The roll-call showed an attendance of fifty-four from the societies representing fifteen churches. Mrs. F. St. John Fitch, president of the federation, presided and conducted the devotional exercises. The treasurer's report was a most interesting one, showing a balance of nearly a hundred dollars after all bills had been paid.

The officers elected were as follows: President, Mrs. Charles A. Rice; first vice president, Miss Emily March; second vice president Mrs. I. C. Pierson; third vice president, Mrs. Noah Pike; fourth vice president, Mrs. Charles Leggett; secretary, Mrs. Henry E. Titus; assistant secretary, Mrs. J. L. Groendyke, and treasurer, Mrs. William Hubbard.

JOHN C. COOPER IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Arrested on Assault Charge Made By Freeman Strait.

John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, is being held under $100 bond for the Grand Jury, on a warrant sworn out by Freeman Strait, before Justice Haye, of Mt. Bethel, on a charge of assault and battery. The arrest was made on Saturday following a recent altercation between the two men over a personal matter. Jacob Lo[illegible] of Warrenville, furnished the bond for Mr. Cooper.

It is believed that a counter charge of a similar nature will be made by Mr. Cooper against Mr. Strait. Following the dispute between the two residents of Warren township Mr. Strait was confined to his home under the care of a physician, but is now able to be out again. Mr. Strait has figured in several arguments during the past two years, and he has been more or less prominent in court litigation.

FALLS AND BREAKS LEG WHILE WALKING TRACKS

Dominick Dianelio, aged sixteen, of 756 St. Mary's avenue, slipped down the embankment of the New Jersey Central, while walking the tracks this morning. As a result, the youngster is now under treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital with a broken leg. In his slide from the tracks to the North avenue freight yards below, Dianelio fractured his right leg just below the knee, being removed to the hospital in the police patrol.

WOMEN'S COMMITTEE WILL ASSIST IN CHARITY BALL

Responding to the call of the chairman of the general committee for the charity ball, the women of St. Mary's parish met in Commercial School Sunday afternoon and formed a sub-committee to lend its assistance at the coming event.

To the women's committee of last year much of the success, both financial and social, was due. Its part in the extensive preparations incidental to an undertaking of the magnitude of last year's great success was an important factor and the result of their efforts has spurred them to still greater enthusiasm this year.

At Sunday's meeting the ladies unanimously elected Mrs. Wilbur H. Scheaffer chairman, and Miss Mary A. Smith secretary.

Those assisting are Mrs. Daniel J. Courain, Mrs. Michael D. O'Keefe, Mrs. Albert F. LaRock, the Misses Nellie Meaney, Emma Sullivan, Alice McAfee, Anna Daley, Josephine Murphy, Kathryn Flynn, Annabelle McAfee, Kathryn McCauley and Mary Nugent.

MRS. SHELLINGER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral service for Mrs. Mary Shellinger, who died suddenly at her home, 220 Church street, Saturday night, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

NEW BUILDING WILL COST CITY $125,000

Superintendent Maxson Makes a Plea for Erection of New School Every 3 Years.

Preliminary sketches for the new fire-proof school building which will be erected by the local Board of Education on Evergreen avenue were presented at last night's meeting of the building committee, held in the Plainfield High School, by Architect White, of the firm of Wilder & White. The proposed structure will contain twelve class rooms and an auditorium. The plans are drawn so as to make it possible to increase the size of the building to sixteen rooms.

The approximate cost of the building will be $125,000, the estimate being based on the cost of similar schools now being built in the State, under the strict requirements of fire-proofing and hygienic construction, recently prescribed by the New Jersey State Legislature.

The full school board attended the meeting of the building committee, last night, and preliminary plans were discussed for the new building. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson reported that the rapid growth of Plainfield had brought about a serious condition of over-crowding in the public schools, and that while it will be possible next winter to accommodate many of the children in the grammar grades in the High School addition, now nearing completion, this use of the building could only be made for another year at the most.

Dr. Maxson said: "At the rate at which the city is growing, I can see no course open to us except to make up our minds to build a twelve class room school every two or three years. The law compels us to provide school accommodations for all children presenting themselves for instruction and school facilities in another year will be entirely inadequate for the city's needs."

CLARENCE FRANCISCO DIES IN 26TH YEAR

Injuries Received in Baltimore Fire the Cause of Fatal Illness.

Following an illness with which he had been afflicted for the past two years, Clarence W. Francisco, a life long resident of this city, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his father, Charles H. Francisco, of West Second street. He was in his twenty-sixth year, and beside his father and step-mother, is survived by one brother, George Francisco.

Mr. Francisco was educated in the Plainfield schools and at the completion of his course, learned the compositors' trade in the office of the Daily Press. At the close of his apprenticeship he remained with the paper for several years, afterward going to Baltimore where he worked two years for The American. His illness began in that city and was the result of injuries received in the destruction of the hotel where he roomed. Score of men were trapped by the sudden spread of flames in the night and the Plainfielder was brought out unconscious on the back of a fireman. He never fully threw off the effects of the shock.

Mr. Francisco was a member of the Men's Conference Class at the First Baptist church, where he attended services regularly until his health interfered. He was quiet and unassuming in manner and had many friends in the city and borough. He was a grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth DeForest, of West Second street, the public drinking fountain opposite her home having been erected in memory of his mother.

The funeral will be held at the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

ELIZABETH CITIZENS ASK WILSON TO ANNIVERSARY

Members of the New Jersey Congress delegation and a committee of citizens from Elizabeth yesterday invited President Wilson to attend the 250th anniversary of the founding of Elizabethtown on October 28.

It was there that the first settlement in New Jersey was made, and Princeton College was first established in the town. The President said he hoped to go.

JOHN BADDELY.

John Baddely, of Westfield, died last night at Muhlenberg Hospital of complications. Mr. Baddely was seventy-two years of age and is survived by several relatives at Westfield.

STRIKE OF SILK WEAVERS IS SETTLED

Employes Accept Terms and Returned to Work Today.

As the result of a disagreement between the Berfelden Silk Mill Company, whose factory is located on Washington avenue, and the weavers regarding the concern's right to discharge an employe, who turned in a piece of damaged goods on Thursday of last week, the employes called a strike yesterday afternoon. After a heated discussion between a committee representing the strikers and the superintendent, it was decided that the concern should retain the right to discharge an employe. Otherwise the superintendent declared that the mill would close down.

The employes finally accepted the conditions as outlined by the superintendent and returned to work this morning. It was learned afterward that the employes had agreed among themselves to pay for the piece of damaged silk in order that the young woman might retain her position with the company.

For a time yesterday afternoon it looked as though there might be serious trouble and the police were summoned to the mill in anticipation of this. The appearance of the bluecoats had a quieting effect and the striking weavers dispersed without causing any disturbance about the mill.

FILES SUIT IN DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS

Frank L. Schoonmaker, Defendant in Action Brought by His Wife.

Mrs. Grace Llewellyn Schoonmaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eaton, of New York, has filed a suit for divorce against Frank Laying Schoonmaker, formerly of this city, but now a New York broker, which fact confirms the rumor current in society circles for some time that the couple has been separated. Until a year ago Mr. Schoonmaker was associated with the brokerage firm of Vernon Brown & Co., of New York.

The Schoonmakers were married in 1905 at the Collegiate church, Fifth avenue and 48th street. The husband is a member of several clubs including the Metropolitan Club.

As in all divorce suits filed in the county clerk's office, the papers in the Schoonmaker suit were sealed and filed away, so that it is not known whether Mrs. Schoonmaker names the corespondent or merely refers to her as "a woman unknown."

TELEGRAPHIC SERVICE IS RESUMED IN PLAINFIELD

After an elapse of twenty-three days telegraphic communication has been established by the Western Union Company between Plainfield and the outside world. This was the longest period since the establishment of telegraphic service in this city that it has been interrupted for that length of time, and yet notwithstanding the fact, the company succeeded in handling the regular business by means of train service without much delay.

It was announced that the local office had been cut in on two wires, one for the use of the railroad and the other for the telegraph company's service and within a short time it is expected that other wires will be available and the full service be restored.

COMEDY CLUB SHOW ON APRIL 15 AND 16

"A Gray Mare" Chosen for Presentation by Popular Amateur Organization.

Rehearsals are already under way for the annual spring performance by the Plainfield Country Club, which will be given at the Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, April 15 and 16. The play chosen is an English farce, "A Gray Mare," which has been presented with much success by the New York Comedy Club and similar organizations. It calls for a smaller cast than is usually the case in local productions and but one setting is needed.

The cast will include a number of favorites among the local amateurs, and also a few new faces, the parts being taken by Mrs. Alson M. Abbott, Miss Elizabeth McGee, Mrs. C. Loomis Dana, Miss Monica Sharretts, Brown Rolston, Alson M. Abbott, Donald A. McGee, Frederick Goddard and Dr. F. E. DuBois. Edgar S. Hart, who has coached a number of the successful productions of the organization in the past, is again directing the rehearsals, which are being held three times a week.

The Comedy Club has grown much in membership, both associate and active during the past year, and it is expected that the excellent cast chosen will make it possible to present the most successful of any plays that have yet been attempted. The club has made it a practice to put on all the productions in a manner seldom attempted by amateur organizatioons, and it is promised that this year's show will be fully up to the artistic standard of past seasons. Tickets will first be issued to the regular members of the club, and after that placed on sale for the general public.

SECURES DIVORCE TO MARRY WIFE NO. 1

Theodore Dietrich Granted a Final Decree by Court of Chancery.

Theodore Dietrich, of Newark, through his counsel, Martin B. Stutsman, of this city, has just secured a decree of final divorce from the Court of Chancery, from his wife, Mrs. Josephine Dietrich, who at present is said to be living in Connecticut. The decree was signed by Chancellor Walker on March 17. The suit was based on desertion.

An interesting feature is disclosed through the recent decree. Mr. Dietrich was married twice. His first wife, who it is said, is now on the stage, secured a divorce because of her husband's intimacy with the women who became wife No. 2, and now Mr. Dietrich has secured a divorce from her with the intention of marrying his first wife.

HOSPITAL DANCE ON FRIDAY, APRIL 24

Second Affair of Season Under Auspices of Women's Auxiliary at Columbus Hall.

Friday, April 24, is the date which has been chosen by the members of the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital for the second dance of the winer under their auspices. The dance will be held in Columbus Hall, as was the first one on February 17, and plans are being made to make it one of the most successful affairs of the winter. The general public will be urged to attend, and the dance will be advertised in the surrounding towns to attract people from them. Music will be provided by Mueller's orchestra, which has proven a popular feature at a number of similar affairs during the past season, and plans are being made to have speciality dancing as an added attraction.

The hours for the uance will be from 8:30 to 1:30, and during the evening refreshments will be served, which, however, will not be included in the price of the ticket. The committee is anxious to emphasize the fact that the dance is not a so-called society affair, and hopes to have a general attendance from the public. A meeting will be held on Friday, at which further plans will be made.

START CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $1,000

Novel Plan Inaugurated by the Members of Holy Cross Church.

An enthusiastic meeting of the congregation of the Church of the Holy Cross was held in the parish house, last night, when a movement was started by Samuel Townsend toward raising one thousand dollars as an Easter offering to defray expenses of repairing the church and to pay off a debt that has been standing for a long time.

In order to make the proposition more appealing to the people and to show the general progress in the way of contributions from week to week, Mr. Townsend placed a picture of a cross on the wall of the parish house, divided off into one thousand squares, the idea being to cross off one block for each dollar contributed until the desired amount has been reached.

Following a short prayer by the rector, Rev. Charles H. Kues, the meeting was opened by Mr. Townsend in which he outlined the plan for carrying on the campaign. From his wide experience in former campaigns of this character, one of which will be recalled, was the raising of nearly one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the hospital.

The men organized five teams under the leadership of Dr. J. H. Carman, H. E. Langford, F. L. Sill, J. A. Van Mater and D. C. Anderson. The women organized six teams under the leadership of Mrs. H. E. Langford, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. J. O. Stevens, Mrs. J. H. Carman, Mrs. J. A. Van Mater and Mrs. Samuel Townsend.

Pledge cards with the names of all the congregation printed upon were distributed among the leaders of the teams who in turn distributed them to such members of the teams for work among the members of the parish.

Mr. Townsend stated that he felt very confident that success would be met with, owing to the fact that up to last night over one hundred and seventy-five dollars had been turned over to him.

BISHOP MAKES MANY CHANGES

Rev. F. J. Hubach Succeeds the Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph.

LATTER TO STAY HERE

Former District Superintendent Goes to Monroe Avenue Church—Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Rev. C. C. Cain Returned.

Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, who for the past two years has been pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, was yesterday appointed district superintendent of the Elizabeth district, by Bishop Luther Wilson, as predicted in the Plainfield Press, exclusively, and Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, who he succeeds, was sent to the Monroe Avenue church as pastor. This change is generally considered by the members of the Newark Conference, especially those particularly interested, as one of the best made by Bishop Wilson. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, and Rev. C. C. Cain, of Grace M. E. church, were both returned to their charges.

The ministerial appointments by Bishop Wilson were not made until the Newark Conference was about to close and as usual those present were anxious to learn of the changes and return home. Mr. Hubach, following the announcement of his change, was given quite an ovation by his many friends.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, the new pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, will assume his charge at once and will preach morning and evening at the church. As soon as Mr. Hubach decides upon his plans, Dr. Randolph and his family will take possession of the parsonage. Mr. Hubach will likely remain in Plainfield, although his plans are not definitely settled as yet. While serving as district superintendent, Dr. Randolph found Plainfield a convenient place of residence, and it is expected that Mr. Hubach will prefer to remain in the city.

Among the other appointments there are several of local interest. Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey, of Blairstown, goes to Dunellen, and Rev. W. A. Knox, who he succeeds, goes to Blairstown. Dr. H. K. Carroll will continue at Scotch Plains. Rev. D. C. Dorchester, of Staten Island, succeeds Rev. Alfred Evans, of Bound Brook, the latter going to Nyack, N. Y.

Rev. Ralph B. Urmy, of Morristown, goes to Centenary church, Newark, and Rev. T. T. Crawford, of Bernardsville, goes to Morristown. Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, formerly of First M. E. church, this city, who has been at Emory church, Jersey City, is returned, as is also Rev. C. S. Kimball, who goes back to Rahway. Rev. John MacMurray, who was formerly at the Monroe Avenue church, but more recently of Jersey City, was transferred to the Baltimore Conference, having accepted a call to a church in Washington.

Rev. M. F. Malialieu, of Washington, succeeds Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle at Summit the latter having planned to take a trip to the Holy Land. Rev. George Mooney goes back to Grace church, Paterson, and Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass goes back to Market Street church, Paterson.

Bishop Wilson made seventy-five changes in the Newark Conference. Rev. George G. Vogel, formerly of Centenary church, Newark, was made district superintendent of the Newark district, succeeding Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, who becomes professor of Biblical literature at Centenary Collegiate Institute, and member of St. Paul's quarterly conference.

While there are some disappointments, as is always to be expected, taking the appointments all together, they appear to have given general satisfaction among the ministers as well as the various churches, and the prospects for the coming year seem to be bright for Methodism in the Newark Conference.

DEVOTIONAL MEETINGS.

Special devotional services will be held at Temple Baptist church, commencing tonight and continuing every night this week, except Saturday, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. Evarts C. Conover. It is likely that the meetings will be continued next week and will be of an evangelistic nature.

AN OPEN MEETING.

The Patternmakers' Association of Plainfield will hold an open meeting tonight at Trade Council Hall. All patternmakers are cordially invited to be present. There will be good speaking, a smoker and refreshments.

—Through an error the address of Adelberg's clothing store in the advertisement in last night's Daily Press was given as 132 East Front street. The correct number is 129, and the place is easily found by looking for the big electric sign recently erected.—Adv. ***

Somerville

While returning from Whitehouse, yesterday, William H. Siemsen, of this place, ran into a fine black team belonging to Carl Henry Flammer of Springfield, with his auto delivery, and broke a leg of one of the animals, which necessitated it being killed. The accident occurred on the macadam road between what is known as "Fiddler's Elbow" and North Branch. Both parties were coming toward Somerville, and when Mr. Siemsen's auto was approaching the rig of Flammer's the former sounded a warning. In the rig were several men. They were driving a team of horses and were also leading a second pair, which had been purchased at Flemington. It was one of the latter horses that was struck by the auto. Just as the auto of Mr. Siemsen had got almost opposite the pair of horses that were being led, one of the animals swerved immediately in front of the auto, and the collision was unavoidable. Mr. Siemsen tried to stop his machine, but was unsuccessful, and the right leg of the horse was broken. Mr. Siemsen was entirely blameless in the matter, it was said, and did all he could for the owner of the animal. He came at once to Somerville and notified Chief of Police Bellis, who detailed Marshal Sauter to shoot the injured animal. The animal was valued at $150.

This company took over the land held by the New Jersey Improvement Society several years ago and since that time has erected and sold upward of thirty-five houses and semi-bungalows, which has made the borough experience one of the largest building booms of recent years. Contracts are also out for a number of new houses in Scotch Plains.

Topic to Be Discussed Pro and Con by Prominent Laymen.

The mid-week meeting tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church promises to be an interesting one. The topic will be "What is a lie and is a lie ever justifiable?" and no doubt will elicit the interest of all. The question is not one to be answered off-hand and categorically, but is involved in many side issues and affected by many subordinate considerations. The pastor, Rev. Philip B. Strong, deems that every Christian desires to speak the truth as he sees it but that often the individual Christian is sorely perplexed as to his duty in particular cases. It is to elicit the opinions of all people that the topic has been assigned and the plan of the meeting arranged.

It is expected that the question will be discussed not only by the pastor but by many men and women in the various lines of life. It will be considered from the standpoint of the lawyer, the physician, the teacher, the student, the merchant, the woman in the home and the individual Christian in other phases of activity and experience. No doubt opinions will be expressed that do not agree with other views advanced and the largest liberty will be given those who discuss the question.

As it is a discussion that perhaps peculiarly interests men, though certainly of vital interest to women, not less than seventy-five men are expected to be present and some of the ablest men in the church have been asked to take part in the discussion, but the women also will be heard and the younger as well as the older members of the church will have a voice in the services. A question box will also be provided and written questions can be presented for answer by the pastor or others.

NUGENT ATTACKED BY GOV. FIELDER

Charges Team Work to Defeat His Bills.

MEETS PARTY LEADERS.

Governor's Conference Was Primarily Called to Bolster Up Support of Administration's Revenue Measures. Says State Faces Financial Crisis. Declares "Bosses" Fight For Banks.

Trenton, N. J., March 24.—Wine, water and finances occupied the attention of New Jersey's state authorities.

The finances were discussed at a conference of Democratic leaders called by Governor Fielder, and wine and water were the subjects of extended hearings given by the judiciary committee of the house on various liquor measures now pending and the bills to abandon the Morris canal.

Governor Fielder's conference with his party leaders was called primarily to bolster up support for the administration's revenue measures, which are designed to prevent a direct state tax, which thus far have met with indifferent success.

Aided by statistics compiled by State Comptroller Edward I. Edwards, the governor showed that New Jersey was facing a financial crisis which must be met by discovering new sources of revenue or resorting to a direct state tax the bugaboo of political parties for years past.

The governor urged upon the conferees, who included the leaders of the house and Democratic heads of the state departments, the passing of the direct inheritance bill, the bank stock tax bill and the administration measure which would enable the state to use $312,000 of railroad taxes so as to lighten its burden of expenditure for schools by diverting the money from its present use for local school purposes. The conference took no definite action, but the governor seemed hopeful that his plans would be carried out.

In an effort to whip assemblymen into line to vote for the bank stock tax bill the governor issued a statement in which he said that Mr. Nugent, the former chairman of the Democratic state committee, and former sheriff David Baird, Republican leader of Camden, were working together in the interest of the banking institutions. He asserted that Nugent, whom he described as a political boss, had made a number of shifts regarding the taxing of bank stock and had finally aligned himself with the money interests.

The governor supplemented his statement by a special message to the house in which he declared that under the present law bank stock practically enjoys exemption from taxation. What payment is made, the governor said, is voluntary and unenforceable, and a few banks choose to pay while others do not.

DREAM FOILS ROBBERS.

Woman Awakens and Sees Men Trying to Break Into Postoffice.

Arlington, N. J., March 24.—Because a woman dreamed the postoffice here was being robbed four burglars who were trying to force an entrance into the postoffice were foiled. Mrs. Thomas Gordon, who lives in Devon street, directly in the rear of the federal building, awoke from a nightmare which centered around a postoffice robbery. She looked out of her bedroom window and saw four men trying to pry off the lock in the rear of the postoffice.

Mrs. Gordon screamed, and one of the men threatened to shoot her. She screamed again and dropped into bed. Four bullets whistled into the room. Mrs. Gordon ran to another chamber and, looking out, saw the burglars were packing tools in a grip. They ran to the tracks of the Erie railroad, a few hundred feet away, and escaped.

Mrs. Gordon's husband, who was awakened by her screams and the shots, and a posse of citizens started in pursuit of the four men, but no trace of them was found. Hazel Gordon, sixteen years old, and Pearl, fourteen, were found with their heads buried under the quilts. They had been frightened almost into hysterics.

YOUNG MEN IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

Plainfield needs young men in the public service, especially in the police department. It is putting forth inducements to get them and to those who are ambitious and seeking life positions, it is offering opportunities which compare favorably with prospects to be found in many private businesses. The demand of citizens for efficiency and proficiency in city affairs, has brought about a transition in things municipal which requires the pick of young men in the community to fill all the positions required in city management equal to modern standards.

For young men who depend upon their own resources and ask backing from no one, there has never been such great chance in a general way for advancement and remuneration in city employment as there is today and these chances are constantly improving. The possibilities lie beyond any one city and embrace other cities which are beginning to go into the open market and bid for the services of successful city employes, regardless of residence, who can deliver the goods.

Municipalities generally are asking today what one can do rather than where one lives. The day when city employment was dependent on the political career or friendships, when pull counted instead of fitness, is passing. The change has opened the way for better men because better service is demanded. From mere office details, the work of non-political city appointees has expanded to include civil service, welfare, health, parks, playgrounds, recreation and other branches of the esthetic and the material. The successful employe here—the one with initiative and executive ability—will find jobs waiting for him in many cities.

The trained city employe needs only to show his fitness and ability to find that meritorious service for the city is recognized and rewarded. Such training and ability readily assume a financial value offering rapid advancement in a field which is far from over-crowded.

There is a decided shortage of young men trained in municipal public service and management among the cities of the country today. The promise of realizing ambitions in a city career is most enticing. The country needs its best young men in public service and so strongly is the want felt that colleges have established training schools for city managers. It is a new field bound to attract young men alert to assure their own greatest welfare in their life careers.

DON'T TAX THE BUSES.

Since the auto bus line was started between Plainfield and a number of the nearby towns the merchants of the city have felt the effects of the business which it brings here. It has been said that the amount of money spent in Plainfield by people who come in these conveyances is about $1,500 or more monthly, although we do not know how these figures are reached.

As is usual in cases of this kind there is some one who offers objection to the buses. We understand that there is a movement on foot to make the owners pay a special license, and that in order to bring this about legislation is being sought at Trenton. It is claimed that the heavy machines damage the streets and that they should therefore be made to pay a high tax if they continue to do business.

The Plainfield Transit Company was formed to supply a long felt want in the nearby towns. It is owned by a large number of stockholders who have occasion to ride on the cars, and none of whom went into the plan with any idea of profit, merely wishing to make travel to this city much easier. The company is little more than a philanthropic institution for the benefit of a large number of people.

Local merchants are planning to enter a protest against any tax which may tend to lessen the service now provided. The Board of Trade will take up the matter, and the Business Men's Association members are a unit in opposing any plan to make these cars bear an unfair tax. It is a safe bet that no one who is advocating that they be forced to pay a big license would be affected if they were discontinued. More likely it is some of those people who wish to see Plainfield kept strictly as a residential town, and who are opposed to any more industries coming here. We hope that the Mayor and members of the Common Council will see that these auto buses play an important part in the commercial development of Plainfield, and instead of putting obstacles in their way will do all in their power to make it possible for the lines to be extended to places not now reached.

Some people never seem to realize their duty to their fellow men. Over two weeks ago the bookkeeper in a local garage went to the bank, took $200 or more which was to have gone for the pay-roll and disappeared. The manager of the garage appealed to the police for advice, but refused to make a complaint. All that the newspapers could get on the case was hearsay, and naturally they were not justified in publishing anything about the matter unless they could substantiate the facts, although they were reasonably sure of their ground. Complaint should have been made. Every effort should be made to apprehend him, and his crime should be made known to every person in Plainfield. The employers owed that much to the rest of the citizens as a matter of protection in the future. There is entirely too much covering up of crookedness under the guise of "being easy" on the criminal, who "probably has learned his lesson, and will not do it again." Such clemency is misguided. It encourages the man to try again, and the next time he may get away with a greater sum. Every one owes it to fellow man to see that the crook does not go unpunished.

Senator Martine says that he never suggested throwing dice to determine the Plainfield postmastership, aand whoever is responsible for the story appearing in the metropolitan newspapers is not worthy of being called a newspaper man. People knowing the Senator do not believe such a story, and the newspapers should have verified it from Washington before accepting the yarn from an irresponsible source.

The irony of fate is well illustrated in the case of one man who contributed money toward the purchase of the Kensington avenue lot from the Board of Education, so that he would not have the school near him. The Board of Education has purchased a tract for the new school directly across the street from where that self-same man owns two other lots!

CO. K ENTERTAINS FRIENDS WHO HELPED AT FAIR

The members of Company K gave a reception last night to about four hundred of their friends who helped them during the fair held at the armory a few weeks ago. Following the drill, the evening was given up to dancing, principally of the old fashioned dances. Refreshments were served. Allen Squires' orchestra furnished the music for occasion.

HOME RULE DEAD; VICTORY FOR ARMY

Officers Who Had Resigned Are Reinstated.

CLAIM MISUNDERSTANDING

Affair Is Now Tided Over—King Takes an Active Part — Secretary of War Seely Jeered on His Explanation of the Ulster Crisis.

London, March 24.—Extreme jubilation reigns in the Unionist camp over what is called the government's climb down in regard to the employment of the forces of the crown to coerce Ulster.

"The bullies are cowed now!" exclaims the Daily Mail. "The government after panic conferences held ever since the cavalry officers at the Curragh resigned shuffled with the facts in the debate in the house of commons. As Mr. Balfour said, General Gough, who resigned because he would not fight against Ulster, has been reinstated though he still says he will not fight against Ulster."

Details of the revolt of the army officers against service in Ulster had been awaited with strained expectation by the whole country. Only brief statements were forthcoming from the secretary for war, Colonel Seely, and the premier, and the gist of these was that the whole affair was due to "misunderstanding" and that all the officers had now returned to their duty.

Colonel Seeley was derisively jeered during his explanation.

Predict Collapse.

As far as the ministers' statements can be interpreted, the "misunderstanding" arose through General Sir Arthur Paget placing a wrong construction on the orders given him by the war office and telling his subordinates they were to be employed in quelling an uprising in Ulster

The number of officers who resigned their commissions, how widespread was the disaffection in the army and other details were not disclosed.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, had stated that "nothing could save the army now except a declaration that officers would not be compelled to engage in civil war against their wish." He demanded more detail, and when he said that officers refusing to serve against Ulster were only doing their duty the Labor members shouted, "How about strikers?"

The whole affair is generally accepted as demonstrating that the army cannot be counted upon to fight Sir Edward Carson's volunteers if such a contingency should arise. Opposition politicians declare this to be the collapse of the home rule project and express their belief that the government may soon relinquish office by its own choice.

The communication made by Colonel Seely was brief and utterly vague. The gist of it was that some officers had informed General Sir Arthur Paget, commander in chief in Ireland that they could not serve in certain eventualities. There was, he said, a misunderstanding, and these officers had been ordered to rejoin their regiments. The movement of troops, he concluded, was solely in order to protect the stores of government arms and ammunition.

Both Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, recognized the widespread anxiety for an exhaustive debate on the subject by agreeing to a motion for the adjournment of the house immediately after the secretary of war had spoken in order to discuss the Irish situation.

WILSON CHEERS SICK CHILD.

Puts Off Affairs of State to Give Boy Audience.

Washington, March 24.—President Wilson put off affairs of state long enough to bring joy to the heart of a sick boy. He was Harry Winthrop Davis, nine years old, of Sewickley, Pa., and his ambition to shake hands with the president was gratified and even exceeded, since the president exchanged confidences with him.

The boy is seriously ill of heart disease. His mother brought him, with his physician, here a week ago and tried vainly for several days to get him in to see the president. Then she wrote an appealing letter to Mrs. Wilson telling of the fact that he is fighting a desperate battle for life and the belief that if his wish to see the president were granted it might materially aid him. Mrs. Wilson interested the president, and the boy was brought from the hospital in an ambulance for a special audience with the president and Mrs. Wilson.

BLIND HYMN WRITER BEGINS 95TH YEAR

Fanny Crosby Observes Anniversary of Birthday Today.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 24.—Fanny Crosby, the famous blind hymn writer, entered upon her ninety-fifth year today, having been born March 24, 1820. Miss Crosby makes her home with a niece in this city. This afternoon a reception was given in her honor by the members of the Fanny Crosby Circles of King's Daughters. From all parts of the country hundreds of felicitous messages arrived during the day congratulating the famous hymn writer on her birthday.

Miss Crosby, whose full name is Frances Jane Crosby Van Alstyne, has been by far the most prolific and meritorious writer of hymns of the present age, having written more than 5,000, of which many have won universal popularity.

She has been totally blind since her infancy. At the age of 15 she was sent to the Institute for the Blind in New York city to be educated. She made such rapid progress in all branches that a few years later she was appointed a teacher in the institution. She remained there about ten years.

Even during the earlier student days Miss Crosby had shown considerable ability as a writer of verse and later several volumes of her poems were published. One of her poems which first attracted public attention was written by her in welcome to Henry Clay on the occasion of a visit of the celebrated statesman to New York.

Miss Crosby's first songs were of a secular nature and it was not until she had reached the age of forty-five that she wrote her first hymn. Born with great poetical gifts and filled with ardent religious fervor, she put her whole soul into her hymns and it is not surprising that their simplicity, tender sentiment and melodious beauty have won world-wide popularity.

The most popular among the thousands of Miss Crosby's hymns undoubtedly are "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross," and "Jesus the Water of Life Will Give." Two of her secular songs which were vastly popular in their day were "Hazel Dell" and "There's Music in the Air."

Many stories have been told to illustrate the facility with which Miss Crosby did her work of competition. Once, while a pupil at the Institution for the Blind she was required to write some lines of blank verse. She neglected the task until her teacher reminded her and told her she would not get her dinner until she had written the verses. In less than an hour Miss Crosby had commenced and completed the poem.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus," which is probably the most popular of her hymns, was composed by her while W. H. Doane, who had written the music for many of her hymns, was waiting to take a train. He was sitting at the piano, softly playing the music for which he wished her to find words and in twenty minutes the famous hymn was completed.

At ninety-four years of age Miss Crosby is in the enjoyment of remarkable vigor mentally, though there has been a noticeable increase in her physical infirmities of late. Nevertheless, her condition the past year has been such as to permit her to appear as a public speaker at several places in New York State and New England.

JOHN E. MARSH DEAD.

Rahway, March 24.—John Edward Marsh son of the late Ralph and Frances Marsh, of this city, and an authority on genealogy, is dead at his home in the Wyoming Apartments, New York. Mr. Marsh was born in 1840 in Rahway. He was educated at Burlington under Bishop Doane and was a graduate of Yale and of several German universities, including the University of Jena, where he received the degree of doctor of philosophy. He lived in Germany until 1876, where he was engaged in scientific pursuits with Professor Liebig. In that year Mr. Marsh returned to the United States, where he had since maintained his residence at the old family homestead in St. George avenue, this city, living in New York during the winter months. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline A. Marsh; a son, Charles Capron Marsh, and a daughter, Mrs. Frieda Marsh Young. Five grandchildren also survive. The funeral was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Church of the Holy Comforter, this city. Burial was in the Rahway cemetery.

ROOSEVELT IS SAFE; WASN'T WITH FIALA

Colonel's Party Reported Well on Expedition.

Santarem, Brazil, March 24.—The Roosevelt party is in good health, exploring the Duvida river (the "River of Doubt"). It is expected to reach Manaos early in April.

As part of the expedition plan I left Colonel Roosevelt at Utiarity, Matto Grosso, to explore the Papagaio river with a Brazilian cavalry officer, Lieutenant Lauriodo, seven men and three canoes.

Two of the canoes were sunk with equipment and food in the Rapids of the Devil, leaving us short of supplies. We continued the descent of the Papagaio, Juruena and Tapajos rivers, running thirty-nine rapids.

We are in good health, and the trip has been successful. We shall proceed to Manaos. ANTHONY FIALA.

Rio Janeiro, March 24.—The arrival of Colonel Roosevelt is being awaited at Manaos, capital of the state of Amazonas, where the government has arranged a reception in his honor.

The family of Colonel Roosevelt was notified of the receipt of information of the colonel's safety. Members of the family explained that while it had not been the understanding that Colonel Roosevelt and Fiala were to be together on the last stage of the trip, they were relieved at the positive information that the colonel had not shared in the mishap.

Mrs. Fiala was also relieved by the latest information from her husband.

The American Museum of Natural History cabled to the American consul at Para asking for information. The message said:

Can you obtain any information concerning the Roosevelt party? Wire Santarem. Advise by telegraph at earliest possibility. All expenses guaranteed.

SLAIN WITH AXE AS HE WALKS HOME

Elizabeth, March 24—Some one stepped up behind Stephen Milerino as he was walking along Palmer street within five hundred feet of his home and buried the blade of an axe in the back of his head, this morning killing him. Duffi Chiafetelli, of No 555 Fourth avenue, was one his way home when he came upon the body lying face down. Chiafetelli notified the police.

Thus far the police have discovered no motive for the murder. Milerino was a laborer and was not known to have enemies. The police and prosecutor's detective think it possible he was mistaken for some one else in the darkness. He lived at Fourth avenue and Palmer street, and was found in Palmer street, between Third and Fourth.

SENATOR BRANDS STATEMENT AS FALSE

Denies That Story Regarding Manner of Selection of Postmaster.

In response to a telegram sent him by the Plainfield Daily Press, United States Senator James E. Martine today branded as false the statement printed in many New York and New Jersey papers yesterday, that he had suggested to the candidates for the Plainfield postoffice appointment to decide among themselves who should be selected by throwing dice. He forwarded a telegram to this office which reads as follows:

"The story circulated in many newspapers that I intend to decide the appointment for postmaster of Plainfield through a throw of dice or flip of the coin, is too senseless to be entertained for a moment. Such methods are repugnant to me."

The story in question was sent out by a Newark newspaperman and was one of those dreams a few members of the profession are in the habit of hearing every so often. There was not the slightest foundation for the canard, but it was eagerly gobbled up by many editors. The Plainfield Daily Press received the story in the course of regular news service but refused to print it.

The committee in charge especially invites women friends to this inspection.

A program of music will be provided during the evening and other entertaining features are being arranged. Members of the order will be present to act as escorts in showing attendants through the various departments of the big structure.

BUSINESS SECTION OF DURHAM IS THREATENED

Durham, N. C., March 25.—Property loss approximating $1,000,000, about half of which is covered by insurance, resulted from fire which began here at midnight and continued with unabated fury until early today. For a time the entire business section was threatened.

Before the flames finally had been gotten under control, practically an entire block in the main business section of the city, which included the five story office building of Brodie L. Duke, the wealthy tobacco manufacturer, had been destroyed and the flames had done considerable damage in another block across the street. No loss of life has been reported.

WHY BURGLARS HELP BUSINESS

Once there was a skeptic. A skeptic is one who declares he knows nothing about anything, and becomes very angry when you agree with him.

This skeptic did not believe there were any natural blondes. He was so skeptical about everything that he would even put mucilage on the backs of stamps.

This skeptic was also a merchant. He also did not believe in advertising.

It happened that at one time he needed a night watchman. He supposed reliable night watchmen were plentiful. As a matter of fact they are rarer than dividends.

None of the merchant's acquaintances professed any anxiety to assume the place, so he was forced to advertise in the "Want" columns of a newspaper that his establishment needed a night watchman. He did not believe the "ad." would bring the desired results.

He was right! But the following morning he found that his store had been burglarized three times during the night.

"Surely" he reflected, "if burglars are responding so readily to advertising, perhaps the law-abiding classes are influenced by it. Henceforth I shall advertise my wares."

Adelberg's has never needed the patronage of burglars to recognize the benefits of advertising. That is why you will find our advertisements in the local papers.

We will endeavor to make them as interesting as is consistent with the purpose of the Adelberg Store—to sell Clothing for the Family on credit—at cash prices.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC CROWN FOR 'RUS'

Miller Captures Unique Championship Night Following Victory at Yale.

HOLDER OF TWO TITLES

Plainfield High School Star Sets a Precedent in Championship Winning for Home Bred Stock—Will Go After Second Title Thursday.

Singular athletic honors have come to one of the best little athletes the Plainfield High School has ever turned out and one of the most notable careers of Plainfield youths in collegiate athletic circles is drawing to a close. Russell Miller, captain of the University of Pennsylvania gymnastic team, won the Middle Atlantic championship on the flying rings in the meet held in Philadelphia, Saturday night, coming out ahead against an array of the best talent in the country. Miller received a solid gold medal emblemic of the title.

The Plainfield youth's performance is all the more remarkable because of the fact that it gives him the honor of holding a double championship, having won the intercollegiate championship on the flying rings last fall. He will compete in the 1914 intercollegiates in New Haven next Thursday night and endeavor at that time to duplicate his title winning feat of last year. He is a strong favorite in the event and the Penn team, of which he is the leader, is conceded to be the winner of the meet, having outclassed all of the other colleges last year in this line of sports.

The Middle Atlantic championship was keenly contested by the best gymnasts in the vicinity of Philadelphia and Miller's phenomenal performance was the object of much favorable comment in the Quaker City, Saturday night. He went through the various moves in a thrilling style and won the event with several points to spare.

Miller competed in his last intercollegiate meet Friday night when Penn defeated Yale in the latter's gym. After winning the ring event in New Haven, Friday, Miller journeyed straight to Philadelphia and on the following night took the Middle Atlantic championship. He is the present head of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association and will retire from office next Thursday night following the intercollegiates, as he is a senior in Penn.

BASEBALL BEFORE POLITICS.

Jackson, Miss., March 24—After a heated debate, during which baseball in general and the prowess of noted players in particular were discussed, the Mississippi House of Representatives yesterday voted 5 to 44 to recess Thursday afternoon to see the Detroit baseball team play a local team here.

TO SUCCEED MIKE MURPHY.

Philadelphia, March 24—The University of Pennsylvania football committee will pick either Lawson Robertson, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, of New York, of George Connors, of Phillips Exeter Academy, as athletic trainer, to succeed the late Mike Murphy.

GIRLS WILL PLAY AND EAT.

The All Star girls' first team will play the All Star second team in the Plainfield High School gym tomorrow afternoon. Following the game the Girls' Athletic Association will entertain the two teams in the library, where refreshments will be served.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR N. P. H. S. TEAM

Record Number Report for Initial Outdoor Practise of the Season.

Twenty-two candidates for the North Plainfield High School baseball team turned out yesterday afternoon when the first call for the diamond men was issued. This is the largest crew that had ever reported for baseball. All of the old men were present at Hyde Oval and a general workout was held under the direction of Captain Smalley and Coach Becker. Frank Fetherstone, the midget from Watchung, is among these and although he is very small he will make a strong bid for an infield position. He picks up everything that comes within reach and is a fine slugger. "Hub" Stine assisted in the practice yesterday and batted out flies that kept the recruits running to all parts of the field.

The pitching staff was given a good half hour of hard work and appeared to have all the stuff necessary to take the mound in two weeks.

The infield is at present in bad shape and cannot be used for a week and light outfield practice will be held until the diamond is in shape. The first game will be played April 4, and if the field is not in condition by that time Manager Beckman will probably exchange dates with Roselle and the initial battle will be played at that place. Those who reported for the first practice were George Townley, Warren Townley, Hyman Abrams, Frank Fetherstone, Elmer French, Ashley Burner, Duclos VanMater, Ronold Conroy, Ralph Smalley, Malcolm Marsh, Daniel Denny, John Dawe, Oscar Dilts, Deson Day, Roscoe VanCamp, Addison Newkirk, Robert Hebert, Sherman Chandler, Martin McDonough, Robert McNabb and Frank Dunning.

JENNINGS BACK IN FORM.

Harry Jennings, who pitched several games for the Plainfield Baseball Club last season, is a candidate for the Rutgers College nine again this spring, and is looked upon as a leader in the box for that college this season.

ELKS' CLUB LEAGUE.

The bowling teams captained by Bill Nash and Johnny Campbell in the Elks' Bowling League, will meet on the club alleys tonight in a scheduled league contest.

—Your "for sale" ad will be found and considered—probably investigated—by some of your "logical buyers."

JUNIOR GOLF MEET FOR LOCAL LINKS

Event Will Be Staged at the Plainfield Country Club in June.

The last of the metropolitan championship tournaments was definitely settled yesterday when the dates for the junior meeting at the Plainfield Country Club were announced. The time is set for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 23 and 24, corresponding to the same dates last year.

It will be recalled that two years ago, when the tournament was first held, there was an 18-hole medal round on which Stewart D. Connolly of Rockland, was the winner with a score of 72. Last year, however, the meeting was enlarged to two days, an 18-hole circuit being run off on Tuesday, the contestants classifying themselves into divisions of eight.

Match play was begun the same afternoon, and the semi-final and final rounds were played the day following. These conditions probably will prevail again this season. The present champion is Philip Vandeider Carter, of Nassau. The tournament is open to boys of less than twenty years of age.

OPENING GAME HERE WITH ALBANY TEAM

New York State Leaguers Challenge Plainfield for Game on Parker Field.

In the event of the reorganization of the Plainfield baseball team the opening game of the 1914 season will be played on Parker Field, April 18, when the Albany team of the New York State League will appear here. The management of the Albany club has communicated with Manager Dorflinger and the latter will accept the challenge providing he decides to form a team and can get it whipped into shape by that date.

This will be one of the pre-season contests for the league team prior to the opening of the official schedule and the leaguers would serve as an excellent tryout aggregation for the Plainfielders to lineup against.

THE DAILY PRESS IN SCOTCH PLAINS

MIDSHIPMEN WIPED THE DECKS WITH TIGERS' BLOOD

The Navy team, of the 110-pound P. H. S. basketball league, beat the Princeton team, yesterday afternoon, in the High School gym by a score of 43 to 3. In the first half a field goal by Guttridge was the only score that Princeton could make and in the second half Newell caged a foul goal. For the Navy, Dealaman and Dunham each scored twelve points, and Venable followed with ten.

PROMISING MATERIAL FOR TRINITY'S LEAGUE TEAM

Trinity Sunday-school baseball players are planning the organization of one of the fastest nines that ever represented that school on the sodded diamond, according to reports circulated recently regarding the prospects for the coming season of competition. Fred Smith has been elected to manage the aggregation and a large crew of candidates have signified their intention of trying out for the open berths.

Many of the veterans have returned to the fold and a wealth of new material has made its appearance during the past couple of weeks. Prominent among the latter is John Borst, a former Lehigh University player, who will probably handle the bulk of the catching work for the Trinity nine. The team is planning to enter the Sunday-School League this spring and will be one of the teams included in the schedule that will be drawn up at the next meeting, Friday night. Manager Smith has been selected as secretary of the league's governing board.

PLAYS BASKETBALL TOO.

Carl Johnson, the former Plainfield High School teacher, who resigned to join the Jersey City International Leaguers, was one of the participants in a basketball game played at the spring training camp yesterday afternoon. Basketball is being substituted for baseball until the grounds dry up and yesterday's contest resulted in a 22 to 20 score in favor of Johnson's nine.

MOCK TRIAL TO BE GIVEN.

The Trinity A. A., which is to place a bas ball team on the diamond this summer to represent Trinity Sunday-school in the S. S. League, will hold a mock trial and band concert on the evening of April 28 for the purpose of raising funds to outfit the team.

—Your "business opportunity" ad will be read by people who never miss real chances on investments.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Coach Ralph Patch's sportsmanlike offer to the North Plainfield High School baseball management which will enable the latter faction's diamond team to get in some indoor practise during the spring months is a commendable one and will no doubt go a long way toward promoting some good feeling between the athletic departments of the local and borough high schools. The P. H. S. leader has turned over the High School gym with a definite schedule for North Plainfield's use during the inclement weather and in view of the fact that the boroughites first game comes on April 4 the opportunity will probably be seized by Captain Smalley. The action is an unprecedented one in interscholastic athletics and Patch's good turn will go on the student records of the borough school in big black letters.

Speaking of interscholastic feeling we might revive the agitation at this time for a tri-cornered gathering on the social order. A monster reception with Leais, North Plainfield and Plainfield as the guests of honor would no doubt prove to be the real thing as a send-off for the baseball season. Some keen rivalry and not a little friction was evidenced during the basketball season and some kind of a get-together session is now in order. This was suggested some weeks ago, but co-operation was lacking at that time for some reason or other, and the interest gradually faded away. Get busy, it's never too late.

Joe Albert's decision on the Scotch Plains baseball question comes as a keen blow to local fans who have spent many a pleasant Sunday afternoon witnessing the excellent exhibitions of the diamond sport promoted by the little 'Plains leader on the suburban field. Albert was always careful to keep well within the letter of the law in promoting Sunday baseball and if it becomes necessary for him to disband his team baseball followers will be forced to travel some distance to witness an exhibition of their favorite pastime Sunday afternoons.

Plenty of Saturday afternoon baseball will be on the menu this season hereabouts, however, if present indications may be taken as a criterion. With amateur and semi-pro baseball on the local lots Plainfield fans will have an appetizing bill-of-fare each Saturday afternoon.

We note that Coudray, Berse and Hirsh have taken up a "law" course in Leal School. This is a horrible thing to have wished on a perfectly respectable institution of learning.

What do the three "T's" stand for? That "T. T. T." aggregation from North Plainfield slipped one over on the 'Plains boys. Can't see why it was necessary to triple the "T."

Captain Russell Miller's Penn gymnasts have been picked to win the intercollegiate title again this year. Queen City stock to the fore once more.

Those Plainfield High School basketball players appear to be having nearly as much trouble electing a captain as the boroughites had a week or so ago. Broken noses and minstrel performances are the cause in P. H. S., however.

What has become of Warry McLaughlin and that semi-pro ball nine he was going to plant on Clinton avenue? This product would thrive pretty well if planted somewhere in the immediate vicinity of Randolph Marsh's Irish potatoes. Warry is Scotch, clean through.

A life sentence in prison ought to be dealt out to those freak performers who went to Long Island from here Saturday night and jeopardized Jersey basketball by representing themselves as the champions of the State. Pretty soft for the home team to wallop Jersey's title snatchers by about thirty counters.

CENTRAL LEAGUE TO BE ABANDONED

No Baseball Organization in This Part of the State the Coming Season.

SOME CLUBS DISBAND

Plainfield and Dunellen Will Have Home Talent—New Brunswick, Bound Brook and Somerville Drop Baseball.

An investigation conducted among the leaders of the teams that made up the Central New Jersey Baseball League last season has brought to light the fact that the organization will be disbanded this year, the teams on the circuit taking up independent baseball exclusively. In every case the managers of the aggregations are in favor of abolishing the league and no effort will be made to draw up a schedule this season. In a majority of the towns on the circuit last year money was lost hand over fist and the pilots of the various teams declare that they can make money running independent nines in their home towns.

Present indications are that Plainfield will have a team made up entirely of home talent and the probabilities are that Ernest Dorflinger will once more be at the helm. Parker Field will probably be used for the home games and a schedule of contests with some of the fastest semi-professional aggregations in the metropolitan district will be compiled during the next four weeks.

Jack Torrey, the peer of baseball leaders in Somerville, has announced that the Somerset county seat will be unrepresented on the baseball diamond this season. The diamond sport has proved a poor drawing card in that town and the players who perform in that section will seek berths on other central New Jersey teams. Several stellar players claim residence in that burg and it goes without saying that the other managers will be right on their trail during the few weeks that remain prior to the opening of the 1914 season.

Westfield will be represented by a strong independent semi-professional combination managed by Tim Kelley, one of the best known enthusiasts in that town. Kelley applied to Manager Dorflinger for admittance to the Central New Jersey League in the event of its reorganization, but upon being informed that the league had gone up the flue, he has confined his attentions to arranging an independent schedule of games. Westfield will furnish berths for a number of stars who will be thrown out of employment by the breaking up of the league, and it goes without saying that the Mt. Ararat club will be a fast and formidable one this season.

In Dunellen the baseball bug is buzzing frantically and one of the best teams ever organized in that village will be turned out, according to early season dope. George Voehl, one of the leaders in baseball in that town, claims that the aggregation will be made up exclusively of home talent. He states that the league was too heavy an expense and deplores the fact that ball players demand too much compensation for their playing. Many of last year's best performers have announced their intention of returning to the fold, among the latter being Britt Martin, who will play the keystone bag for the Dunellen aggregation this season. A good grandstand has been erected in Dunellen and the facilities are excellent for the diamond sport at that village.

Charlie Newhouse, of Bound Brook, has not come out of his hibernation as yet but the probabilities are that the Bee town will be unrepresented on the ball diamond. The other teams in the immediate vicinity have drained that town of its tal ent in recent years and some difficulty would be encountered in organizing a club again.

New Brunswick will have no Saturday afternoon ball club this year, but it is barely possible that Dave Driscoll will be back on the job to promote Sunday ball.

P. H. S. PLAYERS WILL HAVE TO FIGHT TO BEAT BATTIN

Plainfield High School racquet wielders will meet a strong proposition this season when they stack up against the Battin High School tennis team, of Elizabeth, on the courts, fifteen candidates having turned out yesterday afternoon for the positions on the red and white team. Tennis has prospects of becoming an important part of Battin's sporting calendar.

Daily practices are being conducted by the Elizabetheans and they expect little trouble in cleaning up on the Union county high school teams during the coming season. Many veterans have returned to the fold and these form a nucleus around which a stellar aggregation will be molded.

LEXINGTON COPPED THREE IN A ROW FROM YORKTOWN

SENIORS SPRANG SURPRISE AND RAN AWAY WITH GAME

A surprise was handed out to followers of inter-class basketball in the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, when the senior class team ran away from the junior five, the score being 48 to 24.

The seniors started off with a great spurt and scored eighteen points before Hirsch dropped in the first basket for 1915. Another basket by Canter and a foul goal by Hirsch were all the points the seniors allowed their opponents in the first half while they were running up thirty four. Johnny Cottrell was the star of the game, caging the ball from all angles of the court, his points alone falling only two short of the other team's score. Cottrell scored eleven field goals. Hirsch was high score man for the losers, with five field goals and four fouls.

POULTRY COMMITTEE MEET.

The executive committee of the N. J. Association for Poultry Improvement, met last night at the Frost building and discussed at length the annual show to be held next fall. Nothing definite was decided at the meeting as to time and place of the show while there are many who favor the shifting of the event to Trenton. These questions will be settled at the next meeting of the association to be held April 6.

RAH-RAH BOYS SNATCH CANDY FROM THE KIDS

Springfield Collegians Attempt to Teach Bawling Infants the Indoor Sport.

Exhibiting little disgression in their choice of opponents, the burly representatives of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. Training School, who are Easthering in these parts during a ten days' furlough, administered an unmerciful trouncing to a quintet of future greats on the Y. M. C. A. court this morning, in a burlesque basketball contest, the final score reading 76 to 36. The polished collegians ran up the highest score of the season made on the association court and the affair resolved itself into a mere comedy soon after the first whistle had sounded.

The Springfield teasers passed and shot all around their midget opponents, many of whom are recent graduates from the go-cart and knickerbockers, and in numerous instances one of the collegians netted the spheriod with a half dozen of the infants clinging to his hurculean form. Taking advantage of every asset that presented itself, the rah-rah boys even gobbled up a Springfield referee, and "Hub" Stine furnished a little side entertainment during the first half dealing out decisions guaranteed to preserve the reputation of the burly collegians.

It is rumored that the same crew of Springfield schoolboys, not the least discouraged over their antics of the morning, are contemplating a raid on another aggregation of bawling youths on the association court Friday morning and hostilities are in order at 10 o'clock on that occasion.

FREEHOLDER FAY IS SERIOUSLY ILL IN HOSPITAL

Freeholder J. Logan Fay is a patient in the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, where he was taken yesterday, after suffering a sudden attack of stomach trouble Saturday afternoon. His condition today is reported as being much improved. Mr. Fay apparently was in the best of health Saturday afternoon. About 3 o'clock he had occasion to pass into the dining room of his home, 354 First street, Elizabeth. He no sooner entered the room than he sank to a chair.

A physician was summoned and he diagnosed the case as a shock to the stomach. When he did not rally yesterday morning it was found advisable to take him to the hospital. A consultation was held by his physicians for the purpose of deciding whether or not an operation will be necessary.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

The Barnum & Bailey Circus is now open at Madison Square Garden New York, in all its glittering splendor and glory. A stupendous, stirring, panoramacally picturesque, romantic spectacle is the feature of this year's monster entertainment and Barnum & Bailey are content to have it known as the crowning attempt of their career. It is called "The Wizard Prince of Arabia," and its scenes move from the haunts of the Bedouins to mysterious India, where Prince Abdallah, in the test of stern competition wins the heart and hand of a King's fair and favorite daughter. More than one thousand people are enlisted in the presentation. The incidental ballet numbers three hundred dainty dancing girls. The costumes and the scenic and property investiture are on a scale of unprecedented bewildering magnitude and dazzling magnificence. The stage is the largest ever constructed. Forty elephants and hundreds of horses and camels are utilized. Ottokar Bartik, famous maitre de ballet, directs the terpsichorean revel and the music was composed by Faltis Effendi, for many years head bandmaster to the Khedive of Egypt. Trained animals are in great variety and number. More than two score of clowns provide ceaselessly convulsing nonsense. The augmented menagerie is the most complete traveling zoo in the world. The human freaks have returned in hordes to the Barnum & Bailey show and will be on continuous view.

MANY ARE KILLED IN BIG BATTLE

Rebels Now at the Gates of Torreon.

FIGHTING STILL GOING ON

Villa's Artillery Bombards Federal Stronghold Throughout the Night. Huerta Troops Have Prepared For a Desperate Resistance — Reports Are Confirmed.

El Vargel, Mexico, March 24.—General Villa is attacking Gomez Palacio, the key to Torreon on the northern side. Hundreds are reported killed on both sides.

The troops found the enemy prepared and occupying strong and fortified positions, but they fought their way in the darkness to the railroad roundhouse, almost the center of the city. Heavy fighting and cannonading continued during the night. It is practically continuous, each side suffering severe losses. Gomez Palacio is protected by the Cerro de la Pita to the south and west.

The pluck of the wounded on the way to the hospital train is extraordinary. The fighting is on three sides of Gomez Palacio.

Cerro La Pila, a huge mountain which overshadows Gomez Palacio and which is supposed to be fortified by the federals, is the only other matter of concern to General Villa, but he does not believe that any considerable body of soldiers would detach themselves from the main army at Torreon, more than three miles from the mountains.

With the possible exception of the reported garrison at Lerdo a defending party on La Pila would have no support, and Villa believes it would have to fall back on Torreon after a long range defense with the big guns which are said to be planted on the mountain side.

Villa is confident that only a few more hours and little fighting will pass before his army is investing Torreon proper. He maintains that his force is so great as to completely overwhelm any outposts which they may meet before reaching the city of Torreon, believing that General Velasco has kept the Torreon garrison intact to repel the rebel advance.

Reports Confirmed.

Washington, March 24.—Reports of rebel victories preliminary to the real battle for the possession of Torreon were officially confirmed here in a dispatch received at the state department from George C. Carothers, its special representative with Villa. Mr. Carothers practically substantiated the reports from Villa's headquarters about the advance on Torreon.

The consular official is concerned chiefly, it was said, with securing adequate protection for foreigners during the fighting at Torreon. He obtained from General Villa some time ago an agreement for the establishment of a neutral zone at Torreon, but owing to the disinclination of the foreigners of Torreon to take advantage of this arrangement nothing has been done to carry the plan into effect. Most of the foreigners expressed a preference to stay in Torreon in order to be near their properties and other interests. Villa is under pledge not to carry out his threat to kill all the Spaniards in the city if he takes Torreon, except as regards those whom he may find guilty of aiding the federals.

It was clearly indicated in official circles that the situation before Torreon is regarded as all important at present. Until the fate of the federal stronghold is decided nothing will be done about the various suggestions which have come from federal sources looking to a readjustment of the situation in Mexico City. It was authoritatively stated that the president has not received through John Lind any propositions from Huerta as a result of the conference last week between the president's special agent and Foreign Minister Portillo.

DROVE WIFE, NOW HENPECKED

Second Bride Threatens to Hitch Him to Plow.

Liberty, Mo., March 24.—Lafe Choate, who two years ago hitched his wife with a pair of mules and plowed with her in a cornfield, has married again.

More than that, he is henpecked. The man who whipped his wife like a horse when she fell in the traces is as submissive as a child to the former Miss Bessie Evans of Kansas City, who since last week has been his bride.

There is a reason. The new Mrs. Choate weighs 200 pounds. At the first sign of trouble she put her foot down and announced that if Choate did not behave he would do a little plowing himself alongside some of his mules.

LITTLE GRAY SALONS

We Have the Honor to Present

The Largest Collection of Imported Clothes Ever Brought to America

Exclusively for Girls and Young Women

When we went abroad to choose all the pretty Paris costumes for young women, we went with this thought in mind: Where can we find the exquisite little frocks that one sees young girls wearing in Paris but which never seem to be brought to America.

In other words, where could we find the clothes that Paris makes, not simply to send over to America, but for her own jeunes filles.

What a wonderful search we had!

Tucked away in less frequented streets, we found tiny ateliers where the most beautiful hand work was done, where charmingly simple gowns were confectioned, where the designers gave their best thoughts to originating clothes exclusively for young women.

An American had never been seen in these little establishments before; they were too busy making artistic clothes for French people.

But we persuaded them to fashion some lovely things for us, and it is these frocks, together with—

Some Beautiful Gowns

by Jeanne Lanvin,
Cheruit, Robert,
Martial and Armand,
Groult and Maurice Mayer

that we shall present on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

The exhibit will include clothes for every occasion.

—Delicious garden frocks of batiste, flounced and frilled, with garden posies tucked in their soft ribbon girdles.

—Spring afternoon gowns of taffeta unlike any seen in America.

—Soft silken house dresses.

—Exquisite evening gowns for formal and informal occasions.

—Cotton crepe or handkerchief linen dresses for morning and afternoon wear at the country house party.

—All white hand-embroidered net and lingerie dresses for the graduate.

—Smart cloth tailored suits and gowns, as well as suits of silk, or handkerchief linen.

N. B.—Also London topcoats and raincoats.

Many of these gowns will be worn by young women between the hours of ten and twelve in the morning and two and four in the afternoon.

The 1830 hoop dress by Jeanne Lavin will be posed with quaint bonnet to match.

In spite of the beauty of every costume here, prices will be found very moderate, for Paris dresses made all by hand start in price at $30.

On this occasion we shall present together with other exact copies of our own importations.

Lucienne--A New Cape with Waistcoat

A perfect copy of the prettiest cape in Paris! Short, fitted over the shoulders, and having a fetching waistcoat in the new fashion.

HOW TO PRODUCE GOOD POTATOES

Farmers Should Pay Attention to Seedling, Says Agriculture Department.

USE HIGH-GRADE SEEDS

A Conservative Estimate of Increase is Said to be Not Less Than 10 Per Cent., Amounting to 34,000,000 Bushels.

Washington, D. C., March 24—This is the season of the year when the farmer should pay particular attention to seed potatoes, cautions the Department of Agriculture, and the use of high-grade seed would increase the returns from the potato crop of the country by many millions of dollars. A conservative estimate of the increase that might be expected from the use of high-grade seed is certainly not less than 10 per cent. Such an increase based on the average production of the past five years would amount to over 34,000,000 bushels, having an approximate value of $21,000,000. Of the many causes which operate to produce a low average potato yield in this country, pure seed is an important one. The American potato grower pays too little attention to his seed potatoes.

The European growers, especially those of Great Britain and Germany pay very strict attention to the quality and quantity of seed they use. This has led to the differentiation of the potato industry into seed and crop specialists. The seed specialist makes a business of producing high quality seed, while the crop specialist produces a high-grade table potato. No such differentiation, at least to the same extent, occurs in this country. While it is true that in certain sections there is a well-developed seed potato growing industry, but comparatively few growers in these sections are paying sufficient attention to the elimination of diseased and unproductive strains, or to keeping the variety grown free from mixture with other varieties.

By far the simplest and most promising means of developing high-grade seed potatoes is that of the tuber-unit and hill-selection methods. The former consists in selecting from the seed bin before planting time a considerable number of the most perfectly shaped tubers of from six to eight ounces in weight. When planted these tubers are quartered, as dropped, into four as nearly equal parts as possible. This is done by splitting the bud-eye cluster in each direction from seed to stem end of the tuber. The four pieces of each tuber are dropped consecutively in the row at a distance of from ten to twelve inches apart in the furrow. All tubers showing discoloration of the flesh or other evidence of disease should be rejected.

By allowing an additional space between each set of fours, the four plants from each tuber are definitely isolated from adjoinine ones, and the grower can readily observe any variation in vigor and uniformity between the units planted. This method also enables him to detect any mixtures that may occur in the variety.

At digging time the product of each unit is separately harvested, and a further selection made from the marked units of all those which most nearly approach the size, shape and smoothness desired. The selected tubers should be numbered with both field and unit numbers and separately placed in small sacks. From each of the units retained, ten of the best tubers should be selected for the next season's planting. It is desirable to maintain the study of each selection on the tuber-unit basis the following season because it permits a more accurate comparison of the behavior of each.

The hill-selection method consists in marking the most promising plants during the growing season. At harvesting time save only those which give greatest promise. Keep the progency of each hill separate, and take the same data as outlined for the tuber-unit. Plant on the tuber-unit basis the following season. For sake of uniformity, a definite number of tubers—five or more—should be planted from each hill selection. From this point on the methods given in the tuber-unit work should be followed.

The only requirements for the successful practice of the two methods of seed selections are a reasonable degree of painstaking effort on the part of the grower, some twelve inch garden labels, a small pair of balances, a sufficient number of suitable small sacks and a safe place in which to store the selected tubers until required by the next season's planting. In addition to this, the grower shold have a breeding plant in which each season's selections can be developed up to the point of field planting stock.

The selection of breeding plat need not neceessarily be divorced from the general field plat. In most cases it can be more conveniently handled in it is a part of the regular field. All that is required is to set aside as many rows as may be required to plant the selected tubers. These should be preferably on one side of the field so that they can be more readily observed. The planting furrows may be open, and a fertilizer distributed with the potato planter by removing the disks and setting the plow a trifle deeper. If a plow is used in covering, care should be exercised to avoid displacing the seed pieces.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

It is quite as important that the little maid's frock show a touch of individuality as it is for her grownup sister's. Whereas the designs for children are unusually simple this season, it is not difficult to add such a touch. In No. 8026 we have a straight lined little frock showing a long waisted blouse, and a skirt attached to a separate, sleeveless under waist. The sleeve is set into a normal shoulder. There is a small round collar and a low hung stitched belt. The skirt, which is a two-piece model, is rendered very effective by the side seams, which are cut to give a narrow slash on both sides. This design is suitable for any of the wash materials; for the present moment, dark blue serge would be pleasing, with collar, belt and trimming bands of silk plaid. It is quite necessary that a dark frock show a touch of vivid color, especially at this time of the year.

To copy this dress in size 12 it requires 2⅞ yards of 36 inch material. The pattern is cut in four sizes, 8 to 14.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to get right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

The Robins Agreed It Was a Good Scheme.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Robins Open a Spring Shop.

"THE robins, having left their warm winter home, had settled near a great, big, lovely park," said daddy. "Now, one of the robins happened to be a very practical old bird. He suggested that they shouldn't spend all their time singing, especially now, before the summer came. Then he thought it was all right to play and sing all day. But it would be nicer now, he thought, to do a little work.

"The old robin's idea was that certain robins every morning should start out and dig up worms, for then they could get more than they wanted and could help supply the flocks and flocks of newcomers. Then other robins could go into the woods and get the new little berries that had just come up, and the rest of the robins would keep a shop in the biggest tree of the park. All the birds would do their shopping there in the most central place.

"All the robins agreed that it would be an excellent scheme and so much better than idling away all their time.

"As soon as a new flock of birds would come to the park the other birds would tell them about the shop of the robins, and off they would fly to it and such good things as the robins all had in their shop! It kept them pretty busy hurrying around to get enough provisions to last for all of their customers as well as themselves. But they thoroughly enjoyed being so busy and decided that there was nothing in the world like work. At night they could feel so much better than if they'd been idle all day, and then they felt as if they had really been doing some good, for it was a great, great help to all of the other birds. You can imagine how they wouldn't be able to find things so quickly and they wouldn't know right away where the softest earth was so as to dig for the worms.

"Of course some of the early bird families did arrive as early as the robins, but the robins were the thoughtful and unselfish ones who thought of the other birds."

"Did they charge anything for the things they sold?" asked Jack.

"No," said daddy; "the old robin said that birds should never charge each other anything, and, besides, they really felt that the work was doing them good and that then they'd enjoy the summer all the more.

"And the other birds certainly did appreciate what the robins were doing for them.

"The shop of the robins grew to be just like a daily party, for all the birds would fly there every day just about the same time, and after they had picked out the berries and the worms that struck their fancies they'd stay around and chirp and chat with the robins and each other."

PRIMARIES IN ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, Ark., March 24.—One United States senator, seven representatives in Congress, a governor, and other State officials and many members of the Legislature are to be named in the Arkansas Democratic primaries tomorrow. Usually, nomination is equivalent to election. Senator James P. Clarke, who is a candidate for re-election, is opposed by Judge W. F. Kirby, an associate justice of the State Supreme Court. All of the present representatives in Congress appear confident of renomination. Governor George W. Hays has no opposition for renomination and a number of the other present State officers are assured of being named for another term. It is expected that the vote will be light as compared with that cast at the election two years ago, when Joe T. Robinson defeated Governor George W. Donaghey for re-election. The absence of any notable contest this year has resulted in a rather tame campaign, while the fact that many of the counties have already held their primaries for the selection of county and local officers has added to the general apathy.

PHILADELPHIA MISSION OPENS.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 24—Bishop Rhinelander presided and many other persons of note took part in the exercises which were held today at the formal opening of the new home of the Inasmuch Mission. The new building cost $100,000 and is probably the best equipped mission building in the entire country. The greater part of the building is to be used as a poor man's hotel for the accommodation of a large class of men who are above seeking quarters at the ordinary rescue missions, but who cannot afford to pay more than 25 cents for a night's lodging.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

PROLOGUE.

Was Jennie Brice murdered?

If she were murdered, who was guilty of the foul deed?

If she were not done away with by an assassin, what became of her?

Whence did she disappear?

These and a few other interesting questions are raised at once in this very clever tale of mystery written by a woman who is not only an adept at writing fiction of this character, but the possessor of a style that chains the interest by its clearness and directness and wins by its rich humor.

CHAPTER I.

WE have just had another flood, bad enough, but only a foot or two of water on the first floor. Yesterday we got the mud shoveled out of the cellar and found Peter, the spaniel that Mr. Ladley left when he "went away." The flood, and the fact that it was Mr. Ladley's dog whose body was found half buried in the basement fruit closet, brought back to me the strange events of the other flood five years ago, when the water reached more than half way to the second story, and brought with it, to some, mystery and sudden death, and to me the worst case of "shingles" I have ever seen.

My name is Pitman—in this narrative. It is not really Pitman, but that does well enough. I belong to an old Pittsburgh family. I was born on Penn avenue, when that was the best part of town, and I lived, until I was fifteen, very close to what is now the Pittsburgh club. It was a dwelling then; I have forgotten who lived there at that time.

I was a girl in '77, during the railroad riots, and I recall our driving in the family carriage over to one of the Allegheny hills, and seeing the yards burning, and a great noise of shooting from across the river. It was the next year that I ran away from school to marry Mr. Pitman, and I have not known my family since. We were never reconciled, although I came back to Pittsburgh after twenty years of wandering. Mr. Pitman was dead; the old city called me, and I came.

I had a hundred dollars or so, and I took a house in lower Allegheny, where, because they are partly inundated every spring, the rents are cheap, and I kept boarders. My house was always orderly and clean, and although the neighborhood had a bad name, a good many theatrical people stopped with me. Five minutes across the bridge and they were in the theater district. Allegheny at that time, I believe, was still an independent city. But since then it has allied itself with Pittsburgh; it is now the north side of the city.

I was glad to get back. I worked hard, but I made my rent and my living and a little over. Now and then on summer evenings I went to one of the parks and, sitting on a bench, watched the children playing around and looked at my sister's house, closed for the summer. It is a very large house. Her butler once had his wife boarding with me—a very nice little woman.

It is curious to recall that at that time, five years ago, I had never seen my niece, Lida Harvey, and then to think that only the day before yesterday she came in her automobile as far as she dared and then sat there, waving to me, while the police patrol brought across in a skiff a basket of provisions she had sent me.

I wonder what she would have thought had she known that the elderly woman in a calico wrapper, with an old overcoat over it and a pair of rubber boots, was her full aunt.

The flood and the sight of Lida both brought back the case of Jennie Brice, for even then Lida and Mr. Howell were interested in each other.

This is April. The flood of 1907 was earlier, in March. It had been a long hard winter, with ice gorges in all the upper valley. Then in early March there came a thaw. The gorges broke up and began to come down, filling the rivers with crushing, grinding ice.

There are three rivers at Pittsburgh, the Allegheny and the Monongahela uniting there at the point to form the Ohio. And all three were covered with broken ice, logs and all sorts of debris from the upper valleys.

A warning was sent out from the weather bureau, and I got my carpets ready to lift that morning. That was on the 4th of March, a Sunday. Mr. Ladley and his wife, Jennie Brice, had the parlor bedroom and the room behind it. Mrs. Ladley, or Miss Brice, as she preferred to be known, had a small part at a local theater that kept a permanent company. Her husband was in that business, too, but he had nothing to do. It was the wife who paid the bills, and a lot of quarreling they did about it.

I knocked at the door at 10 o'clock, and Mr. Ladley opened it. He was a short man, rather stout and getting bald, and he always had a cigarette. Even yet the parlor carpet smells of them.

"What do you want?" he asked sharply, holding the door open about an inch.

"The water's coming up very fast, Mr. Ladley," I said. "It's up to the swinging shelf in the cellar now. I'd like to take up the carpet and move the piano."

"Come back in an hour or so," he snapped and tried to close the door. But I had got my toe in the crack.

"I'll have to have the piano moved, Mr. Ladley," I said. "You'd better put off what you are doing."

I thought he was probably writing. He spent most of the day writing.

"What do you want?" he asked sharply.

using the washstand as a desk, and it kept me busy with oxalic acid taking ink spots out of the splasher and the towels. He was writing a play and talked a lot about the Shuberts having promised to star him in it when it was finished.

"H——!" he said, and, turning, spoke to somebody in the room.

"We can go into the back room," I heard him say, and he closed the door. When he opened it again the room was empty. I called in Terry, the Irish man who does odd jobs for me now and then, and we both got to work at the tacks in the carpet, Terry working by the window and I by the door into the back parlor, which the Ladleys used as a bedroom.

That was how I happened to hear what I afterward told the police.

Some one—a man, but not Mr. Ladley—was talking. Mrs. Ladley broke in: "I won't do it!" she said flatly. "Why should I help him? He doesn't help me. He loafs here all day, smoking and sleeping, and sits up all night, drinking and keeping me awake."

The voice went on again, as if in reply to this, and I heard a rattle of glasses, as if they were pouring drinks. They always had whisky, even when they were behind with their board.

"That's all very well," Mrs. Ladley said. I could always hear her, she having a theatrical sort of voice—one that carries. "But what about the prying she devil that runs the house?"

"Hush, for God's sake!" broke in Mr. Ladley, and after that they spoke in whispers. Even with my ear against the panel I could not catch a word.

The men came just then to move the piano, and by the time we had taken it and the furniture upstairs the water was over the kitchen floor and creeping forward into the hall. I had never seen the river come up so fast. By noon the yard was full of floating ice, and at 3 that afternoon the police skiff was on the front streets, and I was wading around in rubber boots, taking the pictures off the walls.

I was too busy to see who the Ladleys' visitor was and he had gone when I remembered him again. The Ladleys took the second story front, which was empty, and Mr Reynolds, who was in the silk department in a store across the river, had the room just behind.

I put up a coal stove in a back room next the bathroom and managed to cook the dinner there. I was washing up the dishes when Mr. Reynolds came in. As it was Sunday he was in his slippers and had the colored supplement of a morning paper in his hand.

"What's the matter with the Ladleys?" he asked. "I can't read for their quarreling."

"Booze, probably," I said. "When you've lived in the flood district as long as I have, Mr. Reynolds, you'll know that the rising of the river is a signal for every man in the vicinity to stop work and get full. The fuller the river the fuller the male population."

"Then this flood will likely make 'em drink themselves to death!" he said. "It's a lulu."

"It's the neighborhood's annual debauch. The women are busy in the cellars, or they'd get full too. I hope, since it's come this far, it will come farther, so the landlord will have to paper the parlor."

That was at 3 o'clock. At 4 Mr. Ladley went down the stairs, and I heard him getting into a skiff in the lower hall. There were boats going back and forth all the time carrying crowds of curious people and taking the flood sufferers to the corner grocery, where they were lowering groceries in a basket on a rope from an upper window.

I had been making tea when I heard Mr. Ladley go out. I fixed a tray with a cup of it and some crackers and took it to their door. I had never liked Mrs. Ladley, but it was chilly in the house with the gas shut off and the lower floor full of ice water. And it is hard enough to keep boarders in the flood district.

She did not answer to my knocks, so I opened the door and went in. She was at the window, looking after him, and the brown valise that figured in the case later was opened on the floor. Over the foot of the bed was the black and white dress with the red collar.

When I spoke to her she turned around quickly. She was a tall woman, about twenty-eight, with very white teeth and yellow hair, which she parted a little to one side and drew down over her ears. She had a sullen face and large well shaped hands, with her nails long and very pointed.

"The 'she devil' has brought you some tea," I said. "Where shall she put it?"

"'She devil!'" she repeated, raising her eyebrows. "It's a very thoughtful she devil. Who called you that?"

But with the sight of the valise and the fear that they might be leaving I thought it best not to quarrel. She had left the window and, going to her dressing table, had picked up her nail file.

"Never mind," I said. "I hope you are not going away. These floods don't last, and they're a benefit. Plenty of the people around here rely on 'em every year to wash out their cellars."

"No, I'm not going away," she replied lazily. "I'm taking that dress to Miss Hope at the theater. She is going to wear it in 'Charlie's Aunt' next week. She hasn't half enough of a wardrobe to play leads in stock. Look at this thumb nail, broken to the quick!"

If I had only looked to see which thumb it was! But I was putting the tea tray on the washstand and moving Mr. Ladley's papers to find room for it. Peter, the spaniel, begged for a lump of sugar, and I gave it to him.

"Where is Mr. Ladley?" I asked.

"Gone out to see the river."

"I hope he'll be careful. There's a drowning or two every year in these floods."

"Then I hope he won't," she said calmly. "Do you know what I was doing when you came in? I was looking after his boat and hoping it had a hole in it."

"You won't feel that way tomorrow Mrs. Ladley," I protested, shocked. "You're just nervous and put out. Most men have their ugly times. Many a time I wished Mr Pitman was gone—until he went. Then I'd have given a good bit to have him back again."

She was standing in front of the dresser, fixing her hair over her ears. She turned and looked at me over her shoulder.

"Probably Mr. Pitman was a man," she said. "My husband is a fiend, a devil."

Well, a good many women have said that to me at different times. But just let me say such a thing to them, or repeat their own words to them the next day, and they would fly at me in a fury. So I said nothing and put the cream into her tea.

I never saw her again.

* * * * * * *

There is not much sleeping done in the flood district during a spring flood. The gas was shut off and I gave Mr Reynolds and the Ladleys each a lamp. I sat in the back room that I had made into a temporary kitchen with a candle and with a bedquilt around my shoulders. The water rose fast in the lower hall, but by midnight at the seventh step it stopped rising and stood still. I always have a skiff during the flood season, and as the water rose I tied it to one spindle of the stair case after another.

I made myself a cup of tea and at 1 o'clock I stretched out on a sofa for a few hours' sleep. I think I had been sleeping only an hour or so when some one touched me on the shoulder and I started up. It was Mr. Reynolds partly dressed.

"Some one has been in the house Mrs. Pitman," he said. "They went away just now in the boat."

"Perhaps it was Peter," I suggested. "That dog is always wandering around at night."

"Not unless Peter can row a boat," said Mr. Reynolds dryly.

I got up, being already full dressed and taking the candle we went to the staircase. I noticed that it was a minute or so after 2 o'clock as we left the room. The boat was gone, not untied, but cut loose. The end of the rope was still fastened to the stair rail. I sat down on the stairs and looked at Mr. Reynolds.

"It's gone!" I said. "If the house catches fire we'll have to drown."

"It's rather curious when you consider it." We both spoke softly not to disturb the Ladleys. "I've been awake and I heard no boat come in. And yet if no one came in a boat and came from the street they would have had to swim in."

I felt queer and creepy. The street door was open, of course, and the lights going beyond. It gave me a strange feeling to sit there in the darkness on the stairs, with the arch of the front door like the entrance to a cavern, and see now and then a chunk of ice slide into view, turn around in the eddy and pass on. It was bitter cold, too, and the wind was rising.

"I'll go through the house," said Mr. Reynolds. "There's likely nothing worse the matter than some drunken mill hand on a vacation while the mills are under water. But I'd better look."

He left me, and I sat there alone in the darkness. I had a presentiment of something wrong, but I tried to think it was only discomfort and the cold. The water, driven in by the wind, swirled at my feet. And something dark floated in and lodged on the step below. I reached down and touched it. It was a dead kitten. I had never known a dead cat to bring me anything but bad luck, and here was one washed in at my very feet.

FORESTRY CONGRESS.

St. Paul, Minn., March 24—The annual congress under the auspices of the Minnesota Forestry Association, began in this city today and will continue over tomorrow. At the opening session this morning, Governor Eberhart welcomed the visitors and G. E. Marshall, supervisor of the Minnesota national forest, delivered the president's address. NATHAN PENNINGTON OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

Seventy-four-Year-Old Plainfielder Has Lived Half a Century in Same Place.

Nathan C. Pennington, of Liberty street, one of the oldest and best known residents of the city, celebrated the seventy-fourth anniversary of his birth at his home yesterday. There was no special observance of the event, as Mr. Pennington's life has been devoid of ostentation, but he was a central figure of a happy family gathering at dinner, last night. The others present were his wife, one daughter, Miss Edith Pennington, and two sons, Joel D. and Wilbert Pennington, all of Plainfield. Another daughter, whose home is in Portland, Ore., was unable to be present, but sent congratulations. She is now planning a trip East that will bring her to Plainfield next May.

Mr. Pennington was born at Mt. Bethel in 1840. He moved to Plainfield with his parents when a boy, and with the exception of a short time, when the family lived at Westfield, resided here ever since. He learned the carpenter's trade, which in those days included every branch of the business, and continued the work actively until a few years ago. Of late he has been jobbing, as there are scores of old Plainfielders who believe that repairs to their homes would not be done right if anyone else did it. This is a tribute to the thoroughness of a man's work which is seldom given, but which is always keenly appreciated.

Mr. Pennington enlisted in Company C, 28th N. J. Volunteers, recruited at Old Bridge, for service in the Civil War. He participated in many important engagements, among them Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, escaping shot or shell wounds, but contracting rheumatism in a severe form from lying in trenches. Shortly after his return to Plainfield, following the declaration of peace, he married Miss Sarah J. Coddington.

Six months later he purchased a property at Fourth and Liberty streets, where the couple have resided ever since, a period of fifty years, and a record held by few Plainfielders. Mr. and Mrs. Pennington observed the golden anniversary of their wedding there October 3 last.

The original property bought by Mr. Pennington had a frontage of 160 feet on Liberty street and 140 on Fourth street. There was nothing but rail fences and open country all about the location at that time being considered on the outskirts of the town. Parts of the original plot have been sold off at various times so that it now is built up almost solid. Mr. and Mrs. Pennington have been silent witnesses of the wonderful growth that has spread to and passed the spot they selected for their home and their humble cottage, once so prominent to the passerby, is now dwarfed by business buildings all about it.

Mr. Pennington is a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., being an active participant in all its work. He has served as chaplain for many terms and has almost the entire ritual committed to memory. He is also one of the most devoted workers in local G. A. R. circles. He was the recipient of scores of congratulations yesterday, all of his well-wishers bespeaking many added years of health and happiness and he and his family.

NEW BRUNSWICK POOLROOM MEN LOSE ORDINANCE FIGHT

New Brunswick, March 24.—The effort of certain proprietors of poolrooms to have the poolroom license ordinance now before the Common Council amended so as to permit the opening of such places for the sale of cigars on Sunday has failed so far.

At the next meeting of the aldermen, it is expected, the ordinance will be passed on final reading as originally introduced with this change—clubs will be permitted to use pool tables on Sunday, but a permit must first be secured. The plan to have a police captain will also be abandoned it is understood.

It is now proposed to raise the salary of the detective-sergeant to $1,400 from $1,200. The object of establishing the office of police captain at a salary of $1,400 was for the purpose of raising Sergeant George Dunn's salary. The intention was to make Sergeant Dunn captain.

SUSPECTED THIEVES SHOOT NEW BRUNSWICK POLICEMAN

New Brunswick, March 24—In attempting to capture three men single-handed at midnight Saturday night, Patrolman Samuel Boice was shot in the calf of the right leg by one of the trio, all of whom escaped. The officer was taken by Patrolman George Cox, who heard the shots, to St. Peter's Hospital. The wound was dressed by Dr. C. H. Voorhees and Boice sent to his home in Albany street.

Boice was patroling Delevan street between Jones street and Commercial avenue when he saw three men with a bundle. He suspected they had copper wire and that they had stolen it from some of the many poles broken during the recent blizzard.

The policeman shouted to the men and asked what they had in the bundle. The men paid no attention to him, but he overtook them and caught hold of one of them. The man broke away and after running eight or ten feet from the officer drew a revolver and fired at him, the bullet striking him in the leg.

Boice drew his revolver and fired four or five times at the fleeing men, but none of the bullets took effect and all three escaped.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded, streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-know authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork. They get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

FAVORS WILSON'S CANAL POLICY

William L. Saunders Says the President is Logically Correct.

IN MATTER OF TOLLS

Well Known Engineer Gives Interesting Lecture on Panama Canal at Holy Cross Church—Many Fine Slides Are Shown.

William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who has been in close touch with the engineers in charge of the construction of the Panama Canal, and who has an intimate knowledge of the progress of the work, gave an illustrated lecture on the canal at the kettle drum social held in the parish house of Holy Cross church, last night. Mr. Saunders exhibited many fine slides, and incidentally during his talk, the speaker took occasion to state that he favored absolutely the position taken by President Wilson in the matter of free tolls.

Mr. Saunders declared that under the conditions, the President is acting logically correct and that the Hayes-Pauncefort treaty makes it impossible for the United States to control the question of tolls. He described the canal zone as a strip of land ten miles wide and fifty miles long, belonging to the country of Panama, but leased to the United States for a consideration of $10,000,000 down and a yearly rental of $250,000. The speaker said that the cost of maintenance would be nearly $12,000,000 a year and that the government should get a revenue from the steamship companies plying up the coast instead of allowing them to pass through the canal free.

The speaker said that he considered the canal the greatest piece of engineering ever attempted, for the reason that it was on the canal that the discovery of the yellow fever germ was made and by being able to combat the disease the completion of the canal was made possible. He stated that France lost three out of four of her men employed on the canal, showing how utterly hopeless was the work under such conditions. Another reason given why the work was a great achievement was that it was a great industrial end to bring the west coast of America in close touch with New York.

The canal will make it possible for ships to make the short cut instead of going around South America as in the past. Mr. Saunders concluded the lecture by showing a great many slides, made from pictures taken by himself on the canal. The flags which he displayed were loaned by the Panama Canal Commission.

Following the lecture there was a social hour during which refreshments were served by a committee comprising Mrs. J. O. Stevens, Miss Ida Davis and Miss DuBois, assisted by other members of the Women's Guild of the church, under whose auspices the entertainment was given.

DUNELLEN "SPITE FENCE" HAS NEW LEASE OF LIFE

BAPTISTS PLANNING STATE-WIDE WORK

Several Conferences to Be Held in Various Parts of New Jersey.

The Baptists throughout the State of New Jersey are about to take a forward step in denominational work. By authority of the board of managers of the Baptist State Convention, a series of sectional conferences on State-wide work is now being arranged.

Rev. Charles O. Wright, of Ridgewood, has been released by his church for such time as may be necessary to conduct these conferences. The scheme, as at present arranged, is to get the men of the Baptist churches together in different sections of the State at dinner. At this time the conference team, patterned somewhat after the order of the Men and Religion movement, will speak on the different phases and opportunities of Baptist work throughout the State.

F. W. Ayer, the president of the New Jersey Baptist Convention, in speaking of these conferences, says, "They will undoubtedly bring home to every individual Baptist the real significance of this denomination in the State."

It is proposed to hold three of these conferences in the southern part of the State, three in the central part, and three in the northern part of the State. A strong effort is being made to secure large representation from every one of the 149 Baptist churches throughout the State. As this means a membership of 67,000, in all probability more than 2,000 men will be in conference about Baptist work throughout the State within the next two months.

'SICILY OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY" DESCRIBED

Miss Eleanor Leggett Gives Interesting Lecture at Hartridge Auditorium.

One of the most interesting travel talks of the season was given in the Hartridge School Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, by Miss Eleanor Leggett and was attended by a large audience of people who were entertained with picture slides and detailed description for fully two hours. She took for her subject "The Sicily of Yesterday and Today,' and spoke of the characteristics of the people, industries and natural advantages offered.

The speaker gave an excellent account of the geographical features of the island of Sicily, taking her listeners on a tour of the interesting inland places on the island. She told of the characteristics of the leading Italian cities, principally the city of Syracuse which had been invaded by Roman and Greek conquests in olden times. Miss Leggett classed the city of Taoramina as the 'paradise on earth," describing its beautiful gardens and natural geographical features.

She described the old cathedrals characteristic of the island and the places most generally frequented by tourists of the present day. The lecturer touched upon the habits and traits of the Sicilians and Miss Leggett declared that people of this class in their home countries were known as expert gardeners and are much cleaner in their home country than when they arrive here as immigrants She advocated the importation of this race of people as assets to American farming, claiming that they would be able to introduce numerous new features that would facilitate the agricultural work in this country.

Miss Leggett outlined the magnificent grandeur of famous volcanos and illustrated her talk by means of stereopticon views which added a graphic aspect to her lecture. She claimed that Sicily possessed one of the richest soils in the world and the beautiful gardens and excellent agricultural advances are credited to this fact. Miss Leggett said that the Sicilians had never developed into a strong race because they have been suppressed by other nations and are still being buffeted.

MISS HAZEL C. LORD BRIDE OF F. E. HALL

Ceremony Performed at Roselle Last Night by Father Doyle.

Miss Hazel Catherine Lord, daughter of David S. Lord, of 409 East Fifth street, was married in Roselle, last night, to Francis E. Hall, of Jersey City. The ceremony was performed in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Father Doyle officiating.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Annette Lord Lightner, as matron of honor, and the best man was Joseph Hall, a brother of the groom. The affair was a quiet one owing to the recent death of the bride's mother, only the members of the immediate family being present.

The bride was attired in a white embroidered dress trimmed with white satin. The same gown was worn by the mother of the bride thirty years ago at an important function. The matron of honor was gowned in black crepe meteor, trimmed with green satin and cream lace. The wedding was followed by a supper at the home of Mrs. Lightner. The house was attractively decorated for the occasion with white roses and red carnations.

RUNKLE ESTATE INVENTORY PRELIMINARY TO WILL FIGHT

The filing of an inventory of the estate of William Runkle, of Orange, brother of Henry G. Runkle, of this city, with the surrogate was a preliminary to the contest of the will which will be heard before Judge William P. Martin on April 2, 3, 4 and 6. Henry G Runkle, brother of the testator, has brought proceedings in Orphan's Court against the probate of the will.

By the terms of the instrument, the brother received about one-fourth of the $1,999,283.30 left by Mr. Runkle. The inventory gives that sum as the total of the decedent's personal estate. No estimate is given of realty owned by Mr. Runkle. The Fidelity Trust Company filed the inventory as executor pending litigation.

The inventory is made up of thirty-one long typewritten pages, in which the appraisers have set forth item by item everything that they found in the estate. The household items range in amount from twenty-five cents to $2,500, the latter sum being the value that was placed on a rare rug in the parlor of the testator's home. The total valuation of the household furnishings was given at $21,413.35.

In addition to that sum the inventory shows the following: Bonds, $477,260; stocks $1,401,453.82, mortgage, $9,500; cash in banks, $28,656.13; notes, $61,000; total, $1,999,283.30.

The prisoner confessed to stealing the brooch and claimed that she had pawned it. The court instructed her to return the article within a specified period and if this order is not complied with she will be arraigned again.

AUTO BUSES ARE OF GREAT BENEFIT

So Say Board of Trade Directors at Meeting Held This Afternoon.

COMMITTEES NAMED

Civic Body Members Chosen to Attend Meetings of Various Local Public Bodies Including Council, Education and Health Boards.

Endorsement of the auto bus line running from this city to nearby towns was given at a meeting held by the executive committee of the Board of Trade following an informal luncheon of that body which was held this noon at the Queen City Hotel. Several other matters of importance were taken up, but the meeting was called at this time because of the movement to tax the auto buses. A resolution, which was unanimously adopted, read in part, as follows:

Whereas, The Plainfield Transit Company, a corporation engaged in the transportation of passengers between Plainfield and adjacent towns by motor busses is of material benefit to the city of Plainfield by providing convenient means of access to the shops and business houses of the city, therefore be it resolved that this Board of Trade heartily and unreservedly endorse the said Plainfield Transit Company as a desirable and necessary addition to the business life of our city, and be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Board of Trade.

President Jeffery said that complaint has been made by a number of citizens with a request that the board look into the question of the employment of an out of town secretary for the Board of Education. No reflection was cast upon the man who has been chosen and it was said that from all reports he seemed to be an eminent and capable man, but it was decided to try to find out why Plainfield people were not considered for the office. A committee was appointed to attend the Board of Education meetings in city and borough, consisting of Herman Schwed, Allen F. Beals, Henry Rosenbaum, Joseph W. Gavett and Leslie R. Fort, and the committee was requested to take the matter up with the Board of Education regarding the secretaryship.

The president also reported that he had made an investigation as to just how proficient the graduates of the local grammar and high schools were in the "three Rs," and he said that he regretted very much to say that of forty young people who answered an advertisement which he inserted in the local papers, only three or four showed the rudiments of spelling and correct letter writing.

City sidewalks came in for a scoring. A letter was read from Chairman Blatz, of the Councilmanic street committee, in which he said that if the money is available to put sidewalks in condition where the property owner has failed to do so, the city would do the job.

After brief discussion of the need of trolley extension to South Plainfield, which was left in the hands of a committee of which A. E. Force is the head, there was considerable talk as to the great need for connection with the Hudson river tubes at Jersey City. It was decided to have a committee take up the matter with similar committees from other Boards of Trade in cities along the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and see if the railroad would not "get busy" on the matter. The local committee consists entirely of real estate men, as follows: Thad. Doane, Jr., Edward C. Hardingham, Edmund Rushmore, William H. Abbott and Lamar VanSyckel.

Other committees were appointed to keep in touch with various local matters and attend meetings of public bodies, as follows:

Council meetings: City—C. D. Manning, J. G. Meissner, A. H. Osmun, Samuel Rothberg, Leslie R. Fort, Jacob Tepper. Borough—J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Herman Schwed, A. C. Pleydell.

Consolidation of city and borough—W. L. Saunders, chairman; Herman Schwed, Leslie R. Fort, William Truman Sharpe, Samuel Rothberg, A. E. Force, Van Zandt and Voorhees, J. V. E. Vanderhoef.

Board of Health Meetings—A. E. Force, J. Henry Crane, F. A. Dunham, George M. Griffin, E. M. Laihg, Victor L. Drellich and B. K. Davis.

Hospital—Berthold J. Schreiner, Lamar VanSyckel, Simon Hirsch.

The April meeting of the Board will be held on Tuesday, April 7, at the rooms in Coward Hall, at which time Senator Carlton B. Pierce will discuss taxation, and Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, will talk on consolidation.

Malcolm G. VanArsdale moved from his present residence on Watchung avenue to East Orange today.

RUMOR THAT VOSSLER HAS RESIGNED PLACE

Borough School Principal Said to Have Quit—Has Fine Record.

A rumor is current about town that Principal A. B. Vossler, of the North Plainfield public schools has resigned or is about to do so. Effort to reach Mr. Vossler this afternoon to confirm the story was unavailing, but former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, a member of the borough Board of Education was approached, and when questioned about the matter refused to be quoted. He also refused to deny that the resignation had been sent in or would be sent in.

"If we keep on asking questions," said the reporter to Mr. Smalley, "perhaps something definite may be learned." The former Mayor replied "Don't cross examine me as my counsel is not here, and I might commit myself."

The rumor comes from an authentic source, and it is thought that Mr. Vossler will complete his work here at the end of the present school year, but nothing is known as to his plans. The principal has a large number of friends in North Plainfield and is considered a capable school man in every particular. Under his leadership the course of teaching in the borough schools has been much improved.

NEW TELEPHONE BOOKS ARE READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

The New York Telephone Company began today the task of distributing Plainfield's share of the spring edition of the New Jersey Division Telephone Directory, 152,500 copies of which have been printed.

New Jersey's telephone directory, which is issued simultaneously with that for Greater New York, is far more comprehensive than any previous book published for the use of subscribers in the division. It has four hundred and twenty-four pages, eight more than in the winter issue, and contains the names of 118,000 subscribers, an increase of 3,000 names since the preceding publication.

In the New York city directory, which has nine hundred and twenty pages, the names of 314,000 subscribers appear, an increase of 9,000 names. 592,000 copies of this directory will be placed in the hands of New York subscribers.

Plainfield's portion of the New Jersey directories will be distributed within a few days, and at the same time, all of the old books will be collected and destroyed. This is done to prevent delays to the telephone service which result when subscribers call for wrong numbers after referring to the old directory or to faulty memory.

In such a complex telephone system as is provided for New Jersey and New York subscribers, rapidity of service is essential to get the best results. For this reason, the New York Telephone Company urges subscribers to consult the directory at all times and by so doing, to co-operate with the company in increasing the efficiency of the service.

CONFERRED FIRST DEGREE.

Members of the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, met in the club rooms on West Front street, last night, when the first degree was conferred on ten new members. Preparations are now under way for the second degree ceremony which will be conferred on twenty candidates in the near future. The local knights will attend the April meeting of the Westfield Knights of Columbus, when the third degree will be conferred on a number of members.

ELKS TO RECEIVE VISITORS.

A large delegation of members from Elizabeth Lodge of Elks will visit Plainfield Lodge tonight, and conduct the initiatory ceremonies for a class of eighteen candidates. Preceding the regular session, a short lodge of sorrow will be conducted in memory of David J. Carney, who was a member at the time of his death.

LOCAL WOMAN NAMED.

County Clerk James P. Calvert yesterday received from Secretary of State David S. Crater the list of persons named as commissioners of deeds by Governor Fielder and included in the list is the name of Miss Gertrude Decker, of this city. They must qualify before May 1 in order to receive their commissions.

The famous Bison 101 Film Company, noted for its thrilling western productions, contributes a film to Proctor's motion picture program this afternoon and evening. The films include "Her Father's Child," "The Long Cold Night," "A Pair of Frauds" and "The Clerk."

CONSIDER PLANS FOR "SUFFRAGE DAY"

Plainfield Women to Take Part in Country-wide Event May 2.

A primary ballot was taken preliminary to the annual election at the annual meeting in April, at the monthly meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, held in the Public Library, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Clara de H. Krans, chairman of the committee in charge of nominations and elections, will notify candidates of their nomination to office and upon securing their consent to serve will have a printed ballot prepared bearing the names of the two nominees for each office who received the highest number of votes at the primaries,

Amendments to the constitution were also considered. The secretary was instructed to send, two weeks prior to the annual meeting, a copy of the proposed amendments to each member of the league. The league adopted a resolution to the effect that the meeting call upon the judiciary committee of the House of Representatives to make a prompt and favorable report upon the House joint resolution No. 1, extending the right of suffrage to women.

Plans were considered for the part Plainfield will take in the country-wide celebration of "Suffrage Day' on May 2, and the program committee was urged to do its utmost to make the day a success. It is thought likely that a special meeting will be called to consider the subject. The chairman of the enrollment announced that she was receiving many requests for enrollment slips. One man has sent in twenty-five slips with a request for more, according to the report at the meeting. At the close of the business meeting the "Anti-Suffrage Monologue," was admirably recited by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins, and its humor was highly appreciated.

PICK FOUR END MEN FOR MINSTREL SHOW

Plainfield High School Athletes Will Give Performance Saturday, May 9.

The final try-outs for end men in the Plainfield High School minstrel show were held last night. Twelve men reported as candidates for the positions, and from these, six were chosen. The following four end men were elected: Daniel McNamee, Gerald Linke, Carl Evans and Curtis Dahl.

An average of forty men have turned out to rehearsals for the chorus. Fred Mills and Irving Manley will sing ballads. There will also be a quartet chosen from the school. A prize of $5 has been offered by the Boys' Athletic Association for the best topical song.

Announcement has been made that the High School Auditorium will be finished by May 1, so the show will be given in the High School on Saturday evening, May 9. Sewell Ulrich and Thomas M. Muir will coach the cast.

The second half of the performance will be a sketch by members of the Boys' Athletic Association. The piece has not yet been chosen, but a committee has been appointed and will secure one within a few days.

CONGREGATIONALISTS TO CONVENE AT WESTFIELD

The Congregational Conference of New Jersey will be held at Westfield this spring for the first time. Heretofore the local church could not provide accommodations for the conference, but this year the sessions will be held in the handsome new parish hall in Elmer street on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 21 and 22.

Delegates from all of the churches in New Jersey and from Baltimore and Washington will attend. Arrangements are being made for a very interesting program, including addresses by some of the most prominent ministers in the denomination. Among these will be Rev. Dr. C. H. Patton, of Boston, a former pastor.

COMEDY TO BE GIVEN.

The first production to be given under the auspices of the recently organized Washington Dramatic and Musical Club will be given in the Washington School auditorium, April 14, in the form of a light comedy skit. The play is to be followed by dancing. This organization is under the immediate direction of the Public Recreation Committee.

CODDINGTON FOR CO. TAX BOARD

Governor Names Plainfielder to Succeed Mulford M. Scudder.

ENDORSED BY STEWART

New Appointee Said to Be Well Qualified for the Place—W. J. DeMond Succeeds Michael Scully in Somerset.

William A. Coddington, of this city, was appointed a member of the Union County Tax Board by Governor Fielder, yesterday, to succeed Mulford M. Scudder, who is also a Democrat. The change which is effective May 1, is the second one made in the board this year, John J. Collins, of Elizabeth, succeeding Calvin E. Brodhead, of this city, who resigned, following his removal to Scranton, Pa. The salary is $1,800 a year.

While it was known that Mr. Coddington was a candidate for the place, having the endorsement of Mayor Percy H. Stewart, county Democratic chairman, as well as Gen. Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, Daniel J. Conrain, of this city, was also an avowed candidate. He is said to have had the endorsement of the local Democratic organization.

Mr. Coddington has been a practicing lawyer in Plainfield for many years and for a long time was associated with Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, under the firm name of Reed & Coddington. Three years ago Mr. Coddington was a candidate for State Senator and was defeated by Robert J. McAdams for the nomination by forty-three votes. Two years ago Mr. Coddington was a candidate for Mayor on the Democratic ticket but Mayor Percy H. Stewart defeated him for the nomination. Mr. Coddington served Plainfield as city judge for three years. He has always been actively identified and interested in Plainfield affairs and his friends who supported him for appointment on the county tax board believe that he will make a good representative.

When Mr. Brodhead resigned from the board and Mr. Collins, of Elizabeth, was named to succeed him, there were many Plainfielders who believed that this city was entitled to representation on the board and there was considerable criticism regarding the appointment. Now that Mr. Coddington becomes a member of the board it is the belief that this section of the county will be looked after carefully as to tax matters.

Michael W. Scully, who has been a member of the Somerset County Tax Board for several years, is succeeded by William J. DeMond, of Somervillo, former surrogate of Somerset county and widely known throughout this section. Mr. DeMond is said to have had considerable experience in taxing matters. Andrew E. Kenney, is the North Plainfield member of the county board.

HEBREW CHARITY BALL WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The third annual ball under the auspices of representative Hebrews of the city, held last night in Sebring's Auditorium, was largely attended and a great success. The net receipts of the affair, which will be used entirely for the needy of the city, aggregated about $1,000, exceeding the sum realized last year.

The great success of the affair was due to the efforts put forth by the officers of the society planning the dance, who were as follows: President, Hyman Adelberg; vice-president, Morris Abrams; secretary, Harry Dreier; treasurer, Kalman Rothberg. The committee of arrangements was composed in addition to the officers, of Bernard Kline, Jacob Sachar and Kaspar Sachar. The floor committee comprised Jacob Abrams, Arthur H. Richard and Louis Rothberg. The music for dancing which was a feature was furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra.

During the course of the evening opera selections were sung by Miss Dorothy Cohen, of Brooklyn, accompanied by Miss Rae Prager, of this city.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER MEETING.

At the meeting of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., three members will be given the royal arch degree Thursday evening. Samuel Oldroyd, assistant lecturer of the sixth district, will pay an official visit at that time.

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine It in Plainfield.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Plainfield residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's Drug Store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

Remember reading about a tribe of monkeys wanting to cross a stream of any kind, will climb a tree on one bank of the stream, then each take a good, firm tail-hold on his nearest neighbor and swing like a pendulum out of the tree until the lowest one in line can grab a tree on the opposite bank, and thus make a bridge which can be crossed in safety by the remaining members of the tribe?

Wonderful what can be accomplished when all pull together—even if it is only a tail hold.

Those monkeys sure believe in

A LONG PULL,
A STRONG PULL,
AND A PULL ALL TOGETHER.

The moral of this tale is quite plain. Those monkeys wanted to get somewhere and by hanging together were enabled to "come across."

VILLAGE OF DEPEW UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Rumor That Strikers Are Importing Arms.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 25.—Martial law has been declared in the village of Depew. Colonel Charles J. Wolfe of the Seventy-fourth regiment was informed that many of the Gould Coupler company strikers and their sympathizers were receiving ammunition and rifles from outside sources. One report had it that 100 rifles were shipped into Depew last night by express. Colonel Wolf immediately summoned the proprietors of all saloons within a radius of a mile of the Gould plant to meet at his headquarters there.

It is reported that several hundred armed men are quartered in the saloons in the vicinity of the plant, and the proprietors will be asked to show cause why they shall not close down their places of business temporarily.

The strike situation this afternoon remained quiet, with troops patrolling all streets in the neighborhood of the plant.

General Manager George W. Hayden of the Gould company stated that all offers of settlement with the strikers have been withdrawn.

The bayonets of their rifles glistening in the sun, the militiamen stationed on the platforms of coaches comprising the Buffalo work train bound for Depew presented a formidable appearance as the local passed Lancaster, and there was no attack by strikers and their sympathizers who lined the station platform in large numbers.

The train continued into the stockade of the Gould Coupler company's yards at Depew, where a battalion of the Seventy-fourth regiment under Major Arthur Kemp was on guard.

The appearance of the soldiers awed the strikers for the time being at least.

DEFEAT WILSON MAN IN PRIMARIES

Senator Hughes' Candidate Wins Nomination.

AFTER BREMNER'S PLACE.

Senator's Secretary, James J. O'Byrne, Defeats District Court Judge Walter Carrington, President's Candidate. Special Election to Be Held April 7 In Seventh New Jersey District.

Paterson, N. J., March 25.—Party primaries for the nomination of candidates from among whom a successor to the late Representative Robert G. Bremner, Democrat, will be chosen at a special election in the Seventh New Jersey district on April 7 were held, with the following results:

Republican—Dow H. Drukker, Passaic.

Democrat—James J. O'Byrne, Paterson.

Progressive—Henry C. Whitehead, Passaic (no opposition).

Socialist—Gordon Demarest, Paterson (no opposition).

The outcome of the Democratic primary was a victory for United States Senator Hughes, whose secretary, James J. O'Byrne, defeated District Court Judge Walter Carrington, the candidate of the Wilson Democrats, and three other aspirants for the nomination.

The nomination of Dow H. Drukker was considered a defeat for the regular Republican machine, the most active member of which in this city, notably Fred Van Blarcom, the county chairman, hustled for John M. Ward, the third man in the Republican race.

The vote cast at the primary was approximately about 50 per cent of the total registered vote of the district, which includes all of Passaic county, with the exception of two townships.

The Progressives and Socialists, having no contests, did not bother about going to the polls in large numbers, and this fact is considered ominous.

WOMAN JUMPS FROM TRAIN.

Baby's Photograph Is Clew to Identity of New Brunswick Suicide.

New Brunswick, N. J., March 25.—A woman about twenty-five years old committed suicide by jumping from a Pennsylvania railroad express train at a point 100 feet east of the railroad station here.

Coroner Harding took charge of the body, but it was not for several hours that the first clew to the identity of the suicide was discovered—the photograph of a baby, taken at the International Art studio, 145 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The photograph was inclosed in a photographer's envelope and was concealed in the suicide's clothing. It is the belief of the coroner that the woman had prepared carefully for her railroad journey, as her clothing apparently was new.

BOY KIDNAPED HIMSELF.

Admits Writing Ransom Letter to His Father In New York.

Camden, N. J., March 25.—Julius Jacobson, fifteen years old, of New York, walked into the grocery store of his uncle, Samuel B. Sterling, at 57 East State street, and told a story of having been kidnaped from New York by two men who deserted him when his father failed to respond to a letter written by him and asking for ransom.

He stuck to the tale for several hours, but finally admitted it was a pure invention except for the letter, which he wrote from Jersey City.

The boy's father came here to take the boy home. His mother said she knew of no reason why Julius should have run away. She said he was a good boy and went to school regularly.

TAX BILL HOUSE MEASURE.

Pierce Told It Will Be Unconstitutional if It Doesn't Originate There.

Trenton, N. J., March 25.—Senator Pierce has an opinion from the attorney general's office to the effect that unless his bank stock tax bill originates in the house it will be unconstitutional. The house has his bill as a committee substitute, which makes it a house bill. This conforms to the constitutional requirement that all bills to raise revenue must originate in the house.

It is now believed that there are twenty-nine Democrats in the house who can be depended upon to vote for the measure, and the activity of some of the Republicans last night toward votes for the measure seems to insure its passage through the house.

HUNGER STRIKER FREED.

Man Prisoner Emulates British Suffragettes Successfully.

Washington, N. J., March 25.—The first hunger strike on record in this section of New Jersey has resulted in the prisoner obtaining his release.

On Saturday Abram De Hart was arrested for disorderly conduct and was confined to the local lockup. He steadfastly refused to eat or drink and, fearing that he might become ill, Recorder J. R. Lindaberry ordered him discharged.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

UNFAIR TO MR. ACKERMAN.

Trenton newspapers are apparently taking great delight in knocking former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman because he is willing to serve on the Civil Service Commission as a successor to Charles H. Bateman, of Somerville. They very justly praise Mr. Bateman's record while a commissioner and urge his reappointment, and everything they say about the latter's efficiency is undoubtedly true, but on the other hand they are equally unjust to Mr. Ackerman.

Says the Trenton Times, after referring to Mr. Ackerman as a "millionaire director of the Central Railroad of New Jersey:"

The commission is not at all strong now, and the Governor will scarcely consent to weaken it by retiring Mr. Bateman in favor of an inexperienced man and a railroad capitalist with no incentive to assume his share of the work or responsibility, and who is at the moment assisting in a movement to discredit the commission. If Mr. Ackerman must be "taken care of," let it be on a board where he can do no harm, and where a sense of service rendered will be regarded as sufficient compensation.

The ignorance of the Times in the matter is inexcusable. Certainly the fact that the former Senator was the author and largely responsible for the passage of the Civil Service law under which the commission acts, proves that he would have plenty of "incentive to assume his share of the work and responsibility." If he is doing anything to discredit the commission at the present time, we have failed to hear of it. It is not a case of "taking care of" Mr. Ackerman. It is one where, because of his deep study of the question, he would be more than pleased to have the opportunity to serve the State, and he would undoubtedly be willing to do so without any compensation whatsoever. The editor of the Times knows as well as does everyone else who watched Mr. Ackerman's work while a Senator that he would give every bit as much time, and probably a good deal more to the work of the commission than was the case when that selfsame editor was a member of the commission. And we do not mean to intimate that the editor did not do his full duty, either, the instance being quoted to show our faith in the way Mr. Ackerman would perform his duties.

Incidentally, perhaps the Times, and the general public for that matter, does not understand Mr. Ackerman's connection with the Central Railroad as a director. We have been told, by a disinterested person, that prior to the time that he was chosen a director of the Central Railroad, he did not own a single share of stock in the company. Other officials of the company, including W. G. Besler, a fellow townsman of Mr. Ackerman's, thought that it would be a splendid thing for the road to have some representative commuter on the board of directors to look out for the interests of that great branch of the traveling public, as it were, and after considerable deliberation Mr. Ackerman was persuaded to secure a very small amount of stock and go on the board. That explains how he became a "railroad capitalist."

The Daily Press would like to see Mr. Bateman retained in the place, but if he is to go we know of no one better fitted to succeed him that former Senator Ackerman, and the Times owes him an apolgy for the attack. It is hardly in keeping with the principles of a great newspaper such as the Times to misrepresent anyone.

Co-operating with the People's Forum, the members of the Business Men's Association have asked O. A. Charles, president of the National Home Trade League, to come to Plainfield to talk to local people. He will be here on April 1 and 2, and on the night of the second will speak at a public meeting to be held in the Washington School. Mr. Charles has gone about the country preaching the doctrine of home trade, and has done great work in scores of communities. The trip to Plainfield will be his first to the East, and that the local people will give him a warm welcome goes without saying. We wish that every person who does any buying out of town could hear him talk.

In keeping with its determination to present serial stories by the best writers possible, the Daily Press began last night the publication of "The Case of Jennie Bryce," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. We feel sure that our readers will be as much interested in this as they were in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "The Abysmal Brute." The serial will only run about two weeks, and it will be followed by another from the pen of an equally well known writer.

The editorial on Saturday will tell the story of the work being done by one of the most important branches of the local government. It has been prepared with much care and like all of its predecessors will be carefully read by hundreds of residents of the city. It comes from the pen of a man who seldom finds time to make public utterances on any topic, but when he does have something to say he "delivers the goods."

Out in Barnesville, Ohio, the town council is said to be seriously considering the passage of an ordinance providing that every family shall be compelled to rear to a corpulent and mature age at least one hog a year. Judging from the number found in the local street cars, Plainfield originated the idea some years ago.

If you couldn't plant those sweet peas on St. Patrick's Day, there is Good Friday coming, and plenty of other good times to do it.

DEPOSED SCHOOL PRINCIPAL BRINGS COURT PROCEEDINGS

Trenton, March 25.—Certiorari proceedings have been instituted in the Supreme Court by Russel M. Fitch, seeking to have reviewed the action of the Board of Education of South Amboy in removing him from his position as supervising principal of schools. For eighteen years Mr. Fitch had acted as principal and supervising principal up to the time of his removal at the end of the school term last year.

According to Mr. Fitch, he was notified to appear before the teachers' committee of the local board in connection with charges purported to have been made against him. After the hearing he was advised by the local board that it had concurred in the recommendation of the teachers' committee and that his services were no longer required. This action was appealed to the assistant commissioner of education and finally to the State Board, which affirmed the decision of the local authorities.

Mr. Fitch avers that the charges against him are indefinite and that they did not accuse him of inefficiency, inability or of conduct unbecoming a teacher.

SUSPEND BAYONNE PATROLMEN.

Bayonne, March 25.—Because of their alleged failure to keep saloons closed Sunday, Patrolmen Thomas Noonan and Walter Sleight have been suspended by Mayor Albert Daly. The two officers were among twenty who were sent out to watch saloons. It is alleged that places in front of which they were stationed were doing business. Mayor Daly will give both officers a chance to explain their alleged failure to enforce the law. Noonan was a member of the detective bureau during the administration of former Mayor Matthew T. Cronin.

KING ATTACKED IN PARLIAMENT

Liberals and Laborites Join In Demonstration.

SEELY OFFERS TO RESIGN

Surrender of Asquith Cabinet to Officers of the Army Hastened Fall of Liberals—Crisis Said to Be Gravest In England In Years.

London, March 25.—"Cheers Against the King" is the heading of a report in the Daily Telegraph of a remarkable demonstration in the house of commons yesterday against the throne, the first of its kind since early in the nineteenth century. It was an outcome of the crisis created by the resignation and reinstatement of the Curragh cavalry officers.

It was reported that War Secretary Seely had tendered his resignation. The Daily News says that so far as is known it has not been accepted. The cabinet will meet today, and presumably the matter will then be decided.

That the surrender of the Asquith cabinet to the officers of the army who resigned rather than serve against the Ulster men has hastened the fall of the Liberal parliament was the almost universal opinion here.

It is argued that the only way out of the difficulty is to appeal to the country. It is well known that the Irish Nationalists on whom Premier Asquith's majority depends will make no more concessions, and there is great dissatisfaction in Liberal and Labor ranks with the new trend of affairs.

The provincial press is particularly outspoken in its adverse criticism on Asquith's "knuckling down" to army support of Carson's Covenanters.

Dispatches received here indicate that the people of Ulster are preparing for a huge celebration to commemorate what they call a victory over the Liberal government. They are convinced now that home rule is dead and they attribute it to their defiance of the orders of the premier.

It is generally admitted in official circles here that the home rule measure, if not dead, is at least shelved for the present. The attitude of the government is taken as a complete backdown. Much as certain elements desired the enforcement of the home rule bill, they did not want to enforce it at the expense of disrupting the army and possibly the navy, and for that reason have practically surrendered.

When it became known here that many other army officers would follow the lead of those who had thrown up their commissions rather than fight in Ulster, and when on good authority it was learned that possibly 70 per cent of all the officers in Ireland would quit rather than fight, King George himself rose to the emergency and today is being proclaimed a real king rather than a figurehead.

Meanwhile Premier Asquith has lost much prestige as a result of what is now called a colossal misunderstanding. It was at the king's suggestion that the army officers who resigned were asked to resume their duties. In this way, thanks to the tact of the ruler, peace again reigns in army ranks.

Paget Center of Storm.

The most sensational speech of the day was that made by Bonar Law. He began by charging the ministers, who sat facing him, with being guilty of an amazing paltering with the house and the country. He told them the danger was that the British army was to be destroyed before their eyes. He read from a typewritten sheet what he said were the words of men who had heard General Paget's address to the army after General Paget had had an interview with the war minister.

General Paget said he had instructions from Colonel Seeley to tell the officers that those of them who had homes in Ulster would be allowed to disappear during the campaign there and would quietly be reinstated later if they had not fought in defense of Ulster, but all other officers who refused to march upon Ulster would be dismissed from the service.

There was a sensation when Mr. Law read these statements, and there was prolonged cheering by his sympathizers.

For the last few months she has been suffering from rheumatism and last Sunday was absent for the first time in a considerable period.

When she was twelve years old Mrs. Bruen began teaching Bible classes and has continued to the present time. She is known in religious circles throughout New Jersey, having attended many of the large denominational gatherings at Ocean Grove, Plainfield and Atlantic City. She was born in Morristown and is a niece of United States Senator Jacob Miller whose descendants still live there.

MISS ELSIE DE WOLFE, NOW LIVING IN FRANCE, SUES TO TEST U. S. INCOME TAX LAW VALIDITY

An attack on the validity of the income tax law—the first legal move against the measure—was made in the United States Court at Chicago, Ill., when W. Bourke Cockran, of New York, and Colin C. H. Fyffe and Ira Ryner, of Chicago, filed suit on behalf of their client, Miss Elsie De Wolfe, who is described in the bill as a "citizen of New York State and a resident of Versailles, France.".

The suit is directed against the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank. The amount involved is not large, but the suit admittedly is to carry a test of the new law to the United States Supreme Court for an ultimate decision regarding its constitutionality.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. HERBERT SHILLINGER HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Herbert Shillinger was held at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock this morning, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Father Bernard M. Bogan, the pastor, officiated celebrating the mass. There were many floral tributes, including one from members of the family bearing the word "Mother," and a number of beautiful sprays from other relatives and friends. POLICE DRAG RIVER FOR M'CARRICK BOY

Work on the Theory of Accidental Drowning.

Philadelphia, March 25.—Five men arrested in New Jersey on suspicion that they knew something about the strange disappearance of Warren McCarrick, the seven-year-old boy who has been missing from his home for nearly two weeks, were released after close examination, and the police are rapidly coming to the belief that the boy was not kidnaped.

They are now working on the theory that the child was drowned by accident while playing on the banks of the Schuylkill river. The police began the work of dragging the river to find the child's body. Three of the men released were arrested at Garden Lake and two at Egg Harbor, N. J.

In the meantime the missing boy's father has received another letter demanding $7,500 ransom for the safe return of the boy. Detectives, however, place little faith in the genuineness of the letter. It reads as follows:

Mr. James McCarrick—Now that so much money has been placed upon your son's return, I want to say we will return him only upon receipt of $7,500. He is at the present time safe, but unless we hear definitely through the papers concerning the matter within a day or two he will be safer where we expect to put him than if you had him with you. Further details will be sent if the newspaper items are satisfactory. US

Another letter demanding ransom which the police consider as being of the "crank" variety, was recevied by the boy's family. It purported to be written by a D. Bennett from a town in Michigan. The writer announced that he had abducted the boy and that he wanted $35,000 ransom to buy a farm. Even if the money were paid the letter said, the writer was not sure he would return the boy. He would give assurance, though, he said, that if the boy were not returned in six years McCarrick would receive $10,000 of the money back.

MINISTER FOUND GUILTY.

Western Clergyman Blames Nervousness For Improper Conduct.

Indianapolis, March 25.—That the Rev. John R. Ellis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Bloomington, Ind., is suspended from office as a minister of the church in the United States "because of conduct unbecoming a minister of the gospel," is the finding of the special commission of the Indianapolis presbytery announced.

The minister, who is the father of five children, and who was pastor of a fashionable church in the university town, was found guilty on three of the six counts. The commission recommends that "he devote a year to outdoor life and recuperation."

Ellis was found guilty of unbecoming conduct toward three women, one of whom was the leader of the choir in the church. The charge sustained is that in February Ellis, in the vestibule of the church, placed his arm about Mrs. Anna Schram and said:

"You are sweet enough to kiss."

His defense is that he is suffering from nervous breakdown.

The Business Men's Association has arranged to have O. A. Charles deliver his lecture on the "Deserted Village" at the People's Forum on Thursday evening of next week at Washington School. An open discussion will follow the lecture.

ATHLETIC MEET FOR DUNELLEN JULY 4

Novel Program Similar to Last Year's Success Will Be Put on at That Time.

Another program of athletic competition is being arranged for Dunellen track and field enthusiasts to be held in that village Independence Day afternoon, the events being similar to those of last season, when some of the best performers in this State took part in the races and leaps for the array of prizes offered by Dunellen merchants. The affair will probably be held on the site of the present athletic field and will include sprints and runs of various lengths and running and standing jumps.

The affair is being promoted by the Dunellen Board of Trade and a definite schedule of events will be announced at a meeting of that body to be held in the near future. Several of those actively engaged in the promotion of sporting endeavor in New Jersey have promised their support to the project and it is expected that it will eclipse the marked success of last July 4.

Novelty races will feature the morning's portion of the program and some championship events, emblemic of the Middlesex county title, will be run in the afternoon. A baseball game will be played in the afternoon between the Dunellen semi-pro aggregation and a nine from some nearby town, probably Plainfield. In the evening a pyrotechnical display will be put on.

The final score was 19 to 16. From the beginning the members of the second team played a much better game than their opponents, and had it not been for the shooting of Miss Dorothy Crane the first team would have been whitewashed. Miss Crane also scored fourteen points, five field goals and four fouls. Miss Philips was the star of the winning team, scoring twelve of the points, three field goals and six fouls. Miss Crane scored repeatedly and at the end of the first half the first team was in the lead by the score of 11 to 8.
